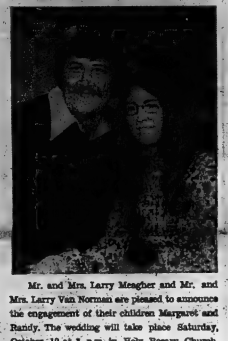
Why am I upset? Because Daisy, whose function is to look pretty and wear lots of clothes, is the ultimate distortion of what a women's life should be. Outside of assuming "girlish postures" — whatever they are — Daisy is a perfectly passive clothes horse who has an exciting life (a diary of her adventures accompanies her), simply through the virtue of being lovely to look at.

Ms. Quant says that the doll is a product of her own fantasy wish to be tall, slim and blonde instead of short and dark-haired.

But should we also foster this discontent and these dreams of glamor in our children? Is Daisy the kind of model that "little mothers" — as girls are called in the press release — should dream of becoming? Is being slim and blonde really more fun?

It seems to me that, at an impressionable and imaginative age, little girls deserve something better to play with.



But I realize I'm in the minority when I read that, at a recent fashion show in Toronto given to promote Daisy, more than 400 parents and children attended. Models were fifteen times Daisy's clothes, and the hit of the evening was, naturally, the wedding gown, the pinnacle of Daisy's success.

Surely there are some thoughtful mothers who will object to dolls like Daisy, and write to toy manufacturers voicing their objections?

Maybe they'll provide us with an alternative, an ordinary-looking doll who could do all kinds of things. Her wardrobe would include mountain climbing gear, a pilot's uniform and a doctor's white coat along with the obligatory silky sequined gown or two. And yes, she would have an apron, especially if a wedding gown was included.

If little girls are going to be given "adult" dolls to fantasize with, why not give them real food for thought instead of candy floss!

Deserter Arrested In Error

DETROIT (AP) — An alleged United States military deserter awaiting amnesty entered the U.S. from Canada this Tuesday and was mistakenly arrested and held by police, customs officials said.

Fred Wetzler, 22, was picked up on the Detroit side of the tunnel which links this city with Windsor, Ont., because he was wanted for desertion, police said.

He was released by police three hours later on orders from the U.S. military after border agents alerted the FBI.

Local customs officials said Tuesday that no draft evaders or deserters would be held in accordance with the amnesty plan announced Monday by President Ford.

Going Home

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP) — Myron Ostapchuk, after finishing a master's degree in Slavic languages at the University of Waterloo last spring, registered Monday for teacher training in Toronto.

The next night, he decided he would end seven years of exile and turn himself in to United States marshals at the Niagara Falls border crossing, one of the few draft resisters who deserves to publicly accept the conditional amnesty announced Monday by President Gerald Ford.

Directors

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Parliamentary Service announced Wednesday that Nolan Heimbuch, John Bennett and Michel Lecavalier have been named deputy regional directors in charge of Parliamentary services for the North, Ontario and Quebec regions respectively.

Population Up

OTTAWA (CP) — The population total at July 1 was estimated at 22,629,000, up 354,000 during the preceding 12 months, Statistics Canada reported Wednesday.

The agency estimates population four times a year and on April 1 the estimate was 22,384,000.

Off Job

MONTREAL (CP) — Construction at the 1976 Olympic Games site was closed down Wednesday as a weekend walked off the job, a spokesman for the Montreal Construction Association said.

DARCY McDOUGH

Troubled Tilbury Just Plain Dull

TILBURY, Ont. (CP) — From cornfield to cornfield, it takes the tourist just three minutes to traverse the length of this town in Ontario's southwest corner.

Yet Tilbury with its 3,889 people and its outwardly drowsy atmosphere seems to get more unfavorable headlines than is compatible with its size.

It has become noted for strains between the younger element and the police. There are allegations of thefts against the police and of police brutality. A town policeman has been charged with assault.

The private cars of two police officers have been set afire mysteriously. There is extensive vandalism against public property.

Is Tilbury different from other Ontario small towns?

People here say no.

One of the complaints of youngsters is that Tilbury is just plain dull.

"It's a bummer," says Al Archer, who is 14.

"There ain't nothing to do but walk the streets," a couple of other teen-agers agree.

The only other way to have some fun in this town is to go somewhere else, adds Al. Another way, he says, is to "buy some weed (marijuana) and smoke it."

Randy Atkinson, 17, who lives on a farm outside town and works part-time in a sporting goods store, says part of Tilbury's problem is that "there's quite a bit of dope around here."

He could name 10 or 11 kids who sell dope, he says. It's mostly "soods" — another term for marijuana.

But Atkinson says Tilbury is just like any other town around.

"Right now, it's in a rut," he says with all these people after the cops. It's like a small Detroit. The kids who get into trouble say it's the police, but they're only doing their jobs.

"Sometimes the cops may go too far, but usually the kid on the other end is saying quite a raucous too."

Al Archer calls the police simple. He points to six break-ins on a recent weekend in which $1,374 worth of goods was stolen and $570 worth of property damaged.

"You could break into a store on the main street at noon and get away with it."

Bernie Labadie, 21, leaning on the bar at the Empire Hotel, says that maybe the police are "a bit heavy sometimes."

"They haven't handed me but from what I've heard, they do it. Maybe they've watched too much TV or something."

Haberdasher Hans Hesslick, recalling broken windows at the Tilbury Lawn Bowling Club, says:

"There's nothing to steal. They just get their kicks out of smashing stuff. I'd like to see the cops take 'em out on a farm road and beat the — out of them."

High school teacher Brian Fisher, member of the town council, and recreation committee, says vandalism in the town's park is so bad that a new shed had to be built of concrete and without windows.

"Listen, I could kick them . . . too. But it wouldn't do any good."

"You know the thing that upsets me most?" he said. "The media regard this town as unique. We're not. I'm sure that Windsor and London have the same thing. We're no different than anyone else."

He points to a recent newspaper story about problems with young people in the town of Chatham, Ont.

"If you took out the names, that story could be about Tilbury. Exactly the same."

Mayor C. E. (Chuck) Carrick is cautious when asked about "the problem."

"Problem? — What problem? We haven't got any problem."

Whelan Not Objecting To Consumers on Board

OTTAWA (CP) — Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan said Wednesday he has no opposition to consumer representation on marketing boards for farm commodities in general.

But in fairness, farmers should have the right to sit on other regulatory agencies such as the Canadian transport commission, he said.

Consumers are already represented on some of the 9 provincial marketing boards. However, no consumers sit on the federal boards such as the Canadian Egg Marketing Agency, whose membership is established by Parliament.

Consumer Affairs Minister Andre Ouellet joined Beryl Plumptre earlier this month in calling for the inclusion of consumer representatives on each marketing agencies.

Mrs. Plumptre, chairman of the food prices review board, said the board recommended in January the establishment of a consumers' and producers' agencies, consumers and government officials to review the structure of marketing boards.

Playmates Silent About Fall

TORONTO (CP) — Frightened playmates of seven-year-old Sandra Mussell, 7 Andover Dr., recruited a passing motorist after the boy was fatally struck by a picnic table last July, an inquest into his death was told Wednesday.

Marc DeSantoro, 18, testified he was playing soccer with the boy's brother and sister when the accident occurred and noticed Sandra and three or four other children playing on the overturned picnic table.

In an interview outside the inquest room, the police chief said the table was rocking back and forth on top of a large stone from the other children and Sandra was alone up in the air on the other side," the boy said. He jumped off too and the table turned over and hit his head.

When the others saw what had happened, they hoped the stone from the park and hid it in a neighboring yard, the 18-year-old added.

Leonard Wall, a parks foreman had earlier testified that the borough considered anchoring the tables when they were placed in the park but rejected the plan for fear of interfering with any fun recommended that the tables, if anchored, be removable for winter storage. A child was killed here last winter when his toboggan crashed into a tree built imbedded in concrete.

Earlier testimony revealed it

Hydro Entitled To Ignore Board Report

TORONTO (CP) — Energy Minister Darcy McKeough said Wednesday Ontario Hydro can ignore an Ontario Energy Board report regarding proposed rate increases.

Mr. McKeough said public hearings into the proposed increases did not impinge on Hydro's ability to set rates since legislation changes only require Hydro to inform him of plans to increase rates so the energy board can hold hearings and report back to him.

Hydro directors will meet next week to discuss the energy board's recommendation that proposed rate increases be held to 12.7 per cent for municipal utilities and 14.5 per cent for large industries. Hydro has asked for a 13.5-per-cent decrease for municipalities and 16 per cent for industries.

IMPORTANT NEWS FOR NEW CAR BUYERS.

Some 1975 cars require the use of more expensive unleaded gasoline which is not readily available.

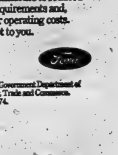
We want you to know...

All Ford of Canada 1975 carlines can be refueled with any gasoline, at any pump, at any station, anywhere. This also means you can select the gasoline price that suits you best.

In order to meet the new Canadian exhaust emission standards, some 1975 cars will be equipped with catalytic converters. The catalytic converter is an emission control device that requires the use of more expensive unleaded gasoline. Because this fuel is not readily available throughout Canada, all engines (with the exception of one, the optional 2.8 litre V6) for all 1975 lines of Ford of Canada cars have been designed to meet the new Canadian exhaust emission standards without requiring catalytic converters. This means they can be refueled with any gasoline—unleaded, premium, or the lower priced regular. Thus, when you're driving a '75 Ford or Mercury line of car you can select the gasoline price that suits you best.

Ford of Canada believes that this will mean a lot to motorists who will not be able to find unleaded gasoline available in their normal driving and fuel-shopping patterns. Particularly those who travel in rural areas where availability is substantially less than major urban centres.

"ECONOMY EXTENDERS"



In addition to convenience of fuel availability and choice, there are a number of features engineered into every 1975 Ford of Canada car line that contribute to fuel economy:

- Steel-belted radial ply tires that extend tread life and reduce rolling friction for better gas mileage.
- Solid state ignition that eliminates the points and condenser and improves fuel economy over long periods due to a more stable spark plug performance.
- Improved engine tuning on many engines that results in increased fuel economy and performance.
- Optimized rear axle ratios that contribute to less engine wear and lower fuel consumption by proper matching to load and use requirements.

See your nearest Ford or Mercury dealer today. He will be glad to discuss everything about the refueling convenience and operating economy of the '75 Ford and Mercury cars including the extended service intervals that contribute to reduced maintenance requirements and, therefore, lower operating costs. It can mean a lot to you.

Large New Bargaining Unit Starts Talks with Railroads

MONTREAL (CP) — A new joint bargaining group of 13 railway unions, representing 75,000 workers across the country, will begin negotiations today with railway companies to secure "a substantial money settlement as soon as possible."

The new coalition, the Associated Railway Unions, is the largest group of railway labour to bend together since 1941, said a spokesman Wednesday.

It will be the "largest, most powerful bargaining unit in the country."

In the coalition are the two unions representing engineers and other train operators, the United Transportation Union and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, as well as eight non-operating unions representing allied workers such as maintenance men and delivery drivers.

The group will negotiate with Canadian National Railways, Canadian Pacific Ltd. and nine other companies to renew annual contracts which expire in December.

Their claims package will include a cost of living adjustment for 1974, inflation protection for next year, payment for increased productivity, and supplements to bring members' salaries up to levels for similar work outside the industry, the spokesman said.

The unions have agreed on claims based on an anticipated inflation rate of 11 per cent, said the spokesman.

Currently the union members earn between $4.39 and $5.35 an hour on average.

Listening To Radio Charged

HAMILTON (CP) — Two Hamilton residents, charged with intercepting a private communication after police discovered a car with a radio capable of monitoring police calls, had their case remanded until Sept. 24 in provincial court Tuesday.

Leslie Lethbridge, 24, and Elizabeth Grier were charged July 17 under the new Protection of Privacy Act with unlawful possession of interception and electromagnetic devices and with intercepting a private communication.

Federal Justice Minister Otto Lang, commenting on the charges in July, said the Protection of Privacy Act is intended as an anti-bugging law to protect the privacy of communication in telephones and wires, not on wireless.

The act forbids all bugging, except by police in regulated circumstances, and possession of bugging devices.

Mr. Lang said at the time he was his opinion that anybody may listen to anybody's else's radio broadcast without violating the act.

But he said enforcement of the act is up to provincial attorneys-general and interpretation of the act is subject to the judgment of the courts.

Police Chief Gordon Torrance of the regional force said at the time that "police intercepts are private" and that "only the courts can decide how the law should be applied."

Cigarettes Up Two Cents

MONTREAL (CP) — Smokers will be paying two cents more after Sept. 20 for a package of cigarettes manufactured by Imperial Tobacco Products Ltd. under wholesale price increases announced Wednesday.

Spokesmen for other cigarette manufacturers said Imperial's action will be reviewed today, and price increases for other brands are expected.

A Benson and Hedges Tobacco Ltd. spokesman said the entire industry is faced with the same rising costs which Imperial has attempted the latest round of price increases.

In a statement, Imperial said retail cigarette prices are expected to increase by 2 cents a package containing 20 or 25 cigarettes, and 20 cents a carton.

Matching A Trend

LONDON (CP) — Manufacturers of clothing are responding to the increased popularity of co-ordinates—items of clothing designed to match one another, says the Clothing Export Council. Women are expected to wear slightly beachwood midskirts and tweedy looking knitwear this fall.

Ontario Farm Workers Worse Off Than in U.S.

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto clergyman who helped to organize child labor committees supporting the cause of migrant farm workers in California, said Wednesday that conditions are worse in southwestern Ontario.

Rev. Robert Lindsey, associate secretary of the United Church of Canada's division of mission, said that on his visit last month to Kent and Norfolk counties, he saw a family of eight living in a tent with no floor, no water and rats coming in the back.

That tent was worse, he said, than anything he saw last year on a trip to California to investigate living conditions of migrant farm workers, mostly Mexicans, there.

Mr. Lindsey is a member of the Toronto Committee for Farm Labour Justice, a branch of a boycott of California grapes and lettuce in support of the United Farm Workers in the United States.

Part of the problem in Ontario is that agricultural workers are not concentrated the way they are in California where one rancher often hires 500 migrants, who may then find strength in numbers, he said.

Ontario farmers generally hire only one or two families, often from Quebec, he added.

Many Ontario residents drive through the province's rural areas and see nothing but clean brick houses and sheds, but "in some cases, there are people in those sheds," Mr. Lindsey said.

Grain Shipments on Lakes May Soon Be Moving Again

MONTREAL (CP) — A labor department spokesman said Wednesday that the bulk of Canada's grain shipments, stalled by two strikes on the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence Seaway since Aug. 2, may be moving again by the end of this month.

Brian Goodyer said a tentative agreement has been reached with the Canadian Merchant Service Guild, representing 425 striking deck officers, while negotiations continue with 460 ship mechanics of the Canadian Marine Officers Union.

A ratification vote by deck officers is expected within 10 days and talks with the mechanics, adjourned Monday after an all-night sitting, are to resume later this week, he said.

Mr. Goodyer said both groups will have to remain to work before ships can start moving again.

The strike action, against the Canadian Lake Carriers Association which represents 15 shipping companies, was taken to support demands for wage parity with shore-based counterparts and other Great Lakes settlements.

The week-long negotiations with deck officers, mediated by Labor Minister John Munro, produced "an acceptable offer," Mr. Goodyer said, although details have been withheld pending the ratification vote.

Robert Cook, Wednesday said published reports that deck officers have been offered a 65-per-cent wage increase in a two-year contract are inaccurate.

He said the union had originally sought a 76-per-cent increase.

Under their last contract, which expired May 31, a third mate earns $3.39 hourly. The Guild has sought an increase to $5 an hour.

The officers are seeking a $1 hourly increase in each year of a two-year contract. They earn $3.44 an hour after a five-year apprenticeship.

About five million bushels of grain for export is piled up in Montreal grain elevators, while to handle two-thirds of Canada's grain shipments.

Grain trades continue to bring in a million bushels a week and ships tied up in Montreal harbor await unloading of their cargo of 2.3 million bushels of wheat.

Handleman Recovered

OTTAWA (CP) — Sidney Handleman, Ontario's housing minister, said Wednesday he is feeling fully recovered from the July 4 heart attack that has sidelined him for more than two months.

The 53-year-old minister, who took over the portfolio last February, said in an interview he is feeling fine, but will have to "get an all-clear from the doctor before I go back to work."

Graveyard Shift Proving Dangerous

EDMONTON (CP) — The graveyard shift has been leading some young Albertans ... to the grave.

A survey has found that the problem appears to be worse in Alberta than in other parts of the country and action is being taken by labor groups, the labor minister and police to curb the situation.

The extent of the problem came to light on Aug. 22 and Aug. 23 in two southern Alberta cities, 165 miles apart.

Seventeen-year-old Peter Van Rixtle was working the overnight, or graveyard shift at an all-night gas station in Medicine Hat. He was beaten to death by assailants who got $100 from the till.

The next night, two men drove up to a Self-Serve Gulf Station in Calgary where 18 year-old John Berne was on duty. The boy was stabbed in the chest and his throat was slashed. The assailants got $86.

Last summer, a 25-year-old man was beaten to death in a robbery at an all-night gas station in Edmonton and the previous year a 15-year old youth was shot and killed in Calgary at 5 a.m. at an all-night grocery store.

Police aren't talking about any connection between the murders, even the two within 24 hours in August. They are seen as the extreme end of a continuing flood of late-night robberies of retail outlets.

The problem appears especially intense in Alberta. Police departments in Toronto, Winnipeg, Regina and Vancouver said in interviews that none of their cities have had a homicide involving late-night service station or gas station operations in recent memory.

The province's first murder at a late night retail outlet in July, 1972, led to the passing of provincial legislation saying that businesses may not hire minors to staff graveyard shifts alone.

But persons under 18 may work the shift if the employer provides "direct and continuous supervision" by an adult.

The Alberta Federation of Labor is complaining that not only is this provision too weak but that it is not even enforced. It wants the government to forbid youths from working the graveyard shift.

However, gas stations and all-night groceries say it is difficult to get anyone except young people to work such hours.

British Liberals Face Tough Test

LONDON (CP) — At 45, Liberal Leader Jeremy Thorpe finds the latest British election campaign the challenge of a political lifetime.

The crucial question is: Can Thorpe, who bit a pink of personal success in the last election eight months ago, sustain the Liberal surge, and translate it into a significant advancement of the party's modest parliamentary strength?

Although the Liberals last time earned six million votes, they emerged from the February poll with only 14 of the 635 Commons seats. They subsequently gained another seat.

The danger for them now is that some Britons who voted for them may be lured back to original Conservative loyalties, or voters who swung to the Liberals may see a sweep in the making for the governing Labor party.

Despite his pre-election plowing for the cameras—this time around storm-ravaged coasts in hovercraft, or disporting himself in a sou'wester and other marine paraphernalia while holding high a huge, freshly-caught fish—supporters and opponents admire his political awareness.

Mohawks Plan Petitions

TYENDINAGA — Both sides in the dispute that has rifled this Mohawk Indian reserve will seek federal government guidance in Ottawa.

Chief William Brant intended attending the Indian Affairs department today and informing them of the controversy that peaked Wednesday night when the removal of elected council was kept confined by a crowd of demonstrators after provincial police had talled to the reserve community centre.

The chief said he also hopes to meet next week with Indian Affairs Minister Jud Buchanan.

Meantime, Cleil Maracle, a member of the five-man council who also has been a spokesman for the protest movement said his group will discuss sending a delegation to Ottawa.

The group, opposed to an Indian-owned industrial corporation on the reserve, last week presented Indian Affairs officials in Ottawa with the same petition on which Wednesday night's demonstration centered.

The petition expresses no confidence in the council, and asks that it be dissolved and new elections called.

Petition Refused

Despite a two-hour protest by militant Tyendinaga Mohawks, the band council seems to have quelled the insurgence connected with a new business operating on the reserve. Reserve residents — in a petition demanded councillors' resignation and an election. Both demands were turned down.

Talks Held in Caucus

Compromise Hoped For In Labor-UCS Dispute

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

The threat of an organized labor boycott of this year's United Way campaign still hangs over the head of Belleville's United Community Services (UCS), following a meeting with labor representatives Wednesday night.

The executive committee of the UCS will meet today to meet with Quinte District Labor Council and Canadian Labor Congress officials to iron out the dispute, which began last spring when a labor motion was passed to boycott the campaign "to get rid of double dipping."

Ian Reilly, the council's vice president and author of the motion, explained double dipping as the practice of an agency first getting public funds through the United Way and then later by applying for city council grants.

Pat Kerwin, an Ottawa spokesman for the labor congress, suggested the United Way might completely fund particular facets of agency work rather than subsidizing a "percentage of the entire agency.

This way, he said, an agency would not be double dipping to supplement United Way funds but would be applying for additional funding for other work areas.

Following the discussion of the Kerwin proposal, the labor group adjourned to a caucus session, leaving the UCS to await a yes or no decision concerning the boycott.

Though at the meeting's outset Mr. Kerwin urged that reporters be given the result of the discussions, Mr. Reilly, after returning from the labor caucus, immediately asked the general meeting to go into caucus, excluding reporters. During a telephone interview with The Intelligencer, council president Doug Sword offered no explanation for this request and refused any comment surrounding the boycott threat.

When reporters questioned Mr. Reilly of the need for a caucus session when the proposal had already been discussed as an eventual outcome, he said: "We'll tell these people (UCS executive) in confidence what we'll tell our executive ... whether we'll support the campaign or not."

Mrs. O'Rourke said a spoby solution to the problem is important since the October campaign is only weeks away.

It is expected labor representatives will meet with the council executives and a formal labor decision will come Tuesday evening.

To further safeguard whatever transpired during the final caucus session, Mrs. O'Rourke said the regular, public meeting of the UCS board Thursday night would also go into caucus for discussion of the proposal.

"I'm not too tough enough on the agencies," said Mr. Reilly, who said he believes the program can be instituted more quickly.

Despite both sides' optimism for Mr. Kerwin's suggestion, labor representatives refused to announce any boycott decision.

"A faith in the campaign grows, donations will increase and gradually enough money will be available through the fund so that agencies need not apply for municipal grants," she said.

Mr. Reilly said "it's either we don't double dip or you won't be in next year's United Way, or more like Mr. Kerwin's idea."

Mrs. O'Rourke said it will take time to implement a system of this sort and that it might be used with one or two agencies the next campaign.

"You're not tough enough on the agencies," said Mr. Reilly, who said he believes the program can be instituted more quickly.

Despite both sides' optimism for Mr. Kerwin's suggestion, labor representatives refused to announce any boycott decision.

County Council Argues Merits of Govt. Study

Hastings county council will not ask the provincial government to conduct a municipal restructuring study for the southern part of the county, including Belleville and Trenton.

This was the recommendation of the council's municipal reform committee Wednesday and the report calling for no action was approved on a 21-12 recorded vote.

Earlier this year, Belleville and Trenton councils approved the idea of a restructuring study for the southern part of the county to make application for a Provincial study. However, after consultation with local urban officials the county reform committee decided to sit on the request and report to the September session of council.

In her report to council Wednesday, Tweed Reeve Barbara Allen, as chairman of the municipal reform committee, outlined the advantages and disadvantages of a restructuring study.

Reeve Allen said the advantages of such a study might delay any proposed amalgamations or amalgamations would illustrate the financial aspects of any proposed restructuring, it would enable restructuring of the county eligible for additional grants, and would indicate the division of responsibilities to be allocated in first and second tier governments.

But the disadvantages were that, a study might commit the county to implement a (government) change that may not be wanted, and would, the report said, indicate lack admission "failure of the present system.

In addition, such a study might indicate functions to be assumed by the county which are not necessary or desirable — police, water and sewage, library services, garbage collection and disposal.

"As things stand now," the report noted, "the city of Belleville and the town of Trenton have access to, and participation in, the county's committee system". An extension of this role could include the formation of two or more joint boards.

By preserving the present county structure and expanding the committee system, the changes would be minimized the report went on.

Reeve Allen said she thought a study for Hastings county would be a colossal waste of money" at this time.

Warden Jack McKenzie noted that a restructuring study was already under way for Northumberland county and said the end result could be that part of that county might be joined to Hastings.

Committee Advised On Labor Problem

Pensioned servicemen seeking civilian jobs are willing to work for less pay, the Belleville and District Employment Committee was told Wednesday.

The claim came from a veteran labor negotiator and member of the committee — Reg Loader, international vice-president of the Jewelry Workers Union.

"They retire on a very nice pension. They will go to a plant to work and all they want is an occupation — something to do," said Mr. Loader.

At first, he said, retired servicemen will work for less although after a while they become "money-conscious."

The issue was first raised by Edris Dram, deputy-reeve of Wicklow-Bangor-McClure Townships.

Deputy-reeve Oram wondered if pensioned servicemen, through a "gentlemen's agreement" take jobs away from men in need.

He said a person cannot be denied the right to work, said Dorothy Brown, committee secretary.

The majority of ex-servicemen have small pensions which are reduced by inflation, said Edward Buckley, director of retraining at Loyalist College.

The college has a special program — Project Loyalist — for retraining servicemen for civilian jobs.

At present, there are 91 men from across Canada taking courses in accountancy, real estate appraisal and electrical engineering.

Most of the courses involve job areas where there is a demand for trained people, said Mr. Buckley.

Force's New Home Opposed by Police

NAPANEE — Napanee's police force will soon move to new headquarters over the Shopsite building on Bellerville Rd.

Members of the force have voiced strong objection to the move, made necessary after the town's museum arrangement to move into the old county jail.

Police claim there are no fire exits from the second floor and taking people up and down stairs will create problems.

The building is unfit for a police station," said Constable W. S. Lock, president of the Napanee Police Association.

The move takes place as town council debates asking the Ontario Provincial Police to take over town policing. The Ontario Task Force on Policing has recommended that small towns such as Napanee should disband their own forces and use the OPP.

Napanee council has consistently refused to set up a police commission and supervise its force with a council committee.

Meanwhile, opposition in the OPP take-over is mounting and Napanee businessman Supermarket owner Harry Taylor claims the OPP would cost Napanee $35,000 a man and prove to be more expensive than the existing seven-member force.

Construction Booming

The S. A. Armstrong plant under construction in the city's northwest industrial park is one of six new industrial centres now being built. The 30,000-square-foot plant is expected to employ about 30 people in the manufacture of light castings for pumps and heat exchangers.

Builders Want Control Of House Warranties

A delegation of six members from the Quinte Home Builders Association will travel to the meeting of the Ontario Council branch of the Housing and Urban Development (HUDAC) in St. Catharines next week.

There they will propose a resolution that the Ontario Council enter into negotiations with the provincial government to provide a provincial warranty program and have the Ontario Council of Urban Council members of Hudac.

The association wants the responsibility of house faults to be under builder warranty rather than under federal government warranty.

Quinte Home Builders president Mike DeMark said during the group's dinner meeting at Sun Luck Wednesday night: "We want to build our own warranty system and have it on the provincial not federal level. We want to be able to police our own warranty system."

He compared the situation to the automotive industry. "There the builders of the cars have their own warranty system rather than have the federal government provide one," he said.

Teeing Off

The Belleville Sales and Ad Club had their annual golf meeting at the Bay of Quinte Golf and Country Club Wednesday. A large turnout of members took advantage of the warm weather to improve their golf scores and have fun at the same time. Showing that golf isn't all serious business, club member Al Lyons gives up trying to drink a pail and shares a laugh with Jack Dickens, left, Sales and Ad Club president and director, Rick Mohan.

Survey Indicates Population's Opinion of City's Priorities

By JIM SMELLIE
Staff Reporter

Roads, downtown buildings and industrial development were the topics a survey of 1,800 people in Belleville to consider top priorities the city should attend to immediately.

During the summer, five high school graduates from Centennial Secondary School, working under an Opportunities For Youth grant, questioned 1,000 people from all walks of life about what they considered the immediate needs of the city.

The project called Priorities of People (POP) was carried out by Mark Everard, Doug Preston, Drew Goodwin, Randy Wilkinson and Malcolm Jones on an eight-weeks period. It was sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce.

While areas of attention were flexible, the students set as guidelines a total of 15 topics, ranging from city maintenance and recreation to social services and environment.

Subdivided under these general areas were such topics as the harbor; bus service, trailer parks, the waterfront, entertainment for young people, roads, and police protection.

Of the 1,000 people who answered the survey, 238 of them thought the condition of Belleville's roads are a definite area of concern.

And 16.3 per cent thought they should be the city's chief priority.

The 39-page report states: "roads were centered out as the single largest problem in Belleville. And many people who have lived here or traveled in other Canadian cities have pointed out that Belleville's roads are among the worst they have driven on, with some citing them as the reason for the fast depreciation of their vehicles."

Take 2

About 75 persons saw sidewalk maintenance as an area of concern. The report recommends that sidewalks be in places where traffic flow and schools dictate their need and that they be maintained better.

Second highest in the list of priorities was downtown buildings with 9.1 per cent listing it as their top priority. A total of 222 people mentioned the downtown buildings as being an area of concern.

The report says: "It was felt that downtown Front Street be made a uniform height and that general painting and refurbishing be carried out on those streets in need of it. The city could provide low-interest loans or tax concessions to building owners who agree to make these updating improvements."

The report goes on to say that above ground floors should be attended to, overhanging signs removed, pocket parks constructed in front out areas and old eye traps be filled before they burn down.

As for parking, which 118 people regarded as an area of concern and 12.8 per cent a first priority, it is recommended that a multi-storey parking garage be constructed on one of the present downtown parking sites.

Also of concern to some people in the Moira River waterfront, which some considered a natural link to downtown. Choosing it as a first priority were 3.3 per cent of those asked. Sixty-six people saw it as an area of concern.

The report recommends that a greenbelt be located around the Moira River for shoppers and workers to eat and relax in during the summer.

The third topic chosen as needing immediate attention is industrial development. Of those asked, 2.8 per cent listed this as their first priority while 138 people mentioned it as area of concern.

The report mentions that it was suggested that the city serviced land for new industries. "Terms could be raised for this, as the city would benefit from an increased tax base, in the long run some thought."

The report also recommended that Belleville continue with its policy of locating industry in designated areas, that city council take steps to allow Belleville to grow industrially and that this growth not be stopped to encroach on Belleville's environment, appearance or residential tax rate.

Reed Rambles

Cats Crowd Als

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Saskatchewan coach John Payne suggested Wednesday that game situations will be made in the roster of the Roughriders after they lost a Canadian Football League interlocking game 23-19 to Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

"We just couldn't do anything. We dropped passes, fumbled a punt and had passes intercepted. We're going to have to do something to make some changes," said Payne after the game in Hamilton.

Payne's clan the Ticats, virtually ignored George Reed's spectacular effort as the Rider fullback ran for 191 yards to become the first professional football player to rush for more than eight miles.

Reed needed 46 yards to reach that record-setting distance and he made it on his sixth carry—a 12-yard burst over the right side of the Hamilton line early in the second quarter.

It marked the 34th game in which Reed has gained 100 yards or more—his ninth this season—and leaves him four short of the career total registered by now-retired Jimmy Brown who played with Cleveland Browns of the National Football League.

But the second-place Ticats, behind young quarterback Chuck Ealer, rallied to their fourth consecutive victory and moved six points ahead of Toronto Argonauts and Ottawa Rough Riders in the Eastern conference.

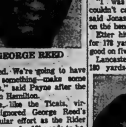
Saskatchewan remained in a tie with British Columbia Lions for second place in the West, two points behind Edmonton Eskimos.

Ealer looked impressive, but Hamilton coach Jerry Williams thought he was cooling out nicely in the fourth quarter and he replaced him with Don Jonas, who manufactured the insurance points for the Ticats.

Former Winnipeg Blue Bomber quarterback moved the home team 43 yards to six inches; then threw a 19-yard scoring pass to another veteran, Terry Evanshen. It was the wide receiver's first touchdown since joining the team after being released by Montreal Alouettes early in the season.

Dave Fleming and Evanshen scored the Hamilton touchdowns, while Ian Sunter kicked three field goals and two converts.

Sunter hit on 13 of 30 passes for 178 yards, while Jonas was good on five of six for 85 yards.



Lancaster made 10 of 21 for 140 yards—two of his passes being intercepted with Saskatchewan in scoring position before getting relief from young Ron Matthieu, who completed two passes for 27 yards.

In tonight's action at the Civic stadium in Toronto, the Argonauts will entertain Ottawa Rough Riders in an EFC contest that should produce a sole occupancy of third place—barring a tie.

Rod Core, who has been on the injured list, will return to the Argos offensive line against the Rough Riders. He will replace guard Terry Sheista, who has been playing with a groin injury.

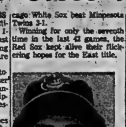
Red Sox Remain in the Hunt

Orioles Close in on Yankees

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

New York Yankees and Baltimore Orioles are still running it 1-2 in the American League East race but the Orioles are closing fast and Boston Red Sox are moving up from behind.



Those teams moved closer together in the pennant race after the Orioles defeated the Yankees 10-4 and the Red Sox whipped Detroit Tigers 8-5 Wednesday night.

The results left the Yankees with a half-game lead over the Orioles and left the Red Sox within striking distance at 3½ games behind in third place.

The Red Sox got an extra push in the stretch run from rookie Fred Lynn. He collected four hits, including a double and triple, and drove in four runs.

In other American League games, Oakland A's beat Kansas City Royals 4-3, California Angels beat Texas Rangers 4-1 in the first game of a doubleheader before losing the second, 2-1; Cleveland Indians tripped Milwaukee Brewers 5-4 and Chicago White Sox beat Minnesota Twins 3-1.

Winning for only the seventh time in the last 42 games, the Red Sox kept alive their flickering hopes for the East title.

Expos Sweep Two

Top Teams Lose

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Neither first-place Los Angeles Dodgers nor runner-up Cincinnati Reds were acting like pennant contenders in the national League.

Both lost for the second straight time Wednesday night, opening the Dodgers' edge to 3½ game lead. Los Angeles was beaten by Houston Astros 3-2 in 11 innings while Cincinnati dropped a 5-5 decision to San Diego Padres.

Meanwhile, the National League East race tightened. Pittsburgh Pirates, Chicago Cubs' lead to 1½ games, beating the Cardinals 4-1.

Elsewhere, Montreal Expos swept a doubleheader from New York Mets 2-1 and 6-5, while Cubs topped Philadelphia Phillies 5-3 and Atlanta Braves downed San Francisco Giants 4-3.

In the 18th, with Charlie Hough pitching for the Dodgers, Greg Gross smacked a single and raced home with the winning run on Bob Watson's double.

Light-hitting Enno Hernandez, who said he never had driven in more than two runs in a game, knocked in four for San Diego, against the Reds on a wild pitch the winning run on John Grubb's sacrifice fly.

Jim Rooker burled a six-hit-ter for his 13th victory and Al Oliver doubled in two runs, boosting the Pirates past the Cardinals.

The Expos won the opener with a two-run seventh inning, capped by Tim Foli's pinch-hitting squeeze bunt single. they took the nightcap behind the combined four-hit pitching of rookies Dennis Blair and Dale Murray.

Tom Seaver, the Mets' high-salaried ace, was expected to leave the second game because of a recurrence of pain in the sciatic nerve of his left hip. It was the same injury that plagued him earlier in the season.

Rookie Ron Dunn drove in two runs with a single and a double, and scored the one run, leading the Cubs' attack. Rick Reuschel, Chicago's top winner, pitched hitless ball for the first three innings but pulled a hamstring muscle running out a single and had to leave the game. Relievers Steve Stone and Ken Frailing then completed a five-hitter.

Hank Aaron, baseball's home run king, drove in two runs with his 92nd homer and a single, and Rowland Office smacked a two-run triple for the Braves. The homer was the 19th of the season for the 40-year-old Aaron, who is playing his final year in the majors.

Lynn, starting only his second major league game since being recalled from Pawtucket of the International League, lined a run-scoring single in the first, tripled off the wall in left center as Boston went ahead 4-3 in the third and doubled off the wall in left for two more RBI in the fourth.

Then he lined a single to right center and scored on Dick McAuliffe's fifth homer, a drive into the Boston bullpen in right center in the sixth.

Rookie shortstop Rick Burleson had three hits, including a double, and scored one run while driving in another as the Red Sox broke out of a batting slump with a 16-hit attack.

Detroit's Al Kaline had a home run, double and a single, leaving him only four hits short of becoming the 12th player in history to reach the 3,000 mark.

Kaline's homer produced the Tigers' last two runs in the ninth. The blow tied Kaline with Tigers Hornsby for 14th place on the all-time RBI list with 1,578.

Mike Cuellar became a 20-game winner for the fourth time as Baltimore broke a tie with seven runs in the sixth inning and crushed New York. The triumph was Baltimore's 11th in the past 22 games.

The Orioles' big inning against three pitchers included three walks—two with the bases loaded—three singles and consecutive two-run doubles by Rich Coggins and Bobby Grich.

Cuellar, 20-10, scattered 12 hits, two apiece in the second, third, fourth and eighth innings and three in the ninth. The veteran left-hander raised his lifetime mark against the Yankees to 17-7. It was the first time the Yankees have lost two games in a row since Aug. 12-13.

"I think those two games were important, but not critical," said New York Manager Bill Virdon. "I think this one tonight is critical for our club. I think we need to win this one."

Bruce Bochte and Joe Lahoud bagged 2-game winner Fergie Jenkins for successive home runs in the first inning and California went on to beat Texas 4-3 in the first game of the doubleheader. Steve Hargan pitched a three-hitter and rookie Tom Robson singled in two runs as Texas beat California 2-0 in the second game.

Reggie Jackson singled in two runs during a four-run fifth inning, helping Oakland beat Kansas City.

Frank Robinson's 21st home run of the season and first for Cleveland capped a four-run rally in the sixth inning and gave the Indians their victory over Milwaukee.

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Yankee catcher Thurman Munson said Wednesday he has played more than half of the 1976 baseball season while suffering from painful tendonitis in his throwing arm. Yankee manager Bill Virdon said Munson's handling of pitchers and his over-all value to the team has kept him in the American League team's starting lineup.

Ealey Directs Bombers to Win

WINNIPEG (CP) — Coach Wally Billey says the Winnipeg Blue Bombers still need improvement if they are to be contenders for the Canadian Football League's western conference championship.

But he was obviously pleased with what he saw Wednesday night as Chuck Ealey, playing his first full game as Winnipeg quarterback, piloted the Bombers to a 19-13 victory over Edmonton Eskimos.

"I thought he did an excellent job with what we gave him," said Billey of his new quarterback.

Eskimo coach Ray Jauch blamed the loss on the fact Wednesday was the fourth game for the team in 16 days.

But he added, "We're still in first place and we're still master of our own fate. I suspect we'll bounce back and be just as effective."

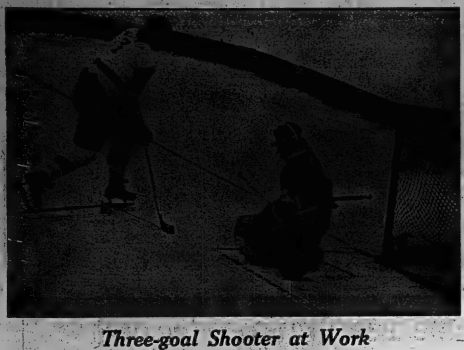
The Bombers marched deep into Edmonton territory three times in the first half, but the Edmonton defence tightened up each time they penetrated past the 30-yard line.

Placekicker Walt McKee was successful on one such drive from 34 yards out, but two other attempts—one from the 38 and the other from the 15—resulted only in singles.

Early in the second quarter, Stuart Lang snagged a 53-yard pass from Eskimo quarterback Tom Wilkinson and got to the Winnipeg five yard line and two plays later Roy bell shoved his way across for Edmonton's only major.

Dave Cutler converted to set the stage for Edmonton's 7-5 half time lead and early in the third quarter, he added a field goal.

But two second-half interceptions by rookie defensive back Merv Walker—thrown by Eskimo quarterback Lemmerman—resulted in go-ahead touchdowns.



The first, which Walker returned for 47 yards to the Edmonton 27, enabled Ealey a few plays later to set up John Bledsoe for a three-yard touchdown plunge despite a shoulder injury Bledsoe had suffered earlier in the game.

After McKee converted, Bombers led 13-10 until 4:27 of the final quarter when Dave Cutler kicked a field goal to make it 13-12.

Then Eskimo pass strategy failed when a pass intended for Stuart Lang was picked by by touchdown player, despite a Ealey tackle. Walker then 12 yards out. McKee's convert completed the scoring.

Bell, the heart of the Edmonton attack, was held to just 61 yards on 21 carries, and the entire Eskimo rushing totalled only 79 yards.

The Bomber attack, though it gained two yards less than Edmonton's, was more balanced, with 197 yards rushing and 128 passing.

Three-goal Shooter at Work

Mike Watt (7) shoots in on Kingston Voyageur's goaltender, Joe Myles, and fires the puck into the short side. Myles looks over his shoulder just in time to see the puck entering the net. The goal was the third for Watt and the 12th for the Bellerville Bobcats. The locals won the contest, at the Memorial Arena, 10-6. It was the first exhibition game of the season.

Watt Paces Bobcats' 10-6 Win

By MIKE BRADSHAW
Sports Staff

The Belleville Bobcats opened their exhibition schedule Wednesday night with a 10-6 trouncing of Kingston Voyageurs.

About 300 people were on hand at the Memorial Arena to see the Cats pick up the victory.

"Some of the boys played well," said Bobcat coach, Tim Williams, "but the play in general was lacking a bit."

"It was the first game of the season, though," he added.

The veterans of the team were the ones who led the way, Mike Watt headed for three goals to collect the only hat trick of the game for the locals.

The two clubs scrambled around for the first 10 minutes of the opening period and it took the agility of Al Garrison to get the Cats on he right track. He opened he scoring just after the halfway mark in the opening frame.

Once Bobcats got on the scoreboard they appeared to be a different team. Their passes started clicking a little better and their offence began moving up the ice as a unit.

Before the first period was over the score was 4-0 Belleville on goals by Garrison, Jim Richardson, Watt and rookie Curt McLean.

After firing in four goals in 10 minutes the locals must have known they had won the contest because they simply stopped putting their hearts into the game.

They scored two goals in the second period, both were unassisted, one by rookie Wayne Cluberry and another by Captain, Rob Foster. Foster showed peak form in the contest outskating everyone on the ice on many occasions.

Kingston got three goals in the second period. Two from Kirk Twigg and one from Brian Langille.

Belleville really came together in the final five minutes of the middle period, but couldn't put one in the net. During that five minute span Kingston didn't get out of their own end.

In the final period the locals got four more goals, two from Watt and a goal from Bob Thompson.

Kingston scored three in the third. One each from John McAdam, Paul Stanton and Twigg with his third of the night.

The locals were in control of the game from start to finish. Even when they weren't trying very hard they were still in control.

Former Bobcat coach, Moe Hunter, commented, "there are a lot of young, new faces on the Cats this year and many of them are fine hockey players."

Mark Howe for Tardif In Game 2 Tonight

BRUCE MacGREGOR
Words Of Caution

TORONTO (CP) — Bruce Harris said Mark, who MacGregor, an unsung hero in Team Canada's 3-3 deadlock with the Soviet Union in the opening game of the 1974 hockey summit series, raised a question Wednesday about Canada's ability to play two good games in a row.

"Sometimes, when you're not in top shape you can't reach back for the extra energy you need," said the red-haired right winger, who jumped to Edmonton Oilers of the World Hockey Association from New York Rangers of the National Hockey League.

"I'm not saying it will happen that way, but it could."

MacGregor said the Russian team, while outclassed, produced no surprises.

"We knew they were fast and knew they'd make strong plays-only. But they weren't any more crippled than I had expected."

MacGregor, a noted playoff performer and solid checking forward Russian netminder Vladislav Tretiak was brilliant.

His statements echoed those of coach Billy Harris, who suggested Team Canada again had under-rated the lanky Soviet star. "Tretiak was considered the Soviets' weak point before the 1972 Canada-Russia series. He's played well.

"After the opening of the current series, which continues here tonight, with the second game suspected Tretiak had played beyond his capacity for many years ago.

"If anything," said Harris, "Tretiak is better than he was two years ago."

Harris announced Team Canada will make one change from the lineup that rallied to overtake the Soviet Union in Quebec City Tuesday night. Mark Howe will play left wing and Marc Tardif will be rested.

making. He accepted the fact that Tretiak did what he had to do—leaving his leg at times to make a reaction too long before shot.

"Frank made a great play to get in front," said Harris. "Tretiak made even a better play to beat him."

Harris also said the Team Canada alternates in the first two games—defenceman Marty Howe, Pat Price and Al Hamilton and forwards Jim Harrison and Tim Webster—will get a chance to play in Winnipeg Saturday, when the third game is scheduled.

He indicated previously that goaltender Don McLeod probably will start the third game. One minor off-ice incident surfaced Wednesday when Douglas Fisher, president of Hockey Canada, said the Soviet hockey club threatened to go home after the opening game because of a change in travel arrangements.

October 30 Fight Date

NEW YORK (AP) — The George Foreman-Muhammad Ali heavyweight championship fight in Kinshasa, Zaire, has been rescheduled for Oct. 30, promoter Hank Schwartz said Wednesday.

That will set fight time at 10 p.m. EDT on Tuesday, Oct. 30.

The governments of Zaire had announced Tuesday that the fight was being postponed from Sept. 25 until Oct. 23, or Oct. 22 in the United States. There was no reason given for the additional week's delay, and there was no immediate confirmation of the date from Zaire.

Schwartz said Ali and Foreman, whose cut above his right eye has caused the postponement, consult in Zaire until the fight.

He said Video Techniques, the group which is promoting the fight and of which he is vice president, has not had "one penny" closed circuit television locations for the fight. He did not say how many of the 600 locations had been lost.

He said the closed circuit fight would be shown in "many" outdoor stadiums in California and in auditorium presentations of the country.

McRae's Shade Tony's

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — A triple by Ed Neudorf and Larry Christe's single with none out in the ninth inning Wednesday gave Niagara Falls Mollises a 1-0 victory over Oshawa Tony's in the opening game of the Ontario Football League final.

The second game in the best-of-five series will be played Sat-urday in Oshawa with the third game here Sunday.

With John Neufeld of Niagara Falls and Oshawa's Paul Wannamaker hooked up in a scoreless pitching duel, Neudorf led off the ninth with a long drive up the alley in left-centre field. Christe then drove Wannamaker's second pitch up the middle to score Neudorf with the game-ending run.

WHA-NHL Games On

TORONTO (CP) — The World Hockey Association and its players' association announced Wednesday that an agreement has been reached clearing the way for a proposed exhibition series against National Hockey League teams.

Twelve games, the first on Sept. 26, have been scheduled between WHA and NHL clubs, but the WHA Players' Association announced last month its membership would refuse to participate unless the league provided some concessions.

WHA president Dennis Murphy and Ron Roberts, executive director of the players' association, said in a joint statement that agreement has been reached whereby the players' pension plans have been preserved and the players have endorsed the exhibition series.

The league's insurance provides payment of the balance of a player's contract in the event he is seriously injured and unable to continue playing ...

Short Players but CFB Squad Long on Try

According to a Bay of Quinte Soccer Association official, a rule which prohibits high school players from taking part in the senior grouping's games if they play for school teams, has cost the league two, and possibly three teams.

"It's a school rule," explained BSA treasurer Ray Canonica, Wednesday," and it has caused Belleville United to withdraw front competition in Pee Helper Trophy play while Brighton has also dropped out of Cup action."

Canonica said Cooey's Haulage has also packed it in for the season and adds many of that team's players are students at Bayside Secondary School, it is possible the same rule is responsible.

One talented young player who attends Bayside Secondary School has decided he'll finish the season with his BQSA team.

Said Trenton Whitley Insurance is happy Mike Roach made that decision.

Playing at Centennial Park in Trenton in a Belleville Chantity Cup match, Whitley's got a battle from a short-handed Canadian Forces Base team before chalking up a 3-1 win.

All Roach did was score two goals and make the play for the other counter.

Henry Söderval was the other marksman for the winners.

CFB, with only nine men in the lineup, managed to stay close until play was well into the second half.

In only his second game at a forward position, CFB's Adrien Dalyzer supplied the spark up front for the losers. He counted the visitors' only goal to make it a 3-1 score early in the second half.

Dalyzer also had CFB's lone tally in a 5-1 Trenton Challenge Cup loss to Trenton Spartacus on the weekend.

Belleville Golden Mile Restaurant Olympics are in Colours Sunday for a Charity Cup match with pennant winning Tony's.

Diving full length to make the save, veteran CFA Trenton goalie Ray Hore does his part in keeping short-handed team in the game during 3-1 Belleville Charity Cup loss to Trenton Whitley's, Wednesday. Hore, who coaches the Whitley team, was a standout performer for the losers.

Chargers in Soccer Sweep

Centennial Secondary School junior and senior soccer teams won their opening games of the season Wednesday against Prince Edward Collegiate Institute of Picton.

The doubleheader was played at Centennial in brisk 50-degree weather.

In the senior game, Centennial Chargers took the lead early in the first half on the way to a 3-1 win, on a goal by Brian Towers who moved in on the Picton goalie and scored with a low shot into the lefthand corner.

Play from here on in was scrumbly with many passes going wild, but neither team was able to cash in on the mistakes. Centennial hit the crossbar twice before finally getting their second goal. The goal was scored by Keith Perry as he walked in alone on the P.E.C. goalie who had no chance.

Perry was a standout for the home team leading the attacks and showing the best ball control throughout the game.

Going into the second half the Picton team was not about to be counted out. Led by Grade 13 student Randy Nelson, the visitors pressed the Chargers, forcing them into mistakes.

Fred Clark and Randy Nelson combined on the Picton goal midway through the second half on a well executed play, Nelson split the Centennial defence, drawing the play to his side of the field then put a well placed pass to Clark, who slipped the ball home.

Late in the game, Centennial dumped the ball out of their own end, running out the clock.

In the junior game, three goals by Larry Baldwin led the Centennial team to a 3-1 win over a much improved Picton team. Brian De Roche scored the only PEC goal.

New Clause Protects Junior Clubs

TORONTO (CP) — A new clause in contracts being offered players in the Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A series this year is attracting negative reviews in Ottawa, but a Toronto lawyer familiar with player-owner agreements says it is the only way junior hockey operators can continue operating.

Al Eagleson, who handles a number of pro hockey stars among his clients and is executive director of the National Hockey League Players' Association, blames the World Hockey Association for the need to revamp the player contracts, not only in the OHA but also in the Western Canada Hockey League and the Quebec Major Junior A circuit.

"The concern is that some of the major junior A owners are not getting money from the WHA due them," Eagleson said Wednesday.

"The WHA has refused to pay for players developed by these junior teams."

He said because of the WHA's refusal to pay a development fee, the National Hockey League has withdrawn its financial support of the hockey program that paid hefty prices to clubs of graduating juniors who turned professional.

The new contract, prepared by Toronto lawyer Joe Kane, demands that 20 per cent of the player's worth during his first three years of professional hockey be returned through the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association (CAHA) to the player's last junior team to compensate that organization for development.

Under an earlier agreement with the NHL, the major junior A teams received $40,000 for an under-age player moving into the NHL, $20,000 for signing any graduate junior across the top 20 draft choices and a graded lesser amount for subsequent signings.

OHA Major Junior A defenceman picked up their new contracts at a meeting in Toronto earlier this week. Some junior teamsl have not yet made them available to the players.

A report Tuesday from Ottawa said players, agents, lawyers and family members held a stormy meeting Sunday night to discuss the new contract and were so upset by the percentage clause that the league called a meeting in Toronto on Monday to settle the issue.

This was denied Wednesday, however, by OHA business manager Bill Hanley, who said the junior teams did not even pick up their contracts until Monday. He said there was no discussion whatever by the owners of the new contract and its anticipated ramifications.

Hanley said a commissioner is to be named by the OHA Major Junior A series "sometime this week," would be responsible for explaining the clause to players and other team personnel.

Eagleson, noting a number of players from the CHA jumped to the WHA last season without their former junior team receiving any compensation, cited the case of Toronto Marlboros.

"The Marlboros alone lost the Howes (Marty and Mark) Wayne Dillon, Tom Edger and Peter Marin to the WHA," said Eagleson.

The two Howes, Dillon and Edger still were eligible to play junior hockey last season when they moved into pro ranks and under the earlier formula worked out with the NHL the Marlboros would have received $150,000 in development fees.

They received nothing.

"I'm certainly not in agreement with a clause of this nature being in a player contract," said Eagleson. "But I also appreciate the dilemma that faces OHA owners.

"It was included for financial protection . . . a developing fee.

"I don't know of any junior owner who is making a dime at the gate. Without these moneys coming from the pros . . . most of them could go out of operation."

He added, however, he did not feel it was fair to tax a young player on a percentage basis, suggesting the WHA should enter into an agreement with the CAHA similar to that under which the NHL operated.

Kane, former coach of Ontario senior teams and a onetime commissioner of the Central Hockey League, was not immediately available for comment.

Carleton on the Block

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto Toros are in the process of trading their captain, Wayne Carleton, but his destination remains a secret.

Toros' general manager Buck Houle admitted Wednesday the World Hockey Association team was "in the process of trading Carleton," but said it could be one of a number of clubs with whom they have been negotiating.

Houle said the most serious talks had been with Vancouver Blazers, "but we'll have more to say on it in the next two or three days."

Carleton was appointed team captain and signed to a multi-year contract last year the Toros' owner John Bassi said made him the third highest paid player in the league behind Bobby Hull and Gordie Howe.

The same owner now says he wants to get rid of Carleton and his hefty paycheque.

Houle explained that with the recent signing of 18-year-old defenceman Jim Dunkiewicz to a multi-year pact worth an estimated $200,000, "we have to keep our payroll in balance by moving a player."

RETIRES

NEW YORK (AP) — Centre Willis Reed of New York Knicks has retired due to an ailing knee, following a 10-year National Basketball Association career, the club announced Wednesday. Reed, 32, had two years remaining on a contract reported to be worth $300,000 a year. Reed was the most valuable player in the NBA's playoffs in 1970 and 1973, which were the two years the Knicks won the league title.

Computerized Legal Research Assists Lawyers in Quebec

MONTREAL (CP) — A computerized legal research University of Montreal gives Quebec lawyers a service "unique in Canada", says Prof. Ejan Mackaay.

"One aspect is that it puts the small lawyer in better shape when fighting cases against big legal firms," Prof. Mackaay said in an interview.

Harried lawyers have spent hours searching through law libraries for a legal precedent that might triumphantly break an apparently hopeless case.

The new system—though it has limits—presents instead a picture of swiftly moving computer operations that reduce the search to minutes, said Prof. Mackaay, a law professor.

A total of 14,000 cases now are stored in the university computer. That figure includes all recorded Judicial decisions handed down by the Supreme Court of Canada and the Quebec Court of Appeal since 1950 plus all Quebec Superior Court judgments since 1965.

"At present the bank covers general law—law that the general practitioner might want," said Prof. Mackaay.

Technically, there is nothing to prevent the service being expanded to include "specialized banks"—such as labor, tax and company law—which would make it more attractive to the big law firms.

The system, called DATUM, Documentation Automatique des Textes Juridiques de l'Universite de Montreal—evolved out of a government-non-profit company, SEDOJ, Service de Documentation Juridique Inc., whose board includes senior civil servants, judges and university professors.

Prof. Mackaay, 36, SEDOJ general director, developed his training in law and applied logic in his native Holland and in France before coming to Canada in 1967 and joining the university where a colleague, Prof. Jacques Boucher, had the idea of automating the legal code file.

Prof. Mackaay said DATUM which cost approximately $750,000 before opening for business in early 1971, differed in conception and scope from somewhat similar projects originating at such universities as Laval in Quebec City and Queens in Kingston, Ont.

"From the beginning in 1966 we set out with the idea that we should create a system available to the entire profession in a reasonable amount of time," he said.

"I have always held that the system should be put to the test, a serious test, and not become just an academic enterprise.

"I feel we can claim a fair amount of success," said Prof. Mackaay. He would estimate that two-thirds of the lawyers in Quebec have tried the system at least once or have seen the results of our service.

SEDOJ received only 40 or 50 requests a month early in 1972 but now handles 100 weekly. Revenue from private clients in the year ending with June, 1974, rose to $90,-000, tripled over the previous 12 months.

Sometimes a lawyer calls during a court's lunch break and needs information within an hour," said Mrs. Frances Lemay, lawyer - consultant. "For example, he may have been offered a certain sum for an accident claim and wants to know whether he should accept on the basis of similar cases."

Mrs. Lemay demonstrated how the system works by tapping out the word "privacy" on a computer terminal—which looks like a king-size typewriter.

Instantly, the machine replied immediately that the computer was looking up precedents involving privacy lawsuits. Within five minutes the computer provided extracts—some in French—some in English—from eight legal judgments going back to 1959.

"The system puts the little lawyer in better shape in relation to big firms," said Prof. Mackaay. "What happens is that in large firms—with 10 or more lawyers—you find a couple of law students, articling, doing research. People can be delegated who specialize in certain areas.

"So we decided it was essential to have a consultation service. The client only calls in just puts the question and gets the result. But it frequently happens that in discussions with the consultants he finds his question is really slightly different, or there is really no problem if he asks another question."

Private clients are mainly law firms of small and medium size, though there are some large firms.

The computer goes beyond the old-fashioned method of looking up key words in a law-book index. An operator, for instance, might feed the computer two words like "sidewalk" and "fall" to elicit certain information.

"The skill of the consultant is to decide what way will yield the best results," said Prof. Mackaay. The computer permits you to cross key words together and make common references immediately . . .

"To make the juncture between French and English, we had to develop a bilingual dictionary. Also, because judges do not use the same terms to talk about a given concept, the dictionary had to be a very special one, containing not only translation but a compendium of synonyms—an enormous job."

Violinists, Pianists, Singers All Want to Be Conductors

LONDON (AP) — The urge to conduct a great orchestra—like secret dreams of a lot of ordinary men—seems to have overpowered a handful of the world's leading violinists, pianists, singers.

In London alone during the fall and winter concert season, at least five renowned musicians will forsake their usual role as soloists to wave a baton before each symphony orchestra.

Among them will be such virtuosi as violinists David Oistrakh and Yehudi Menuhin, pianists Sviatoslav Richter and Daniel Barenboim and singer Dietrich Fischer-Dieskau.

All of them, among others, will conduct leading British orchestras at concerts from October to January. They will all appear under the same roof—the Royal Festival Hall on the south bank of the Thames.

The lead-off man this fall will be Richter, the noted Russian pianist who will conduct the London Philharmonic in two concerts at Mozart music in late October.

Richter will be followed in November by David Oistrakh, his countryman, who will set aside his violin to conduct the London Symphony Orchestra in a concert of Mozart and Shostakovich.

Then comes Fischer-Dieskau, the great German baritone who is generally regarded as the world's leading lieder singer. He will conduct the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra in a program of Wagner, Strauss and Schumann Dec. 1.

Fischer-Dieskau will also return in February to conduct the London Philharmonic.

The youthful pianist Daniel Barenboim will follow Fischer-Dieskau in mid-December, conducting the London Philharmonic in two concerts of music by Mozart, Bruckner and Mahler.

For both Barenboim and Menuhin, conducting is not especially new. Lately Barenboim has been directing almost as much time to conducting as to the piano. Menuhin has made frequent appearances in recent years as both soloist and conductor.

The London musical season will also be treated to several younger musicians who are primarily conductors but who also perform as soloists. These include Andre Previn, principal conductor of the London Symphony, and James Levine, assistant conductor at the Metropolitan Opera. Both have scheduled concerts at pianists as well as conductors.

Sinatra Pal Pays Off For Fight in Lounge

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A federal court jury returned a verdict in favor of Frank Sinatra Friday night but awarded plaintiff Frank Weinstock $161,000 in a judgment against a pal of the singer.

A jury of three men and three women deliberated six hours before finding Sinatra blameless in an altercation between Weinstock and two Sinatra friends at a Palm Springs, Calif., cocktail lounge last year.

Weinstock had sued Sinatra, restaurateur Jilly Rizzo and actress Arrwelias for $2.5 million.

The jury voted in favor of Arrwelias and Sinatra but awarded Weinstock $150,000 in punitive damages against Rizzo and a swollen nose.

Weinstock, a Salt Lake City insurance man, said he was beaten by Rizzo and Arrwelias on orders of Sinatra in the lounge man's room, and admitted a cut lip, a bloodshot eye and a swollen nose.

He said the incident occurred after a dispute over alleged advances by his wife by members of Sinatra's party.

Sinatra stated in two pre-trial depositions that he never gave orders to hit or beat Weinstock.

Reilly Returns To TV

OTTAWA (CP) — Peter Reilly, former journalist and Progressive Conservative MP defeated in the July 8 election, will be co-host of a CBC-TV Ottawa area daily interview show, starting Monday.

Reilly, before his election in Ottawa West-riding in 1972, was a television reporter for CJOH, the CTV network affiliate here. As journalist and politician, he is noted for a crusading and sometimes belligerent style.

Reilly will be co-host of the early evening CBOT show with Mary Lou Finlay. It also features Evelyn Gigantes as an interviewer.

In one of them, Menuhin will play a Mozart violin concerto as well as conduct it.

Your Horoscope

By BEATRICE BRIDE OSOL

Friday, September 13

Aries (March 21-April 19) — Things should work out just as you've anticipated—providing you do what's necessary to maintain the proper perspective.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) Set a good example and it will be easier for you to get others to follow your lead. Willing hands help with a task you've been stuck with since.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) Your present will be spent in efforts for activities of a social nature. You'll add zest to the party.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) This will be a satisfactory day for you. You're capable of juggling several situations at the same time and derive a good job of each.

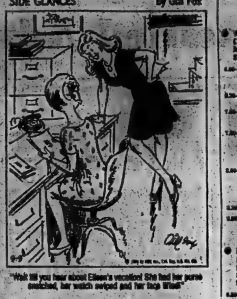
Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) Some timing element will occur in the earlier part of the day. It will give you cause to celebrate later in the evening.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Conditions are such at this time that you could profit in some unsolicited manner through your contacts or family. Be alert.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) If you're personally involved in a money-related matter, try to get it wrapped up. Split conditions are still slanted in your favor.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Persistence is your most reliable ally. Don't let anything deter you from getting your way, especially in business matters.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Play it cool in any competitive situation you're involved in. You may be up, but you should come out OK.



Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You have one over to your side one who will now take a more active role in supporting your views before others.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You'll be in your element if you're involved in some form of group activity. Good things come from rubbing shoulders with the right crowd.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20) You're more capable of entering the winner's circle today than you will be tomorrow. Concentrate only on important issues.

By Oswald and James Jacoby

Thirty years ago the little old ladies were afraid to open a notrump. Today, they love it. If they have 16 to 18 highcard points, they don't let such things as a worthless doubleton stand in their way.

When they get around to playing the dummy, they aren't likely to come up with complicated squeezes and end plays. But when it comes to standard, basic, good play they are right there.

We watched one of them play today's hand. She took the first diamond and saw that it was up to her to get after hearts. At least we assume that is what she saw, because she called for dummy's deuce of hearts.

Her eight lost to West's queen and a second diamond was led. She won in dummy, cashed the last good diamond since she needed that trick and called for dummy's 10 of hearts.

It didn't matter whether East covered or ducked. Actually East ducked. South let the 10 ride; played a third heart; and made the three heart tricks she needed.

Note that if South had called for the 10 of hearts at trick two and East had ducked South would only have been able to take two heart tricks.

♠♥♦♣ CARD Speak

The bidding has been:

West	North	East	South
	1♣	Pass	1♦
Pass	1 N.T.	Pass	3♦
Pass	3♥	Pass	3♠
Pass	4♠	Pass	?

You, South, hold:
♠ A K 7 4 ♥ A J 10 ♦ 7 6 ♣ A 3 2

What do you do now?

A—Bid seven clubs. Your partner has shown the exit of diamonds. Now he is showing the king and further club interest. That should be enough for you to bid seven.

...TODAY'S QUESTION

Instead of bidding, three successive raises, partner has bid four clubs over your three hearts. What do you do now?

Patient Is Told Stay Near Help

By C. C. THOMPSON, MD

Dear Dr. Thompson: Can you give me information on a bleeding ulcer? My doctor tells me I have to be within 30 minutes of a hospital at all times but doesn't tell me why, only to stay on a bland diet.—Mrs. M.

The great majority of people with peptic ulcers are not troubled much a restriction. After all, not all ulcers bleed. But I would gather that you have had episodes of bleeding, and your doctor wants you to stay where you can get prompt help if necessary.

After all, an ulcer may bleed just a little, or it may bleed a great deal, and for each person or another you may be subject to heavy bleeding.

If that happens, you not only need attention to get the bleeding stopped, but perhaps to replace, by transfusion, the blood you have lost.

I recommend you obey your doctor's instructions. It's your well-being that is involved.

Dear Dr. Thompson: Is it possible for a dog to have tuberculosis and can humans catch it from them? I have a dog that becomes exhausted from the slightest exercise and lies down and rests and sleeps most of the time.—Mrs. H.

Dog can have something similar to TB but it is not contagious for humans. Anyway, there are so many other things, ranging from age to arthritis, that might account for your dog's lethargy, you'd best have him seen by a veterinarian.

Dear Dr. Thompson: Is there such a thing as an allergy to cold? I seem to need much more clothing and bedding than other people to keep warm.

When I am exposed to cold winds or go swimming in cold water, my body breaks out in hives. Other members of my immediate family are just as sensitive to the cold as I am. During the winter, my nose runs.—Mrs. L.

Indeed there is such an allergy, one of several so-called "physical allergies," that is, responses from exposure to things such as cold, heat or sunlight. In some cases, although not all, the condition is caused, or brought to be caused, by a peculiarly abnormal protein in the blood called a "cryoglobulin" ("cryo" meaning cold). In other cases, allergy to cold occurs without the presence of the cryoglobulin.

In some cases, persons who are subject to this disorder can tell by simply pressing an ice cube against the skin. When removed, hives will appear. Allergic symptoms can be brought on, in some persons, by chewing ice cubes, drinking iced drinks, or merely taking a cold shower.

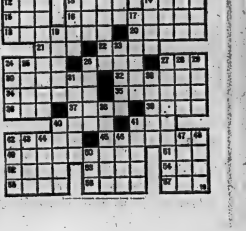
An exposure to a cold wind or a sudden drop in temperature can bring on hives or other allergic symptoms in some people.

Cold-sensitive persons should live in a warm climate, if possible, and should avoid cold in the form of drinks, food and treatment. Not surprisingly, treatment involves warming, either that applied directly by lamp or warm clothes or by physical exercise. Daily showers with gradually cooler water often reduce the sensitivity of cold.

You would have to see an allergist to find out whether "cryoglobulin" is in your blood.

Clothing Exports Higher

LONDON (CP) — Britain's clothing industry exported £56 million worth of goods during the first six months of this year, an increase of £1 per cent compared with the same period last year. Daniel Harrison, chairman of the Clothing Export Council, said the industry's export target for this year was £125 million compared with last year's £100 million.



SKINS FORBIDDEN

In the 1630s, Japan forbade the building of large ocean-going ships. Japan now builds almost half the world's tonnage, National Geographic magazine says.

Memories which never fade,
Memories which are treasured,
Memories which are made.
Sadly missed by daughter Shirley and family.

But not the love we have for you,
Sadly leaves a sorrowful and sorrowful heart.

Sweet memories linger,
Of one dearly loved,
Of one who left us suddenly,
Of one we still miss so much,
Of one who left us memories,
Memories we shall always treasure,
Memories we shall never forget.

Frost for his kindness, thoughtfulness and attention during my stay in hospital and to the staff of the 2nd floor of the Belleville General Hospital for their kindness and care during my stay there. Thanks and the staff of the Meat Pond and the staff of the Belleville Hydro for Harvard Beer, Bob Hall, Bill Hall and Bill Hall for their kindness during my illness. Also to Masonic Lodge and Keystone Chapter for their visits while I was in hospital and for my flowers received at the time of my funeral. Thanks to the Rev. Elizabeth (Deane) Sellinger.

The family of the late Richard McFarlan, Belleville, wish to express their sincere thanks for the many floral tributes and expressions of sympathy received during their recent sorrow in the loss of a husband and father. Special thanks are extended to Dr. Ross and staff of Thompson's Funeral Home, Belleville, for their kind and helpful service, to those who sang hymns, arranged by Mrs. Arthur Hutchison and always be remembered.

Sadly, Elizabeth McFarlane and family.

I would like to take this opportunity to thank all my friends, neighbours and relatives who visited me while I was in hospital and for those left at the home at the time of my recent illness. Thanks you and God bless.

Brenda and Carman Milligan.

Aussie Cows Produce Poly-unsaturated Fat

MELBOURNE, Australia (CP) — A major research programme in Australia to develop poly-unsaturated dairy products and assist by controlling the diet of farm animals.

The Commonwealth Scientific and Industrial Research Organization (CSIRO) has patented a technique to produce poly-unsaturated foods and Dalgety Agriculture Proprietary Ltd., a company substantially owned by British and United States interests, has been licensed to market both diet supplement and food products.

The firm has established agencies in Canada, the United States, Britain and New Zealand to market the foods and a diet supplement when they become available.

The discovery has gained added significance because of medical research linking blood cholesterol (fat) levels and heart disease.

A recent development has been the production of poly-unsaturated milk on a commercial scale. In a month-long production trial on a farm at Penrith, New South Wales, more than 3,000 gallons of milk were produced at the pre-worked polyunsaturated level.

In other experiments, CSIRO divisions have produced somewhat amounts of polyunsaturated butter, cheese, yoghurt, ice cream, lamb and beef.

Basically, the technique is to feed the animals a diet supplement of sunflower seed which has been given protective treatment to prevent the seed oil being converted into saturated fat by bacteria in the animals' stomachs.

The seeds are crushed and formed into a meal which is treated with formaldehyde before being dried and fed to the animals. The formalin is broken down in the animal's body and does not accumulate in the meat or milk.

Many trials have established that the diet substantially reduces the percentage of hard saturated fats both in milk and

Argentina Faces Shortage of Coins

By JORGE ROCHA

— Buy a packet of cigarettes in Argentina and you are likely to get your change back in the form of matches, sweets or aspirin, whether you need them or not.

If you go into a grocery store you will probably walk out with more than you intended to buy—all because of an acute shortage of coins.

On some bus lines, drivers who run out of coins sign a voucher on the back of the tickets to enable passengers to collect their change at the bus terminal—if they take the trouble to go that far.

No one can say he has not been warned. "We have no coins." "Please pay with the exact amount" and "Bring your own change" are some of the dozens of makeshift signs appearing in shops, on cashiers' desks and in ticket windows throughout the country.

Authorities say they are encountering difficulties in minting new coinage but that there is a sufficient amount in circulation and blame the shortage on hoarders.

Those who pretend to be in the know will tell you the "real" reason lurks behind the shortage. One of the most widespread theories is that coins are being smuggled out of the country to be made into washers.

Another is that they are being melted down because their intrinsic value is higher than the values they represent.

But experts say the aluminum from the tiny one-and five-centavo coins and the copper alloys from the slightly larger 10-, 20-, and 50-centavo coins would hardly justify such an operation.

These small coins—the diameter of the 1one-centavo coin is about three-fifths of an inch and of a 50-centavo piece about four-fifths of an inch—were introduced in 1970 when Argentina lopped two zeros off its highly devalued currency.

This turned 1oo old peso into one centavo and 100 old pesos into one new peso.

But as inflation continued, the one-centavo coin and, to some extent, the five-centavo coin, became virtually obsolete, with people preferring to deal in round figures.

The government's drive to curb the spiralling cost of living, however, has brought them back into the picture, though not entirely into circulation.

Using percentages of costs to establish ceiling prices on essential goods, the government has set prices such as 27 centavos for a box of matches or 1.62 pesos for a litre of milk and 12.46 pesos for popular brands of cigarettes.

One peso is worth approximately a dime.

A milk buyer handing over two one-peso bills is asked for an additional 12 centavos, so he can get a 50-centavo coin as change.

The customer replies he has no small change. "Neither have we, senor, but perhaps you'll take something else to make up the difference."

In the case of a regular customer, the coins involved are applied to the next day's bill.

The shortage is having a profound effect on waiters, porters and others whose income comes largely from tips. Customers are loath to part with coins, so small tips are becoming smaller while larger tips are usually rounded off to the nearest peso.

If any hoarding is going on, it is probably of the most coveted coin of all, the fast-disappearing coin of 10 old pesos. Two are needed to call from public telephones, since they still are not adjusted to take the new 10-or 20-centavo coins.

Alberta's Lieut.-governor Goes Back to Log Cabin

CALGARY (CP) — Grant MacEwan is going back to a log cabin.

Alberta's ninth lieutenant-governor, who retired this summer after 5½ years as the Queen's representative, has been building a log structure on a small piece of land he owns on the Red Deer River near Sundre.

"It is not very handsome, not very square and not very level but log houses were never supposed to be level or square," he said in an interview.

The Sundre farm won't be Mr. MacEwan's only occupation at age 71. He has accepted a position as professor of history beginning this term at University of Calgary.

Mr. MacEwan will teach a year-long history course about the exploration and settlement of the Prairies.

More books are also destined to join the 21 he already has on the shelves.

One, a chronicle of the Hudson Bay Railroad, which will probably be titled the Battle of the Bay, is due out this fall and he says a couple of others are forming in his mind.

"I don't want a full-time job at anything, but I want to keep my hand in," he explained.

"I am not going to farm with the idea of making a fortune, but I like to live close to the soil, in harmony with the birds and the coyotes."

It's not the first time Grant MacEwan has tried to get back to the land. In 1951, he "took a fiver in federal politics" in a Manitoba federal by-election.

"There were five by-elections that day and the party was in the doghouse on a number of issues, including wheat, and lost all five," he said.

Walter Dinsdale, later to become a prominent Conservative front-bencher, defeated Mr. MacEwan by 2,753 votes—and he promptly headed for Alberta.

For 23 years he had been on the agriculture faculties at University of Saskatchewan and University of Manitoba.

"I had decided it was time for a bold, reckless move or I would be in the university for the rest of my life."

So he headed for land he had bought earlier at Priddis, 10 miles southwest of Calgary.

"I had bought the land at a time when a poor man could still buy land in the foothills," he said. "It was always a dream that sooner or later we would move there and I would write."

He never made it to Priddis because a stopover in Calgary was extended when he became involved with civic politics.

"His dream of getting back to the land was shelved as he spent five years as alderman, a term as MLA and Liberal party leader and two years as mayor.

In 1965, a year after his term as mayor ended, Mr. MacEwan was named lieutenant-governor.

"My hope was to make this office a truly provincial institution," he said.

"I tried to take the office to the countryside and for these five years have managed to reach most corners of Alberta."

Much of his travel through the province has been on foot as Mr. MacEwan's term coincided with the era of marathon charity walk-a-thons.

He reckons he has spent four nights a week at formal banquets and gatherings and informal ones most of the rest at informal ones most of the other three. Despite his love for the work he now is retired from, Mr. MacEwan admits there were occasions when he wished he could escape the limelight for a day or so.

When he made his final appearance as lieutenant-governor in the legislature this year, Mr. MacEwan broke tradition and gave a short speech urging MLAs not to change for the sake of change and to take care of his office.

"I think the country is divided on the matter," he said of the monarchy he represented.

"But I am convinced there still is a big body of sentiment in support of the monarchy, or something of the kind."

"I think there must be a figure or an institution or an office which is above and divorced from politics."

Mr. MacEwan keeps most of his personal memories of his term to himself but said there were numerous occasions "that brought tears to a grown man's eyes."

Working Scholars Desired

FREDERICTON (CP) — Fredericton High School is seeking employees willing to hire students on a half-day basis during the school year.

Under a new practical program, the students involved will attend their regular classes during the morning and work for area firms in the afternoon.

Dow Price, a teacher and one of the program co-ordinators, said it is felt training for these students can best be carried out in the community.

The 12 students, four from Grade 11 and nine from Grade 12, included in the program for this fall have taken regular academic courses but have found them limited in scope.

Mr. Price said: "Basically what we're trying to do is provide these kids with a work record so they will have references and experience when they look for a full-time job.

"The kids have indicated what type of work they want to do. Some want to be receptionists and stock room clerks and our vocational program doesn't cover this."

The students will be required to work between 1 and 5 p.m., no more than 20 hours a week.

Story of Lithuanian Jews Told in Montrealer's Art

VANCOUVER (CP) — Sidney Sarkin spends his days re-creating the people from the Lithuanian town he and thousands of other Jews were forced to flee in 1939.

Using wood and his pen-knife he creates richly stylized sculptures of people from his former home.

Mr. Sarkin retired as a master tailor's cutter seven year's ago and since then has covered the walls of his apartment with 167 carvings and abstract sculptures.

Although he was once offered $600 for a carved wooden box which took him 11 months to complete he would not sell.

"These things are personal. How can you sell memories?"

Mr. Sarkin, 72, has also written a book in Hebrew about his memories which was published last year.

Both he and Mrs. Sarkin were born in Vilkomir, a town of 19,000 where the Lithuanians and the Jews lived peacefully together. His father was a master coppersmith.

When the First World War broke out in 1914, the Jews were driven from Lithuania. Mr. Sarkin's family was one of thousands given 14 hours to leave. The family fled to the Latvian city of Vilna.

"We managed to keep body and soul together," he said. "We were luckier than those Jews taken in trains to central Russia."

When the Germans occupied Vilnamir the Jews were allowed to return home. He can still remember he horror of seeing grass growing through the cobblestones of the house.

"There were outstanding synagogues filled because the Germans had used them as stables."

After the Versailles treaty, the Allies established an independent Lithuania in 1918. For the first time relations between the Jews and the Lithuanians became strained.

"We never had the problems that many Jews experienced in the Russian empire but many of us had to leave. My father had died in Vilna so I went with the rest of my family to Saint John, N.B.," said Mr. Sarkin.

STUDIED TONGUES

Meanwhile Sarah had been studying languages in Vienna and later at the Sorbonne in Paris. When Mr. Sarkin became established in the clothing trade in Montreal she joined him and they were married.

Mrs. Sarkin taught French at Victoria College in Montreal and later set up a French book collection for Rainu's where she worked as a book adviser for five years.

Then Mrs. Sarkin became ill and her husband was also unable to work because of a leg injury.

"The 1930s were very hard for us," she said.

In 1940 Mr. Sarkin's leg had to be amputated and while he was recuperating in the mountains of Quebec he began carving wood.

Later the couple moved to Vancouver for the climate and Mr. Sarkin became a head cutter.

"I wrote the book after I retired," said Mr. Sarkin.

"I wrote in Hebrew as a monument to a town and a people and a culture that no longer exist. I wrote it to tell of our hard times and our good times."

Not for Sale

Sidney Sarkin, a retired master tailor turned sculptor, holds one of the richly stylized figures he carves from memory of his early days in Lithuania. He keep his sculptures for his own enjoyment. Turning aside prospective buyers by asking how can you sell memories? (CP Photo)

Production Cuts Likely

Egg Prices to Rise At Least Five Cents

TORONTO (CP) — An official of the Ontario Egg Producers Marketing Board said today that consumers can expect an increase in the retail price of eggs of "at least five cents a dozen."

Michael Murray, board comptroller, said executives of the board conferred today and approved an increase of five cents a dozen in the price paid to producers.

Starting Monday, producers will receive 66 cents a dozen for Grade A extra large eggs and 63 cents for Grade A large, five cents more than before, he said.

Mr. Murray said he is not able to predict the exact retail price of a dozen eggs other than to say it will increase "at least five cents a dozen."

Grade A extra large eggs now generally retail at 81 cents a dozen.

Mr. Murray said that the increase paid to producers by the marketing board would "only logically" be passed on to consumers but he refused to speculate on when this would happen.

The increase in producers was proposed Thursday by the marketing board's price committee and was ratified by a telephone conference call of board executives early today, Mr. Murray added.

When the proposed increase was announced Thursday, first reports indicated hotels and restaurants intended to delay approval.

"There was no intention to delay the increase," Mr. Murray said.

EXEMPTVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Ontario egg producers will be allowed to charge consumers more for free-range eggs effective Monday, James Adamson said Thursday.

He told the Ontario move directly to a federal decision announced Monday to lift import restrictions on U.S. eggs and thereby reduce production and rising prices in that country.

A federal spokesman said Monday that lifting the restriction would allow the Canadian Egg Marketing Agency to "maintain the value in price" of eggs without concern for U.S. competition.

Mr. Johnstone said Ontario producers now would get between 58 and 55 cents a dozen for their eggs.

At the same time he and Brian Ellsworth, another member of the Ontario board, told the producers that they could face a further cut in production quota to make up for the heavy surplus of Ontario production in recent months.

Ontario had been alloted 38 per cent of the national egg production by CEMA, but had steadily been exceeding that, the producers were told. Now they were cut back to 75 per cent of normal production allotment and could see their allotment reduced a further five per cent.

The group also was told that Quebec was considering a program of subsidization of its egg producers, which would effectively end Ontario egg exports to that province.

But Gordon Hill, president of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture, said the province has no intention of getting into a subsidy war with the other provinces.

He also warned that if small producers did not pay their levy to the federal and provincial marketing boards to make up for over-production and the resulting destruction of improperly stored eggs caused by over-extended facilities, the boards may not be able to continue, with all producers being hurt.

Joe Hudson of the provincial department of agriculture told the producers that if they had accepted a suggestion to increase their levy to the federal and provincial boards to four cents a dozen from the one or two cents, a dozen they were paying, they now would not be faced with a nine-cents-a-dozen levy to make up for past overproduction.

Egg Quota Denied Man Running Delivery Route

ANCASTER, Ont. (CP) — Cornelius de Goeyer could lose his life savings and have to sell his home because of the federal government's egg monopoly.

"I've never seen a more hard abuse of the law," said Hamilton lawyer John Van Der Weerd, who is representing Mr. de Goyer in his divisional court appeal against an order by the Ontario Egg Producers Marketing Board (OEPMB) to get out of the egg business.

"I cannot believe the system is so cruel that it wants to put 100 men out of work in one swoop," Van Der Weerd said in an interview Thursday. "I don't accept that the system intended this result in its design."

Mr. de Goeyer bought his farm near this community just outside Hamilton about 13 years ago and started his own egg delivery route.

For years he bought eggs from nearby farms and sold them door-to-door to homes and restaurants in Ancaster, earning an income of less than $5,000 a year. A family garden helped him feed his family of seven.

However, in recent years some of the farms near Mr. de Goeyer were sold to Hamilton developers and other farmers retired, cutting his egg supply sources. So Mr. de Goeyer took out a more than $50,000 mortgage on his property to build a hen house last fall and stocked 2,640 hens.

His lawyer says he will have to default on the mortgage and lose everything if his egg income is cut off.

The OEPMB, which was set up in 1972 to control egg sales and production in the province, sets quotas for producers. Its activities are financed by nine-cents-a-dozen levy, which Mr. de Goeyer does not pay.

He was told in a letter last December from Marcus Walker, board regulation coordinating officer, to stop violating the law by selling eggs without an egg board quota.

Mr. de Goeyer since applied for a quota, was turned down, and is appealing that decision.

Mr. de Goeyer says he knew about the egg marketing legislation, but did not think it would apply to small peddlers.

The legislation exempts flocks of fewer than 500 birds.

Mr. Walker on Thursday became a defendant in the case. He declined to say why he was named in the action.

He did say, however, that other farmers' eggs went into surplus because Mr. de Goeyer shopped buying from them.

The egg board is trying to fine Mr. de Goeyer for selling eggs without a quota to enforce its order to stop him from producing and selling eggs.

Mr. de Goeyer is appealing the shutdown order in divisional court and is getting remarks on the attempt to fine him until the appeal is settled.

They are the leaders of the poor and the ailing in the United States, called Thursday to tell President Ford how they are affected in a time of economic distress, and how they think government can do something about it.

On the first day of a two-day meeting, prelude to a summit conference Sept. 27-28 which will discuss ways of beating inflation, the 150 delegates told the president the sick and the poor are bearing too great a share of the burden of rising costs. They asked him to increase his social welfare budget, while cutting cost, in other areas of government spending, especially defence.

From time to time, delegates wondered if anyone was listening. Ford, who had met with labor leaders and economists in earlier pressunmet meetings, did not come this session.

Local Politicians Announce Candidacy for Dec. 2 Election

PICTON — Picton mayor James Bird has announced he will seek re-election this fall but he will be opposed by former town mayor Margaret Ackerman and a former councillor, Donald King.

The comments last week announced their intensions to seek office in the December municipal elections.

Mayor Bird has served as head of Picton's administration since the death of Harvey J. McFarland last January. He was elected as reeve in 1972, and, at mayor McFarland's death, accepted this position.

Margaret Ackerman became Picton's first woman mayor by acclamation in 1970 when Harvey J. McFarland refused to qualify his nomination for office.

In 1972, the construction tycoon re-elected Picton's political scene and defeated Mayor Ackerman in her bid for re-election.

Picton Reeve Ross Cronkwright has announced that he, definitely will seek a return to office this term. Deputy-reeve Larry Richardson, completing his first term on council, has indicated that he also will probably seek re-election.

The deputy-reeve was elected as councillor in 1972 but at the death of Mayor McFarland stepped up in office.

Councillor Jack Evans, completing his first term in office, has stated that he will not seek another term. Other members of council have indicated that it is still too early for any decision.

Nominations for the election will open from November 7 through November 13, with the election to be held on December 2.

Three Hurt In Mishap

BIGHTON — Three people, including a three-year-old boy, sustained minor injuries in a single-car collision on what police called a "bad" curve on Highway 30 a mile south of here Thursday.

A Brighton OPP spokesman said the three Toronto residents, driver Gordon Nisbet, 34, mother Kathleen, 34 and his son Thomas, 3, all of 229 Samuel St., were treated for facial cuts and bruises and released from Trenton hospital.

Police said the Nisbet vehicle was northbound on a "bad" curve at Springvalley when a southbound vehicle forced him to veer onto the shoulder and into a ditch along the road.

Damage to the vehicle was estimated at $800.

Warkworth Fair Oldest Get-together In Northumberland County History

WARKWORTH — Hard work and hard-headedness has preserved the Warkworth fair as the oldest continuous one-day fair in Northumberland County, Gordon McCubbin, Percy Township Agricultural Society president said this week.

This Saturday, the fair, beginning with a parade at 1 p.m., will celebrate its 124th anniversary in this village of 600 people. ? ling out of the ordinary is planned to mark the occasion, said Mr. McCubbin.

All the same, the fair is unique.

"It is one of few Class C fairs that has harness racing," he said. Horses and drivers from Belleville, where racing has now closed for the season, Campbellford, Roseneath, Baltimore and Cobourg will compete in three double heats in three separate classes.

The races have increased in popularity over the years, so that now "we have more horses than we know where to put," said the president.

A $200 purse awaits the winner of each heat.

Scouts Prepare For Walk-a-thon

TRENTON — Most of the Paul family will be swinging into action tomorrow as the Trenton District Council holds its first walk-a-thon in five years in support of scouting activities here.

Cecil Paul, who normally is confined to a wheelchair, will be making the 21-mile journey on a route west of Trenton. With each turn of the wheels he'll be adding dollars to scout coffers.

Earlier this week, he expected to earn about $1,100 from sponsors who had donated approximately $50 a mile.

Though his goal of $100 a mile was not reached, he said he is satisfied. Reports for other scout council divisions indicate sponsorship of the anticipated 350 walkers is good. Mr. Paul's son, Steven, had collected $40 a mile in pledges.

Mrs. Paul, a leader of Beavers, the newly formed program for five-to-seven year old boys, will be manning the base camp at Trenton community Gardens during this Saturday's walk-a-thon.

Not to be left out, Mr. Paul's father, Lance, is acting as co-ordinator for Trenton Senior Citizens.

The group will be manning the 21 checkpoints along the Scout-a-thon '74 route.

Equality of Sexes

Continuing signs of greater equality of the sexes in Canada these days include the entry of a number of young women into the ranks of trainees for the RCMP.

A fair cry from Rose Marie. Indeed when their training is completed they will be expected to "perform any law enforcement function of the RCMP . . . even serving in the Arctic," to quote Assistant Commissioner E. R. Lyall.

This is all happening at a time of evolution in the status of women, of the movement of them — place in society, of concern for the elimination of discriminatory practices and attitudes all the way from the contents of school textbooks to everyday public dialogue.

And visiting Ottawa, incidentally, during this heady period of social development is a distinguished woman who is so committed to full equality for women in the world that she has left her family at home in Finland while she pursues her ideal in New York.

She is Heivi Linnea Sipila, for the past two years assistant secretary-general for social and humanitarian affairs. An eminent family lawyer in her own country and former president of the International Federation of Women Lawyers, Mrs. Sipila, who is 50, finds little time to see her husband and four children.

She is in Ottawa for a UN conference on women's rights which has attracted delegates from 30 countries and has been described as a scene-stealer for International Women's Year in 1975.

Women throughout history have made great sacrifices. Even amid the greater fulfilment which they seek as individuals, and as a group representing more than half the world's population, they will continue to make such sacrifices. But it will be achieved with a new sense of identity and accomplishment.

More Mature

There was a time when Belleville's downtown had become a rowdy young people hanging around and annoying passers-by. Drop-in centres for the kids came and went, and all in all there was something of a fuss about the whole situation.

Nowadays there is hardly a ripple on this subject. There are young people downtown all right, and they crowd the stuffy but then so do those of other nationalities, and if there have been any complaints or incidents involving the younger set we have not heard of them. Nor have we noticed anything untoward. If anything they are better behaved.

Compare this with word of apartment dwellers in Kingston complaining of persistent revelry outside their midnight drive-in restaurant nearby and similar problems in Peterborough, as well as in downtown Kitchener-Waterloo.

Belleville these days seems a more prosperous and mature community from many a standpoint, including that of law and order.

Police Chief Douglas Crosbie agrees about downtown. Things are "much improved," he says. While acknowledging that he is not sure why, he says "we are having fewer problems on the street now."

Lost and Found

"You're a dandy . . . you're a beau!" said the man in the well-known federal establishment where we had inadvertently left a wallet.

There was a strong hint of reproof in his voice which, in the circumstances, was understandable. Then he reached up to a pigeon hole and there was the missing article. Money, credit cards, auto licence and insurance, social security card, and all the other clutter of the average harassed male's wallet; it was all there.

He said the wallet had been retrieved by "a little girl" who came in now and again. Lucky that this was one of her days and her action is appreciated very much.

Said the fellow at the counter — an estimable and efficient gentleman who has a friendly word for everyone: "It happens every day . . . you would be surprised . . ."

Ironically, the day is always that much brighter when something is found that was lost. All the more so when it is valuable and its loss would have been a matter of some gravity. It teaches a lesson as well, to be more careful, and reminds us of the essential honesty of citizens.

Small Grape Crop and 'Champagne' Semantics Conspire Against Wine Industry in Canada

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

All in all, 1974 has not been a vintage year for Canada's wine makers.

Not that the wine is suffering, or sales lagging. But the grape crop in Ontario is turning out to be considerably smaller than expected, a Supreme Court decision about the use of the word "champagne" has gone against them, and controversy surrounds the imported wine concentrates.

As in any other form of agriculture, grape-growing is fraught with uncertainties.

In the Niagara Peninsula — Canada's major source of grapes—1974 originally looked as though it would produce a bumper crop. Some 1,500 farmers have been extending their acreage, upgrading their crops and adding an average of 750-000 vines a year. French hybrid wines such as de Chaunac have come to dominate the spring plantings.

Earlier this year, all indications were that the Niagara peninsula would have a good grape crop—only about 14,000 tons short of 1971's record yield of 86,000 tons, worth more than $12 million.

Recent surveys, however, have scaled estimates of this year's yield down to 53,000 tons, because of the severity of spring frost damage. That means that wineries will be forced to cut back production and working with limited supplies.

Such limitations will be the position of Ontario's ban on the importation of bulk wines, grape juice, concentrates and grapes from abroad, to be used by the province's wine-making companies to supplement their supplies of Ontario grapes.

An exception to the ban was granted by the government in 1972, when the Niagara crop was too small to meet the winemakers' requirements.

But apart from that year, the embargo has been maintained, as a means of protecting Niagara grape growers and ensuring them a steady markets for their crops.

(Pressures are great enough on the grape-growers already to halt their land to make room for the increasing urbanization of the Niagara region.)

Ontario's grape growers oppose any easing of the ban on imports of concentrates and the like, pointing to what they say is the decline of British Columbia's grape-growing industry as a result of such competition.

So far at least, it appears that the Ontario government will continue to protect the farmers.

The wine industry's marketing problems — which are always considerable, given the light restrictions that governments impose on the promotion of all alcoholic beverages—have been further compounded by a recent ruling of the Supreme Court of Canada.

The ruling forbade Chateau-Gai Wines Ltd. from using the word "champagne" in Quebec, despite the wine-maker's argument that the term had been widely used in a generic sense for many years.

The court decision was the result of litigation launched 19 years ago against Chateau-Gai by a French wine association and 13 French wine producers who contended that the word must apply only to wines produced in the French department of Champagne.

(Chateau-Gai claims that one of the French wine companies involved in that lawsuit was the voter with promises and elected.

Of course, for the most part, the promises are soon forgotten — remember? decent city streets, a sincere concern for the environment, fiscal responsibility, and so on — but occasionally not many people take them seriously.

However in the case of the office of Mayor, perhaps a case can be made that promises made should be more treasured. Full time office implies leadership, and the commitment of the electorate.

Mayor Jeffrey won a great deal of support with the line that forms of "giving the city back to the people" were limited to being for too long a time it had been firmly in the hands of the developers.

It was disappointing to see Mayor Jeffrey, within a matter of three weeks, reverse himself on the Bridge Street Crescent issue — a complete about-face.

The reason, Mayor Jeffrey has shown a reluctance to deal with those contractors who did not stick with a city during the rather serious if illegal change in the wording on a bylaw against such actions.

Electoral Map Likely Will Indicate Six New Ridings

By DON O'HEARN

TORONTO — The period for filing briefs with the Ontario redistribution commission ended last Friday.

Now its interim report goes to the legislature, will be chewed over there, then sent back and eventually we will have a new electoral map of Ontario which probably will increase the number of ridings from 117 to 125 in the commission's first report.

It can come close to making an outright accusation of a gerrymander.

Its chairman committee on redistribution had the party's research staff do a study of the proposals. And it found that the new ridings favoured Tories. It applied to the 1971 vote would see the PC's with 85 seats instead of 84, the NDP with 22 as against 19 and the Liberals unchanged with 18.

Which brings it to comment that: "We are forced to the conclusion that the Commission has done a job for the government. or that it has been hamstrung in achieving a fair and just redistribution of seats for Ontario."

The electoral map as tentatively drawn gives some weight to the claim of it not being "fair and just."

Riding populations vary from South Bruce with over 40,000 to Muskoka with only 21,000.

The is a great disparity.

But then it is generally if not universally agreed that electoral ridings can't be set on a straight numerical, or rep by pop, basis.

There are rules of custom, such as that Northern Ontario can't have less than 13 seats and that rural ridings due to their much larger physical areas have fewer voters than urban seats.

Then there are other considerations such as the desirability of having a community of interest in any riding (and mixed rural and urban), the disruption caused by eliminating or disrupting old ridings and the amount of service required.

All just a few examples of such considerations the commission points out. But the Tory party has a low voting population it also has some 10,000 vacation residents who make demands on the member.

The present system of redistribution isn't perfect and certainly could stand improvement.

But setting ground rules for redistribution — a task that the writer, for one, wouldn't want to have to tackle,

Ottawa Court Sidelines English-only Edict

Ottawa Journal
Premier Bourassa of Quebec, probably did not go home from the provincial premiers' conference in Toronto, without having heard some harsh words about Bill 22, and deservedly so. But he will not be without rebuttal. He will have at hand the splendid legal case brought to light by The Journal in which Judge Matheson wisely decided to wink at the law and allow a principal in a diverse case to speak before the court in French, the only language she knows well. Mr. Bourassa's position is much easier than it should be because of an incredible Ontario statute which decrees that "Writs, pleadings and proceedings in all courts shall be in the English only."

He can point out that whatever Bill 22 might do, no Quebec law says that writs, pleadings and proceedings in all courts shall be in the French language only. English-language rights in Quebec courts are established by the British North America Act, but no reciprocity exists for French elsewhere in Canada

Youth Camp Draws Protests From Cashel Lake Residents

Marmora County council will take the immediate action on a request to change zoning in Cashel Township to allow operation of a youth rehabilitation centre at Cashel Lake.

Rev. Charles Bell of Brampton has proposed a youth rehabilitation centre, Boys Harbor Inc., for girls and boys from 11 to 17 years with a history of violence or extreme acting out and has applied for a zoning change to allow the operation.

The application was before the county planning committee this week but committee chairman Reeve Calvin White later told council his committee would not make any recommendation until written submissions were received.

The proposed rehabilitation centre has raised a storm of objection from area cottagers and the Highlands of Hastings Tourist Association, several of whom spoke at the council meeting.

Rev. Bell said the value of halfway houses as rehabilitation centres is widely recognized in Europe but the movement is just now being accepted in Canada.

With a 15-percent average annual increase in crime and the fact that seven out of 10 prison convicts return to crime, Rev. Bell said it is evident that some workable alternative is needed.

By contrast, only 36 per cent of offenders placed through halfway houses return to crime, he said.

Rev. Bell said halfway houses and community correctional systems seem to be a workable alternative.

Reeve Barbara Allen of Tweed said she understands the fears of Cashel lake cottage owners, but felt they are groundless. The proposed camp would mean increased taxes, more jobs and more spending in the area, she said.

Rev. Bell outlined the objectives of the proposed Cashel Lake rehabilitation camp and said that rather than being a threat, the camp would actually be an asset to the community.

The young people would always be under direct supervision, he said. Outdoor and instructional programs would be given, the camp would have its own regulations and the only association with area residents would be possible sports programs.

Rev. Bell said the camp would have a maximum of 35 young people — 21 boys and 14 girls — with a staff of approximately 16 people.

He said his organization for the last 3½ years has operated the largest halfway house in Canada, in Peel County.

Foreign Labor Factor In Harvest Success

Foreign labor often is the only reliable source of help when farmers need it most, the Belleville and District Employment Committee was told this week.

Harvest help is the first consideration of any producer planning a crop, Jim White, Canada Manpower manager in Belleville said.

Because of the high investment involved, a grower cannot count on a "hit-and-miss basis" when planning crops in spring, said Mr. White.

Harvest time coincides with increased activity in other business sectors and local workers are liable to quit if better jobs are available.

"Foreign workers are an insurance against this," said Mr. White.

Temporary immigrant help is assisted under a program "closely-supervised" by governments in Canada and countries of origin.

James Staveley, committee chairman wondered if school schedules could be changed so older students could help on farms at harvest time.

Dental Plan Offers Protection for Students

A total of 17,000 students were given public health dental examinations during the 1973-74 school year—the first year of the project in Hastings and Prince Edward County.

In all, 73 schools were involved in the project. Some 9,000 students also participated in classroom dental health education programs.

School athletes were also offered low-priced mouth guards, manufactured by dental clinic staff. A total of 220 students were fitted with the protective devices during the year.

A drive to supplement fluoride content of well water in rural areas saw 380 prescriptions requested. They came from householders whose wells were analyzed as deficient in natural fluoride.

The statistics on the dental service were contained in a report presented Thursday to the Hastings — Prince Edward health board.

Move Costly

Transferring to new offices in Belleville has cost the Hastings-Prince Edward Health Board $2,7000.

The board's public health unit now is quartered in the former Hastings County education office on East Bridge St.

The board has leased the property for $1 a month until next April when it has an option to purchase it for $185,000.

Cost of the move to new premises totalled $10,000 but the bulk of this will be paid by nearly $8,000 in provincial government grants, the board was told Thursday.

Board Get Funds

Inflation has prompted the provincial government to unwind slightly tight restrictions imposed on public health spending.

As a result the Hastings-Prince Edward Board of Health will now receive extra provincial grants on its current budget.

Earlier this year, $46,000 was trimmed from the board's budget when the provincial government refused grants on the expenditures involved.

A seven-percent ceiling was imposed on budget increases for the year.

But, because of inflation, the ceilings have now been eased Clifford Cotton, health board administrator said Thursday. The funds cut earlier from the budget will now be considered for grants.

This might also mean surplus funds at the end of this year's operations which will benefit the 1975 budget, said Mr. Cotton.

'Le Nid' – Strictly for the Birds

By SHARON AIRHART

There are quail three inches long and chinese nightingales that are really robins. There are green singing finches imported from Africa and strawberry finches and zebra finches—more than 30 kinds of finches in all, one especially colorful variety named after an Australian governor general. Diamond doves from the Philippines, crystal java birds and lovebirds.

And Ken and Irene Craig Neil, formerly of Denver, Ontario, now residents of the rolling countryside of Campbellford, where they have built a brand new bungalow with a brand new aviary: 1200 square feet they call Le Nid — French for "the nest."

Irene and Ken are widely-known among bird fanciers — they call themselves fanciers — for their collection of more than 200 exotic birds, the largest in Eastern Canada.

For more than 10 years, while Ken was postmaster in the western Ontario town of Glencoe and Irene taught creative writing, the pair collected rare birds and along with them hundreds of trophies and rosettes for winning entries in shows like the Canadian National Exhibition.

Now the couple, along with their birds, have moved to the Campbellford area — to be near their family — where they are in the process of building flights (large cages) for the birds in their custom-built hideaway.

There they each spend about three hours a day, feeding and cleaning and learning about the finches and other species they collect. And until the flights are finished, Ken is "the reluctant carpenter."

Irene is the bird-handler of the pair and has perfected an easy method to capture the tiny birds: a fishnet to catch them in mid-air and a "very gentle" shower cap for her head.

"It's a good thing we both share an interest in birds," she adds. "It takes two of us to handle the work."

Irene, who currently teaches classes at Wetherwith Institution and Sir Sandford Fleming College in Peterborough, began collecting canaries as a younger woman. Later, when she married Ken, his service career and the travelling that went with it made her leave the hobby behind temporarily.

Years later — pet-shop canary raves kindled her interest — and that of her husband — in bird collecting.

Actually caring for the birds is just a small part of the hobby. The breeding of the birds, providing the proper environment learning about nesting requirements and the like absorb hours of their day.

Then there are monthly club meeting with other fanciers — they soon hope to begin a Quinte-Peterborough area club — and, of course, the shows, where they have been successful exhibitors for several years.

Irene recently appeared on the CBC's summer-circle show. Double Up which featured fanciers with interesting hobbies and Irene and Ken both starred in two segment of "Pet Set" a series about pet birds. Women's Institutes and other groups have heard the Neils speak and have met some of their birds.

Starting this month, too, Campbellford-area school children will get the opportunity to look at the colorful birds when school tours begin.

"There are 'a lot of birds here,'" Irene says, "so we may as well share them."

"Make-them ears (their food."

Like everything else, bird seed has suffered from inflation and the millet their finches favor — which they buy in far away Norwich — is costing more than ever before.

Although feed is expensive, it can't begin to match the cost of some of the rare birds. The Neils have paid, for example, $198 for a pair of Goldians.

They're the brilliant purple and green and gold finches with yellow or red or black faces discovered in the jungles of Australia by a nineteenth century governor general, Lord Gould. He named them for his wife, Lady Gould. Fourteen years ago Australia banned the export of all of its native birds making the Gouldians — tricky birds to raise at best — all the more rare here and in Europe where bird fanciers abound.

"Bird clubs here are conspicuous by the absence of Canadian-born members.

Ken adds, "In Ontario there are five bird fancier's clubs — in Holland and Italy and — — — in land five is every town."

Mrs. Margret Elaine Nevins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Denike, received her B.N. Sc. degree from the University of Western Ontario. She has passed her R.N. Exams and has accepted a position at Northwestern General Hospital, Toronto.

Fine Feathered Friends

Ken and Irene Craig Neil show some of the trophies they've won in bird fancier competitions around the country. In the cages beside them are Yorkshire canaries, just one of the many varieties they keep.

VANDALS ACTIVE

VANCOUVER (CP) — A spokesman for the Vancouver School Administrators Association said vandalism in city schools is expected to cost $500,000 this year, double the cost two years ago. He blamed a hard core of juvenile delinquents and said the increase is partly due to inflation.

Sgt. Maj. L. R. (Buck) Morris said 30 women applied in Toronto to become Mounties, but only six were accepted and six more are being considered.

Tries to be Likable

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I try to be likable but I haven't got enough friends to make me feel accepted in the world. I know two girls, divorced, who like me and I like them, too, but they do not interest me. I do socially, though, marriage is out for me.

I feel super lonely when I have dinner on the bus every day.

A few girls who dressed cheap and had the shortest skirts on in Liverpool (on my holidays) bothered me feel sexy, but I really looked down at them and didn't admire them. I feel guilty about going to England because I could have had the money on the dear, bee 73rd birthday.

I live in a comfortable, bright room and yet a few married couples I've know, have an over bad effect on me despite the fact I do lovely things. I'm pretty sure my source of loneliness and trouble is in me.

Feeling Suicidal.

Dear Feeling: If you have no nice girl friends like you ... you're lucky. Sexual attraction often comes last. Keep your friends. Perhaps feeling sexy in Liverpool was not a nice experience, but it helped you to separate this completely physical feeling from the romantic which goes with true friendship.

If you feel lonely and blue when you home on the bus and at the end of the day join the club with a few million other people. Feeling tired makes people blue. It is a low period in the day, especially if you face an empty room and an unoccupied evening.

Do not just suggest to your friends that they drop in; name a date and make a date. Many people who seem aloof are indifferent are really wrapped up in their own bundle of trouble. Try thinking positively about how to help them.

Doris keeps in contact with knowledgeable consultants in many fields — medicine, law, religion, home economics, to name a few. Write to her, care of this newspaper, in the kind of help you need. Enclosing a self-addressed stamped, self-addressed envelope for private reply.)

Have Title Searched Before Buying House

OTTAWA (CP) — Others to purchase a house should be made conditional upon a title search, advises the federal consumer affairs department.

A person who buys a completed home with an undischarged lien against the title cannot, defend himself by claiming that he did not insure the lien, the department says in an issue of Consumer Contact, a recently publication aimed at advising consumers.

"In legal terms, a lien is the right of a contractor, sub-contractor, labourer or materials supplier to force payment of debts owing for work performed, or for materials supplied to construct or repair a building."

There are also other liens, including some to force payment of municipal taxes, rental sales taxes, and to ensure that contributions were made under the Workmen's Compensation Act, says the department.

There cannot be a lien against a property unless there are unpaid bills, it adds. Also, a lien is effective only if it has been properly registered 'at a provincial land registry office.

"Your best protection is to have a lawyer search the title for any home you are considering buying."

A person having a house built has some protection from the time limit for registering liens and the right to hold back funds, says the department.

"This right of law is a holdback exists regardless of whether your contract specifically calls for full payment immediately upon completion."

Subcontractors have a right to obtain payment either from the contractor or from the person having the house built. If funds have been held back, the house purchaser will have the money to pay the sub-contractor if the general contractor defaults.

If the house under construction is being financed by a loan company, bank or other lending institutions, the lender holds back a sufficient percentage of payments to the builder to ensure that any lien claims can be discharged, says the department.

These comments are necessarily general, because the nature and application of liens law varies across Canada, it says.

The cheapest insurances against the possibility of double payments or loss of a property that you build or buy is to invest in legal advice before you embark upon the project."

Advice for Bumbling Dad Who Won't Talk About Sex

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: May I answer a few questions posed by that gink who thought your column wasn't for a family newspaper? He wanted to know what to say when his 11-year-old son asked him what a homosexual was. He said everyone heard the word till he read it in your column.) The answer is as clear, I should think, why he didn't see it.

No need to tell your 11-year-old can about homosexuals. Walk past or shakes a pass at him in a public toilet or a park. About his criticism that you specified the sexual acts in your column on V.D. (the symptoms didn't go with that bunch of flakes!) No need to talk to your children about V.D. Wait till they get it. It's so much easier when kids experience something first hand. But the best part of not telling him anything is that it saves you the embarrassment because you aren't as well informed as you ought to be. Besides, that kind of talk makes you uncomfortable.—Dolcha Served In Austin, Texas

I think this is wrong, and I'm sorry and I dislike my crust. I feel my face and neck get hot for no reason except that I am slightly embarrassed by something that is said. To look at me, you'd think I was dying of shame.

Whenever anyone mentions it, I get redder—which makes it twice as bad. Is there anything I can do about it?—Tomato Face

Dear Ann Landers: I am a married woman, part 50, totally starved old to blush. But I do how hard I tried!

Dear T. Face: Blushing is an involuntary act, so accept it and stop fretting. In my younger days I secretly envied the girls who could blush because I'm fair-skinned and could never muster up the slightest bit of color, no matter

Dear Tex: Beautiful. Everything is bigger in Texas—even the pocketbook. You did a masterful job on that pathetic, bumbling Dad and I thank you.

Dear Ann Landers: My father, age 56, lives in a rest home. October 1974 — a problem arose with a handsome income. is very good to dad. He and his wife Mary had a good every day. Mary is a professional dancer who also has a nice income. They have no children. Henry handles all dad's financial affairs.

My husband is a struggling cop. I have a chronic ailment and can't work, but we manage O.K. We have three bright kids, all college material. But the only way they can go to college is on grandpa's money.

The Mary-Lous and Mary are at right as wallpaper with their own dough, but they are very generous with dad's. They frequently take us all out to dinner "on grandpa" and the poor old guy doesn't have the foggiest.

Turn-of-the-century Nurse Remembers Good Old Days

TORONTO (CP) — Nurses today "just don't know how to have fun like we did," said retired Dorothea Bell.

The oldest living graduate—class of 1903—of the Toronto General Hospital School of Nursing, Mrs. Banfield is 103 years and seven months old.

"I had a pleasant memories," she said. "One of them is tafpete petticoats that swished and rustled so temptingly."

In her training days she worked 12 hours a day for $6 a month.

One of seven children, she became a nurse because "there was nothing else for girls to do."

"My dad was a clergyman and he warned me about the hard work but I've never regretted anything I did."

After graduation she lived with an uncle in below, B.C., and worked "in the baby ward" until she married the following year.

She lives with her daughter in Toronto, where she settled in 1926 after several years in Cuba and travels across Canada.

On her first trip to Nelson, she was the only woman on the train.

"I enjoyed it so much," she said. "I was so popular I got a swelled head. I forgot I was popular because there was no body else for them to talk to."

Asked if nurses were allowed to date doctors or orderlies she replied: "Oh, mercy, no. We couldn't go out. But I guess maybe we snuck out sometimes. I don't remember."

The bathroom partitions didn't go to the ceiling and I used to go in and steal clothes off the hooks when they were taking their baths."

Edmonton Man Ill In Cyprus

OTTAWA (CP) — The government has asked Turkish officials to allow a seriously ill Edmonton east man, his family trapped by war in northeastern Cyprus, to leave the island.

An external affairs department spokesman said Thursday the Canadian embassy in Ankara is "doing its utmost" to obtain safe passage out of Cyprus for Nicolas Iourides, his wife and four children.

Representations have been made to the government of Turkey.

In the meantime, Mr. Iourides was receiving the medication needed for treatment of his brain tumor from the International Red Cross and the Canadian contingent with the United Nations peacekeeping force in Cyprus.

"It is most essential to have Mr. Iourides and his family out of the country as soon as possible," the external affairs spokesman said.

Early Child Prevents Breast Cancer

KINGSTON (CP) — An authority on breast cancer from Scotland Thursday had the longer a woman waits to have her first child the greater the risk she will develop breast cancer.

A. M. T. Forrest, region professor of clinical surgery at the Royal Infirmary in Edinburgh, was lecturing a group of physicians and surgeons at Queen's University.

He said there is a definite relationship between breast cancer and the length of time between the onset of menstruation, and the birth of a woman's first child.

He said studies have shown the risk is double for a woman who waits until she is 35 or older than for one whose first child is born before she reaches 20.

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A $18-million provincial program for home improvement will make loans of up to $7,500 available in the current fiscal year to families with a maximum income of $12,500, Donald Irvine, acting Ontario housing minister, said Saturday.

JOHN MUNRO

Munro Lists $52,337 Spent

HAMILTON (CP) — Labor Minister John Munro's official agent has filed a list of campaign donations for the July 8 federal election naming three sources for a total of $52,337.

The largest single item of $40,362 is attributed to Joseph T. Kozyk, a lawyer who was Mr. Munro's campaign manager and who is the law partner of John J. Jaskiw, Mr. Munro's official agent.

The other two contributions listed are $1,725 from the national Liberal party and $5,000 from "Central Fund, c-o Tom Hickey."

The return listed expenditures of $62,158.

Two weeks before the last election, Mr. Munro confirmed reports that the RCMP a month previously had requested and received lists of his campaign contributors and expenditures in the 1972 general election. The request was part of an investigation into the burning of the Hamilton Hardeb Commission, a federal agency.

Study Licences

OTTAWA (CP) — Communications Minister Gerard Pelletier said Thursday there is a "strong presumption" that the Quebec government has exceeded its powers by granting cable television licences to two cable operators.

But the minister told reporters after a cabinet meeting that provincial licences granted by the Quebec public service board still are being examined by the justice department.

Bitten by Snake

TORONTO (CP) — Ambulance service was mobilized from Owen Sound Wednesday night to treat a 16-year-old Toronto man who was bitten at home by his pet rattlesnake, a hospital spokesman said Thursday.

The spokesman said Paul Barrett, who also keeps a pet alligator, was admitted to Toronto General Hospital suffering from a bite on a finger.

Company of Young Canadians Is Organizing Farm Workers

OTTAWA (CP) — The federally-financed Company of Young Canadians is sponsoring a campaign to give Ontario farm workers the right for the first time to form unions and go on strike.

CYC executive-director Del Brodhead said Thursday the agency will provide money and "moral support" for the cause of Ontario's estimated 15,000 migrant farm workers until they are able to bargain with farmers on their own.

The CYC is paying two southwestern Ontario field organizers to recruit the migrant workers into a labor association almost as effectively bridge free collective bargaining to the province's agricultural industry.

Many farmers treat their workers, especially migrants, like chattels, Dave Quarrie, Manitoban and foreign consultant, "no better than cattle in a stockyard," William Jackson, one of the organizers, said.

Mr. Jackson, a 26-year-old former crop picker from Cotton in Peel County, and Michael Lemire say they have so far contacted about 150 harvest workers into the fledgling Migrant Farm Workers' Association. They hope to have 300 to 400 members by next spring.

The association thinks an overhaul of Ontario labor relations and employment standards apply to give farm workers the right to bargain with farmers for higher pay and better working conditions.

The labor relations law, which governs collective bargaining in the province, now precludes farm workers, household servants, policemen, firemen and teachers. The standards act also excludes farm workers from many of the minimum wage, hours of work and child labor protections.

Mr. Jackson and Mr. Lemire are on one-year renewable CYC contracts to conduct the recruiting project. The CYC pays them each $467 a month plus travelling expenses.

Mr. Jackson said the CYC is picking up where the federal manpower department left off in trying to do something about low pay and squalid working conditions among itinerant farm workers in Ontario.

Last year a manpower investigation revealed "inhumane and intolerable" conditions among the workers, including inadequate housing, long hours, low pay and exploitive use of child labor.

This spring the department guaranteed a minimum wage and decent housing to the estimated 8,000 foreign - harvest workers brought from the Caribbean, Mexico and Europe. But Mr. Jackson says Canadian migrant workers are still being overworked, underpaid and poorly housed.

He said the CYC is not afraid of a confrontation with the Ontario government over the association.

Delegates noted that some of the province's prime farmland is being buried under pavement. Continued transfer of agricultural land to housing and industry would lead to more productivity and higher food costs.

"Farmland is often treated as a reserve," said Dr. D. W. Hoffman, head of the university

Ambulance Delayed

Kingston Doctor Wins Argument

NICOSIA (CP) — A Canadian ambulance-carrying Turkish civilian patients to hospital was delayed on a highway on the outskirts of Nicosia for nearly three hours by a heavily Greek-Cypriot police.

Capt. Mike Kreempovich, a doctor from Kingston, Ont., and his team finally managed to deliver his nine patients to a Turkish-Cypriot hospital here but only after a prolonged palaver.

The Canadian, serving with the United Nations peacekeeping force in Cyprus, went to the Turkish-Cypriot village of Kotchati, 15 miles south of the capital, after a patrol from the Capt. Phil Campbell of Edmonton found numerous children and adults were ill there.

But the Kreempovich party—an ambulance and two jeeps—was stopped at a crossroads by police, who demanded that the patients—if they were really sick—be taken first to a Greek-Cypriot hospital to be checked to be examined. They included women and babies.

Cpl. Don David Brabner of Saskatoon and Cpl. Larry Scott of London, Ont., were impatient in the front seat of the ambulance as the doctor explained that the people of Kotchati would be up a farm if their kinfolk were delivered to a Greek hospital.

A big Greek Jess began to build up and the police commander, eventually gave way, apparently persuaded at least in part by the arrival of television cameras.

Earlier he forbade this reporter to take notes during the three-hour delay, but later complained he had only the highest regard for Canadians serving with the UN force. However, he said he suspected the ambulance driver.

Dr. Kreempovich said at one point that if they reminded firm, he would have no choice but to take the Turkish-Cypriots to their village until other arrangements were made.

The Turks, who could not understand English or Greek, said later the ambulance refreshed somewhat by cold water fetched by Maj. Bob Lockhart, the former Saint John, N.B., mayor now serving as information officer with the Canadian Airborne Regiment in his status as a reserve officer.

Shelter Needed Quickly

NICOSIA (AP) — A United Nations official warned Thursday the plight of the Cyprus refugees "would become catastrophic unless we get them under shelter before the end of March" in a few days. Most of the refugees live under tents.

The remark was made by John Kelly, the representative of the UN high commissioner for refugees on Cyprus.

He said they are approximately 184,000 Greek-Cypriot refugees and 41,000 Turkish-Cypriot refugees.

Kelly told a news conference that so far only $4.5 million in contributions have been received towards the target figure of $23 million.

Sadistic 'Goings On' Charged In Cobourg Training School

TORONTO (CP) — An Ontario probation officer who criticized the province's training school in court Friday said conditions at the Cobourg school are "sadistic" and "brutal."

He said in an interview that he began making remarks in court about alleged training school last fall and was advised in June by Dickson E. Taylor, director of probation and aftercare services for the ministry of corrections, that a report would be held regarding his employment.

He said in an interview that he began making remarks in court about alleged training school last fall and was advised in June by Dickson E. Taylor, director of probation and aftercare services for the ministry of corrections, that a report would be held regarding his employment.

He said he felt no compunction about going to the press when the ministry's internal structure shut him off.

"If let management know that if they didn't deal with brutality in the training schools, I would take it to the outside," he said.

Mr. Brewer said he has not personally witnessed any brutality, but enough information has come to him to make him believe the situation goes up from time to time in different areas."

He said he could not "in truthful and recommend places like this" in court.

Charges against Mr. Brewer include making "unsubstantiated allegations" that discredited ministry programs before two judges, and acting in a "manner detrimental to the interest of probationers" by making allegations in the presence of probationers.

TORONTO (CP) — The divisional court Thursday upheld an arbitrator's decision to grant a Metropolitan Toronto Police Association demand for two officers in all uniform patrol cars at night.

Collingwood - Kingston Land Freeze Requested

OTTAWA (CP) — The Ontario government will be asked to freeze development of southern Ontario farmland south of the Collingwood-Barrie-Kingston area, it was announced Wednesday.

The resolution to demand the freeze was approved here at the 56th biennial conference of Conservation Authorities of Ontario.

Delegates noted that some of the province's prime farmland is being buried under pavement. Continued transfer of agricultural land to housing and industry would lead to more productivity and higher food costs.

Mohawk Reserve Quiet

TYENDINAGA — Administration of this Mohawk reserve continued unchanged today after Wednesday night's call for dissolution of the elected council.

There have been no new developments in the dispute by spokesmen for both sides in it, despite that marked demand for council resignations.

Chief William Beaut refused to accept the ultimatum that council quit and new elections be called.

But one councillor believes council no longer has any authority.

Cecil Maracle said after Wednesday's meeting he took the view council had been "dissolved by the people."

Councillor Maracle has been a spokesman for a protest movement opposed to an industrial corporation on the reserve.

Wardship Up for Grabs Many Reeves Undecided

Depending on the outcome of the December municipal elections, the contest for the wardenship of Hastings county could be a three-or-four-way race.

This was indicated Thursday during the annual county councillors' bus trip which this year took them on a tour across the north end of the county.

Councillors, Reeves and Deputy Reeves Wilbert McCrea, and Sidney Reeve Gordon Wilman, strongly intimated they might be in the wardenship race. Madoc Reeve Cecil Woodcock said his candidacy also is a possibility — if not for 1972, then definitely for 1973, while

Councillors Enjoy Outing in Country

Taking a break from municipal deliberations, Hasting county councillors turned spelunkers and pot-holers during their annual bus trip Thursday as they visited the Bonnechere Caverns cave at Eganville in Renfrew county.

Councillors toured the underground caves — millions of years in the making but opened to the public only about 18 years ago, marvelled at the roaring torrent of the Bonnechere Lake and examined fossils of coral and sea creatures alive before the age of the dinosaurs.

The Bonnechere caves, five miles east downstream from Eganville, were first discovered 100 years before the first white settlers arrived and over a 10-year period were developed by present owner Tom Woodward, who opened them to the public in 1965.

The caves, lying under a hill of limestone said by geologists to have been the bottom of a tropical sea 500 million years ago, are believed to be the only extensive natural underground caves in this part of Canada, are a mecca for school and college groups and tourist buses and sleds.

Councillors had a take out chicken dinner at the caves, and after returning to Hastings by way of Barry's Bay and Combermere, enjoyed an evening at the Red Eagle Lodge of Wollaston Deputy Reeve Buddy French at Coe Hill.

Chicken Dinner Picnic

Bonnechere Caves on the Bonnechere River east of Eganville was the scene Thursday for a take out chicken dinner as Hastings county councillors toured the underground caves hewn out of the limestone by water action over thousands of years. The caves, first discovered in the early 1800's, were opened for public sightseeing about 10 years ago.

A motion to preserve the "sanctity" of the Quinte District Labor Council was defeated today Thursday night as United Community Services directors deliberated over a threatened labor boycott of this year's United Way campaign.

Last spring the labor council membership voted to boycott the annual fund-raising campaign if member agencies receiving funds from the campaign were allowed to continue "double dipping", the practice of first getting funds from the campaign and later applying for grants from city council.

Wednesday night, the labor council sat down with UCS executive members to "iron out" the problem of double dipping and come to some understanding of the problem of multiple funding. During that meeting, which lasted several hours, a member of the Canadian Labor Congress suggested a system of pre-grant budgeting whereby the UCS would vet by funding a percentage of the total agency budget would completely fund particular programs.

The labor representatives said they would only tell that meeting in private, what they thought of the proposal.

Thursday, ex UCS president Virginia O'Rourke began reading her report to the board concerning the previous night's UCS-Labor session, the board's labor delegate Jim Wiseman interrupted asking that the board go into caucus.

Mr. Wiseman said correspondence "written (to the UCS) in the heat of double dipping charges" by the labor council should not be released to the press.

Mr. Wiseman was reminded that the letter in question had been circulated to the press by his council president some weeks before and he withdrew his caucus motion.

After explaining the program budget proposal, Mrs. O'Rourke accepted a second Wiseman motion for caucus prior to divulging "secret" labor sentiments.

"I don't feel good about killing on this secret information," she said.

The board voted on the question of program budgeting, refusing to go into caucus, saying labor's sentiments about the proposal shouldn't jeer the UCS decision.

Because the board would not go into caucus, no further discussion was held concerning the previous night's caucus meeting.

The proposal came under fire from some directors, who said under it double dipping would not be stopped but only re-named. The proposal still allows agencies to search out supplementary funding but United Way money will completely fund "aspects of" an agency rather than a percentage of the entire agency.

"We're taking something (double dipping) and putting it in a different package but it is still the same," said board member Fred Deacon.

The motion to begin program budgeting won board approval — though the system will be a lengthy, complex one to initiate. Mrs. O'Rourke said it will have no affect on this year's campaign.

Due to the complexities in paperwork associated with the new scheme, she said she feels probably one or two agencies at a time will be taught how to use the system.

"It's an exciting idea . . . but results won't come overnight," she said.

Mrs. O'Rourke said now the scheme has been approved by the board, "We have to get cracking on implementation right away."

It will not be until the Oct. 1, meeting of the labor council that there will be some final word on the boycott.

Bureau Requested To Seek Other Aid

The Citizens Bureau has been denied any United Way campaign proceeds until proof is shown that supplementary funding has been obtained to cover staff payroll.

Earlier this month, the bureau was accepted under the United Way umbrella on the condition that the Belleville fund drive would pick up 50 per cent of the operating costs — or ($2,100), exclusive of payroll. The remaining 50 percent should be contributed through Trenton sources where the bureau is located, and members of the United Community Services board of directors, Thursday night.

The motion, which freezes the bureau allocation until payroll funding is found, evolved from a UCS finance committee suggestion that the bureau be dropped from the campaign completely. In the last few weeks the bureau has been accepted by the UCS-fund administrators. The bureau staff subsequently turned down UCS-United Way money, claiming possible conflict of interest and then last week stepped back under the United Way umbrella.

Jane McNicol, a member of the finance committee, said: "We have no guarantees about supplementary funding."

It (supplementary funding) is a collection of ifs, ands and buts," she said.

Frank Seemungal advised the board; "It would be a bad thing to drop the bureau now." Reeve Ken Murray described the bureau as "not terribly popular" among the big givers.

The motion carried calling for proof of external payroll funding before United Way funds will be released.

The Citizens Bureau, a public ombudsman and advocate for those in need of the individual, is applying for federal LIP money — as it has on two previous occasions.

The bureau in a letter to the board — said the Trenton share of the operating costs will be secured this week (approximately $2,100 matching the proposed United Way allocation), and that payroll funds are anticipated through LIP funding.

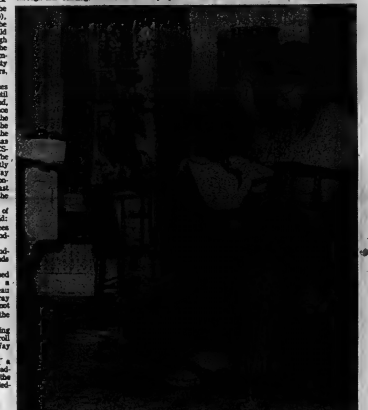
TWEED (Special) — A 19-year-old Stirling motorcyclist has been charged with intoxicated and dangerous driving following a high-speed highway chase Thursday night.

Police said a motorcyclist was checked at 8:27 p.m. Stirling but took off at high speed followed by Constable Terry Martin. The officer radioed ahead and was joined at Moira Lake on Highway 62 by Constable Walter Sawkins of Madoc.

The motorcyclist was cut off at Madoc and was corralled at Russell and Prince Albert streets where he struck a police cruiser. The entire chase from Stirling to Madoc took only 15 minutes.



The police cruiser received $125 damage, the motorcycle $25 but neither the motorcyclist nor his male passenger were injured.

Charged is Gregory S. Anderson of Stirling.

Support Helps Arena

STIRLING — Rob McCrory, RR4, Stirling, is using the Canada-Soviet hockey series that began Tuesday to benefit the Stirling Community Centre Fund.

He is pledging $1 for every goal scored by Canada in the eight-game series and hopes other residents will match his pledge. Pledges for the arena fund are being accepted by the Stirling weekly newspaper.

Creative Stitchery

Inspired by children's enthusiasm for her craft, Pat Merli of Chatterton, east of Stirling, will teach them how to be creative with needle and yarn at Stirling Senior School next month. Her month-long session, funded by the Ontario Arts Council and the county education board, will concentrate on teaching about 190 Grade 7 and 8 students how to be creative in embroidery and applique.

Students Get Chance To Learn Needlepoint

By CASH MAHAFFY

CHATTERTON — Grade seven and eight students — girls and boys — will have a chance to learn some fancy ways to handle a needle and yarn next month.

For four weeks, starting Oct. 15, Pat Merli will demonstrate and teach the fine points of embroidery and applique to students at Stirling Senior School.

Pat, who has taught needlework for the Belleville recreation department and Loyalist College extension courses, began demonstrating and teaching children after a night at the school her own children attended.

Christopher, 9 and Melissa, 11, attend Marsh Hill school and apparently Pat's reputation with the needle was widespread enough for her to be assisted to put on a demonstration at the school's open house.

She did, and the children's enthusiastic response was enough to inspire her to apply for an Ontario Arts Council grant to work in an area school. The grant — $1,000— was awarded. It is covered 85 per cent by the province and 15 per cent by the Hastings Board of Education.

The grants are designed for artists and craftsmen who are not academically qualified to teach school. They must be professional people who are endeavoring to make a living with their work. This is the second year for the grant program.

Pat will be working with about 190 students in Stirling.

"I plan to start out by demonstrating the first few days, then begin teaching," she said.

"I'd like each of the children to do an individual piece involving embroidery and applique and then incorporate them all into a banner or banners that could be used as wall hangings.

"Kids come up with some pretty fantastic ideas, though" she says, "and I intend to leave myself open. I don't want to stifle their imagination," she said.

A university graduate in home economics and biology (she wanted to be a food scientist), Pat started embroidery as a hobby. She then became interested in needlepoint.

When she was living in Waterloo, her reputation as a needleworker got her a teaching job, through the YWCA, and she has been at it ever since.

Pat calls her craft "creative stitchery" and describes it as basically "the embellishment of fabric."

"I try to teach techniques," she said "rather than tell a person what to do. I want to show them what it is possible for them to create."

Goalies Steal the Spotlight As Canada Whips Russia 4-1

TORONTO (CP) — Team Canada coach Billy Harris and those Canadians who arrange international hockey schedules might do well to set up more dates at Maple Leaf Gardens.

Team Canada '74 romped to a 4-1 win over the Soviet Union national team Thursday, marking the second time in a row that a Canadian professional side has knocked off a Russian club at the Gardens.

In 1972, Team Canada, made up of National Hockey League all-stars, won by an identical score—the only game they won in Canada.

Normally a bastion of NHL sophistication, a sellout crowd of almost 16,500 cheered wildly as the Canadians from the World Hockey Association who moved into a 2-0 lead and were rarely pressed afterwards.

Bobby Hull, Andre Lacroix, Ralph Backstrom and J. C. Tremblay scored for the Canadians and Alexander Yakushev for the Russians.

The only time the Russians threatened was early in the third period when they had an apparent goal disallowed by Canadian referee Tom Brown.

Team Canada was ahead 3-1 when Brown ignored the red goal light that flashed moments after Vladimir Petrov apparently beat goaltender Gerry Cheevers.

"That wasn't a disputed goal," said Soviet coach Boris Kulagin in a post-game interview. "It was an undisputed goal."

Harris said the Soviets could count the goal, "and that would make the score 4-2."

Brown wasn't sure he had made the right call but after consulting with the goal judge and his linesman, he stood by his goal.

The Russians asked him to reconsider his decision after reviewing the play on a television monitor in the Russian bench.

Brown refused, an action which later was commended by Vern Buffey, WHA referee-in-chief responsible for co-ordinating the officials for this eight-game series that resumes Saturday afternoon in Winnipeg.

Team Canada fashioned a one-game lead after two games following a 5-3 tie Tuesday at Quebec City.

"There's no way they (referees) can play with Interlakes rules for judgments," said Buffey, adding that he thought Brown had called an "excellent game."

Asked later if he had considered pulling his team off the ice after the disputed goal, Kulagin said: "No. We have high regard for spectators and we are well aware that they pay to see the game."

Team Canada could have doubled the score except for the superb goaltending of Vladislav Tretiak.

Yakushev ended Canadian goalie Gerry Cheever's shutout bid at 13:08 of the second period.

The Canadians, employing a four-line attack, allowed them to skate with the younger Soviet players for short, quick bursts, still are not favorites to win the series.

But their crowd-pleasing tactics appear to have upset the patient Soviet system and, unlike the 1972 squad, this Canadian team is not adverse to laying on the stick and elbows in the corners.

Before Brown, as did Josef Kompalla of West Germany in the first game, ignored many of the infractions. But Brown called a penalty shot for Canada's Mike Walton when he was hauled down in the second period by defenceman Valeri Vasilyev.

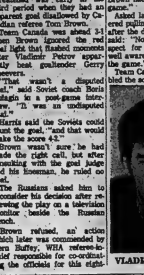
However, the WHA scoring king's slapshot went into Tretiak's pads.

Later before the period started, Cheevers' father-in-law, John Giacomi, accurately suffered a heart attack in the stands behind the Team Canada bench. He was in serious condition in hospital.

Gordie Howe was taken to hospital after the first period with rib injuries, but X-rays showed no breaks and the 46-year-old winger was expected to be ready for the next contest.

Whether Harris decides to sit out hockey great statesman for Saturday's game won't be known until the Team Canada coach discloses his lineup for the weekend match, possibly late this week.

Soviet winger Juri Lebeda was out for several stitches on his forehead and Canada's Andre Lacroix was also on the middle of his head; inflicted near the 18-minute mark of the second period by Alexander Ivanov.



Lacroix and his team-mates argued to no avail that a five-minute major for penalty should have been called for drawing blood, but absence of the Russian centre star set the stage for Tremblay's goal, at 17:05. It was a lazy shot from the blueline that deflected high into the net off defender Viktor Kuzkin's arm. Referee and Hull assisted.

Backstrom's goal came at 4:31 of the first period, and was set up by Mark Howe and his 10th point in seven games.

Lacroix scored at the 19:46 mark of the first with Bobby Hull on defence and Yuri Lebeda sent him up.

Canada outshot the Russians 30-28, with their widest margin in the second period, 16-8.

When Howe Had to Leape Others Picked Up Slack

TORONTO (CP) — Team Canada coach Billy Harris said he liked the score of Thursday's hockey game against the Soviet Union, but not the result, as sharp as in the first game.

He was commenting following a 4-1 victory in the second game of the eight-game series. The first game, in Quebec City, ended in a 5-3 tie Tuesday.

Harris said like to launch Maple Leaf Gardens' was "tough to skate on for both teams."

Play was ragged at times as though the wildly partisan crowd didn't seem to mind.

"I was hoping the Toronto crowd would help get us a win and they certainly made a contribution," Harris said.

The Russians last met in Canada by an identical score at Maple Leaf Gardens in 1972. That team was made up of National Hockey League stars while the current edition comprises World Hockey Association players.

Gordie Howe, who played just two shifts in the game, earning an assist on Ralph Backstrom's opening goal, attended a postgame news conference with Harris and Russian coach Boris Kulagin.

Howe said he had bruised his ribs. Asked how the injury occurred he said:

"I have no idea. I guess I'm too old for this game."

He said x-rays showed nothing broken but didn't know whether he would play in Saturday's third game in Winnipeg.

Harris said there would be some changes for the game, but he would not say what they would be. He did say that Don McLeod may replace Gerry Cheevers in goal.

The Canadian coach said losing Howe made things tough for the other three lines "but Backstrom and Mark (Howe's son) MVP'd in his place regarding."

"The three times they killed penalties they nearly scored."

He said he hoped Vancouver defenceman Pat Stapleton was outstanding.

Paul Shmyr played the game of his life," Howe said.

Rhyan Looking For First

MASON, Ohio (AP) — Career struggler Dick Rhyan, a 38-year-old tour regular who has yet to win, put together a fine finish for a 66 and a three-stroke lead Thursday in the first round of the $150,000 Ohio Kings Island golf tournament.

Rhyan, who first joined the tour 10 years ago and has played off and on since, also played some spectacular putting as he birdied seven of his last 10 holes on the 6,894-yard, par-71 Jack Nicklaus golf centre course.

Nicklaus—the man who designed the course, the defending champion and the overwhelming favorite for the $30,000 first prize—scrambled home six strokes back with a routine 71.

Nicklaus had only one birdie—on a par five he reached in two—and a par four, a three putt on the 12th.

Miller Barber shared second place at 68. A hulky group of a dozen followed at 69 including Gary Player, Larry Ziegler, Tom Kite, Dave Eichelberger, Bob Dickson, Jim Morgan, Rocky Erskine, Graham Marsh, Tim Collins, Charles Owens, Jim Ferrell and Victor Regalado.

Rhyan has played the tour regularly for the last six years and has had to fight to make expenses. His best finish this year was a tie for 12th and his career best was a tie for third in the Philadelphia tournament three years ago.

Change of Scenery For Two WFL Teams?

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Houston Texans and Detroit Wheels, two of the financially troubled franchises in the World Football League, both hope to move to greener pastures.

But how many is not known, and how much greener remains to be seen.

The texans were all set to move to Shreveport for their Wednesday's game against Memphis, but District Court Judge Arthur Lesser issued a temporary restraining order Thursday in the Houston competing the team to play next week's game in the Astrodome.

Meanwhile, there were indications the Wheels might be shifted to Charlotte today.

Upton Bell, a former executive with New England Patriots of the National Football League, has shown an interest in purchasing the Detroit club and moving it to Charlotte, and has told the local park and recreation commission he would reveal his plans by today.

If Bell doesn't move the Wheels to Charlotte, the WFL might, says a report in the Charlotte News.

That report quotes Tim Grandi, assistant to WFL Commissioner Gary Davidson, as saying: "We are hoping for a favorable answer from Bell. There's a possibility that a city that league would make the move to Charlotte."

A New Orleans meat products firm which markets hot dogs and other meat products, meanwhile sought the court order prevent Jerry Glanville, a former game against Memphis, consending that such action would constitute a ticket promotion i la sponsoring.

"We are not trying to keep the team from moving to Shreveport," said A. J. Foyt, the firm's director of marketing. "We are talking only about this one Memphis game."

The Texans—playing without coach Jim Garrett and their regular quarterback Mike Taliaferro—were beaten 42-14 by Birmingham Wednesday in a nationally televised game Thursday night.

Garrett was suspended Thursday by Commissioner Davidson for "conduct detrimental to the league" and Henry Lee Parker, WFL's director of operations, served as interim coach.

That "Disputed" Goal

Referee Upsets Kulagin

TORONTO (CP) — The Soviet Union national hockey team may spoil a planned trip to Moscow by Tom Brown of Scarbrough, Ont.

Brown, 34, refereed Thursday's game between the Russians and Team Canada and the visitors weren't impressed.

Boris Kulagin, coach of the Russian team—they lost 4-1 to Team Canada—said in a post-game interview that "Tonight was a disputed, not an undisputed goal."

But it didn't count because Brown said he didn't see the puck go into the net.

"I didn't see the puck go into the net," said Brown. "I asked the linesmen and they didn't see it go in either.

"The goal judge hesitated in putting the light on and when he hesitated that was it. There was no way I was going to call it a goal. I explained to the Russians what I saw and that was it."

Brown referee Ontario Major Junior A hockey and has been asked to officiate in the National Hockey League and the World Hockey Association.

He says he is going to Moscow and hopes to referee a game there, but Kulagin says he won't have any part of that.

While replays of the incident on television appear to show the puck in the net, Vern Buffey, referee-in-chief of the WHA, said "there's no way we're going to rely on replays."

He said Brown had done "a great job" and he was satisfied.

Coach Billy Harris of Team Canada professed he had the solution. He suggested:

"The diplomatic thing to do is allow the goal. Make the score 4-2."

Kulagin was incensed by a third-period decision which apparently robbed the Russians of a goal that would have made the score 3-2.

Goalie's Father-in-law Suffers Heart Attack

TORONTO (CP) — News that Gerry Cheevers' father-in-law had suffered a heart attack cast a shadow over the Team Canada dressing room Thursday night after Cheever s 4-1 victory over the Soviet Union in the second of their eight-game series.

Cheevers, who reached the room late because he was bombarded after the game as Canada's top player, left quickly, escorted by a policeman.

"Sorry, fellas, no questions please," said Cheevers, who is not expected to play Saturday afternoon at Winnipeg in the third game of the series.

Cheevers' father-in-law, John Giacomi, was in serious condition in hospital.

The news delayed the arrival of Team Canada coach Billy Harris at a post-game interview with Gordie Howe and Boris Kulagin, Russian head coach.

Canada's players refused to second-guess referee Tom Brown of Scarborough, Ont., who ruled that a Russian shot early in the third period did not go in the net. A television replay appeared to show otherwise. If the shot had counted Canada would have led only 3-2.

Captain Pat Stapleton was firm.

"It didn't go in. The referee said it didn't go in, it didn't go in."

The Russian coach said Cheever wasn't disputed, "it was an undisputed goal."

But it didn't count because Brown said he didn't see the puck go into the net.

"I didn't see the puck go into the net," said Brown. "I asked the linesmen and they didn't see it go in either.

Griffins Top Wings In Opener

PHILADELPHIA (CP) — Rochester Griffins built up a first-period 3-2 lead and went on to defeat Philadelphia Wings 15 12 Thursday night in the opening game of the National League season.

Rochester best-of-seven final series leads 1-0.

The second game of the series is scheduled for Saturday afternoon at Rochester.

The Griffins, who finished in second place behind the regular season nine points back of Philadelphia, received a four-point performance from Ron Lonser. He now has 13 goals in 13 two-game playoff games.

Graeme Gair, Kevin Parsons and Brian Wilson, Peter Lee and Dave Wilson.

Philadelphia outshot Rochester 53-47.

The One That Got Away Almost Upset Our Side

It looked for a few minutes last night at Maple Leaf Gardens that's goal the Russians scored early in the second period, but have yet to see the tape, the scoreboard might have cost Canada a win.

Instead of sulking, or playing dead, coach Boris Kulagin's charges came to life to play their best hockey of the game for about seven minutes after team-mate Vladimir Petrov scored but didn't gain credit for a goal.

Petrov's shot to the top of the net apparently fooled the referees (Canada's Tom Brown) even though, as Don Cherrier, CBC's play-by-play man, told us the goal judge had the red light on.

It appeared the puck was in and out so fast, it may have fooled anyone.

That bit of indecisive accomplished what three men in charge of the series' team had been unable to do, earlier. It fired the team up.

Goalie Gerry Cheevers, a solid performer all the way through for our side, really came to the rescue while the Russians were settled and in their frustrations.

Cheevers defeated the superstitions and by the time the tensely charged ends for the first 10 minutes of play, Canada was ready to take charge again.

And take charge our side did, harassing every blue and time again to create excellent scoring opportunities and keep the pressure on Russia.

Vladislav Tretiak, of course, was just himself .... incredible.

It took one of Tretiak's mates to put the puck past the superstitious netminder.

Defenceman Victor Kunetsov shoots the wrong way and gets his stick to the puck on an innocent looking shot from the point by J.C. Tremblay.

SLEEPER — The clever combination play which produced the first goal of the game, brought a sincere "ohhhhh beautiful" from one viewer.

And the "misfortune" was something to behold.

The play moved from the Canadian zone to the payoff in a series of well executed passes with the puck travelling from Pat Stapleton to Blackstrom to Gordie Howe on the right side, to Mark Howe on the left and back to Backstrom who had moved into position on Tretiak's doorstep.

And what about Bobby Hull .... again.

He got a piece of every Russian player who had the temerity to venture within striking range. And Hull potted his third goal in two games as well as picking up an assist.

CBC cameras were there on the job for this one. And except for the fact that they managed to station one of the cameras in a position where it would be trying to "see" through fans, their effort was superior to the other network's Tuesday episode.

Kind of thought Cherrier was an improvement, too.

Tretiak described Mike Walton's aborted try on a second period penalty shot as a "primitive" play. At least that's how the interpreter put it across. Walton let out with a harmless slapshot.

Speaking of slapshots, where did the Russians pick up that habit .... and the drop pass on net for that matter? They sure have copied too well. Neither one appears to be doing them much good.

Ontario Hockey Association Senior A Hockey League action gets under way this local scene this time around, is just around the corner.

Former Belleville Eagles working out with the new Whitby McDonald's entry are high scoring winger Wayne Weller, and defenceman Bob Hull.

And in Hagaman, where they've taken over the Belleville franchise, that commodity is a jumping for its first go in senior ranks after plenty of success at the intermediate level.

It is expected some of the Belleville talent will be giving it the big effort to catch a spot with Walt Gerow's Comets.

The Napanee camp was scheduled to open last night.

Already, Comets have a strong booster club which is steadily growing in numbers, and enthusiasm.

Look like there will be quite a shakeup in the Gas House Hockey League this season.

The league operated with 12 teams last season. Three or four squads will not be back the 1974-75 campaign.

Top team last season, Mead Johnson, will have most of the same personnel back on its roster but Stanley Structures is the new sponsor, reports manager-coach Doug Preston.

Former Cornwall Royal, Danny Lupenette, has joined the Belleville Bobcats.

Lupenette signed with the Cats, of the Metro Junior B League, and will be playing against the Peterborough Lions in tonight's contest at the Memorial Arena. Game time is 9 p.m.

Andy Ricketts Signed

Lupenette Joins Cats

For some reason Belleville product, Danny Lupenette, did not get drafted from the Cornwall Royals of the Quebec Major Junior A Hockey League.

Lupenette, now 21-years-old, was not picked up in the junior draft by either the World Hockey Association or the National Hockey League.

This year, because he is 21, Danny decided to come back to Belleville and sign with the team that gave him his start, five years ago.

Tonight, at 9 p.m. when the Belleville Bobcats suit up against the Peterborough Lions Danny Lupenette will be in uniform.

Each Junior B club is allowed to sign one former Junior A player. According to the age restrictions Junior A clubs may not have anyone 21-years-of-age playing for them, but Junior B clubs may have as many 21-year-olds as they desire. The only stipulation on 21 year-old signees to a Junior B club is that only one of them may be a former Junior A calibre.

Lupenette was one of the top scorers with the high flying Cornwall Royals last season just as he was two years ago. This year in the Metro Junior B League he will probably tear up the east division.

Another surprise announcement from the Bobcat management was the signing of left-winger Andy Ricketts.

Ricketts was one of top scorer in the Belleville Bisnep last season.

He was at the Welland camp, a tier two Junior A club, but was cut this week.

He won't be in the lineup tonight because he has to sit out a seven game suspension from last year. The suspension was handed out last season during the playoffs.

The Bobcats will have a smaller roster for the game tonight since more players wage cut at Thursday night's practice.

Five Goals for Adams In BCI Seniors' Win

The defending Bay of Quinte senior soccer champions, BCI, came out with an 11-1 victory over Quinte Thursday in their season opener.

The BCI juniors had a much tougher time however as they lost 3-2.

Gary Adams led the senior attack with a record five goals and one assist. Peter Crawford was next with three and Ragnoo Motawaire booted a pair of markers. Kaiser had the eleventh.

Rierdeau was the only Quinte senior to get the ball past BCI goalie, Larry Savage.

Frank Spada saved twice and Ray Scully once to account for the Quinte Juniors victory.

BCI replied with singles from Gord Van Vliet and John Janopolous.

Baltimore Takes Over From Yankees at Top

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Baltimore Orioles are firmly in control in the American League East and New York Yankees are going south.

Those leaders appeared headed to those directions Thursday night following Baltimore's 7-0 rout of New York that gave the Orioles a half-game lead over the Yankees.

"We've just cranking up for games half-baseball earlier in the season," said Dave McNally after whipping the Orioles to their 18th victory in the last 22 games.

The Yankees, on the other hand, are making up for some good baseball late in the year. After a recent surge, the Yankees lost their third straight game to the Orioles.

Baltimore's suddenly-cold-hand pitching staff has had something to do with the Yankees' turnout. The Orioles' pitchers have given New York just four runs in the three-game series at Baltimore Stadium. McNally gave the Yankees only three hits.

"I had consistent control, by far the best I've had all year," said the left-hander.

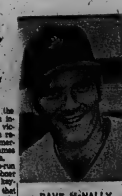
In other American League games, Detroit Tigers defeated Boston Red Sox 7-3 and Kansas City Royals defeated Oakland A's 4-3 in 10 innings.

In the National League, Pittsburgh Pirates whipped St. Louis Cardinals 8-4, Chicago Cubs trounced last - place Philadelphia Phillies 7-1; Los Angeles Dodgers bombed San Diego Padres 10-2 and Cincinnati Reds trimmed San Francisco Giants 3-1.

Dan Baylor opened the scoring for Baltimore, smashing the first pitch of the fifth inning from Rudy May, 4-6, over the fence in left-center.

The Orioles added two runs in the eighth inning on a run-scoring single by Paul Blair and an RBI double by Bobby Grich. They scored four more runs in the ninth, with Andy Etchebarren, Mark Belanger and Tommy Davis each singling in a run and Grich knocking in another with a grounder.

Vernon Ruhle pitched two-hit ball for seven innings in his first major league start and Al Kaline closed in on 3,000 hits time hits with a run-scoring single lifting Detroit over Boston. The Red Sox' loss left them in third place, three games behind the Orioles.



Ruhle, a 22-year-old graduate of Olivet College in Michigan, beat Boston veteran Luis Tiant, who failed for the sixth straight time to gain his 21st victory.

Kaline got his 2,997th major league hit when he singled to start a run in the first inning.

Rookie Fred Lynn tied his game for the Red Sox with a home run in the second inning, but then the Tigers won it on Jim Nettles' two-run triple in the fourth.

Amos Otis singled home the winning run in the 10th inning giving Kansas City its victory over Oakland. The loss rendered the A's tied in the American League West with the games over the 400 Texas Rangers.

Willie Stargell hit a two-run double and Richie Hebner added a three-run homer, both in a seventh-inning rally that lifted Pittsburgh over St. Louis.

Penguins Top Islanders

BRANTFORD, Ont. (CP) — Ronnie Pierre Lavender's goal at 16:47 of the third period led Pittsburgh Penguins to a 4-3 win over New York Islanders in a National Hockey League exhibition game Thursday night.

The game featured three fine shots, one resulting in a goal by Pittsburgh's Kelly Pratt at 18:32 of the first period. Tom Bergerat of the Penguins and Bob Cook of the Islanders had the other free shots.

The NHL decided earlier this year to allow free shots to the attacking team in exhibition games if the defending squad attempts to delay the game.

The referees placed the puck on the nearest spot of the faceoff circle on the side on which the infraction occurred. Any player on the non-offending team who was on the ice at the time of the infraction is allowed to take the shot.

He takes a normal faceoff position with his stick touching the edge of the faceoff circle. All the other players are out of the circle when the referee drops the puck, giving the man some time to get away a shot in the direction of the goalie.

Riders Win 29-12

Argos Can't Sink Lower

TORONTO (CP) — Quarterback Jerry Keeling collaborated with Rhome Nixon and Gerry Organ Thursday night to lead Ottawa Rough Riders to a 29-12 Eastern Football Conference win over Toronto Argonauts who finally hit rock bottom.

There were 32,081 fans at the CNE stadium, but their hearts were elsewhere as they watched the Argonauts fumble into last place and the Riders claim third.

The Riders, Canadian Foot-ball League defending champions, now have eight points, while the Argos have managed only three victories in 10 games.

Keeling, whose arm has been suspect this season, passed for two touchdowns to Moore, while Organ reeled off five field goals and two converts. One of Keeling's passes was for 55 yards and the other for four.

A two-yard run by Ed Shuttlesworth produced the only touchdown for the Argonauts. It was converted by Zenon Andrusiashyn, who also kicked a field goal and a single point. Toronto gained another point when Shuttlesworth fumbled into the Ottawa end zone and the ball was recovered by Riders' Wayne Tosh.

The fans, many carrying transistor radios—and some even portable television sets—did little cheering for the football teams, but broke into a roar each time Tommy Canada scored against the Soviet Union in the international exhibition hockey game at Maple Leaf Gardens.

Keeling said he thought the victory would ease the barrage of criticism of the Riders in recent weeks—but Ottawa coach-es as well as their supporters.

"Yeah," we've been feeling a little heat," said Keeling. "All of us. It might be off for two or three days now."

Wayne Giardino, switched from linebacker to a rushing fullback for the Riders, covered 75 yards in 16 carries. He caught four passes for another 31 yards.

"But I'm ready to go back to defence," said Giardino. "Offence is fine, but I like defence and at 30 years old I don't plan to start another career."

He may still be on offence, however, when the Riders play Saskatchewan Roughriders in Ottawa Sunday afternoon.

Mike Rae was at quarterback most of the way for the losers. He completed eight of 14 passes before being relieved by Jim Jockey in the last five minutes of the game. Lindsey completed one of seven passing attempts for 26 yards.

Argos managed only 112 yards rushing to Ottawa's 150. Overall, Ottawa gained 421 yards and 21 first downs to Toronto's 246 yards and 19 first downs.

The nostalgic selections are performed by the Kingston based Air Transport Command Band and the Pipes and Drums of CFB Otters.

Featured on one selection is CJBQ radio's Ted Bolger who is narrator on High Flight.

The records are available from members of the RCAF Association.

It is the story of the Corleone family of Sicily and New York. The complex relationships and power struggles between these families become the background for the actions of Don Vito Corleone (Brando) and his youngest son Michael (Pacino). Winner of nine Academy Awards including Best Picture of the year, this movie is considered by many critics to be the greatest movie ever made. Showing nightly at 8:00.

Bylaw Opposed By Ratepayers

MARMORA — Accusations and charges of incompetence were levelled at Marmora-Lake township's council at a three-hour meeting here this week.

The meeting — which drew about 200 ratepayers, was called by the township's council to provide information on a restricted area bylaw and give local residents a chance to ask questions.

The meeting turned into unruly, shouting match as people vented their feelings.

Jon Mainsey, president of the newly-formed Marmora-Lake Ratepayers Association presented a motion requesting a plebiscite before the restricted area bylaw is accepted by council.

A statement by former Marmora village reeve Richard Wells that the townships need additional assessment and the bylaw will keep people from moving into Marmora-Lake was echoed several times by other ratepayers.

The Hastings County official plan is going to kill the economy of the north county," he warned.

Reeve casey said residential assessment is a poor way to raise money since new homes demand roads, schools, water and sewage systems,— all expensive to provide.

County planner Niall Carney said the bylaw does not prevent people from turning seasonal cottages into permanent homes. All that is required for such a move is a certificate of occupancy.

There are available if septic systems are in working condition and if school authorities approves the move.

The restricted area bylaw for a local ordinance covering sections of the Hastings County official plan which apply to the townships.

Mr. Mainsey later announced the ratepayers' association will hold another meeting on the issue Sept. 26 at the townhall.

Resolution Finds Little Support

Hastings county councillors feel that local municipal officials are better able to handle fire and police negotiations than are professional negotiators.

This was indicated as councillors at their September meeting took no action this week on a Mississauga resolution asking that the attorney-general be requested to originate a system whereby a body of professional arbitrators would be established for the purpose of handling negotiations where local negotiations have failed to produce a collective agreement.

The Mississauga resolution was ordered filed on a motion from Thurlow Reeve Reeve Casey, who suggested local officials could handle police negotiations better than provincial arbitrators.

In other business council concurred in a Prudence County resolution calling for legislation to allow those municipalities threatened by stock killings to pass bylaws and pay a wolf bounty.

Under present provincial legislation counties are no longer allowed to pay wolf bounties.

Council also approved a resolution from the Highlands of Hastings Tourist Region asking that the county approach the minister of tourism and industry to have all of the county put in one tourist area.

At the present time the nine northern townships in the county belong to the Madawaska Tourist Region and as a result do not benefit from county grants.

Handicrafts Cheap

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Shopping for Greek handicrafts provides an excellent bargain hunting. Handmade Greek sandals of fine leather are available from $2.50 to $4. Full-length caftans are available for $20.

Sponsor Found

A sponsor has been found to guarantee the cost of the Canadian Opera Company's presentation of La Boheme in Belleville.

The Quinte Arts Council (QAC) was told this week that Corby Distilleries will sponsor the opera production in the Quinte stopover at Centennial Secondary School Jan. 31.

The sponsorship was confirmed by Cecil Becker, QAC member and Corby budget manager.

The opera company also is interested in broadening the community scope of its presence during the stopover, the QAC was told.

Among possible ventures being contemplated are a concert production of the opera in smaller local communities, entertaining of senior citizens and solo work with local choirs.

The QAC expects to discuss possibilities with the Canadian Opera's Jan Rubes in early October.

Meantime, other QAC planned events to date are the Kingston Symphony orchestra, Oct. 28, and Toronto Workshop Players in Ten Lost Years, Nov. 25. Both events will be staged at Centennial Secondary School.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL
Saturday, September 21

Aries (March 21-April 19) Your judgment is sound today; unwarranted optimism. You'd be wise to plan your time before committing yourself to something serious.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) Someone will behave flirtatiously toward you. Be careful to read far more into this situation than is there.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) Youre going to find yourself in a situation you can control provided the same thing is true people you order to appease them. Don't try it the other way.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) Your intuitions have been very efficient today but your mind will not be concentrating as it should. Double your work to compensate.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) Certain people can be won over if they're treated in a generous manner. However, those you deal with today will just take advantage of you.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be careful if you're buying anything for the home. You're likely to pay more for it than it's worth just to get it quickly.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You'll be tempted to embellish your stories a bit to impress your companions, particularly if talking with co-workers or subordinates.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) There's a very strong streak of impatience in you today. Bear this in mind if you're contemplating a shopping excursion.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Be careful not to be too explicit about your targets, you're going to find one of your closest friends living up that were going secondary.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Take the big news items under your belt by telling you with a grain of salt. The real facts regarding this situation differ considerably.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) A friend of yours who usually spends beyond his means will be looking to you to help make up his present deficits.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) Unfortunately, you'll lack the necessary drive that's required to accomplish anything of real value because of your indecisiveness.

IN MEMORIAM

MACKINNEY - Mother. Who passed away one year ago today, September 20, 1973.
Years of suffering, little of sleep, Days of pain, but she did not weep.
A cheerful smile, a heart of gold, By this she suffered, bore and would hold.
Her memories rest and true, Her thoughts of family and friends, too.
Lovingly remembered by husband, Clarence; daughter, Mrs. Ruth Wood; son-in-law Bob, grandchildren Barbara and Robert.

CONNOLLY — In loving memory of our Christmas who left us suddenly one year ago today, September 20, 1973.
Lovingly remembered by mom, dad, Mary, Jim, Bill, Pat and Tom.

Years as angel from heaven, Left down on earth.
You were our little boy, Now you're an angel.
You were with us for a while, We still do,
And forever you're an angel.
Though you're not here with us now, In your memory we'll always be, Until we meet you in heaven, You'll be an angel to me.
Sadly missed by Mom, Dad, Mary, Jimmy, Daddy, Pat, Patty, Cindy, Kathy.

Perrault Will Fight Conflict of Interest

OTTAWA (CP) — The new government leader in the Senate likes to quote the old adversement that went: "They laughed when I sat down to play the piano."

Liberal Senator Ray Perrault (B.C.) counsels those skeptical about his appointment as leader to wait with their backbiting until the returns are in.

"I'm going to prove a thing or two," said the chunky, dynamic political veteran in an interview as he enthusiastically resold off plans for the often-forgotten Senate.

"I didn't come over here to maintain the status quo."

Senator Perrault, 61, wants to see members of the 102-seat appointed body subject to strict guidelines regarding conflict of interest.

"Public officials should be in the position of Caesar's wife—they have to be beyond reproach.

"The same tough code of ethics that applies to civil servants and the cabinet should apply to members of the House of Commons and the Senate."

Last year 21 senators reported that eight of the 22 members of the Senate committee on banking, trade and commerce had big company directorates.

"Certainly Canadian people want to see an end to conflict of interest," said Senator Perrault.

He indicated that, in addition to cleaning up their image, members of the Senate, will have to work harder as the coming Parliament to earn their annual $24,000 salaries.

"The resources available to the Senate are just remarkable. The knowledge of constitutional law, labor relations, business, finance, government and education is unparalleled."

In addition to performing their official functions of representing regional interests and reviewing legislation passed by elected representatives in the House of Commons, senators could be called upon to make use of the type of research work traditionally assigned to royal commissions.

Indians Want Work Required for Welfare

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says Canadian Indians are studying major amendments proposed to the Indian Act that would exclude barring able bodied Indians from receiving welfare unless they put in 35 hours a week working on the reserve.

In an Ottawa story, the newspaper says the Indian proposals are part of a response to the federal government's 1969 white paper setting out its Indian policy.

At that time, the government proposed to eliminate in stages the special status of Indians, including the Indian Act, federal trusteeship over Indians and their community-owned land.

The Globe and Mail also says the Indian proposals would set up from the reserve any Indian who marries a non-Indian and neither the spouse nor their children would receive Indian status.

All non-Indians, unless employees of tribal councils or the department of Indian affairs and northern development, would be forbidden to live on reserves. The newspaper add. Not even the cabinet would have the power to permit aliens to live on Indian land.

The proposals show a great concern for maintaining a specifically Indian way of life centred on the reserve with the Indians acting two ways to work to that goal—the influx of non-Indians to the reserve and the gradual loss of reserve land to non-Indians, the newspaper says.

Sault Indians Protest School Integration Plan

OTTAWA (CP) Parents from the Garden River Indian reserve near Sault Ste. Marie picketed outside the Indian affairs department here Friday while their chief met inside with government officials.

Band members said they were unhappy with the integration of reserve children into the Sault Ste. Marie school system. Spokesmen said they wanted their children educated on the reserve.

Elizabeth Jones, one of the 20 demonstrators, said reserve parents had pulled their children out of Sault Ste. Marie city schools in which originally started as a dispute over school lunch allowances.

Initially, the Indians wanted an increase in the Indian affairs department allowance which provides lunches for Garden River reserve children who attend school in Sault Ste. Marie.

Doris Bolsonsault said the department paid 25 cents for each lunch.

"What can you buy for 25 cents today?"

NDP Said 'Liberated' By Loss of Its Power

OTTAWA (CP) — After a summer of pouring into a gloomy political cloud, New Democrat Ed Broadbent has found a silver lining.

His party lost 31 of its 81 MPs, including leader David Lewis, in the July 8 election. And as the new parliamentary leader, Mr. Broadbent might be expected to face the new Parliament Sept. 30 with more trepidation than confidence. Apparently, that is not so.

"In a way it's a liberating thing," he said with the outward optimism that characterizes his profession.

At last the New Democrats, who held the effective balance of power in the last Parliament, would be free from the compromises and restraints of a minority Parliament.

The 16 New Democrat MPs will not be able to force the Liberal majority to accept their proposals. But, the 36-year-old former political science professor said in an interview his party will push for principles firmly both in the Commons and before the electorate.

It also would be listening "to people from all wings of the party addressing themselves to what we'd do as the government."

The Ontario-Winnipeg MP apparently hopes that a reinvigorating dose of socialism and a re-emphasis of federal priorities among party members will help boost the NDP back into prominence.

"We'll be talking especially about the inequity in Canadian society. Is there's one idea central to a democratic socialist party, it's the idea of creating a more egalitarian society."

During the 18 months of the last Parliament, critics often accused the NDP of setting aside principles to keep the minority Liberals in power.

The party rejected this, but Mr. Broadbent acknowledged that holding the balance of power sometimes forced the NDP to falter its views.

"Now we can make proposals we think are appropriate to be implemented now, but which we wouldn't expect the Liberal or Conservative parties to agree with."

He sees our task as showing the people of Canada the immediate relevance of the kinds of structural changes that we believe are important for the long term."

Mr. Broadbent said the party's new sense of freedom in small comfort considering its loss of seats.

"But one advantage of the situation is that it gives us time to develop policy and present it in greater detail a program that is more distinguished from that of the Liberal party."

He expressed regret that the federal NDP seems to have less importance for its grass-roots supporters than did its predecessor, the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation (CCF).

Indians' Leader Under Fire

TORONTO (CP) — The president of the National Indian Brotherhood says the federal Indian affairs minister indicated at a meeting Thursday in Ottawa that he was responsible for the recent seizure of militant Indians in British Columbia and Kenora, Ont.

George Manuel said at a news conference Thursday that Judd Buchanan, the recently-appointed minister, said that as brotherhood president, he is not exerting enough influence on the militant groups.

Indians at Cache Creek, B.C., recently blockaded a highway and the Ojibwa Warriors Society occupied a Kenora park for most of the summer.

Mr. Manuel said he told the minister that the actions of the militant Indians were caused by frustration at not receiving the services necessary for native development.

He warned that this frustration that has resulted in armed confrontation will probably continue until the Indian demands for a better quality of life and internal independence are met by the government.

There are any number of Indian communities that are in far worse condition than Cache Creek and Kenora, he said.

"What distinguishes Cache Creek and Kenora is that, after a century of peaceful petition, letter-writing, knee bending and prayers, these people have said, 'Enough.'"

Mr. Manuel was in Toronto to mark the release later this month of his new book, The Fourth World, An Indian Reality, co-authored with Michael Posluns and published by Collier-Macmillan Canada Ltd.

Indians need an independent constitutional authority so that "we are no longer at the mercy of those politicians whose constituencies and interests are in fundamental conflict with our own goals and aspirations."

Two Women Named Aides to Ministers

OTTAWA (CP) Prime Minister Trudeau announced Thursday the appointments of a deputy government whip and three new parliamentary secretaries.

Two women and a former Saskatchewan minister of education and municipal affairs were named parliamentary secretaries. In addition, 17 former parliamentary secretaries were appointed to new posts to give them the opportunity to serve a total of two years.

Colne Campbell (South West Nova), a 33-year-old legal aid lawyer, was appointed parliamentary secretary to the minister of health and welfare. With her election July 8, she became the first woman from Nova Scotia to sit in the House of Commons.

Another new MP, Iona Campagnolo (Skeena), was named parliamentary secretary to the minister of Indian affairs and northern development. Mrs. Campagnolo, 43, was advertising director for a Prince Rupert, B.C., radio station before her election.

Cliff McIsaac, the new Liberal member for Bathurst-Restigouche, was appointed parliamentary secretary to the minister of transport.

John Reid (Kenora-Rainy River) was re-appointed parliamentary secretary to the president of the Privy Council, Leopold Cortbeeut (Frontenac) was re-appointed secretary to the minister of agriculture and Leonard Hopkins (Renfrew North-Nipissing East) was re-appointed secretary to the Science minister. The 14 others were assigned to new positions.

Profits Climb

OTTAWA (CP) — After-tax profits of industrial corporations during the second quarter were 38.9 per cent higher than profits for the corresponding period of 1973, Statistics Canada reported Friday.

Companies producing pulp and paper and petroleum products had the greatest increases. Second-quarter profits for all but four industry groups were higher.

Profits for resource companies rose by 63.2 per cent and for manufacturers 41.8 per cent. Profits for other groups—basically the service industries—rose by 22.4 per cent.

Estimated profits for all industrial corporations totalled $3.81 billion, up $1.07 million over the total for the second quarter of 1973.

The sales total of $46.7 billion was $8.3 billion or 23.3 per cent above the total for the comparable quarter of 1973.

Canadians Stranded

NICOSIA (CP) — A United Nations spokesman said today it is hoped all Canadians caught behind the lines of an invading Turkish army in Cyprus will be moved out of the area within the next few days.

This apparently included Nicolas Ioannides, an ailing Canadian from Montreal, his wife and four children, trapped in the northeastern village of Kharpasso.

The Canadian government, meanwhile, was reported to have recreased its pressure on the Turkish government to get the Ioannides family through the Turkish lines.

The International Red Cross said Friday medicines had been sent to the Ioannides family but it could not confirm they had reached them.

Ioannides is reported to be suffering from a heart ailment.

His and his family were on holiday in his former home village when the Turkish army invaded the Cyprus panhandle.

For reasons not explained, the Turks have turned back United Nations and Red Cross vehicles attempting to rescue the family, although several British airlifts last week were permitted through the Turkish lines.

Labor Losing In Popularity

LONDON (Reuter) — With three weeks to go to Britain's general election, an opinion poll published by a leading newspaper today indicates a jump in the popularity of the opposition Liberal party.

The latest poll in the London Times, showed a rise in Liberal support to 23 per cent from 17 per cent last month.

The survey also showed the ruling Labor party's lead slightly down to 38 from 42.5 per cent last month and the main opposition party, the Conservatives, down to 34 from 36 per cent.

In a separate development, Prime Minister Harold Wilson accused the British press Friday night of running a smear campaign against the Labor party.

"Cohorts of distinguished journalists, have been combing obscure parts of the country with a mandate to find anything true or fabricated, to use against the Labor party," he told a meeting of his supporters.

Wilson said both he and his colleagues had received warnings about "the assiduous and dedicated work going on to prepare stories, held back ready for issue as the election nears its climax."

Fifi Ravages Honduras Towns

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

An estimated 7,000 to 8,000 Hondurans died in floods and landslides caused by Hurricane Fifi, the Honduran national emergency committee said today.

"Rescue brigades and radio hams confirm that in the town of Choloma alone there are between 3,000 and 4,000 dead," Col. Eduardo Andino, co-ordinator of the emergency committee, said in a telephone interview.

"During the first reconnaissance flights we made today in air force planes we saw hundreds of bodies floating on the waters.

"In many places where there had been townships there is now nothing, only water."

Andino said "destruction was tremendous" in towns and ports on the Atlantic coast where hurricane Fifi struck Thursday with sustained winds of 110 miles an hour and gusts to 140 m.p.h.

In Puerto Cortes, Tela, La Ceiba, Trujillo and Castilla only structures built on high ground had escaped destruction, Andino said. "Everything else is covered by water."

He said air rescue missions from Nicaragua and neighboring Guatemala were made impossible by bad weather, and missions by land and water were extremely difficult.

"We are using the 60 launches that we have, but they are not enough," Andino said.

He estimated there were 180,000 persons stranded, "some in nearby hills, some on the roofs of their homes, and still others in trees. But there are many more bodies, and perpetual rains have been balancing on the tops of walls for three days."

There were reports from San Pedro de Sula, the second largest Honduran city, that authorities there had ordered bodies burned to prevent an epidemic.

Andino said the national emergency committee had put together a picture of what happened in Choloma in past from reports broadcast by amateur radio operators.

"The waters of the rivers that run past Choloma were unable to flow into the sea due to the waves whipped up by Hurricane Fifi," Andino said. "The water backed up in the form of great waves that overwhelmed a hill close to Choloma, which served as a temporary dam. When the dam burst it cast earth, water and rocks on the town.

"We think the people were sleeping when the town was flooded. Yesterday when we flew over it, we saw houses on top of other houses. It must have been a wall of earth and water that fell upon them.

"It is impossible to calculate the exact number of lived lost but we are convinced from the reports received and from our own inspection that the figures fluctuates between 7,000 and 8,000. As waters recede and rescue brigades are able to get to the most hard hit areas, we would not be surprised if the figure increased. This is a great tragedy," Andino said.

Exported Gas Price Boosted

OTTAWA (CP) — The price of natural gas exported to the United States will be increased by an average 66 per cent effective Jan. 1, Energy Minister Donald Macdonald announced Friday.

The minister said the price will increase to 37 for every thousand cubic feet of gas. Prices now range between 38 and 71 cents, with the average about 60 cents.

The increase will put Canadian gas in a more equitable relationship with other energy sources in the U.S., he said.

Producers have expressed the fear that energy consumers would switch to coal or oil gas from oil since the gas was "undervalued," putting additional pressure on the already dwindling reserves of gas in Western Canada.

Mr. Macdonald said the government believes higher prices will encourage petroleum companies to find more gas reserves and restrain "wasteful uses of this high-quality fuel."

The government made its decision on the basis of recommendations from the National Energy Board, which held hearings on export prices last spring.

Mr. Macdonald said the government has ordered the board to amend all existing export licences which contain the present price. The minister said the price increase will be two export licences to Bridas Corporation where the price will go into effect Nov. 1.

Mr. Macdonald said at a news conference the higher prices would yield an additional $200 million annually from U.S. utilities. Government policy will be to assure the additional revenue is passed on to producers and not accrued by the pipeline companies.

"I expect these increases will not be greeted with undiluted joy in all sectors of the United States," the minister said.

Pop Price Goes Up

TORONTO (CP) — Soft drink prices are going up for the third time this year and a Crush International Ltd. spokesman blames it on rising sugar costs.

Company Chairman J. M. Thompson said the increase in Crush lines was generally under 10 per cent, with the largest increase in canned soft drink prices, up 3 cents for a case of 24.

Crush price increases were in effect last Monday and Coca Cola Ltd. and Pepsi-Cola Ltd. issued new wholesale price lists Friday.

J. A. Whitmore, director of corporate relations for Coca-Cola, said his company's price increases of 8.8 to 9 per cent were due to rises in all costs in a time of unprecedented inflation in the soft-drink field.

PepsiCola Vice-President A. C. Geetz said the firm's 18 to 20 per cent increases are high est on case, with the wholesale price of a case of 24 cans going from $3.40 to $3.90.

Mr. Goetz said a widening price margin between soft drinks sold in cans and returnable bottles could lead to a significant switch to cheaper containers.

Spokesmen for Canada Dry Ltd. and Charles Wilson Ltd. said their prices now are under reviews

Politicians Caught By Egg Price Hike

TORONTO (CP) — The announcement by the Ontario Egg Producers Marketing Board that wholesale egg prices will increase by five cents a dozen left politicians caught in the middle Friday.

John Clement, minister of consumer relations, was sympathetic; Stephen Lewis, Ontario leader of the New Democratic Party, suggested an investigation into supermarkets, and the Liberals would not comment.

The increase paid to egg producers left the politicians stuck between farmers who say they need more money and consumers already hard-hit by inflation.

Mr. Lewis has long been an advocate of marketing boards, but at the same time he rails against what he calls "rip-off."

Friday, he hedged by suggesting that the provincial government take a close look at retailers to see whether here is a "rip-off."

"The principle of marketing boards makes sense," Mr. Lewis said.

"If they come to the conclusion that the farmers' costs are so high . . . that they need five more cents a dozen then I wouldn't resist that."

He said the effect on the consumer might be relieved in two ways.

A federal subsidy on eggs might help, he said.

Mr. Lewis also suggested a formal investigation into supermarkets—"I wouldn't mind doing it myself some day"—might help rationalize the difference between what farmers receive for their products and what consumers pay.

Mr. Clement was somewhat sympathetic to the plight of the consumer, but pointed out the ministry has no power to control prices.

He said that the consumer just has to realize he has to bite the bullet.

A spokesman in Liberal Leader Robert Nixon's office said:

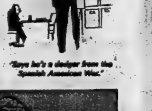
"What can you say . . . it doesn't matter somebody will be mad at you."

The price increase, which we'll bring the wholesale price of large eggs to 79 cents a dozen, will be effective Oct. 1.

Earlier Friday, an official of the Ontario Egg Marketing Board confirmed that the board executive ratified the five-cent increase in producer prices, an increase proposed by the board's price committee Thursday.

Michael Murphy, board comptroller, said the increase in the price of large producers will mean a retail price increase of "at least five cents a dozen."

He declined to predict when the retail price will increase.



Grade A large eggs now generally sell for about 81 cents a dozen.

Ford Picks News Aide

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford introduced former NBC correspondent Ron Nessen as his press secretary Friday. Nessen promised never to mislead or lie to White House reporters knowingly.

Nessen, 49, told reporters as Ford stood beside him that in his view "a press secretary doesn't always have to agree with the president."

This was an indirect reference to the resignation Sept. 8 of Ford's first press secretary, J. F. terHorst, who quit in protest against Ford's pardon for former president Richard Nixon.

"Says he's a dodger from the Spanish American War."

New students at Belleville General Hospital's laboratory technology school kicked up their heels in downtown initiation ceremonies Friday. But it wasn't all for kicks. Supermarket To Expand

TRENTON — The Dominion food store on Dundas St. East and Byron will expand its existing facilities onto land recently purchased at the southeast corner of the intersection.

Store manager Barry Robson said this week, the company has conducted its initial surveys, but he is unaware if a decision to start construction has been made.

Buildings on the site — an old Superfest gas station and Doug's taxi offices — have been leveled and the land is now being used for a parking lot.

"There is no way of knowing when the actual construction will take place," said Mr. Robson. "We're hoping we'll start this fall, or at least within the year."

Expansion, both of the store and parking facilities, was considered because of the increase in business, he said.

Education Beat

Province Revises School Age Limit

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Ontario has had compulsory education until the age of 16 for only eight years. It took just that long to find out it doesn't work. This fall it will again become possible for children to leave school at 14.

Revisions to Education Act, 1974, after third reading, will allow some students of any locality excused from school before they are 16. School boards are now setting up the necessary machinery and will be ready to act when the legislation becomes effective.

Until 1966, when it became mandatory for all Ontario students to stay in school until the end of the year in which their birthday occurred, students had two ways out.

At 14, a student could apply for a home permit that allowed him to leave school legally to help at home. At 15, he could apply for a work permit.

By the 1960s, our society was wealthy and affluent enough to support schooling for everyone until 16, and the loopholes were plugged.

But it didn't work. Fourteen and 15 are the ages when some students find they can't cope anymore, if they are held in school they become a disruptive influence. A problem to teachers and other students.

If they go truant, they are hauled back to school by the long arm of the law and they develop a hearty disrespect for all authority. If they persist in truancy, they come, ultimately, before a juvenile court judge, and repeated truancy means commitment to a training school.

It would be interesting to know how many perfectly straight kids were labelled juvenile delinquents and began their schooling in crime in training schools, for acting in a manner that was legal before 1966 and will soon become legal again.

Schools and teachers were required to turn cartwheels in the effort to entertain, amuse and hold turned-off adolescents who never should have been in school.

Pending legislation won't reinstitute home and work permits. It calls for the setting up, by every board, of a committee of no fewer than three people, one of whom will be a parent and a supervisory officer (administrator) and a member of the community. Subcommittees comprising the same types of people may be set up, and that course is expected to be followed by both boards in Hastings county, where the distances between schools is extreme. The separate school board is planning at least two subcommittees, one for the north and one for the south.

Procedures for legally excusing a student have been outlined by the ministry of education. The student's parents must apply to the student's school principal for the exemption. The principal then must arrange an interview with the committee for parents and student and acquaints the committee with his recommendations on the case.

After considering the evidence, the committee may come to one of three decisions. It can turn down the request for exemption from school. It can excuse the student, or it can recommend a program of part-time school attendance.

One provision of the legislation delights administrators, plagued with loss of revenue from the over-16 dropouts.

Any student legally excused from school will be carried on the register of his school until he reaches 16.

Plant Closing Reduces Township's Share of County Tax Revenue

An assessment loss of more than a million dollars resulting from the closing of the Canada Packers plant at Point Anne will sharply reduce Thurlow Township's share of Hastings County taxes for 1975.

The municipal apportionment for county taxes for 1975 shows that Thurlow Township will pay 13.41 per cent, a 5.32 per-cent decline from this year's levy.

Sidney Township showed an assessment increase of once being Thurlow Township. Thurlow lost $1.3 million in assessment with the closing of the Point Anne plant, but growth in farm and residential assessment held the net assessment loss to $700,000.

Sidney Township with its considerably higher assessment and population is also the heaviest contributor to the Hastings County road system.

Next year, Sidney will pay 28.74 per cent of the county road levy — up .52 per cent from this year, while Thurlow's share will decrease to 13.28 per cent from 22.46 per cent or a drop of 7.08 per cent.

Sidney's county general rate levy this year is $136,186 and its road levy $138,303. Thurlow's general county levy this year is $108,458 and its county road levy $98,620.

Smallest contributor to the county's general rate and to the county road system is the village of Marmora.

This small Marmora Township village will contribute .07 per cent to the general county rate next year, preprocenting an increase of .14 per cent over 1974.

Deloro will contribute .27 per cent of the county road levy — up .18 per cent from this year.

Rash of Crashes Leave Several Hurt

TRENTON — Three people were injured, none seriously, in a series of accidents that held up traffic on several highways outside of Trenton Friday.

Brighton provincial police said today details are sketchy as police officers have not completed their investigations.

Two men were treated for minor injuries and released from Trenton Memorial Hospital after a motorcycle-car collision on Northumberland County road 42, 1½ miles east of Wooler Rd.

Taken to hospital were motorcyclist James Bertling, 29, of RR 1 Trenton and his passenger, John Telfer, 23, of RR3, Trenton.

Police said the Bertling motorcycle was in collision with a vehicle driven by Ralph Ivey, 24, of RR 3 Belleville. Police said damage to the motorcycle was $1,500 and to the car $400.

A two-car collision on Highway 2, at Dugbill Rd., approximately three miles west of Trenton, sent Carolyne Dale, of unknown age and address, to hospital where she was treated and released.

The rear head-on collision left glass strewn along the highway for an approximate 25 feet. Both cars came to rest off the roadway, the Dale vehicle in a ditch on the north side; and a vehicle police said they believe was driven by James Browning, of unknown age and address, in an orchard on the opposite side.

Drivers of vehicles involved in a two-car collision on Highway 33, were uninjured.

Police estimate damage to a vehicle driven by Douglas Hudson, 17, of Frankford, at $800. Damage to a vehicle driven by Robert Fleming, 21, of RR 5 Trenton, was $500.

Job Placements Down

Job placements by Canada Manpower declined in the Belleville area during August.

A Manpower report to the Belleville and District Employment Committee showed 124 men and women had been placed in jobs during the month, compared with 280 in July and 274 in August, 1973.

Those registered for work during August totalled 1,141 — excluding students — compared to 968 for the same month last year.

Earlier this month a Manpower official attributed part of the increase in registrations to a change in the listing system.

Mail By Boat

DETROIT (AP) — The mail must float through is the motto of the Detroit River postman.

During the summer when the river is navigable — usually from mid-April to mid-December — the Wescott Mail Boat delivers and picks up mail from personnel on passing freighters.

For the seamen who ply the Great Lakes, mail call is most important since they often have no contact with the outside world for weeks at a time. To them thousands of men and their families the 61-foot, diesel-powered "floating post office" is one of the most sought-after vessels in the world.

The method for delivery of mail on the river is unique. The mail boat rides alongside the large vessels at slow speed, moving up or down the river. A rope is tossed between the ships and mail is placed in a pail fastened to the rope.

The mail boat also provides other conveniences. Often ships will order clothes and the mail boat makes the delivery along with the mail.

It offers laundry and dry-cleaning pickup and return. Sometimes it even includes supplies from a local marina store, machinery parts, sailors' baggage and even newspapers.

Occasionally, the mail boat takes on or debarks a passenger and even this operation is done without the freighter coming down its speed. Just as the mail is put aboard, the Wescott brushes alongside the ship heeling pace with it, a crew member on the larger vessel lowers a ladder and the passenger grabs it and hoists himself aboard.

During the eight-month period when the Detroit River is open the Wescott serves some 14,000 vessels a year. In 1973 it accounted for 714,378 pieces of mail and parcel post packages compared with 67,000 pieces of mail in the service's inaugural year of 1895.

Venilation Major Factor In Hog Production

By CHRISTOPHER ALMEY
Staff Correspondent

When you have over 600 hogs in an enclosed environment, ventilation plays a major role in their welfare.

Without electricity, in half an hour many of the hogs would be dead; in one hour most of the hogs would never reach the butcher. Ventilation is the key; electricity runs the fans.

Donald Spafford of RR 4 Stirling had a potentially dangerous situation occur in August. The hydro failed and in ten minutes the temperature in his hog barn shot up to 90 degrees.

In his hog barn, which he spent three years developing after extensive travels looking at other systems, Mr. Spafford provided knockouts along the wall which he constructed, letting in fresh air and reducing the temperature to a tolerable, but still high 76 degrees.

The four knockouts on each side are part of the ventilation system developed by Keith Barnett of Ontario Hydro and Jack Lachcoski of Jamesway Ltd. Dundas.

Though not as much at stake, Mr. Spafford now has an alternator which he runs from the P.T.O. of his tractor. When the hydro comes back on, to prevent a disaster to the whole system, he had a switch installed which he throws on after he has disconnected the emergency power source.

Entering the barn is an experience. Two bags of air bags run for the coal (carrying) outside air to cool down the temperature in the barn. In winter, sudden blowers automatically open and close ventilating doors and vents due to a pre-determined temperature.

Besides two large "intake fans," there are six exhaust fans on the walls. The result is that the bags do not congregate in any one spot to get more than the fresh air everywhere.

The weaners Mr. Spafford receives every two weeks are housed in their own room because they do better with supplemental heat.

The weaner room has its own miniature ventilation system, a replica of the main units. There are six pens holding 30 animals each.

How do you keep the hogs? With the elaborate setup that Mr. Spafford has one would say through automation. Not so.

Twice every day he loads up a feedcart and not only feeds his charges, but waters them all. He knows each, and if they require medication they get it fast. If he ever does decide to go automatic, Mr. Spafford is sure he will still continue his "doctor's rounds".

Fill-up Time on Farm

Barbara Spafford helps make sure more than 400 hogs get their fill on farm of father Donald Spafford, RR 1 Stirling. Farmer spent three years developing special barn, essential feature of which are air ducts – in background – which help keep uniform temperature.

Inquiry to Establish Small Farm Problems

By MARK PEDERSEN

FOUR FALLS, N.B. (CP) — Darrell McLaughlin spends roughly 14 hours a day in his family's gently-rolling potato and grain fields but still finds time to talk about the problems driving small farms out of business in New Brunswick.

The 24-year-old graduate of Nova Scotia Agricultural College is chairman of a farmer-sponsored inquiry which plans to look closely at those problems it the next two years.

"What we have to do is master up a concurrence in society," he said. "The consumers and the farmers have to get together. I hope through this inquiry one can benefit the other and put pressure on the government to correct the injustices that are taking place."

He listed among those injustices a decrease of 40 per cent between 966 and 1971, a 1.3 million acres from 1.3 million, a 25-percent decrease which indicates some of the land is being incorporated into larger farm operations.

The provincial government is concentrating on the search for lucrative, secondary industry. But there still are some, Darrel McLaughlin among them, who want to stick with the land.

"If I was to go to any other industry," he explained, "I would have to tell my son to do as I say and not what I do. But here on the farm I can pretty well say, 'do as I do'."

An 85-year-old farmer who attended the commission's first public hearing at Fredericton this spring told the organizers, including members of both the National Farmers Union and the New Brunswick Federation of Agriculture, they were doing "a great job" but were more than 50 years too late.

The young commission chairman agreed the problems of high costs and low net returns have been around for years.

justices a government tendency to help corporate farms and processors more that small farm operators; sky-rocketing prices for agricultural land and the skirt markup on food before it reaches the consumer.

Agriculture Minister George Horton said his department plans to improve communication between the department and farmers.

He also said consumers should back the farmers if they want the to supply a larger share of local markets.

High costs, low returns and long hours are driving farmers off the land in New Brunswick, a province where forests predominate and only a small percentage of the land has ever been successfully cultivated.

The number of farms in the province fell to 2,485.

Andras Supports Farm Laborers

OTTAWA (CP) — Manpower Minister Robert Andras called on the provinces today to bring farm workers under the protection of labor standards legislation.

He said farm workers should enjoy the same minimum-wage, hours of work and other protections guaranteed to workers in other industries.

In a prepared statement, the minister expressed hope that publicity about the plight of migrant farm workers in southwestern Ontario will convince farm workers across Canada "that they don't have to put up with poor pay, poor working conditions and poor accommodations."

Other provinces, including Ontario with an estimated 180,000 farm workers, do not allow the formation of farm unions and deny the workers legal protection on jobs, pay and working conditions.

Mr. Andras, whose department issued a report last year denouncing "intolerable and inhumane" conditions among migrant farm workers in Ontario, said he welcomed recent published statements that conditions on many farms have not improved.

He said migrant workers who are being ill-treated are those who bypassed manpower centres and farm labor pools to make private job arrangements

Parking Becomes Major Issue

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — A businessmen's petition protesting new Main St. parking meters has been complained to town council the impossibility of pleasing all of the people all of the time.

When councillors were confronted with complaints of traffic bottlenecks at rush hour traffic jams a practical solution was sought. In an effort to ease traffic congestion, seven parking meters were removed near the Town Hill and additional lanes introduced.

At the September meeting of council, several concerned merchants addressed the session, complaining of the removal of the meters due to inconvenience to their customers. One businessman previously had run an advertisement in the local press apologizing for the inconvenienced by council's decision.

In addition to this verbal protest on the parking changes was a petition signed by about 15 business and professional men with stores and offices near the Town Hill. There was also a letter from a Picton resident claiming that since council's removal of the parking meters it has become inconvenient to make visits to the dentist's office. It was suggested that, for older persons, it could be difficult to walk from the nearest parking space to the physician's office near the Town Hall.

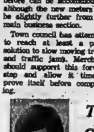
While council received the petition this month, it was agreed that its decision to remove the meters should stand. Additional meters will be installed further down the street where cars and trucks already are parking much of the time.

Council's decision to remove seven meters from the Town Hill was a positive step toward alleviating traffic congestion. With the new lanes traffic can flow more smoothly.

The protesting merchants, who claim customer inconvenience, apparently are ignoring the fact that seven parking meters could not possibly serve the bulk of their customers most of the time.

Residents with packages to be taken to the electrical repair shop near the Town Hill would not be guaranteed vacant parking spaces if the meters had remained.

Similarly, persons who wish to be dropped off literally on their doctor's doorstep, had no promise that there would be a parking space.



When a physician rents an office, presumably he gives some thought of its location in terms of patients who must reach it on foot. Considerations should be accorded to the elderly or handicapped who may have difficulty in negotiating stairs or busy crossings.

Surely, the doctor has a greater responsibility toward providing his patients with a convenient office location than does the town.

The television repair services operating in the area of the Town Hill similarly should provide parking accommodation for customers with heavy packages, instead of looking to the town.

Certainly, Main St. parking should serve the shopper and the merchant, but the removal of seven meters could hardly be termed disastrous to the nearest businesses.

As it often can be difficult to find a parking space on Main St., it is understood that even seven meters had to be removed. The decision, however, was made by council with the intention of providing smoother traffic flow and better service to motorists passing through the town.

Store Hours Raise Ruckus

By AL ZABAS
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — With its recent passage of a bylaw extending department store hours to 10 p.m. six days a week, town council has found itself inadvertently wearing two hats — the black hat of the bad guys and the white hat of the good guys.

To Western Realties Ltd. and K-Mart, one of the proposed enclosed mall's major tenants, council wears white hat, much albeit tilted.

To the Trenton Retail Merchants Association, council is Black Bart, ready and quite willing to shoot first and ask questions later.

As far as TRMA is concerned, betrayal will be too harsh a word to apply to council's move. It fired the first shot in passing a bylaw that upends fairly regular store closing hours in town.

Downtown businessmen say they weren't even consulted before the bylaw was passed more than three weeks ago. Now K-Mart can remain open till 9 p.m., forcing small businessmen into longer hours, increased staff, higher operating costs and a competition that some unkindedly fear could break them.

The TMRA insists it doesn't oppose the mall, only longer store hours.

What particularly irks the association is that K-Mart, a busine that is not now located in Trenton, has dictated its own terms to council.

TMRA president Lloyd Wells says, "K-Mart is definitely dictating terms to Trenton. What they're saying is: Give us the bylaw or we don't come."

Ironically, the entire can of worms need not have been opened.

Prior to last month's bylaw, existing legislation governing store hours was largely unenforceable. At least two legal opinions received by council in recent years indicated any case brought to court could be shot full of holes.

After all, says Wells, "Everyone in town knows that the bylaw is no good."

All K-Mart need have done was simply ignore council crying legislation. Several other town businessmen now do and have not been prosecuted.

So why, one must ask, did council bother?

Besides the obvious laurels to be granted a council that brings in a substantial new business, there's the dollar angle. Approximately $100,000 will fall annually into town coffers in the form of tax revenue from the mall.

Inadvertently, council may be on the point of solving the store hour question.

The new bylaw forced merchants to unite, and strap on pistols in opposition, forcing adverse to a shooting match with potential supporters in this an election year, have backed down and is now talking.

Once the smoke clears, a measure of sanity may have been injected into a situation that has been fought fiercely as far off as Queens Park. The Ontario Retail Merchants Association has been pushing for province-wide uniform store hours for two years.

The Trades Scene

When you call a tradesman on an urgent matter at eight in the morning and he sends a couple of men 40 minutes later it is cause for gratification.

The problem attended to, there is time for reflection on the recurring plight of rural dwellers dependent on wells, pumps and all the other paraphernalia of life in the wide open spaces.

The 24-hour emergency service that may be advertised does not necessarily extend to Sundays when the need could be great.

If the service people are at home on a weekend you may be greeted all the way from brusqueness to interest and courtesy, even an earnest treatise on the way it is in the service industries these days. But no action until Monday at the earliest.

We had heard it only recently, from a man who worked long and hard hours and was available seven days a week. As his business grew however he became less and less available, and when he needed to call in someone else for a job, he would say: "These guys are so busy they just don't care." He has sold his business now and moved away, to the sorrow no doubt of many who depended on him and whom he served well. This worthy had a rental business as well, for a time, and he and his wife had some revealing things to say about lost equipment and unpaid accounts where the public was concerned.

"He will probably be busy all week", said the wife of an electrician. Another was working on his own house when contacted.

But there was one who was more explicit and erudite than all the others. Sunday, he tells you, is the only day a man in his job has free, and he goes on to chat about the situation generally. You realize he is one of those men who are so swamped that they don't know where to begin. He tells you about a house he is building but some materials are in short supply and he is waiting for them. He tells of errors by others in the building process which mean the omitted accommodations made.

"Our trades people are not as skilled any more . . . and they don't seem to care." And he adds: "there is a callousness toward the other fellow . . . it's the almighty dollar!"

He adds a word about inflation: "I think the only answer is to slow down."

And, almost apologetically, he rings off.

LCBO Hires Girl

The Women's Liberation thing is proceeding at a nice clip where the job situation is concerned, with the girls popping up in the most unlikely places.

Like with the Liquor Control Board of Ontario at Orillia. Yes, The Peterborough Examiner reports that 19-year-old Janice Ives, who attends Western University and plans to teach kindergarten, has been working part-time at a local plaza outlet.

She unloads trucks occasionally, stocks shelves, serves people, and helps clean up. And all this after applying for a job with experience in waiting on customers and operating a cash register. It turned out she was the only girl to have applied for a job in the store for ten years. Customer reaction has been good, so too is the pay and Miss Ives' mother is all for it as well.

She does not have to wear a uniform but was asked to dress neatly. "They didn't want me to wear jeans," she laughed.

Come to think of it the liquor stores remain bastions of male chauvinist supremacy, for the most part. It would not hurt a bit if they opened their doors to other women. The fact that Miss Ives has made it into the hallowed precincts behind the counter indicates there is no actual ban on women working there. Now we may see more of them.

As Passenger Traffic Drops...

Jumbo Jets Key Factor in Air-freight Business Boom

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Commerce Affairs Analyst

Thomson News Service

Everyone knows that international air travel is down this year, because of a series of fare increases and because of the light cost of tourist living once you arrive abroad.

Yet the builders of commercial aircraft can't keep up with the demand. At Boeing's huge plant in Seattle, for instance, jets are being shipped out for flight testing before the exterior paint can be applied—just to make way for more new planes.

Not that the airlines like to fly their "airplanes" half empty. The main reason for the booming demand for new aircraft—or at least one of the key reasons—is air-cargo business.

That growth stems from two innovations of recent years—the standardized cargo container originally developed for maritime shipping, to speed freight handling and to reduce loading at the spacious piston-bodied aircraft.

The Canadian aircraft industry was in pioneer in this field. The old propeller-driven Can-44, with its revolutionary swing-away tail section, was the first airplane specifically "built" and was designed especially to attain cargo on standard-sized pallets.

(Even that week's a first. The earliest recorded cargo flight took place July 4, 1911, at Shoreham, Essex, when an inbred British pilot loaded his carton of light bulbs aboard his flying machine and shifted them to a merchant 100 miles away.)

Throughout the decades of rapid growth of commercial aviation, however, the air-cargo business remained a tiny and expensive sideline. Airlines seemed that the only cargo moving by air was the record that was forever being rushed here and there to save lives in Canadian Hollywood B-movies.

But with the 1950s, and the advent of wide-bodied airplanes—the Boeing 747, the Lockheed L1011, and the Mac-Donnell-Douglas DC-10, air-cargo has really come of age.

These jumbo jets can carry more than twice as many passengers as the previous generation of jet planes, and have room left over for more cargo than the previous-generation airplanes would have had without any passengers at all.

That has opened up a vast international market for freight movement by air, at rates which—according to the arithmetic of air-cargo men—are not much different from the cost of surface shipments when transshipping, inventory capital thrift and the like are included.

Add some considerations are even more significant than cost, like perishability of the single—and only foods that fashions also can perish in the time it takes merchandise to travel from supplier to customer.

That's why today's easy availability of air cargo has been a boon to Italian shoe designers and King's Road dress stylists alike—not to mention their eager customers around the world.

Lufthansa, the West German airline, was the first to buy a jumbo jet for air-freight service exclusively.

Since April of last year, Lufthansa has been operating six Boeing 747 cargo flights a week between Frankfurt and New York, with loads averaging 70 per cent of the airplane's lifting capacity. According to the airline, the service can be profitable with a 50 per cent load; according to Boeing, the break-even point is closer to 37 per cent of capacity.

Today, 13 airlines are operating a total of 21 giant 747s as all-cargo freighters.

With cargo traffic growing by an average of 11 per cent a year, and passenger traffic 13 per cent, the 1970s will be years when cargo will replace passengers as the primary business of airlines, Boeing Vice-President Smith predicts. And that point will be reached within a decade.

In the meantime, however, some airlines are still pressed to provide enough passenger-carrying capacity on their high-density inter-city services. Going against the trend among some foreign carriers, Air Canada will keep averaging 20 per cent of the airplane's lifting capacity, Canadian Pacific Air Lines is to increase its passenger revenue for first-half 1976, compared with the same six months in 1971. (A 22.5 per cent rise was recorded by its major competitor, CP Air.)

The Crown corporation has just taken delivery of the first of five Boeing 727s that are to be added to its heavily travelled Toronto-Montreal route starting Oct. 29. The nine jet airplanes will carry 144 passengers in one-class configuration.

Later, Air Canada will increase its 727 fleet to a total of 11 airplanes, each costing $12.5-million. The last six to be delivered will be put into service elsewhere on the airline's North American and Caribbean network.

Although Boeing has manufactured more than 1,200 of its 727s since 1963—making it by far the most widely used commercial jet-transport—Air Canada waited until 1974 to place its order.

Natural Resources and The Provincial Need for Taxes

By DON O'HEARN

TORONTO — Taxation of natural resources is a most contentious across Canada these days.

With the value of minerals and other raw resources escalating, and the profits of the harvesting industries escalating with them there has been a demand for, and action by provincial governments to get more money out of them.

Practically all provinces where such resources are important, including Ontario, have done something about more revenue from them.

According to Treasurer John White, Ontario, however, has taken the fairest and most practical approach to collecting this revenue.

The other provinces have, in effect, used a hatchet.

They have all increased royalties.

This means, in the case of minerals or oil and gas, that an additional bite is taken out of every dollar of revenue that the resources bring.

There is no relation to profit as production goes.

The consequence has been that in areas of the vast northland where production is new, there is not a sufficient margin for development, and some have already withdrawn from or curtailed exploration while others are threatening to.

Mr. White, however, imposed an additional tax rather than a royalty and this has definite benefits.

In the first place it is imposed after production expenses have been deducted. Aside from being more equitable this does not discourage the mining of low-grade ore, as a royalty plan does.

Then the tax is scheduled progressively.

Thus there is no tax on the first $100,000 of profits. Between $100,000 and $1,000,000 the rate is 15 percent. And then it progresses until it reaches 40 per cent on $40 million or more.

This, of course, is an encouragement to smaller companies which might be tempted, or forced, to fold under a royalty system.

Then there are further incentives to encourage processing in Northern Ontario.

These are in the form of allowances for processed minerals, with the rate of allowance tied to the extent of processing.

Whether this allowance would be sufficient to entice a steel industry in the north, which so many people have been looking for, can't be said. But at least it will encourage more processed at home.

Union Nationale Wins a Quebec By-Election

London Free Press

Defeat in a by-election of a recent Liberal member of the Quebec legislature who had been strongly supported less than a year ago will raise all kinds of speculation about the political tides of the province.

It may simply be an expression of voters' dislikes of mudslinging by a politician who is assumed to be working full time at his elected job. Or it may be a signal that the shoes in off the rose for the powerful Bourassa government.

In any event, the result in the Johnson riding of the Eastern Townships is a timely shot across the bow for the Union Nationale party and its "interim" leader, veteran Quebec politician Maurice Bellemare. The once-dominant party of Maurice Duplessis was shut out in the last election.

The by-election was called under unusual circumstances. The sitting Liberal member, Jean-Claude Doutin, had been accused of doing legal work for the Quebec government at the same time he was serving in the legislature. Doutin, amid the controversy, resigned and called for a "trial by vote."

His offence, while illegal, was not very deep in its implications. He had continued to serve as Crown attorney in a number of criminal cases. His representation of the government had no political connotation.

And this makes it seem that there may be signs of political weariness with the Bourassa Liberal government. Charges of other conflicts of interest have caused the premier to introduce new guidelines for his members. There is the unease among both French and English over Bill 22, widespread labor unrest in the province and the problems of inflation.

Johnson is a suburban-rural riding just northwest of Sherbrooke with several good-sized towns such as Windsor and Bromptonville. It has an English population of about 10 per cent which used to be much larger but which has never had much cause for concern about the loss of its "rights" or the subversion of its language. The area has been a source of Union Nationale and Creditiste strength in the past and it may now be raising a signpost of local resurgence or even a revival of the old UN Conservative alliance.

A Soldier's Last Hurrah

Ottawa Citizen

The death of Joseph Lionel Gilbert Pepin may not be remembered in Canadian history books; but he deserves more than a footnote. The young soldier was wounded in the face twice in the back while on reconnaissance duty in the divided Cyprus capital of Nicosia. Shortsighted Canadian ways seize on the tragic incident as an excuse to belabor the Trudeau government's role in the decision to the principle of sending Canadian troops to distant lands , as United Nations duty. In fact we should feel pride that our military men within the area with their lives if necessary in the cause of building a better world for all mankind. Joseph Pepin was 20 years old and a hockey enthusiast, a very typical young Canadian. Two of thousands of youngsters like him died to prevent freedom in the Second world wars Canadians have fought. Their sacrifices have not been once thought. And the cause for which he died is just as glorious.

East-West "Hot Line" Has Had Its Problems

Brockville Recorder and Times

On at last three occasions since it was set up in the wake of the Cuban missile crisis back in 1962, the Washington-to-Moscow "Hot Line" has proved less than reliable.

According to Electronics magazine, a Danish building contractor once cut the line near Copenhagen, a farmer in Finland plowed it up and a fire in a Baltimore manhole put it out of service.

These eliminate the potential danger that the land communications system being cut off momentarily during some global emergency, the U.S. and U.S.S.R. will "negotiate" a new hookup later this year utilizing satellites.

The original target date for the new Hot Line was supposed to be when President Nixon's visit to Moscow in June, but that had to be pushed back because of delays in getting the Soviet earth station some 30 miles from Moscow. The U.S. terminal is already operational at Fi. Dix, Md.

Ironically, says the magazine, the equipment and expertise designed into the sys-

While ordinary communications between the Kremlin and Washington will continue to travel back and forth via closed-circuit Telex machine, the Hot Line is reserved for top priority communications between the two governments during crisis times, as last October's Middle East war.

In any event, the new system is designed to be jealously safeguarded against interruption by a farmer's plow.

The Red Cross

Humanitarianism in An Inhuman Universe

Ottawa Journal

The Red Cross was there. In the aftermath of earthquakes in Peru, floods in Bangladesh or war in Cyprus, the Red Cross is seemed almost taken for granted. In two world wars the Red Cross eased suffering among those who fought and war's other, more numerous, victims.

But the Red Cross is here, too.

The Ottawa branch of the Canadian Red Cross was formed 82 years ago today, during the third month of the First World War. The work has never stopped. The demand for help to sustain life, prevent disease and relieve suffering is no less in peace than in war—perhaps more in those than abroad. Today the Red Cross is so much a part of the landscape that it may be taken for granted here, too.

The local office (the Red Cross provides the total emergency blood service for Ontario) hospital and family health services are among its commitments. As part of a world team, the Ottawa branch also contributes to the world-wide Red Cross services to humanity.

Statistics, like mile-stones, point not only to the distance covered but to the road ahead.

Impact of Metric System

Cornwall Standard-Freeholder

The federal government tells us that metrication eventually will affect the consumer but that the experience gained in Australia and New Zealand, the total effect should be moderate.

It states that conversion will be a gradual process so that the consumer will not be the one confused by it. For example, temperatures around the world in degrees Celsius beginning in April of 1975. But it will be the only change at that time; and the public will be well briefed on the system prior to the change.

Later on will come conversion of pounds to grams, kilograms, etc. In this respect a kilogram is 2.2 times the mass of a pound. Thus a kilogram of butter at current prices would cost 2.2 times 89 cents or $1.76.

Obviously the units of weight that we are used to will be changing slightly by the sales of items weighed. However, this should pose any great problem. In fact some packages of tea or toothpaste are now measured in grams.

Big reason for conversion is that 95 per cent of the world is metric or is converting to metric.

The metric system was developed in France after the French Revolution of 1789. Based on the numeral 10 it is considered a much simpler system than that which Canada and the United States inherited from Britain.

Under the system one kilometre is equal to 1,000 metres, one metre 1.3778 kilograms or if you like 1275 grams. That by the way is the amount of water one can cover units of measure, mass or what have you.

Rowdyism Tests a Council

Peterborough Examiner

City council is considering a disturbing new move against alleged rowdyism around the Country Style Donut Shop.

At committee of the whole meeting Monday, Mayor Hiram Turner presented council with the final solution a bylaw committee that will cost "a dollar each city" "refreshment booths" at night.

The proposed bylaw's terms read like a prescription for easing system. From Monday to Saturday "refreshment booths" would have to close at midnight. On Sundays they could operate from 12 a.m. to 1 p.m. In June, July and August they would be allowed to stay open from 7 a.m. to 1 a.m.

Although the bylaw would be aimed at the Water Street doughnut shop, other victims could include hamburger chicken take-out stands, some pizza shops, the Mr. Submarine operation and an innocent looking shop on Lansdowne Street.

The harm that might be done to these other take - out operators has not been calculated by the city yet. Since many of them make their living after other fast-food outlets have closed for the night, damage could be substantial.

Hospital Discrimination Charged in Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says that in several Toronto hospitals money, buys privileges for patients who can afford private or semi-private accommodation.

But patients who can only afford standard ward coverage under the Ontario Hospital Insurance Plan (OHIP) receive a different standard of medical care and are often used as guinea-pigs in university teaching hospitals, the newspaper says.

In a copyright article by reporter Nancy Cooper, the newspaper says several hospitals have two sets of menus, one for private and semi-private patients and another for standard ward patients.

At the Wellesley Hospital, two sets of rules exist for admitting patients of general practitioners who are allowed to admit patients with private or semi-private coverage, but are not allowed to admit their patients with standard coverage, the newspaper says.

At most Toronto teaching hospitals, medical students practice internal pelvic examinations only on women with standard OHIP coverage, never on private or semi-private patients, it adds.

"Universal hospital coverage hasn't meant that everyone gets the same care in hospital," the newspaper quotes a young doctor as saying. "The middle class had better get used to the fact that they'll have to help in medical education. They're being given free care treatment while the poor have to offer up their bodies for medical examination."

Wellesley Hospital cites the need for training medical personnel as the reason for having two separate policies regarding admission by general practitioners with courtesy privileges at the hospital, The Globe and Mail says.

Dr. Vivian Shad, an obstetrician in a poor area of the city, complained about the hospital's discriminatory policy and was told by a hospital official that only doctors with an active staff appointment or graduate staff appointment may attend patients in the standard wards.

"In other words," said Dr. Shad, "I can take care of two important mothers for nine months—for a private patient and another with standard coverage.

"The private patient I can do after the baby's problems," he said. "The standard patient has to have a stranger deliver her."

G. E. Thomson, executive director of the hospital, said there have never been any complaints about the policy and said the reason for the dual ruling on admission is simple:

"To ensure the availability of as much experience as possible to post-graduate medical students," the newspaper quotes him as saying.

Dr. Thomson defends the policy because standard patients are lucky under it—they get greater continuity of care because of the availability of staff doctors as well as post-graduate doctors."

The Globe and Mail says at least five doctors have confirmed that persons who do not have extended care coverage can expect their hospital and medical-patient experience to be different from those of the private patient.

Scottish Vote Critical in U.K.

LONDON (CP) — Britain's political leaders are agreed on one thing as the campaign plunges into its second election campaign in seven months—the shape of the new Parliament will likely be decided north of the Scottish border.

Barely since the 1707 Act of Union brought Scotland and England under one Crown and Parliament have the prime minister politicians so avidly wooed the electorate. All aim at squashing the common enemy—the buoyant and challenging Scottish National Party (SNP), which demands a separate parliament and full church—if not all—of the revenues from North Sea oil off Scotland's shores.

The SNP, once modestly dismissed as a bunch of "tartan weirdies," now commands support from both middle-and working-class voters and shocked both major parties by storming seven MPs in the February election. They wielded considerable voting leverage in the see-saw party balance and the Nationalist threat has forced concessions towards Scottish devolution from both the governing Labor party and the opposition Conservatives.

Tory leader Edward Heath, first of the party chiefs to go north on what obviously was an election campaign swing even before the Oct. 10 election was called, said the election might be won or lost on Scottish votes.

Labor party secretary Ron Hayward has echoed the theme while Liberal leader Jeremy Thorpe, opening his campaign in Glasgow on Thursday, told his audience: "You can decide what kind of government is to take office on Oct 11."

At the same time Thorpe noted ambivalently: "Not since George II sent his Redcoats to defeat them at Culloden Moor has a government paid as much attention to the Scottish nation as the Labor party in the last seven months."

Certainly nobody mocks the oil-fired determination of Scottish nationalism these days. SNP candidates in February took four seats from the Tories, two from Labor and ran second in 17 ridings. They demonstrated an ability to make inroads in both industrial and rural areas hitherto taken for granted by the two major parties, and succeeded in unseating the former Tory secretary of state for Scotland.

Riding high on its February victories, the SNP for the first time is fielding a candidate in every one of Scotland's 71 parliamentary seats — even opposing Jo Grimond, the popular former Liberal party chief, in his Orkney Island stronghold.

Government Plans Shift in Housing

HALIFAX, N.S. (CP) — The Voice of Canadians Into the Mainstream Committee of Canadians Into the Mainstream, Toronto and Vancouver areas is continuing at a rate far too rapid for effective response, Barney Danson, federal minister of urban affairs, said Friday.

"We can't reverse this trend," he told the annual convention of the Canadian Real Estate Association. "But by diverting it by even five to 10 per cent we can influence it in a very significant way."

Mr. Danson said the department is shaping policies aimed at shifting the growth in larger centres to selected smaller communities.

"People are looking for options to the megalopolis. Not everybody has to make his fortune and find opportunity in the big three."

Programs being studied by Ottawa include actions to expand facilities in medium-size and small cities "to make them more attractive to Canadians"; measures to strengthen the character of the country's cities, including conservation of historic buildings and neighborhoods; and the development of housing programs "better suited to the needs of . . . and small-town Canadians."

Mr. Danson said the government recognizes that a shortage of reasonably-priced houses "has reached the critical stage" in some areas.

He said a program to direct $50-million toward spurring the construction of "moderately-priced" rental accommodation in 10 critical market areas will get under way next week.

"Advertisements will appear . . . inviting builders' proposals for the construction of the rental housing."

Cuba Embargo to Be Debated

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Organization of American States foreign ministers' meeting has been called for Nov. 8 in Quito, Ecuador, to determine whether the Cuba embargo should be ended.

The OAS permanent council voted 21 to 0 Friday to convene the meeting.

In supporting the resolution offered by Colombia, Costa Rica and Venezuela, U.S. Ambassador William Maddiard said:

"re-examine the matter does not imply a judgement on the substance of the issue."

A two-thirds majority of the 21 nations will be required to overturn the 10-year-old OAS ban on diplomatic and trade relations with Cuba.

The embargo was imposed after the OAS found Cuba guilty of intervention in Venezuela.

Diplomats said there are now about 14 or 15 countries in the anti-embargo bloc, enough to bring about a new era in Cuba's relations with its hemisphere neighbors.

The foreign ministers' meeting will not take up the question of readmission of Cuba to the OAS. Cuba was expelled 12 years ago and Prime Minister Fidel Castro has said he is not interested in rejoining.

The Toyota Econo-Miser Drive

GOES ON.

The Toyota Econo-Miser has come up with the fantastic contest. It's all to do with gasoline mileage and you don't just enter it, you take part in it.

And there are some pretty sensational prizes.

On November 4th, at the Mosport Park Track, near Toronto, Walter Boyce and Doug Woods, our National Rally Champions, will put 10 gallons of regular gas in a Toyota Corolla 1200. And they'll drive around the track until it's all gone.

What you have to do is estimate how many miles they'll travel on the 10 gallons. If yours is the closest estimate (to the tenth of a mile), you can win a Toyota Corolla 1200 KE020KB or up to $2,000 cash for being runner-up . . . in each of 5 regions across Canada.

Winners will be selected from the Maritimes, Quebec, Ontario, Prairies and British Columbia. The five people who win Toyotas will be invited to be our guests on an all-expenses-paid trip for two to Toronto to compete in the Toyota Econo-Miser Drive Run-Off at Mosport Park, for a further $5,000 in prize money.

It's fun, it's exciting, it's rewarding.

Gourmet Meals Catered By Barbara the Butler

VANCOUVER (CP) — For Barbara the Butler, catering gourmet meals is a commitment.

As experience Barbara Ryan would rather forget is the second party she catered, a hoot 'n' holler up. The 18 guests arrived two hours late and "some fortified chef had been somewhere drinking."

They insisted on a cocktail hour, however, and when they finally began eating, they were so drunk anyway they had their heads in their plates.

"I had made a really beautiful meal," said Mrs. Ryan, 27, "and just scorned chef had made some really superthings.

Then this happened. I may as well have given them dog food."

Mrs. Ryan said her daughter told her not to get so involved, just to worry about getting paid.

"But that's not really how I feel. I want to feed people, not just make money."

Since then, Barbara the Butler has cooked and served hundreds of successful gourmet meals for people who want to entertain in their own homes but want someone else to do the work.

She recently won $1,100 in the professional category of the British Columbia menu competition, collecting three firsts, three seconds and a third.

When she goes to someone else's home to fix dinner, she visits there first.

"I check out the kitchen and discuss the menu, and make out a time plan and a shopping list.

"For example, if a client wants a casserole for 10 people I need to know if her casserole is big enough. If not, I take my own."

Mrs. Ryan also caters to picnics and cocktail parties. An example is a couple who went for a long weekend to a cottage at Point No Point, on the southwest coast of Vancouver Island.

"I made things like French pate, a seafood gruyere with wine aspic, quail eggs, and trapper's bread, cabbage rolls, frosted grapes and chocolate cake with peppermint icing.

"And I put in all kinds of things I'd like if I were on a picnic—like candied walnuts."

For big parties, Mrs. Ryan works with her daughter Colleen and if she has a really big party—a dinner for 6—she has friends who help.

She fondly recalls a cocktail party for 150 she prepared for former federal cabinet minister Judy LaMarsh when she lived in Vancouver.

"Judy was great to cook for because she really knows food," said Mrs. Ryan.

"She showed me her cook books, which were floor to ceiling in one whole room. I thought 'Oh, boy, Judy, if you could see my little tattered things on the backs of envelopes, like my beef stew recipe which is almost obliterated with stew.'"

Mrs. Ryan's specialty is guacamole dip. Judy liked it, so much, she is one of the few people I have ever given a recipe to."

Mrs. Ryan's ambition is to open a restaurant. She has a site in mind and architects are working on plans.

To be called La Cachette—La Hideaway—it will have a fixed price, only two main dishes a night, one all veal and lots of small courses.

"I want to create a magic feeling," she said. "The one thing that has frustrated me about being Barbara the Butler is that I haven't been able to create any space."

Labor of Love

For Barbara Ryan, brown in Vancouver as Barbara the Butler, preparing meals for private parties is a labor of love. She recently won $1,100 in the professional category of the British Columbia menu competition, with three firsts, three seconds and a third. (CP

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: This letter is for Mixed-Up Kid. I know she feels because I, too, feel great hostility toward my parents. They had a disastrous marriage and are still in it.

Even though I have understood their problems, it doesn't make me feel most kindly toward them. My parents are what they are and I wouldn't know anything to do with them if we weren't related, so why bother about them now? Although society insists that we love our relatives and overlook their weaknesses, I refuse to play games.

I no longer pretend. I have stopped performing "duties." I wouldn't turn my back on my parents in time of need, but I refuse to have guilt crammed down my throat.

So you're neurotic because your parents had a poor marriage? Well, how about a little compassion? Isn't it enough that they've had a terrible life together? Must you add to their misery by ignoring them? You say you won't turn your back on them in time of need. Well, they need you now. So wake up and smell the coffee. It's later than you think.

Dear Ann Landers: I have tried everything I can think of to solve this problem myself, but I hit a stone wall every turn I take. Please help me.

I am 28. My husband is 33. We've been married eight years and have a two-year-old daughter. We also have my 13-year-old sister living with us. We took Dee seven years ago when my parents were divorced. Neither Mom nor Dad wanted her. Although I was just a bride, I decided it was my responsibility to take her in. (My parents really messed up their lives).

My husband has always felt Dee belongs with her father. He resent her being here and it is making trouble between us. She is a good student until last year, when suddenly she took on "I don't care" attitude and her grades went way down. She used to confide in me but now she refuses to talk about what's bothering her.

Dee let our little boy several times even though I've told her she is not to lay a hand on him. "He makes me nervous," is her answer. "I can't help it."

A few months ago I took her to a mental health clinic. After one interview I was told I didn't have a problem, that she was a normal 13-year-old.

This girl is giving me sleepless trouble and ruining our marriage. My husband says we should send her to her father, but I just can't do it. I know she'd get into real trouble out there. He doesn't want her and has never sent us a dime for her support. What do you advise?—A Sad Sister

Dear Sister: When school starts, go to see the guidance counselor. Ask his or her advice. Perhaps a foster home would be the best place for Dee. Many boarding couples take such children. And incidentally, are you aware that the girl's father is liable for her support until she is of legal age? I suggest that you see a lawyer or consult Legal Aid about this.

Dear Ann Landers: Here's an open letter to an hitchhiker. I hope you will print it.

Hello, there. I'll bet you're wondering why I'm scrutinizing you so closely as I coast down the highway, ignoring your outstretched thumb.

No, I'm not rejecting you because you have long hair and scruffy jeans. I didn't stop because frankly, I'm afraid of you. Yes, I feel guilty, because you might be O.K. and I wish I could have given you a lift and some refugee from what looks like a storm coming up.

Then, too, I worry for you—that some driver might take advantage of your isolation and your youth.

I recently read where three young hitchhikers were brutally murdered by a pair of lunatics who gave them a ride. Don't you see the papers?

Now, back to why I scrutinized you so carefully. You remind me of someone. I had to be sure you weren't my son. You can't imagine how heavy my heart is, having to pass you up, but I had to do it for my own protection. And I am sorry.

Dear Sorry: No need to have regrets. That kid might have been perfectly O.K. but then again, how could you be sure? It's a chance too big to take and I don't blame you.

Dear Ann Landers: Like many of your readers, I was interested to learn that at your dinner table when guests of all faiths gather, you offer a prayer which is ecumenical.

There is no more ecumenical prayer to introduce a meal than the 2,000-year-old traditional Jewish prayer which reads: "Blessed art Thou, O Lord our God, King of the Universe, who bringeth forth bread from the earth."

In a world threatened with hunger, this prayer should have special significance and universal acceptance.—Rabbi William Nevins

Dear Rabbi Nevins: Man, thanks for that bit of wisdom.

Most Persistent Smokers

By DORIS CLARK

According to Britain's Tobacco Research Council, Canadians are among the most persistent smokers in the world. In 1971, says Reader's Digest, they gasped their way through a grand total of 50,864 million cigarettes or about 3,220 each, five times as many as in 1931.

—Little-Known facts from Reader's Digest.

"Five times as many as in 1931!" And when you remember the percentage of Canadians who do not smoke, from that figure, the number of smokers per smoker goes up higher than I would like to count. Think of the blackened lungs walking around today which will be fighting for air — a condition which can lead to several horrible diseases — a few years from now.

Dear Doris: I am happy to report that our son, the sleepwalker, is doing much better. He got a paper route and since he has been making money he hardly wakes up in the night any more. He is making anywhere between $5. and $8. a week, whereas before he only had an allowance of a dollar.

Relieved.

Dear Relieved: Did you link the improvement with the acquiring of his income? There was no obvious connection between money and the sleepwalking habit. He never went to your purse for money, nor expressed such a desire.

Yet the money may represent success to him. He may feel worthwhile because he is doing something which other people value. It may be that he is using physical energy which is needed until he is getting physically tired, stretching his muscles and his mind, in a way that would be good for any of us.

As a result his frustrations vanish: and each night he settles down into sound, body-refreshing rest. Good news!

Dear Doris: I started an auxiliary in this nursing home. I didn't think I could go back since Mom passed away, but realized these people need all the love and care we can give them.

I would like any ideas you could give me about games or things to do. I've started a singsong with them but their songs are just a little older than I am. Would you please send a list or sheets of oldies songs?

—Loving Older People.

Dear Loving: I'm sending you my leaflet called "Games Suitable For Friendship Clubs" as well as my "Gift of Skills and Games" and "My Party Games and Refreshments".

With regard to the singsongs, I do not have any lists of songs. But I can give you the name of a very fine book store in Toronto which specializes in second hand books. Get some of the seniors who love to sing to name their special old favorites, then write to the book store for them.

The store owner will go to endless trouble to locate something you want. Our readers will too.

The Consumer — Sharon Airhart

Store Brands-Cheap High in Quality

The Montreal Gazette recently published a list of store brand foods and their manufacturers which interested us and for all, that buying the store brand means not only lower price but comparable quality.

For example, Steinberg's, in Ontario, Miracle Food Mart — own brand of canned corn is made by Libby, a major manufacturer. York Farms, another widely-known brand, manufactures other canned goods for the chain. McCain's processes frozen foods for Steinberg's.

The store's house brand instant coffee retails for, much less than national brand Nescafe. But Nescafe, made by Nestle, and Steinberg's instant coffee - also by Nestle - are, by laboratory test conducted by the Gazette, "nearly identical" with no discernable difference.

Another example: General Foods manufactures both Jello and Steinberg's house brand of potato deserts — York Farms, Libby and Del Monte all manufacture for Dominion Stores and one can assume the same holds true for other food stores.

Moral: If you want to save money, use house brands.

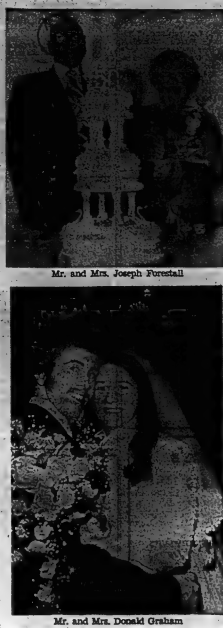
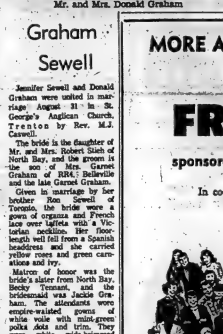
If you sign a contract in your home for more than $50, the Consumer Protection Act provides a two-day cooling off period for your protection.



Fast-talking salesmen have talked all of us into something or other, sometime or other, often in our own living room where native politeness keeps us listening long enough for him to make a sale. That doesn't make us dumb, just susceptible.

Now we are protected by the Consumer Protection Act, which gives you two days to cancel a contract over $50. The catch: a phone call isn't enough; registered mail or hand-delivered letter must arrive within two days after the dealer.



This legislation, which is fairly recent, has had an unusual side effect. Now fast-talking salesmen are inviting you into their places of business, tempting you with offers of free merchandise. Then they try to sell you hundreds of dollars worth of equipment that you probably hadn't thought of buying. In these sharp-operator places, you're unprotected by Consumer Protection Act cancellation clause is only good when the contract has been negotiated and signed in a place other than the site of the regular place of business.

With these types of operations, too, the dealers avoid another catch in the act which requires itinerant sellers must be registered, post a $5,000 bond, be financially responsible and the like. Itinerant sellers with past conduct that indicates he will not carry on business with integrity and honesty and in accordance with the law can lose their registration.

To protect yourself, deal with known and established companies, be familiar with brands and costs, ask for identification from itinerant salesman, say no without telling an evasive lie, never sign anything just to get a salesman to leave you alone, never sign anything with blank spaces, get receipts and know the total cost: a few dollars a month adds up over five years.

A DREAM COME TRUE — NINETY YEARS AGO

"Such incidents as the founding of institutions of this character become monuments in history." — J. M. Ferris.

Why is September 25th a memorable date for our city of Belleville this year?

Perhaps you have guessed or knew that it is the 90th anniversary date of the ceremony of laying the corner stone of what is now our outstanding institution — the Belleville General Hospital.

This ceremony signified the fulfilment of a dream-come-true of a group of Belleville women formed five years before 1884, for the purpose of helping the friendless.

They called the group The Women's Christian Association, and is active to this day in Belleville.

By the kindness of Mr. and Mrs. Robert McCulloch, RR 7, we have access to a clipping from The Intelligencer, which brings to life the details of the ceremony.

Of special interest is that Mrs. Nathan Jones, President of the W.C.A. who took part in the laying of the corner stone, is a great grandmother of Mr. Robert McCulloch.

With headings : The New Hospital and Home. Favorable Weather. A Splendid Ceremony. We learn from the account :

On that blue-sky September day in 1884, the ceremony of laying the corner stone for the Hospital and Home for the Friendless — an enterprise made possible by the interest and efforts of the ladies of The Women's Christian Society — was an event greatly anticipated by the residents of Belleville.

Flying flags and banners bearing inscriptions "Our Hospital", "Our Country" were appropriately placed. The Union Jack draped the entrance to the grounds through which passed over 2,000 persons including school children of Public and Separate Schools in charge of their respective teachers — to witness the proceedings.

On the foundation of the new building a floor was laid upon which benches were placed for the comfort of invited guests. Behind the Speaker's stand were seated the ladies of the Womens Christian Association. On the left were City Council and City Officers, and the President and of the Sons of England, Sons of St. Patrick and the St. Andrew's Societies. On the right were the clergymen of the city. Friends of those invited and ladies of the W.C.A. filled there making seats.

Mayor Dunnet asked for silence from the large crowd when all was in readiness for the ceremony to begin. The audience sang the hymn "Novercia" accompanied by the Odd Fellows' Band. The Rev. E.W. Sibbald, of Christ Church Cathedral, on the 130th chapter of Paul's epistle to the Corinthians, and prayers was offered by the Rev. M.W. McLean, St. Andr's Church. The band played a selection. Then the Mayor asked a representative of the W.C.A. to present to Mrs. Nathan Jones the trowel for laying the stone.

In response, Mrs. Dunnet stepped forward and in "a neat little speech" presented on behalf of the W.C.A. the trowel to Mrs. Jones.

Mrs. Jones spoke. (We beg to interrupt at this point to say that we are devoting a column to her speech, given at this time, continuing next week).

At the close of Mrs. Jones speech, tribute was paid to the WCA by such guests as J.M. Ferris, M.P.P. for East Northumberland, "I am glad for our country's sake that the ladies have undertaken and are meeting with such success. In the carrying out of this noble enterprise!" Mr. Farrelly of St. Michael's Church, "God speed this good work"; A.F. Wood, M.P.P. for North Hastings, "One can see the end from the beginning, — the ladies well have attained their happiness in making this undertaking a success,".

Mr. Bell, M.P.P. for West Hasting was glad "to see the stone laid by a Belleville lady. The pleasant location would breese coming from the bay." spoke of "the pure, fresh breese coming from the bay", and said "a better location could not have been chosen."

After the band played a selection Wm. Sinclair, Esq., President of the St. Andrew's Society; S. O'Brien, Esq., President of the St. Patrick's Society, and J.W. Loudon, Esq., President of the Sons of England, each expressed their pleasure at being present to witness the ceremony and respectively repeated the ladies to accept a cheque for $25 on the behalf of the societies, to be devoted to the work of carrying on the hospital work."

Graham — Sewell

Jennifer Sewell and Donald Graham were united in marriage August 31 in St. George's Anglican Church, Trenton by Rev. M.J. Carswell.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sloch of North Bay, and the groom is the son of Mrs. Garnet Graham of R.R.4, Belleville and the late Garnet Graham.

Given in marriage by her brother Robert Sewell of Toronto, the bride wore a gown of organza and French lace over taffeta with a Victorian neckline. Her floor length veil fell from a Spanish headdress and she carried yellow roses and green carnations and ivy.

Matron of honor was the bride's sister from North Bay, Becky Tennant, and the bridesmaid was Jackie Graham. The attendants were empire style gowns of white voile with mint-green polka dots and trim. They wore white wide-brimmed hats trimmed with green ribbon and carried nosegays of daisies, green carnations and ivy.

Brian Farrance of London served as best man and Dave Redcliffe of Stirling was usher.

After a reception at the Trenton Masonic Temple, the newly-married couple travelled to the Muskoka area for their honeymoon. They are now living in Toronto.

Inflation Puts Strain On Christian Pastors

By GEORGE CORDELL

NEW YORK (AP) — Inflation is putting a particularly rough financial strain on Christian pastors, a new study indicates. They're the lowest paid among considerably educated professionals and their paycheques have lagged further behind.

Despite the relatively small income, however, most remain satisfied in their jobs.

These were among findings of an extensive, year-long study among 19 Protestant denominations by the U.S. National Council of Churches' office of church leadership.

The results, issued Thursday, show that pastors of U.S. local churches are paid an average $7,703 a year in cash. Other benefits, such as housing and utilities allowances, boost the average to $13,346 a year.

This is about half the average earnings of a lawyer, accountant or personnel director, and puts the minister at the bottom of the list economically among professionals of comparable education in other fields.

However, 82 per cent of the pastors say they're satisfied in their work, even though the pay is low.

The study was directed by a City University of New York professor, Robert Bond, through a grant from the Educational and Casualty Union of Minneapolis, Fleishgut reports on responses from 6,855 pastors.

It was found that ministers' salaries have risen an average of 54 per cent in the last 10 years, slightly more than the estimated 41-per-cent rise in U.S. living costs in that period. But among other professionals, income went considerably more in that time—such as 77 per cent for lawyers, 76 per cent for personnel directors, 70 per cent for accountants and 61 per cent for chemists.

The ministry of the main Protestant churches generally requires three years of seminary education beyond a college degree.

Eighty-four per cent of the pastors, despite job satisfaction with their work, consider their incomes too low in relation to others of similar education.

Sixty-five per cent of the pastors said their income was not adequate for family and personal needs.

To help meet the gap, 6 per cent of clergy spouses now hold jobs, twice the proportion of 10 years ago.

Moreover, 22 per cent of the parish pastors have secular employment on the side, up from 16 per cent a decade ago.

Be Confident

By Dr. Gordon C. Smyth

Church attendance in Canada has decreased 16 per cent in the last decade. Many Christians are discouraged, apologetic and bewildered. Have you never felt: If only God had walked until television set to send Christ ?

We could all benefit from a nerve tonic of early Church history. For instance, back in A.D. 81, the Apostle Paul was confronted by the challenge of what, to most of us, would have seemed an impossible task. That was Rome, capital of empire and centre of a more pluralistic society than we know from experience.

Nero was on the throne. The morals of his court were disgusting. Cruelty was in the saddle. Decent people had discarded the ancient gods of Greece and Rome. A host of "Eastern" cults competed for devotees.

And yet note the spirit of Paul! He wrote to the small Christian flock, "I am eager to preach the Gospel to you also who are in Rome. For I am not ashamed of the Gospel: it is the power of God for salvation to every one who has faith" (Romans 1:15, 16).

So the Apostle went to that city on the seven hills. He set the Gospel penetrating the Praetorian Guard. He saw it gaining a foothold in Caesar's household. He was the greatest single influence for good who had ever entered Rome. How secured for it?

Malcolm Muggeridge has written, "The founder of the Christian religion never travelled more than 30 miles, and associated with what we would class as uninteresting people.

"If He had been given a package tour of the Roman Empire and had the pleasure of meeting a succession of officials, writers and eminent people, I doubt that the New Testament would be more profound."

It is not a blueprint for the immediate solution to social problems. It is not a moral code by which men and women are bound. It is the message that in an environment where sins are daily exposed to all kinds of forces and pressures making for discord, dependency and defeat, there is a silent, invisible power of God flowing to us through Jesus Christ that is able to cleanse, to heal, to reconcile and to bring us through every trial or suffering.

The world cannot remain as it is because Christ did not remain in the grave. This is the Gospel. Be grateful for it. Be confident in it.

Billy Graham Says About the New Motion Picture "Time To Run" . . .

There is no doubt that today we see the family unit being attacked from every side, torn apart and fragmented. TIME TO RUN is a motion picture about a family, about listening, about the silences between people, the unspoken moments, and the moments of anger that don't really accomplish anything. TIME TO RUN openly offers the reality of Jesus Christ as an answer to the human dilemma. I feel that thousands of people will see a part of themselves in the film. Hopefully, families seeing it will be brought closer together in real understanding and communication.

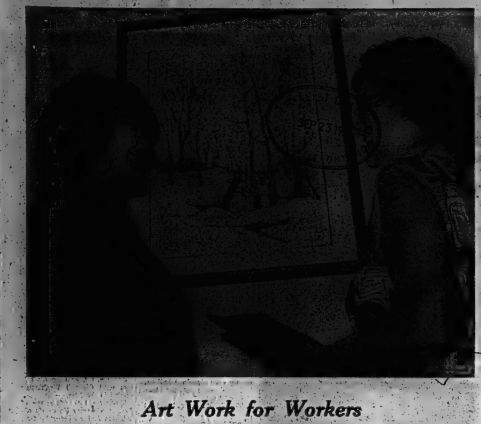
Shopping Centre To Get Major Facelift, Including Mini-mall

Construction begins next week on multi-million dollar re-development of Belleville's east end plaza.

Mort Lightstone, plaza manager and spokesman for a consortium of Belleville businessmen who now own the plaza, told The Intelligencer, the first phase of re-development will be the construction of a $160,000-mini mall attached to the east side of the existing structure.

The mini-mall will include nine boutiques. The new section — expected to be completed by Christmas — will be climate controlled, offering all the features of an enclosed mall.

Mr. Lightstone said the stores would all be retail outlets as opposed to service stores such as dry cleaners and business offices and that "some leases have been signed."



He said the construction of the mini-mall is only the first phase of a program that will eventually enclose the entire shopping centre.

Mr. Lightstone said three phases are planned for the seven-11 re-development scheme, which he said will run into millions of dollars before completion.

These phases will likely stretch over the next two or three years, Mr. Lightstone said.

He said a highlight of shopping plaza renovations will be the acquisition of a major department store to be constructed with the closing in the centre as a mall.

"A major department store will come with the mall," said Mr. Lightstone. Negotiations with a particular department store — company — are already in progress, he said.

Art Work for Workers

Works of local artists brighten work surroundings for Northern Electric employees like Linda Brunet (left) and Jenny O'Hearne. Display, to be arranged through Quinte Arts Council, which also has constituting showings at Belleville General Hospital and city hall.

Loyalist Teachers Vote

Teachers Reject New Council Salary Offer

Ontario community college teachers have voted almost 89 per cent in favor of rejecting the latest management contract offer.

The Civil Service Association of Ontario (CSAO) said Friday 3,592 of the 5,500 teachers at the province's 22 colleges voted in the secret ballot.

The CSAO said its next move will be to reopen negotiations with the Council of Regents, governing body for the colleges.

Paul Wall, president of the CSAO's Loyalist College branch, who had earlier predicted the offer would be turned down, said he is nonetheless surprised at the size of the rejection vote.

"I feel we've got way point across better than we expected."

A core issue in the dispute is teachers fear that the colleges want to increase workloads without guaranteeing job securities.

"This, said Mr. Wall, could permit unjustifiable layoffs at some colleges. Moreover, he did not imply that wages are seven-man teacher bargaining team will meet in Toronto Tuesday to plan strategy for resuming negotiation.

If the council of regents rejects the CSAO's request for negotiations, the unions might call a province-wide study session that would take teachers out of 22 community colleges for one day later this month or early in October.

About 53,000 students in the community colleges would be left without classes if such a study session were called.

The Crown Employees Bargaining Act prohibits strike action.

A spokesman for Loyalist teachers, Mr. Wall did not detail what protest action is being considered.

He said if further talks are unreasonably stalled, teachers are "prepared to act in ways designed to make provincial management realize we mean business."

The rejected contract proposed a wage increase of seven per cent in year-one; 1973-74 plus nine per cent for 1974-75.

In a statement from, the ministry of colleges and universities earlier this week Mr. Sisco expressed hope that the teachers would accept the council's offer, but stated that the CSAO had recommended rejection on ballot sheets sent to teachers.

Mr. Ward said the CSAO's salary demands were for increases of nine per cent in each year of a two-year contract, but the bargaining committee will have to reassess its salary demands in the light of ever-increasing inflation.

Factory Introduces Paintings To Brighten up Plant Interior

A factory is not the common setting for an art gallery.

But Northern Electric has moved to temper the popular image of industry as an austere setting for human activity.

Now main office sectors in the city's biggest industrial plant have become show areas for works of local artists.

The results should please both the company and how contributors, says those who helped organize the display.

It gives the artists — also permitted to regularly change and price their works — access to a considerable group of potential viewers. Northern employs about 1,500 persons in Belleville.

Employees work in surroundings made more pleasant and colorful — without cost to the company.

"It lessens the cold industrial effect you can sometimes get in a plant setting," says Reg Morry, technician who is in charge of plant facilities at Northern.

Plant employees are enjoying the exhibits which also "help cheer the place up".

The fact works are rotated also heightens the effect.

Inspiration for the display came when Northern officials were discussing ways of making the plant interior "more interesting," says Mr. Morry.

Art has taken on popular appeal and there were suggestions that art works be purchased or rented.

The final solution was offered by a Northern employee — plant nurse Jean Young.

Mrs. Young is also a member of the Quinte Arts Council visual arts committee.

The committee already has broken new ground in getting the works of local artists on show — including the first display to be mounted in a plant.

It now has rotating shows in two major public buildings — Belleville General Hospital and city hall.

Mrs. Young suggested Northern's corridors could be opened up in similar fashion.

There was only one snag. The hospital and city hall shows call on the arts council committee to mount 156 works three times a year. Each show brings about 400 entries, Mrs. Young said.

Having to judge another show would have increased the pressure on the committee.

The dilemma was solved when someone suggested a workforce as large as Northern's should include enough talent to mount their wives, were members of the arts council.

To date, eight such artists have emerged at Northern. It is their work that now hangs in company corridors.

Mrs. Young suggests Northern has set on example that could be emulated.

"If other industries are interested in doing the same kind of thing they should check to see if any of their employees are in the arts council," she says.

Town Hall Marks 100th Anniversary

AMELIASBURGH A baseball game, variety show and street dance all served to commemorat e the 100th birthday of Ameliasburgh Township Hall here Friday night.

The variety show, held inside the hall, featured local talent all of whom donated their time and talents for the event.

Over 200 people were on hand for the show which was immediately followed by an open air dance on the newly-paved parking lot behind the hall. The paved lot is one of several renovations that have taken place in the hall for years. Ameliasburgh Reeve, Russell Thompson said that aside the hall received local renovations to have been made in recent years was the construction of a kitchen, washroom facilities and office in 1966 as a project for Canada's Centennial.

County Council Approves Various Small Grants

Hastings county council has turned down a grant request from the Tweed Day Nursery on the grounds that the county should not be subsidizing privately-owned operations of this type.

The report of the county finance, property and promotional committee tabled at this week's meeting noted the Tweed Day Nursery already is being subsidized to the extent of 88 per cent by the Province and any contribution the county might make would be to help meet the 20 per cent deficit normally picked up by parents or guardians of children attending the nursery.

The committee approved a grant of $200 to the Corbyville Rescue Squad to assist in the purchase of a new van. In recommending the grant, the committee commended the squad for its rescue services which are provided over a wide area.

Also a grant of $100 was approved for the McClure, Wicklow, Bangor and Monmagle Union Library Board — the same amount given in other township libraries.

A county grant for the proposed new Stirling arena has also been received but the committee noted construction was not proposed to start until 1975. Minimum costs of the rink would be in the neighborhood of $350,000.

The committee did not recommend a grant this year and said it could not commit next year's council without approval of the Ontario Municipal Board.

However, the committee did recommend that consideration be given to a grant of $1,000 in 1975.

Mohawk Council Told Not to Meet

TYENDINAGA — This reserve's elected council now is on notice from its opponents to hold any further meetings.

The warning Friday night hardened the confrontation dividing the Quinte Mohawks.

It came from Ciell Maracle, member of the five-man committee who now is the chief spokesman for the movement to have the resignation of the reserve's governing body.

Simultaneously, he also charged Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chrétien with responsibility "for any actions" arising from the dispute.

Councillor Maracle's warning indicated the stand of the protest group, did not end Wednesday when its demonstrators confined councillors who refused to resign after their administration was declared dissolved.

"We will stop all council meetings from here on in until an election is called," said Councillor Maracle. The council has been dissolved."

Chief William Brant, confronted by demonstrators Wednesday, said he would call a general meeting of all Quinte Mohawks to discuss the dispute — which centres on operation of an Indian-owned industrial corporation on the reserve.

"There will be no meeting held," said Councillor Maracle Friday, "The people's interests are to stop it."

In a prepared statement, the dissident councillor said Indian Affairs Minister Buchanan is aware of the controversy and "the possible consequences."

However, he refused to intervene and avoid the present impasse and confrontation. That, the responsibility rests upon the minister for any actions arising out of this dispute."

The Indian affairs department, was presented with grievances by the protest movement in Ottawa earlier of this month.

Mr. Maracle said his group has "no intention of backing off but will exert maximum pressure" to achieve resignation of the council and dissolution of the controversial industrial corporation.

The council now is "viewed by the people as puppets" of the department and the department "the main culprit" in the dispute.

The petition presented council Wednesday night had 218 signatures, which its organizers claim is a majority of the reserve's eligible voters. Some 374 voters were listed on a reference earlier this year which opposed the corporation. But Chief Brant says reserve returning officer Donald Brant lists 490 voters on the reserve.

The reserve has a population of close to 1,000.

The corporation, Tyendinaga Mohawk Ltd., has connected with Bata Footwear for manufacture of shoe uppers and employs about 25 women.

Trenton Contract Awarded

TRENTON — A Trenton construction firm has been awarded the contract to build the new $300,000 Knights of Columbus hall on Stella Cres., Jack Bonn, chairman of the building committee said this week.

The firm, one of four invited to bid on the single-storey, windowless structure, was not named by the chairman.

Mr. Bonn said there was a $40,000 difference between the highest and lowest bidder.

Construction of the new club facilities — built with a centrally-located , service core flanked by two meetings halls — was to have begun either this month or in October.

However, Mr. Bonn said it now is unclear if construction will begin this year. Minor technical difficulties with zoning regulations have held up any firm decision as the start, he said.

"If weather permits, then we'll start this year," said the chairman. However, he acknowledged that costs could rise if construction was undertaken over the winter months, and said a start date might be put off till early spring.

"We'll lean on the contractors advice," he indicated.

The new hall, designed by Kasper Zacher Associates of Cobourg, will be built on a 186 by 249-foot lot fronting on Stella Cres.

Newly-weds Injured

A newly-wed couple are in Belleville General Hospital after they were involved in a two-car crash on Highway 14 at the Wallbridge Rd. early today.

Police said Robert, Rowe, 29, of Campbellford and his wife, Connie, had been married Friday.

Mr. Rowe was pinned in his car when it overturned. Thurlow Township fire department rescue workers freed him.

He suffered cuts while his wife had cuts and bruises.

Their car was in collision with a vehicle driven by Ross Bailey, RR 2, Bellville.

A third vehicle, being driven around the incident, went out of control. An occupant, Marion McMurray, of Campbellford, was treated and released at hospital.

Experimental Farmer

Ameliasburgh farmer Alfred Cairns had more than 100 visitors this week. They came to see 10 acres of his corn. Sponsored by the United Co-ops of the area, Mr. Cairns planted 10 one-acre "performance plots" of feed corn — each a different variety. The payoff came when Quinte-area farmers came to see which of the corn varieties was most successful.

Good Luck Pal

Changes by the Number

VANCOUVER (CP) — If there is one thing Western Football Conference fans can be certain of for tonight's game between British Columbia Lions and Winnipeg Blue Bombers, it is that both clubs have changed their rosters extensively since they last met.

The Bombers have perhaps the most spectacular change, having traded quarterback Don Jonas to Hamilton Tiger-Cats in exchange for quarterback Chuck Ealey.

The combination of Ealey and running back Dave Buchanan, which took the Tiger-Cats to the 1972 Grey Cup, clicked again Wednesday when Hamilton defeated Edmonton Eskimos 19-13.

But the Lions have also made a startling change. Head Coach Eagle Keys announced Friday quarterback Joe Paopao, offensive end Trev Ekdahl has been released from the roster, and will be replaced by Mike LaHood.

"We felt we were filling our needs at the offensive line," Keys said in an interview. "And Trevor has always said 'if he couldn't be a starter then he'd rather quit.'"

Keys said he tried to trade the eight-year veteran, the team's player representative on the Canadian Football League Players Association, but there were no takers.

The Lions also found out that Tony Gabriel, Ottawa Rough Riders' all-star defensive halfback, tripped during Thursday's workout, likely has torn a knee cartilage.

And without fullback Johnny Musso, who recently rejoined the roster, but rejoined him-self, slotback Jim Young, coming off the 21-day-7 injury list with a dislocated shoulder, but not expected to start, and Ogden Ivey, the Lions' attack is bound to suffer.

While the Bombers have recently defeated Edmonton and Saskatchewan Rough Riders, they have yet to beat the Lions. B.C. are a comfortable building start to the season by beating Winnipeg 29-23 and 26-6.

The only players the Lions will recognize from the Winnipeg offensive attack are John Bledsoe and tight end Bob Lee Rose.

The Lions will likely have their own defensive newcomers to greet the Winnipeg crew. They are defensive backs Joe Larkin and Bob Friend, a Canadian, to play behind Bob Howes. But Friend will only start if the Lions don't place Aynsley on the 21-day injury list.

Dodgers Lengthen Lead

Cards Hang On at Top

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

St. Louis Cardinals and Pittsburgh Pirates, tyfter for the lead of the National League East, took opposite routes to the same destination Friday night.

The Cards used the long ball, a three-run shot by catcher Ted Simmons, to beat Chicago Cubs 3-2.

The Pirates didn't get any home runs but made the best of two singles, a walk, a wild pitch, a passed ball, two infield groundouts and some aided base running to score three runs in the ninth inning and beat New York Mets 4-3.

The victories kept the Cards in first place in the NL East, one-half game ahead of Pittsburgh.

Simmons blasted a three-run homer in the fourth inning to decisive blow in the Cards' triumph.

Elsewhere, Los Angeles Dodgers beat San Diego Padres 2-1, as Tommy John edged Cincinnati Reds 4-3, Atlanta Braves blanked Houston Astros 7-0 and Philadelphia Phillies whipped Montreal Expos 10-2.

Mike Tyson opened the Cards' big inning with a walk, pitcher Bob Forsch sacrificed and was safe at first base on a fielder's choice and Lou Brock singled to load the bases. After Ted Simmons fouled out, Reggie Smith singled home Tyson to put St. Louis in front 3-1 but Forsch was thrown out trying to score.

Simmons then blasted his 18th home run of the year.

Mets' starter Ray Sadecki had a 3-1 lead and was working on a five-hitter until the Pirates rallied in the ninth.

Rookie Art Howe led off with a walk, and Dave Cash singled behind Sadecki. Howe took second on a wild pitch, but McGraw struck out pinch-hitter Steve Parker. Pinch-hitter Paul Popovich bounced a weak single through the hole between short and third. Howe going to third, and Stennett followed with a sharp single to center to score Howe, move Popovich to third, and the Mets' lead to 3-1 and chase McGraw.

Harry Parker took over on the mound for Sadecki, but he couldn't stop Pittsburgh.

Steve Yeager's first-inning home run provided the winning margin for the Dodgers, now 13-9 against San Diego this season and who have won their last 16 encounters with the Padres.

The victory, combined with the San Francisco Giants' decision over Cincinnati Reds, boosted the Dodgers' lead in the NL West to 3½ games over the second place Reds.

Yeager's homer, his 11th of the year, came off losing pitcher Joe McIntosh, 6-4.

The Padres scored single second and rode home on Gary Thomasson's single to the eighth inning, breaking a 3-3 tie and lifting the Giants past the Reds.

Johnny Bench homered in the fourth inning for the Reds. It was his 31st homer of the season and boosted his major league leading run batted in total to 122.

Phil Niekro fired a four-hitter and drove in the only run of the game with a sacrifice fly in the fifth inning for the Braves.

Niekro, 16-15, struck out nine and walked one. He held the Astros, hitless until Greg Gross' one-out double in the sixth inning.

Dave Cartton fired a four-hitter and Del Unser and Willie Montanez ripped two-run homers for the Phils.

Carlton, 13-15, posted his first victory since Aug. 8 and ended a personal five - game losing streak.

Simmons – Three-run Blast

Both Clubs Need a Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Wayne Giardino may be the spark plug that Ottawa Rough Riders need to get back at offensive mediocrity in good order.

Moved from his linebacking spot to fullback because of an injury to Dan Yeoman, Giardino rushed for 76 yards and caught four passes for another 31 as Riders pulled out of their scoring doldrums Thursday and beat Toronto Argonauts 22-12.

Ottawa is at home Sunday afternoon against Saskatchewan Roughriders with a chance to tie Hamilton Tiger-Cats for third place in the Eastern Football Conference standings.

Saskatchewan needs a win to tie Edmonton for first place in the Western Conference.

Giardino has been backup to Ottawa fullback since the late 1960s. He saw service on defence when Riders were the Grey Cup in 1969.

The Riders will take a look at Walter Hartfield, fullback from West Texas State. Also looking for a job with Ottawa is wide receiver Mark Sheridan, a late cut from Philadelphia Eagles.

But Sheridan's chances of landing a job loomed Thursday when Ottawa receivers Ronnie Nixon and Hugh Oldham enjoyed one of their better 1975 appearances.

Nixon scored two touchdowns on pass plays while Oldham caught five passes for 107 yards. Both have been criticized for dropping fastballs they might have caught in the first nine Ottawa starts.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

New York Yankees are having their ups and downs these days. Right now, they're up in the American League East Division pennant race.

The Yankees, who dropped out of first place—Thursday night, moved back to Friday night with a doubleheader sweep over Cleveland Indians.

BOBBY MURCER

The Yankees beat the Indians 5-4 and 3-0.

The Yankees moved into a tie with Baltimore as the Orioles defeated Boston 2-1 and plunged the third-place Red Sox four games off the pace.

In other American League games, Chicago White Sox blanked Oakland A's 5-0; Minnesota Twins zipped California Angels 3-2 and Detroit Tigers trimmed Milwaukee Brewers 5-3.

Bobby Murcer's run-scoring triple in the ninth broke open the Yankees' their first-game victory. They won the second game as Larry Gura pitched a six-hitter.

Don Baylor and Bcog Powell hit home runs and Ross Grimsley and Grant Jackson combined to pitch a six-hitter, leading Baltimore over Boston.

The victory was the seventh in eight games and the 18th in the last 24 starts for the surging Orioles.

Bert Johnson and Terry Forster combined on a three-hitter and Jorge Orta's run-scoring single keyed a two-run sixth inning pacing Chicago over Oakland.

The loss cut Oakland's American League West Division lead to four games over Texas Rangers, who were rained out.

Johnson, 9-4, held the A's hitless until Claudell Washington singled in the fifth.

Minnesota took advantage of California starter Nolan Ryan's wildness and an error by first baseman John Doherty to score two runs in the seventh inning and defeat the Angels.

Rookie Dan Ibzer belied two home runs and John Knox' two-run single capped a seventh-inning rally that gave Detroit Six victory over Milwaukee.

Farda, Big Ned Reunited

TORONTO (CP) — Richard Farda, 29, arrived in Toronto last night to join Toronto Toros of the World Hockey Association. Farda was doubled with ten-mate Vaclav Nedomansky, who defected from Czechoslovakia's national team in July.

Farda has played centre for the Czech team for the last seven years. He was seventh in scoring in the Czech league last season.

Farda has been training with the Swiss national team for the past six weeks.

Bobcats Make It Two Straight

By MARK BRETT
Sports Staff

Grant Goegan gave the Bobcat's their second win in as many starts in last night's Metro Junior Hockey League exhibition game at the Memorial Arena. Final score was 6-5.

Goegan scored the winning goal, with only 25 seconds showing on the clock. Belleville had a man advantage at the time with David Allen off for interference. Lisoa on a high sticking call.

The faceoff to the left of the Lisoa net was won by Belleville with the puck going back to Wally Dalzard on the point. Dalzard let a shot go and the puck hit the side of the net. Goegan smartly scooped the puck up and batted it behind a sprawling Howie Murray.

The game was a seesaw battle with the teams trading goals through the 60 minutes.

Al Mackinnon put the home team in front at 2:27 of the first period with assists going to Al Garrison and Curt McLean.

Belleville had a tough time getting untracked after that with Peterborough scoring three goals in succession. The tying goal was scored by Scott McKenzie and at 8:19 of the first Paul Graham scored the first goal of his hattrick. The second goal put the visitors ahead 2-1.

Garrison, one of the game's better performers, put the Cats back in the game with two goals less than 60 second apart.

In the second period, Belleville outscored their Peterborough team by a 4-3 margin.

Mike Watt who scored three goals in the Bobcats' first exhibition game picked up another two goals in the second period. On Watt's first goal, the puck deflected off him and into the net past the surprised netminder.

Watt's second goal came when he was in the right place at the right time. Dan Lupanette shot and the puck went between two players in front of the visitors net and off Watt's skate.

Other scorers in the second period were Curt McLean, who stole the puck from a Peterborough defenceman and slid the puck past Murray, and Al Jeffery.

Jeffery clicked with a stinging wrist shot.

Peterborough's goals were by Graham to complete his hattrick; Mike McGillis and Barry Ray.

Robbie Foster and Watt each going both ways, contributed to the Cats' success. Both players were constantly forechecking, keeping the visitors off stride.

Bob Moore playing net for the Cats in the third period appeared the stronger of the three goalies used. Bruce Clark worked the first period and Jeff Merrill, the second.

The third period was a goalieless one for each goalie being tested numerous times from close in.

The Lions only goal came at 2:19 of the period as Floyd Fenerman scored after several point blank shots had been stopped by Moore.

With the game tied at 7-7, the Cats continued to press and got the break they needed when Allen got the gate.

Lupanette playing his first game in a Bobcat uniform should prove to be an asset to the team. He led many plays out of his own end and set many good opportunities with accurate passes.

The Cats have a busy schedule, with games in Peterborough tomorrow and in Kingston on Sunday afternoon. Tuesday in Trenton, they meet Frankford Junior C Huskies in an 8.30 p.m. game.

6 Countries Compete In Junior Tourney

WINNIPEG (CP) — Six countries will participate in an 11-day, 15-game world junior hockey tournament in Winnipeg, Jack Devine, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, announced Friday.

The total-point round-robin tournament will run from Dec. 26 to Jan. 5 with games also being played in Brandon, Man., Fargo, N.D., and Minneapolis.

Devine told a news conference teams representing Canada, United States, Russia, Czechoslovakia, Sweden and Finland will play in the international.

An all-star team from the Western Canada Hockey League will represent Canada and Ed Chynoweth, president of the WCHL, said the team will be basically the same team that played a series of exhibition games with Team Canada earlier this month.

Good Start for Phoenix

BRANDON (CP) — Phoenix Roadrunners made their initial debut in the World Hockey Association (WHA) at summer-cooling Vancouver Sunday 5-1 before 4,000 fans and 6 spirited cops at 1,200.

The Roadrunners, who last season played in the Western Hockey League, broke a scoreless deadlock midway through the second period as left winger Mark Howe, son of Detroit Red Wings superstar Gordie Howe, converted a pass from Ralph Stewart.

Five minutes later Right Winger Dave Gorman rapped in a rebound on a power play to put Phoenix 2-0 ahead.

With the clock five minutes left in the game, Mickey Crozier rounded out scoring after a pile-driver.

Roadrunners outshot the Nighthawks 37-26 in their publicized WHA debut.

Wayne Wood and John Kisio for Phoenix and Honeyman and Brad Selwood for Vancouver played in the game.

Penguins Top Scouts

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Pittsburgh was the only National Hockey League team to blemish its preseason record with exhibition games Friday night.

The Penguins defeated Kansas City Scouts 4-1, while Montreal Canadiens blanked a 7-0 tie with Atlanta Flames and Philadelphia Flyers sawed off with Boston Bruins 2-2.

Chuck Arnason, Kelly Pratt, Bob McKenzie and Jean Pronovost scored for the Penguins, who defeated New York Islanders 5-4 Thursday night.

Norm Dube scored for the Scouts, a new entry in the NHL this season, along with Washington Capitals.

After Tom Lysiak's goal had given Atlanta a 1-0 lead at Montreal, Canadiens erupted a six on Murray Wilson's power-play goal. Tim Ecclestone notched the return of Ken Dryden to Canadiens' nets for Montreal.

Terry O'Reilly converted his own rebound in the game at Philadelphia to give the Bruins their tie with the Flyers. Stanley Cup defending champions.

Bill Barber and Bob Kelly were the Philadelphia marksmen, while Ken Hodge got the Bruins' first goal.

PETROCELLI SIDELINED

BOSTON (AP) — Boston Red Sox, batting in comfortable Baltimore Orioles and New York Yankees in the American League East Division pennant race, learned Friday that third baseman Rico Petrocelli could be sidelined for the remainder of the regular season.

Petrocelli is suffering from an infection as a result of being hit by a Jim Slaton pitch in Milwaukee last Sunday. Dick McAuliffe and Terry Hughes will share his third base duty.

Canadian Commanders Have Diverse Histories

NICOSIA (CP) — The three men in charge of Canada's 858 troops on this explosive island reflect diverse back grounds.

Soldiering is their common bond. Col. Clay Beattie of Ottawa, Col. Guy Lessard of Montreal and Lt.-Col. Don Manuel of Rothesay, N.B., have personalities that appear to make them an ideal trio for the ticklish task of keeping peace among the rival Greek and Turkish Cypriots.

Beattie, at 46, is a short, quiet man with a bookish air and energetic nature holding the dual role of head of the Canadian contingent and deputy chief of staff for the United Nations force here.

Lessard, 41, blends the manner of a French aristocrat with the disciplined strength of a professional soldier. His regiment is the Edmonton-based Canadian Airborne.

Manuel 40, commands Canada's troops in the Nicosia district and bears a striking resemblance — to movie star Paul Newman.

He is the type of soldier that obviously prefers the battlefield to a military desk.

The three share a job that uses the qualities of each. They are charged with keeping the entrenched enemies apart while seemingly endless negotiations between the two sides are carried out. It's a job that requires a mixture of diplomacy and tough action, of bluff and brute strength.

For Beattie and Manuel, on the island when recent fighting was at its peak, the work also meant death-defying walks through storms of bullets carrying nothing but radios and United Nations flags.

For Lessard, it means returning to command soldiers on Cyprus during a period far more grave than it was during his last tour here in 1971-72.

Beattie goes about his job with a worried look, cautiously hedging predictions that conditions may be cooling somewhat although things will probably get busy again soon.

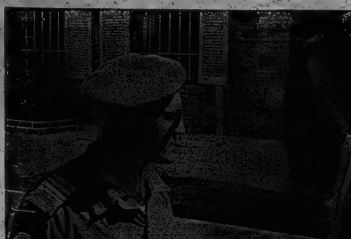
He discusses everyday skirmishes between Turk and Greek as the usual thing that one would expect at a time when negotiators are attempting to set new demarcation lines.

He refers to his own experiences under fire as though they were no more dangerous than driving to work.

"I just grabbed my radio and flag and dashed through the Greek lines. Then I did the same with the Turks," he said recently, describing efforts to separate the two sides during Turkish attempts to take over the Nicosia airport.

Manuel is more flamboyant, yet equally cautious. Though most sensitive of his duties appeared to be the UN peace force, is his responsibility. He wants all soldiers to be well acquainted with their jobs before they are sent out to man observation posts or patrol.

When reinforcements were sent in to augment the Canadian force, he commented: "It's not going to let them kill the troops and lash out in all directions before they lower the boom on the head."



Still, when pushed, Manuel acts quickly. He ordered his men to retain the rifle of Greek fighters during fighting in July when repeated attempts to stop Greeks from shooting at his men failed. Two Greek Cypriots were killed as a result, and several more were wounded. A number of Canadians were also hit.

From a military standpoint, that incident drew immediate praise from the Greek colonels, who congratulated Manuel, saying they would have done the same in the same situation.

Manuel's action also went down well with the troops, who have become increasingly frustrated with the often dangerous peacekeeping rules they must play.

"You have to return fire with fire," said one sergeant who, like many others, has been caught in gunbattles between the Greek-and Turkish-Cypriots.

Lessard said the role of Canadian leadership is one that requires "extreme tact, patience, diplomacy and many other qualities.

Argentina Is Endeavoring To Make Fuel-oil Steak

MENDOZA, Argentina (Reuter) — In Argentina, one of the world's biggest beef-producing countries in the world, a three-man scientific team has joined in the race to produce an edible and acceptable fuel-oil steak.

Similar experiments are being conducted in other countries.

Should the scientists, headed by Prof. Fuad Abdala Nemr, succeed in their objective, they may have found the answer to the world's food problem—mass-produced synthetic proteins to keep mankind's snowballing millions from starving.

In two years of research, the Argentine team has successfully produced edible protein from fuel-oil residue and rats and chickens have been thriving on it for three months.

The chickens are happily laying eggs as if on a normal diet, reported Nemr.

It is not particularly appetizing yet—a dry, whitish powder with no taste—but its nutritious value is such that a pound of the powder contains as much protein as five pounds of fresh-cut beef.

It can be textured and flavored to look and taste like beef, chicken, pork or lamb, Nemr said.

To produce the protein, he takes the residue from fuel-oil production and ferments it with bacteria.

This is no scientific breakthrough," said the 43-year-old professor. Biosynthesis is being practiced in many countries.

But it was only lately been developed with the aim of producing food for mankind.

Nemr began his research two years ago in a laboratory at the university engineering faculty in this western city-capital of Argentina's chief wine-growing province.

He started with a $20,000 government grant. Since then, local inhabitants, have jokingly dubbed the laboratory the "petrol-steak factory."

Fuel-oil residue from the nearby Lujan de Cuyo refinery, plus bacteria.

He calculates that only 2.5 per cent of the oil produced at the refinery would produce some 300,000 tons of synthetic food annually.

And it would have certain advantages over normal food:

—It can be produced 10,000 times faster than raising cattle and sheep.

—It does not rot. The Mendoza protein has been kept in open glasses for two years without deteriorating, meaning easy bulk transport and storage.

—It can be used to help curb obesity, and has already been developed along these lines in France.

Human daily requirements for proteins are contained in one pound of beef. Least than four ounces of the powder dressed up like a "steak" would provide the same amount of protein.

But Nemr said there are still problems to be worked out before mass production of oil steaks can begin.

Doctors and dietitians will have to find an answer to the hunger pangs people will feel after eating their theoretically sufficient but meagre synthetic meals.

Auckland Has Nobody Unemployed

AUCKLAND (CP) — A year ago Auckland, New Zealand's largest city (population 750,000), made the startling announcement that it had not a single person unemployed.

Now with unemployment totals mounting round the world and forecasts of more serious recession, Auckland has proclaimed that it still has no one out of work, and no one person has been registered as unemployed for a full year.

Nearly 30 per cent of New Zealand's work force lives in the Auckland district. The labor department's employment service receives a small flow of inquiries from people wanting jobs, but throughout the past year it has been able to place every one of them.

The situation is in fact not much different throughout New Zealand as a whole. Total registered unemployed for the whole country from a work force of about 1.5 million was 1,300 at the end of July. At the end of August the total had fallen further to 1,153.

Even since the Depression much of New Zealand economic policy has been angled at preventing unemployment developing again on any significant scale. Economic growth rates in New Zealand have not been high, but in preventing unemployment New Zealand can claim to have been one of the most successful countries in the world.

There has in fact been no significant unemployment since the Second World War and the highest figure reached has been only a fraction of the novels in most countries.

The extraordinary situation prevailing in Auckland, in fact, arises from a severe labor shortage, with far more jobs offering than there are people to fill them. Mostly the only registered unemployed are people who are virtually unemployable, but in present circumstances even the unemployables are hired.

Some pessimistic prophets believe New Zealand, like other countries, faces serious economic difficulties and that soon rise in unemployment is inevitable, perhaps before the end of the present year.

Yet employment offices in Auckland see no sign yet of any reluctance by employers to hire any staff they can lay hands on.

Chief employment officer B. T. Creasey says his office can place anyone who walks through the door and find a job the same day.

"We'll play if the referee's on our side."

The Davis government doesn't play fair with its own employees.

It passed a repressive piece of legislation called CECBA (Crown Employees Collective Bargaining Act).

It denies us many of the basic rights of collective bargaining that other public and private employees enjoy.

For instance, the right to choose the method by which disputes are settled.

We are forced to accept compulsory settlement of disputes. Handed down by a stacked arbitration board to which the government appoints two out of three members.

Including the chairman.

So our employer forces us to go to a tribunal whose voting they control.

It ties our hands.

It means we fall farther behind as others negotiate to keep up with inflation.

In short, it makes us second-class citizens.

We want CECBA changed.

We just want the same rights as other workers.

At the very least, we want a referee who stays in the middle.

Phantom Killer Dog

By ALLEN SPRAGGETT

Have you ever heard of ESP?

Many readers have, but they do. Parapsychologists, scientists who study psychical phenomena, have been experimenting with sight, telepathy and other forms of psychic perception for years. The prefix "ESP" is a shortened form of "extra-sensory perception."

But if readers have heard of ESP, do they also have poltergeists?

The answer would be "probably." Here are some well-documented cases of animal apparitions or phantoms. One of the most startling and macabre was reported by an Australian, Mrs. Pearl Pharos Van Passen.

Mrs. Van Passen, a distinguished writer, a journalist, and novelist, lives in Thalston-on-the-Green. For several years in the 1930s she was a young European correspondent for the New York "Herald Tribune and conferred with Lenin, Mussolini, Churchill, Hitler, Stalin, Roosevelt, and other men of the hour.

Van Passen was the sort of witness prized by students of the unexplained. It would seem difficult indeed to dismiss something so solemnly reported as fantasy or fabrication. Yet Van Passen said that he had seen with his own eyes, a ghostly dog.

Moreover, this phantom was a killer.

It all happened in the winter of 1929. Van Passen had rented a house in the French village of Bourg-en-Foret. It wasn't long before he realized the place was haunted. It wasn't long before he realized the place was haunted. It wasn't long before he realized the place was haunted

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't rely on persons who have an axe to grind, favors. They're apt to repay you for your own if you're far more lucky.

Aids Psoriasis

STOCKHOLM (CP) — A new type of therapy which has yielded promising results in the treatment of psoriasis has been developed at University Hospital, Uppsala. The affected skin is painted with a herbal medicine called Triclarolin, allowed to it absorb the long-acting solar rays given off by the sun or therapy. During summer psoriasis sufferers are helped by the sun's short-wave ultraviolet rays.

War Resisters Resentful Of Ford's Conditions

Dick Bowen, 22, came to Canada from Detroit in 1969, joining thousands of Americans who left their country to escape going to the Vietnam war. He worked in Canada as a farmhand and now is a freelance writer.

By DICK BROWN

TORONTO (CP) — Talk on speed about what they see as the injustice of it all, four American war resisters here were surprised about the terms of the conditional amnesty announced Monday by President Gerald Ford of the United States.

No one had really expected at this time the kind of unconditional amnesty resisters had called for. That was probably too much for a country still reeling from Watergate.

Almost as unexpected was the Machiavellian analysis resisters ascribed to Ford's two-year alternate service.

The most common complaint was the granting of an unconditional amnesty and a pardon to former president Richard Nixon with the offering of two years to resisters.

It had not been a favorable comparison.

Just how many may take up the amnesty offer is still unknown.

The only exits counseling centre open to draft-dodgers, the Toronto Anti-Draft Program, has been swamped with inquiries, says counsellor Kate McGovern.

She says, however, there is still the undiminished belief by resisters that since they did nothing wrong they should not be punished.

For draft-dodgers and deserters the effect of the Ford proposal will be markedly different.

A conference this weekend for resisters from throughout Canada and Europe is to discuss the Ford amnesty proposal and what the response of the various exile groups ought to be.

A split apparent Imediately as two factions appear to be developing. One faction has stressed the same form of boycott of the amnesty proposal to which what the groups see as its punitive sanctions against resisters.

Another group, mainly consisting groups, wanted there many was a large number of deserters outside the U.S. and the U.S. willing to spend a few days or weeks to get a less than honorable discharge and likely push for a position not in opposition to the amnesty sentiment.

As one deserter speaking in for advice told Miss McGovern:

"I'll be damned if I'm going to pass up my only opportunity to go back for a visit." But that same deserter said he still wouldn't be live in Canada afterward.

Ironically for the dodgers, Ford's offer would create as big a disruption in returning to the U.S. as coming to Canada disrupted their lives years ago.

Jobs and families in Canada would be broken-up, and Canadian landed-immigrant status would probably be stripped. Those closing off the dodger's new home after his alternate service was done.

For many, that is a high price as Canada now is home.

Still another irony of Ford's proposal is that deserters, who generally had greater difficulty in getting immigrant status because of fewer job skills and less education, will likely be able to clear their status with the military and return to Canada in a matter of days or weeks.

The loophole, which Miss McGovern is convinced is a deliberate omission by President Ford, allows a deserter to return to the U.S., get an undesirable discharge and return to Canada without losing landed-immigrant status.

This would allow a former deserter to travel to the U.S. and hold a U.S. passport, but would severely limit his ability ever to work or live in the U.S. because of the stigma of his discharge.

Any resister who now is a Canadian citizen, however, is unlikely to be eligible for the Ford offer. Miss McGovern says the wording of the Ford amnesty apparently precludes non-U.S. citizens.

Like many other draft-dodgers, Canada has become home for me as well.

However, while I immigrated about five years ago to avoid induction, my case from that point is quite different.

About three years ago, persons still unknown blew up my draft board in Detroit's near west end. Any chances of prosecution ended in that smoking mass of rubble as there can be no conviction for draft resistance without the draft.

While today I have a deferment and indeed have been back to the U.S. twice to visit family and friends, the rot and decky of American cities always makes me glad to return home to Canada.

Despite problems of not many resisters might be affected by the Ford offer, both resister groups and the U.S. government admit the overwhelming majority potentially affected are fugitives from the law in the U.S. are not in Canada.

U.S. military figures say more than 500,000 troops deserted during the Indochina war of which only 2.5 per cent are still at large, a difficult figure to verify since its derivation is classified information.

Selective service figures show tens of thousands of draft-resisters, but only 15,320 eligible for the Ford amnesty. Draft counsellors in the U.S. feel the number is probably much larger because many have not been indicted yet nor have their alleged offences been discovered by draft authorities.

Exile groups have the problem that none ever kept any kind of rolling records of how many they saw.

These groups estimate there are anywhere from 20,000 to 40,000 dodgers and deserters in Canada, and anywhere from five to 10 times that number in the U.S.

The impact of the amnesty proposal on Canada may likely be a fair amount of sound and fury, but there might be little substance in reality. Deserters who might grab the loophole would be back in Canada in a matter of weeks.

House Building In Slow Period

HALIFAX (CP) — An official of the Royal Bank of Canada said Friday the residential construction industry has slipped into a slow period likely to persist for the next 12 months.

W. Peter Carter, assistant general manager of the bank's investment department, predicted housing starts this year and next will not exceed 250,000 units annually.

Mr. Carter told the Canadian Real Estate Association annual meeting that inflationary increases in the cost of money, land, materials and labor are contributing to the substantial decline.

In August, the seasonally-adjusted annual rate of housing starts dropped to 206,100 units from 256,300 a year earlier.

He cited instability in housing construction as a major cause of higher-priced housing.

"Confronted with the uncertainty created by this instability—not to speak of raw material shortages—the construction industry and the suppliers of construction materials are naturally bound to maximize profits in the short run.

"In turn, workers try to follow the same trend in order to maximize their wages. The overall result is higher prices for housing in times of strong demand," he said.

Banana Man Dies in Fight

TORONTO (CP) — John (The Banana Man) Considine, 76, who answered the party-burly of Bay Street for 71 years, died Friday from the effects of a fight with another nonagenarian over who was to occupy a particular chair in the hospital where they lived.

For most of his life he sold fresh fruit from a push-cart on a street corner in the heart of the financial district—without a licence. He had several run-ins with the police but always won in the end.

John the Banana Man, as thousands of Bay Streeters called him, came here from Italy in 1903. He had five children, 29 grandchildren, 43 great-grandchildren and five great-great-grandchildren.

He fought in the First World War with the 204th Beaver Battalion from Toronto. He had lived in hospital for several years.

90-Year-Old Keeps Going

TORONTO (CP) — Walter Davis, 90, doesn't believe in leaving the driving to anyone but himself.

Mr. Davis arrived here Thursday to visit a nephew after a six-day drive from Nelson, B.C.

He is planning a 9,000-mile motor trip—alone—through North America to visit relatives. He has 26 great-grandchildren scattered across the continent.

"I've got the world to myself when I drive," he said. "I go slowly, keep a pace of 50 to 55 miles an hour, I know I'm competent, and I just keep going."

He said he made a similar 9,000-mile trip two years ago.

4-Ft. Monkey On the Loose

SOMBRA, Ont. (CP) — Provincial police and the Humane Society report that a monkey, about four feet tall and 40 pounds, has been on the loose in this area for a week.

The Sombra detachment of the provincial police say the monkey has been outmaneuvering us for about a week.

"We can't get close enough to the little devil to get a hold of him."

The animal was first seen about a week ago on Dennis town line and was last spotted Thursday night in Sombra, about 20 miles south of here.

Pat Ryan of the Sarnia Humane Society said the animal has covered about 20 miles since it was first spotted.

"There have been no reports of any missing monkeys in the area.

Indian Trade Fair Star

BARI, Italy (CP) — Premier William Davis of Ontario posed for pictures Friday with one of the stars of the Bari international trade fair—an Indian from Owen Sound, Ont.

Davis, on the fifth day of his visit to Sicily and Italy, was in Bari to participate in Ontario Day at the fair.

John Landen, who has Algonquin, Iroquois and Scottish blood, has been at the fair since it began a week ago, meticulously carving a 14-foot birch bark canoe which he began in Canada six weeks ago.

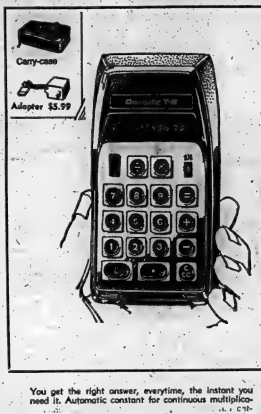
Dressed in a deerskin outfit he made himself and in moccasins, moccasins and headband, Landen presented a miniature replica of the canoe to regional President Cemurro Tritarelli Liuzzi while Davis looked on.

The real canoe will go to an Italian nautical museum after Landen finishes it. He will complete construction before the fair finishes this weekend.

It takes him an hour just to walk across the square when he is wearing his deerskin. Dolores Ferrari, wife of Toronto said. Everywhere he goes he is mobbed.

Dolores: Terry di Iulio, 22; Elizabeth Morin, 21, and Maria Masiello, 21, all Toronto university graduates, are acting as guides at the Ontario Pavilion.

"The most common question we get are: 'is that canoe for sale' and 'is that Indian Indian?'," Miss Morin said.



Landen, 34, whose Indian name is Little Fish, has sold-gathered wood chips for visitors and sketched pictures of a moose because some Italians had never heard of the animal.

"They are intrigued by the Indian I guess," Landen said. "They have a movie version of what an Indian should look like and their sometimes dell 'but I don't look like an Indian,' said Landen, who is the director of the County of Grey and Owen Sound Museum.

Ford Warns Arabs

Oil Politics Raise Doomsday Fear

DETROIT (AP) — Raising a warning flag for Arab oil producers, President Ford said today: "Sovereign nations cannot allow their economies to be dictated, or their fates decided by wishful thinking and the whims of world commodity markets.

In remarks prepared for the ninth annual World Energy Conference here, Ford added:

"It is difficult to discuss the energy problem without lapsing into doomsday language. The danger is clear. It is severe. I am nevertheless optimistic. The advantages of co-operation are as visible as the dangers of confrontation. And that gives me hope as well as optimism."

Ford underscored the strongest language yet used by an American president in discussing the consequences of massive price hikes by oil-producing countries with a reminder that "throughout history, nations have gone to war over natural advantages such as water, or food, or convenient passages on land or sea."

But he said that in the nuclear age war presents unacceptable risks for all mankind because "any local conflict may escalate to global catastrophe."

Outlining five principles that he said might guide international co-operation in meeting energy problems, Ford listed this as his final point:

"A global strategy must seek to achieve fuel prices which provide a strong incentive to producers but which do not seriously disrupt the economies of the consumers. We recognize the desires of the producers to secure a fair price for their oil as a means of helping to develop their own economies. But exorbitant prices can only distort the world economy, run the risk of worldwide depression, and threaten the breakdown of world order and safety."

The president welcomed Friday's Brussels agreement by 12 major consuming countries to deal with such emergencies as embargos by sharing available oil, cutting consumption and using reserves equitably.

"The United States welcomes this demonstration of international action rather than words," he said, adding:

"No single country can solve the energy problem by itself. As president, I offer America's partnership to every other nation willing to join in a concrete effort to expand the spirit (now) ing from the Washington energy conference. A start has been made in Brussels. The momentum must be continued if true interdependence is to be achieved."

Jordan Boycotts Peace Talk

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Jordan has said it will boycott the Arab-Israeli peace talks in Geneva following agreement by Egypt and Syria to work for an independent Palestinian state on former Jordanian territory.

Jordan's decision was announced Sunday, the day after Egypt, Syria and the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) announced they agreed that an "independent national authority" would be established on Palestinian lands freed from Israeli occupation.

Their goal is the West Bank of the Jordan River and East Jerusalem, both held by Jordan from the 1948 Palestine War until the 1967 Arab-Israeli War, and the Gaza Strip, which was administered by Egypt until the 1967 war.

Jordan insisted it must first retrieve its former territory and then would allow the Palestinian population to determine its future in a plebiscite. Many West Bank Palestinians are known to support Jordan's King Hussein and might vote for an autonomous state federated with the rest of Jordan.

Oil Will Be Big Topic At Commonwealth Parley

OTTAWA (CP) — Commonwealth finance ministers meet here this week in their most important talks of quite a long time.

A meeting of Commonwealth ministers regularly precedes the annual meetings of the International Monetary Fund and World Bank, being held Sept. 30-Oct. 4 in Washington.

This year, as Arnold Smith, Canadian-born secretary-general of the Commonwealth Secretariat, said, "it's a whole new ball game."

A Middle East war, a co-ordinated oil embargo and formation of a cartel of oil supplies producers have occurred since governments thought they had made a large step toward solving trade and monetary problems.

Higher oil prices created a balance-of-payments problem which overshadows other problems. Estimates are that oil-consuming countries will have a combined oil-related deficit of more than $30 billion this year.

B.C. Gas Price Raised But Barrett Aids U.S.

BELLINGHAM, Wash. (AP) — British Columbia is sharpening the price of natural gas to the northwestern United States, but has decided to help stem a projected shortage this winter, Premier Dave Barrett said Saturday.

Natural gas used to heat many northwest homes and to power some industrial plants, proved the hottest topic of discussion at the symposium on Canadian-American relations attended by Washington and British Columbia government leaders.

The three-day session ended Saturday with Barrett and Washington Governor Dan Evans agreeing that the region is on a suicidal course of destroying its resources.

The National Energy Board of Canada has ordered an increase in natural gas prices from 61 cents a thousand cubic feet to 81. The price increase to Americans buying from British Columbia goes into effect Nov. 1.

The price increase and gas supply issue, was a matter of backstage negotiation all week, but Barrett told reporters the Canadian federal Cabinet made the talks meaningless.

Honduras Dead May Be 10,000

SAN PEDRO SULA, Honduras (AP) — Rescue workers are burning the dead left by Hurricane Fifi in mechanical furnaces to prevent outbreaks of disease adding to the toll of one of the worst catastrophes ever in Central America.

As refugees began straggling back to their devastated towns and villages and relief supplies started to arrive from abroad, officials said at least 5,000 bodies had been found. They estimated today that the toll will double when all reports were in.

They said the storm, which hit the region with winds of 110 to 130 miles an hour and torrential rains Thursday night, left 150,000 persons from their homes, wiped out most of the banana crop and virtually destroyed the towns of Choloma, Omoa and Trujillo.

Floodwaters turned the rich Ulua River valley from San Pedro Sula to the coast into a lake 20 miles wide at some points. Thousands of persons were reported still stranded on rooftops or in trees, but a shortage of helicopters and food delayed their rescue.

Dr. Ruben Villanueva of the national emergency relief committee said damage from the storm was estimated at $1.8 million in the San Pedro Sula region alone. Of 12 branches of United Brands, one of the two major producers of bananas, the country's chief export, estimated that 70 per cent of the crop was destroyed.

Villanueva said Choloma, a town of 14,000, was 60 per cent destroyed; Omoa, a town of 14,000 on the coast, was 80 per cent destroyed; and the port of Trujillo, which has 25,000 people, was totally destroyed.

Al Fatah Eliminates Terrorist

BEIRUT (AP) — A man identified in Beirut 11 days ago was the Palestinian guerrilla who masterminded the Rome airport massacre last December, Arab papers reported today.

They said he was killed by a rival group of Al Fatah, the biggest group of Arab guerrilla groups.

Arab papers in Beirut said the victim was Ahmed Abdel Ghafour, whose other name was Abu Mahmoud. They said he was the leader of a breakaway faction of Al Fatah, the guerrilla organization headed by Yasir Arafat.

Civil Servants Ask 61 Pct. More

TORONTO (CP) — The operational services category of the Civil Service Association of Ontario (CAO) voted overwhelmingly Saturday to withhold services if an agreement with the provincial government has not been reached by Dec. 31 when the current contract expires.

The group, which represents about one-third of the province's civil servants, met to get demands for upcoming negotiations with the government.

The employees are prohibited from striking under the Crown Employees Collective Bargaining Act (CECBA) with disputes being sent to compulsory arbitration before a board consisting of two government representatives and one association official.

Charles Darrow, president of the CSAO, said the association will meet with provincial officials, compare data and argue its case, "but when we get down to the end of the road, if there is no acceptable settlement, we will withhold our services."

The association said it will ask for a 61.5-per-cent wage increase on a one-year contract.

An association spokesman said the 61.7 per cent of the increase sought is "entirely catch-up" to meet current wage levels in the private sector. Another 18.75 per cent is compensation for the loss in real income during the last 18 months and the remainder is a cost-of-living component to protect against future inflation.

"This is the last year for compulsory arbitration," said Mr. Darrow. "This is the end of CECBA. This is the beginning of free collective bargaining for all Ontario government employees."

The CSAO announced six weeks ago that it would not submit to compulsory arbitration, Mr. Darrow said.

Rockefeller Gives Details of Fortune

WASHINGTON (CP) — Nelson A. Rockefeller told the Senate rules committee today he earned nearly $47 million and paid more than $21 million in taxes over the last 10 years.

The former New York governor opened his vice-presidential confirmation hearings with a 75-page statement, crammed with financial data about the Rockefellers' worldwide investments and tidbits of family and personal history.

He promised that, "should I become confirmed and should Congress request, I will place immediately all my securities which I own outright" into a blind trust while he retains federal office.

Rockefeller said his net personal worth as of Aug. 23 was $62.5 million with more than half accounted for by art holdings.

The two trusts from which he is a life beneficiary, totalling $105.2 million and $10.2 million, have the bulk of their holdings in stock of 17 companies, including approximately $25.5 million in Rockefeller Centre Inc. in New York; $23 million in Exxon; and $15 million in International Business Machines (IBM).

Holdings in oil companies that were once part of the Standard Oil Co. founded by his grandfather, John D. Rockefeller, "have been reduced to nominal percentages." Total holdings, personal and in trusts, of his three brothers, sisters and their children and grandchildren are 3.5 million shares of Standard Oil Co. of California, or 2.6 per cent of its shares; 2.3 million shares of Exxon or 1.7 per cent of its shares; and 1.8 million shares of Mobil Oil Co., or 1.75 per cent of its shares.

No Generation Gap

Belleville patriarch Sam Curry, 93 today, marks his birthday by proving there's no generation gap in the family he started. Meeting for the first time, the fifth generation of the family, he knew what was needed when his great-great-grandson Steven Empey, 11 days old, started to yell. Sam offered day by banning the use of gas at the huge Barrard thermal plant operated by B.C. Hydro and Power Authority.

Evans said he fears a shortage of 945 million cubic feet a day—or more than one-fourth of the Puget Sound area—added that he thinks the provincial customers should share in that shortage.

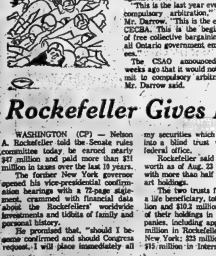
U.S. Oldest Convict Is Now 99

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Weakened by 43 years in jail and nearly blind, the oldest convict in the United States will celebrate his 99th birthday Tuesday from a bed in the Ohio Penitentiary.

But John Weber, or "Dad" as the nurses call him, is still chipper even though this birthday will be his last.

"The years haven't been all that bad," says the Hungarian-born Weber.

"There was a time when I wanted to be free again, but no more. I'm too old and too tired. And there's no place to go."



Weber was sentenced to prison for life in 1928 for the shooting death of his 18-month-old daughter. Testimony showed that Weber apparently shot the child accidentally during an argument with his wife.

S. M. Patterson, superintendent of the prison medical centre said Weber has not had an outside visitor nor received mail in years.

Weber's regular bids for parole were turned down until 1972 when Gov. John Gilligan commuted his conviction to second-degree murder, making him eligible for release.

But by then the 97-year-old Weber was in failing health and had no place to go.

So on Tuesday, while Weber sits in a wheelchair by a sunny window, nurses will bake "Dad" a birthday cake as a surprise.

Telecare Seeks New Members

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

At noon Tuesday, the phone rang in an office without an address.

It was, said TedMilliken, the 13,482nd such call in 4½ years.

The calls may have differed in content. But the message was the same: Someone needed someone to listen.

To fulfill such a demand round the clock is the hope of Telecare, Quinte's newest.

The volunteer listening post for those in distress, Telecare now is prepared its seventh annual training session.

Only this year there is a difference says Mr. Milliken, Telecare's director — and the only personality is not anonymous to an organization whose only the phone number, 962-4111, is publicized.

The 17-week course designed to make people better listeners is going on a broader footing this year. Individuals interested in heightening their responses to distress may inquire Wednesday members to the training program.

Mr. Milliken says the reason for opening up the course is that not all distress calls go to agencies or "trained individuals."

Everyone is accessible by phone. And "anybody who is approached will receive a call at some time from some one in distress, says Mr. Milliken.

To emphasize the opportunity, there will be a public showing of a film — Someone Cares — outlining the work of Telecare, Wednesday at Bridge St. United Church, Oct. 1.

The course will start the following week.

From such training programs Telecare has been graduating about 15 new listeners each year to staff its 24-hour service, he observed.

Membership stays around 80 — the number needed to comfortably staff the five daily shifts at Telecare phones.

There is a constant, gradual turnover among trained volunteers. But, notes Mr. Milliken — a high school teacher who helped assemble Telecare in 1967 — there are still 15 of the original 25 members taking calls.

When it started it was only the second such project in Canada. Now there are 11 Telecare agencies.

Mr. Milliken said he believes Telecare has made an "accepted" community contribution. Many feel that once went to police, hospital and telephone exchange switchboards now are taken by the trained volunteers.

"And, hopefully, we've better-equipped to handle them," says Mr. Milliken. "Our people are not professional. They're just ordinary people. They invest their job it just to listen and sort out problems."

Frost Feared

"Temperatures will plummet again tonight, predicts Quinte district weather forecaster.

It will be the second straight night of unexpectedly bone-chilling weather that has brought snow flurries in the north end of the district, and possible heavy crop damage in southern farming areas.

Heavy frost is general throughout the district as official temperatures ranged from 30 degrees at CFB Trenton to 34 degrees at Trenton.

The drop tied the record for the night set in 1907, and brought on a frost that could have serious consequences for area farmers.

In Prince Edward County, the effects of the temperature plunge are still being measured today by provincial government agricultural officials.

If frost was heavy overnight, it could have hurt tomato and corn crops, said Larry Mahseon, provincial agricultural representative in the county.

This has been a late season for tomatoes and many fields are just coming into production, he said. Frost would ward. There also is much sweet processing corn yet to be harvested.

In Hastings County, agricultural representative Douglas Tipper said temperature indications ranged from a light frost to a white frost. Coldest spot reading was 28 degrees, reported by West Huntingdon farmer Russell Sills.

Mr. Tipper said the effects of the frost on corn crops would not be known for a couple of days.

Snow flurries were reported in the Madoc area Sunday afternoon.

Flurries also were reported in the Wooler-Rossmore Lake district, southeast of Belleville.

The duty forecaster at CFB Trenton predicted temperatures would reach 50 degrees today but drop to 30 degrees again tonight.

Plumber Won't Retire

STIRLING — Ernie Wanamaker has been plumbing in this community for the last 35 years and Mr. Wanamaker, who will be 79 this December says he has no intension of retiring. He now works eight hours a day five days a week.

Some people even expect him to work on Sunday. He is in such demand that he is a month behind his work schedule.

Mr. Wanamaker was born in Madoc Township in 1895. In 1916, he enlisted in the 254th Battalion at Madoc. In June of 1917 the battalion was moved to Halifax and onto a troop ship.

On Sept. 7, 1918 Mr. Wanamaker was badly wounded in the leg and arm. He was in hospital for 198 days, getting out the day before Christmas. After the war Mr. Wanamaker worked in Oshawa and Niagara Falls and in 1927 moved to Stirling.

Nice years to the day after he was wounded in war, Mr. Wanamaker married his wife Minnie, a Marmora girl.

Mr. Wanamaker says he does not like to be called Mr. but just plain Ernie. He says he has no grudges against anyone, and will if someone is in serious trouble in the night go and help them, despite his age. But it had better be serious.

The worst job he can remember was when he got called out in a blizzard at eight o'clock in the morning to go to Bonarlaw, five miles back into unplowed roads. He finally got home at two o'clock in the morning.

Won't Quit

Ernie Wanamaker now is 79 years old and still isn't ready to quit his 35-year career as a plumber in Stirling. He says "helping people" is what he likes best.

For Those Who Care

Telecare is starting a new training season for those who care to listen to others in distress. This year program is being opened up to include all those in community who want to increase their abilities to hear

GASOLINE: Tragic Guest In the Home

Practically everyone is aware of the violent reactions that occur when gasoline is exposed to open flame. But this statement does not guarantee that the residents, especially small children, realize the actual potential of this extremely hazardous fluid.

In Hayward, Calif., three small boys were playing in their garage. In the kitchen, the mother and grandmother were listening to their busy chatter. Then, a different sound — that of an overturned metal can, prompted the young mother to investigate. She screamed before a wall of flame and heat filling the garage.

Her clothing burst into flame, but she carried the youngest child, 18 months, to the yard. Here she stopped, clutching the burned child in her arms. The other children burned to death in the fire.

The cause of the fire was listed as misuse of flammable liquids. It was classified as a fire incident with loss of life as a direct result of gasoline. The overturned container held this highly liquid. It took only seconds for the vapors to race along the floor. A water heater pilot-light provided the ignition source.

When the fire department analyzed this incident it revealed many possible reasons for the occurrence, and listing these contributing factors may prevent a similar tragedy striking our community.

Gasoline storage in garage: An extensive amount of contents. Storage should be restricted to quantities under one gallon, preferably no more at all.

Lack of proper container: Non-approved containers. Storage should have been in approved metal safety cans designed with spring-closed lids, and not in cans with loose-fitting lid easily opened by children.

Improper storage methods: Gasoline was not confined but in the open, awaiting the exploring hands of children. It should have been locked in a vented cabinet or locker and properly labeled.

Lack of proper ventilation: Garage was closed, allowing vapors to spread and build up without interference from air currents. If the garage had been open the gasoline vapors might have drifted outside or become dissipated by the air circulation in the building.

Availability of ignition: The water heater was on the floor. Because heavier than air vapors flow at this level, ignition was probable. The Belleville Fire Department recommends that gasoline not be stored in any building where there is an open flame or pilot-light.

See you next week. Little Flame

Fire Guts Shed

PICTON (Staff) — Fire early today destroyed a storage shed owned by a Picton man, then spread to the house causing an estimated $2,000 damage.

The blaze, of undetermined origin, broke out in a shed belonging to John Carey of 16 Mill St. The flames swiftly enveloped the frame building, then jumped to the two-storey frame house where Mr. Carey was sleeping. The fire was detected by his wife, who turned in the alarm shortly before 1 a.m.

Heat from the flames caused $1,000 damage to a house owned by next-door neighbor Garnet VanWart. Windows were broken and aluminium siding damaged.

A spokesman for the Picton fire department said the Carey shed was "all ablaze" when fire fighters reached the scene, where they remained until 3:30 a.m.

Three Escape Serious Injury

BRIGHTON — Three people were injured, none seriously, in a two-car collision on Highway 401, four miles west of here Saturday.

Taken to Cobourg hospital were driver Nancy MacDonald, 22, and Marilyn Brant, both of Buffalo, N.Y. Both were treated and later released. Two other passengers in the MacDonald vehicle escaped injury.

Driver of the second vehicle, Deborah Thomas, 23, of Oshawa, was also treated for minor injuries.

Brighton provincial police said the two vehicles were both westbound when the MacDonald vehicle went off the roadway, and onto the north shoulder before rolling over into a ditch.

Local Concert Season Begins With Distinguished Musicians

Belleville concert-goers will begin a new season with a performance by distinguished duo of musicians.

Arthur Whittemore and Jack Lowe recently marked their 25th year as performing artists.

They will play in Belleville Sept. 30 when the Belleville Concert Association opens its 1974-75 season.

The duo-pianists begin another year on the concert circuit after an eventful anniversary period.

They have been taping a new television series of weekly one-hour programs. Their latest album, The Personal Touch of Whittemore and Lowe, has been recorded for distribution and two earlier albums also are being reissued.

During their long association both men have averaged more than 70 concerts a year. They have played at the White House, helped introduce popular music to the concert stage and become the first artists to record a country music album using classical style arrangements.

The orchestras with which they have played include the Philharmonia of London, New York's Philharmonic and the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Devoted to new music, Whittemore and Lowe have frequently commissioned compositions. They once premiered two concertos in one concert with the New York Philharmonic. They also were campaigning exponents of the contemporary French composer Francis Poulenc.

Both musicians hail from the western U.S. — Mr. Whittemore from South Dakota and Mr. Lowe from Denver.

Boats Target Of Thefts

Thieves and vandals discovered a new target during the weekend in Belleville — boats moored in the city harbor.

Police say owners of four craft Saturday and Sunday reported their cruisers had been entered.

The interior of one craft, owned by Ivan Bruce, RR 5 Belleville, was sprayed with foam from a boat's fire extinguisher, said detectives.

A number of small articles including radios and binoculars — were stolen in the breakins.

Crash Blamed On Wet Roads

PICTON — Heavy rain and slippery roads wer egt ven as slippery roads were given as the cause of a two-car collision in Prince Edward County Saturday.

A Toronto resident, 18-year-old Tony O'Neil, received lacerations to the lip when he attempted to pull away from a stop sign at the corner of Broad and Bay Streets in Picton. The car jumped the curb colliding with a tree. A passenger, Gale Sutherland, received a bump to the head. Both were treated and released from Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital. The car suffered $1,000 damage.

Two RR 1, Picton residents escaped serious injury when a car driven by Nicola Brooks skidded on the slippery surface 3¼ miles south of Bloomfield, landing in a swamp. A passenger, 13-year-old Jeremy Brooks received only slight injuries in the accident. The vehicle sustained $200 damage.

Legs Broken In Crash

BAYSIDE — An 18-year-old Belleville man had both legs fractured when a car smashed into a telephone pole at Bayside Saturday.

Clayton Conlon, 40 Thorncliffe Dr., was a passenger in a car which lost control on Highway 2, just west of White's Rd. He was admitted to Belleville General Hospital.

Police say the car was driven by his brother, Clayton Conlon, 19, who suffered cuts and bruises and was released after treatment in hospital.

Army Seeks Members

Salvation Army Sunday school students in Belleville have taken to the air seeking members.

Participating in a drive to reach new members the youngsters launched 100 balloons outside the army's Victoria Ave. citadel Sunday morning.

The balloons contained a typewritten invitation to join the Sunday school.

"It's sort of a novel, way of trying to reach new members," said Capt. Bob Sloan. "We have no idea how many will be picked up — or where they'll be found."

The Sunday school has 75 youngsters at present. Hopes are to double the enrolment during the year, he said.

The balloon launch was the start of a program by which Salvationists will be reaching out to make increased contact with the community, said Capt. Sloan.

The program is aimed at attracting new members to army's Belleville corps which now has about 150 families.

Jamboree Attracts Dance From Across the Province

More than 400 people danced their way through Saturday in Belleville.

The exuberant event — drawing participants from across Ontario and parts of the United States — was the eighth annual square-dance jamboree staged by the Quinte Twirlers.

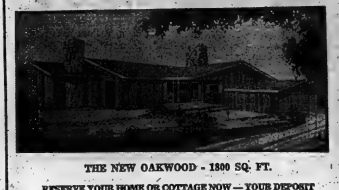
Attendance was up about 20 per cent from the 1973 jamboree, said Ray Quance, who headed the organizing committee for the day-long event at Centennial Secondary School.

A blend of socializing and skill, such events are a big attraction for square-dancing enthusiasts, who have clubs in most major centres in Ontario, said the organizer.

"They're a lot of fun for a lot of people," said Mr. Quance.

Key to a successful jamboree is the caller — the man who sets the tempo for the dancers.

Guest caller for the jamboree was John Hendren, of Framingham, Mass. He's one of the best on the square-dance circuit, said Mr. Quance, and was flown from Boston for the jamboree.



Participation in square-dancing had shown a decline in recent years but now is on the upswing, said Mr. Quance.

There are three clubs in Belleville — Whitaway, Dance-a-Lots and Hits-and-Mrs. — all are under the aegis of Quinte Twirlers, affiliated with the city's official recreation programming.

The square-dancers were welcomed to the jamboree by Alderman Jean Smith and Clifford Balch, deputy recreation director.

Cruelty to Animals

If Belleville's downtown sees fewer problems from a policing standpoint these days, as was noted the other day, a lister on this page indicates personality problems of another stamp.

We refer to the cat that lost its claws, or rather had them removed by some person or persons unknown. The writer believes a youngster was responsible, and that may be true. However, we are told by one who has cats at home that it would be unusual if this were the work of one person. A cat would be expected to fight back, or at least make such a revolting assault difficult.

Of course every community has its sadists and, make no mistake, it was some person, or persons, in this category who did this.

To prevent this sort of thing is the responsibility of parents and teachers. School should include occasional visits to farms, riding schools, zoos. The children should be encouraged to respect the animals.

Unfortunately, this aspect of education may be neglected, and this is our loss. Consider the situation in a country such as the United States. The National Cat Protection Society there notes that of the country's 30 million cats, only 22 million have homes and it notes: "The problem of the animal population explosion is a serious one in this different world." In 1972 the society rescued and fed more than 56,000 starving kittens and cats.

As for cruel, vicious acts such as have been reported here, they are a reminder that all of us entertain sentiments that are perverse — a phenomenon acknowledged in the world's literature from the Marquis de Sade to Edgar Allan Poe to Herbert Maughan and to the Bible. For the most part though they are kept under control, and are no more than fleeting mischief in the thought processes manifestations of the old Adam. However, when it is translated into action, as witness the distressing incident involving the cat, then we cannot remain indifferent.

Jap Premier's Visit

Kakuei Tanaka, Prime Minister of Japan — making talks with Prime Minister Trudeau . . . with Chairman Mao . . . in conversation with former President Nixon . . . at home with his wife and grandchildren . . . on the golf course . . . shaking hands with some Japanese-Canadian girls.

The foregoing is all part of the handsome Press kit issued in connection with Mr. Tanaka's visit to Toronto last week. There he will receive an honorary degree of Doctor of Law.

Along with the superb color prints, an illustrated booklet and a handbook containing separate portfolios outlining Japanese policy, Japan-Canada relations, as well as a profile of Mr. Tanaka and his cabinet.

Considering the near-hysterical and mystic-like attitude enmeshed the Japanese not many years ago — in pre-war days that is — especially where the Emperor was concerned, this is a day marked by public relations as is slick and eloquent of the new Japan as any to have come our way.

Living Dangerously

Want something new and interesting in hair-styling? A Bellevillian writes to say he decided to live dangerously in recent days; he made himself an appointment at what he calls "that sacred feminine realm, the beauty salon."

He reports it was an exhilarating experience and made him realize what males have been missing all these years. The most difficult part, apparently, was making the appointment, but he took the plunge and thereafter it was very pleasant sailing.

There was the shampoo by a young lady who soothed our informant into a relaxed frame of mind. Then it was the turn of the stylist — in this case a male — and here again the same personalized attention. Given a free hand things began to happen. Indeed, "after a lot of blow drying, fussing, parting, cutting, and rearranging, he came up with a very complimentary style."

An hour in the chair and, according to our hero, it was worth every minute of it.

The word is that a salon of this type may be in the cards for the near future. Meantime, if a fellow wants an hour in the chair that badly, he can go where the fair sex are!

Stormont By-election Has Interesting Possibilities

BY DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau

The Stormont by-election called for Oct. 17 should be interesting. Keen interesting than most by-elections for it would seem to be wide open for public mind and a public to listen to.

This riding centred on Cornwall usually has tended to be dominantly Liberal.

But generally, since the war at least, it has been very much of a swing seat, with the PC's winning it in the 'fifties and the Liberals four.

The riding's history also would show that it is more of a candidate's seat than a party seat.

Thus in 1960 Peter Manley took it by 4,394 votes for the Liberals, while in the next election, in 1963, Fern Guindon beat Manley by 1,227 votes.

The government, of course, will be making an extreme effort to retain the riding.

There is more criticism and murmuring against the Davis government than at any time in the 30 years the Conservatives have been in power.

Then last year the Davis machine dropped two by-elections to the Liberals, the only two they have had to contest.

Although by-elections really aren't a good indicator of general feeling towards a party, they are decided too closely on local issues and candidates they do have an importance in the public mind and a public to listen to.

Also they are taken very importantly by party machines and political leadership and it can be expected that all steps will be out for the PC's.

As for the Liberals, it would appear that their hopes rest with the quality of their candidate, who hasn't been named as this is written.

The Liberals ran third in the riding for the first time in history, in 1971 and have a lot of ground to gain. But they say they have a couple of good men in the wings as candidates and with the character of the riding this could mean they could win.

Until the last election the NDP-CCF was never very strong in the riding. But then their candidate, George Samis, rang up more than 5,000 votes. And though he wasn't close to winning he was second, beating the Liberals by 1,600 votes.

Samis is contesting the seat again.

Co-operation with Creditors Important

Debt Collection in Good Times and Bad

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

One business that booms at times like this—when interest rates are sky high and economic activity has slowed down—is the debt-collection business.

Dealing with a collection agency can be a harrowing experience. Such businesses make their money only when they succeed in collecting. Through long experience they have become masters at it.

Most of the debtors who find themselves being pressed by a collection agency need never have got into that position. People who run short of cash after incurring a debt could almost certainly get some kind of help from their creditors if they cared to and tried to co-operate.

The collection agency is usually called in after the debtor has fallen behind in repayments and failed to keep in touch with the creditor.

The debtor's reasons may be the best-unforeseen medical expenses, loss of a job—or they may be simple mismanagement or over-extension. But if the debtor chooses to keep the creditor in the dark, the debt will almost certainly be turned over to an agency which specializes in collection.

Under the various provincial laws, the debtor can be summoned to court, be subjected to garnishment (legal attachment by creditors) of wages or assets, and even have his personal property seized under certain circumstances.

What are creditors would rather receive—in the repayment terms than turn the debt over to a collection agency, so would the debtor, collector rather get as money without going to court, obtaining a garnishee order or seizing the furniture.

To do that, collection agencies use a variety of tactics, chiefly designed to scare the debtor into paying up. The first line of attack is likely to be the rough-talking telephone collector, who tells the debtor to pay by tomorrow or else—then hangs up.

However, the debt collector is barred by law from making collect calls to debtors, from telephoning at unreasonable hours, and from calling the debtor's employer.

Nor is the collection agency permitted to send out collection notices that contain false or misleading information, or that are designed to mislead.

Any debt collector using illegal tactics should be reported to the provincial ministry or agency responsible for consumer protection.

The time to forestall any possible problems with debt collectors is at the beginning.

Borrowing money or buying goods on credit can be pure-ly-but it can also be the need to trouble if it means overextending the family's resources.

It can be wasteful, as well. When payments are not kept up, the creditor can repossess the merchandise and the debtor will lose the down-payment plus any instalments payments.

When repayment difficulties arise, most business organizations will co-operate with the debtor who genuinely wants to honor his commitments.

Rather than agonizing the debtor into an irresistible situation, creditors will usually agree to an extension of the repayment period, combined with a reduction in monthly instalments.

They may even grant an outright moratorium on the debt for a period of time, or write it off altogether.

But such relief is only available to the beleaguered debtor who keeps in touch with the creditor. Running out on a legitimate debt is a sure route to serious trouble.

Conference on Population Was Inconclusive

Brantford Expositor

Bring together 8,000 government delegates from 135 nations to discuss the ominous growth rate of world population growth, and what do you get? Certainly not any global program to check the increase in the human race from nearly four billion now to around eight billion in less than 25 years if the present average growth rate of two per cent a year is maintained.

Most of the conference was not unexpected. From the UN-sponsored conference in Bucharest, a ten-day affair just ended, during which the world population increased by some 1,000,000. What it did produce was first a series of wrangles which made there is almost no intellectual or political agreement even as to the reality of, much less solution to, the rapid growth problem, and finally a mis-called Plan of Action, approved only by "general consensus" which leaves it to each nation to act or not as it pleases.

Canada's 36 delegates — six times as many as the U.S. sent — are pleased to have "warmly welcomed" adoption of the Plan of Action, and proved watered down version of a draft which Southern News Services correspondent in Bucharest, Peter Calamel, two weeks ago described as long on diplomatic waffling, weasel-words and plastitive expressions. The failure of the conference to reach agreement on decisive action could have serious consequences.

Of 120 developing nations, only 80 signed the Plan of Action limiting population, and another 30 have family planning programs nominally directed only at social welfare. In neither case are the results more than spotty. Fifty of the 120 nations at classified as either "neutral" or hostile to ideas of population limitation. Their leaders are notably either a belief that they need more population for economic growth, or a feeling that the affluent countries are trying to limit world population to avoid having to cut back their own living standards and increase their help to the have-nots.

Delegates from Africa and Asia made a special target of the U.S. and Canada on this point. They had strong support from Europe while other of the final document to include a clause requiring the advanced industrialized nations to reduce their disproportionately heavy use of world resources. Sweden also opposed the American proposal that the conference set a world target of zero population growth — an average two children per family — by the year 2,000.

Given this kind of clash, plus the backing away from any-thing that might appear to infringe any nation's sovereignty, and the blatant attempt by Communist bloc delegates and other to use the conference as a platform for blandishes and a polarized paralysis was assured. The gathering was less a conference than a showdown between irreconcilables. Sadly papered over with a 10,000-word communique, it was a meeting but a Plan for Action.

Cat's Ordeal: Nails Removed

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

What, kind of mind does it take? We hear of war atrocities, we hear of famine, fresh from food, when they do, they strike quickly and kill. They do not have the victim maimed to suffer for weeks or months.

Someone has my cat, love cut every nail including the nail on the big toe on the side of the paws. They must have used nail clippers or pliers. With the nail cut back to the quick, it took several toes.

How do I know this was done by a human beast? Every nail on all four feet was removed. The cat cannot walk.; It is two painful. I visit the veterinarian twice a day as the cat has a high fever from this infection.

Can you, the reader of this column, imagine the pain this animal went through and continues to suffer? Yes, in war, they say humans do the same to other humans. This is a quiet neighborhood in peaceful Belleville and I believe most would consider it a human for such torture to an animal.

Whether you are an animal lover or not, I think you will wonder what kind of a mind it takes to do this. I will not do such a brutal act to one of God's creatures.

CITY RESIDENT

Candidate for Office?

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

Reference "observer's" letter regarding Mrs. Eleanor Sisson in the Intelligencer.

I share the writer's comment regarding Mrs. Sisson's demonstrated ability and recognize her contribution in trying to keep a sinking ship afloat.

If Mrs. Sisson decides to offer herself in the forthcoming municipal elections as was rumored last year, she will be following in the footsteps of others who have used the United Appeal campaign as a springboard in which to launch their political ambitions.

Mrs. Sisson tried hard, with the very able assistance of Ted Kelly, to salvage what she can with the United Appeal. If she is elected the immediate office she is likely to find an even greater mess that will test her talents to the limit.

Politics and Inflation

By BRUCE LEVETT

WASHINGTON (CP) — Economics experts in the United States are beginning to suggest that the fight against inflation—the government's — President Ford's series of conferences—is taking on political overtones.

While Ford's economic and Congress have taken the position that the state of the economy—is a matter for immediate and serious concern, they have taken the position that the only way to restore it to health—are severe politics.

Ford has called on the Democrats, as well as his own Republicans, to offer ideas and advice. The Democrats, who control Congress, have the majority seat in session and not go off adjournment fall, as long as they can make progress against inflation.

But that is an election year. All 435 seats in the House of Representatives become vacant in fall, along with one-third of the 100 Senate seats.

While Republican candidates have been told to run on their path pride to successful presidential and Congressional records, the Democrats face a dilemma.

Their problem, basically, will be how to keep their political policies—however they evolve—without appearing to take any serious economic situation for mere political gain.

Compounding the problem is the fact that, like the Republicans, the Democrats are far from united on the best method of combatting inflation.

In any case, critics are beginning to draw parallels between the way the Democrats dealt with the Ford approach and the tactics of former presidents Truman and Nixon.

Nixon conferred in private with his advisers, then announced his various economic policies.

Ford is conferring with his advisers, in many cases the same advisers Nixon used, on national economic issues.

Some critics have dubbed this approach "economics by conference." Others, possibly with grudging admiration, say the new president—while demonstrating his concern and leadership—is using the conferences as a crash course in economics.

Some experts see little chance for some basic economic philosophies from Nixon to Ford.

The main theme still seems to be budget-cutting and tight money. Also, Nixon counselled the consumer to spend and urged the worker to increase his productivity. Ford has made both points his own.

Meanwhile, the Democrats, while promising co-operation, have lobbed the ball firmly back into the president's court.

Congress will stay in session for the next few weeks, the proposals for action needed, the congressmen don't want to rush until next year for consideration when they're burning the economy around.

Mike Mansfield, Montana Democrat who is the majority leader in the Senate, appeared to be expressing a general feeling when he said Congress cannot act alone on economic problems.

"If you want to get something done, you have to have the co-operation of the White House," he said.

Ireland Not All Violence

Letter to the Christian Science Monitor

I suggest that the Monitor report occasionally on the cultural, sporting and other encouraging exchanges which take place continually between South Northern Ireland and the Republic of Ireland, and also between Great Britain and the Republic. This would give some counterbalance to the news of political differences and violence. One example of these exchanges is the recent performance in Cork of the play "The Last Burning," superbly produced and acted by the Belfast Lyric Theater. The author, Patrick Galvin, was Cork born. This is, I think, the most moving play that I have ever seen: it was received with great enthusiasm both by the press and the audience.

Terence Grave-White

Cobourg and Port Hope Press Townships

Cobourg Sentinel-Star

The towns of Cobourg and Port Hope laid it on the line the other night at Cold Springs when they told the townships of Hope and Hamilton that they are going to ask to annex large chunks of Hamilton.

The towns are right. There has been enough delay by Hamilton and there have been enough mistakes made already. Now Hamilton has thrown a new proposal for a huge development on the east side of Cobourg, and few people in this community have much faith in the township's ability to handle such a development. Hamilton council may have thought the proposal would strengthen its bargaining power. On the contrary, it is weakened. It gives one more reason for Cobourg to get control of its urban fringes and in a hurry.

Cobourg and Port Hope have the ability to annex parts of the four municipalities. We don't blame them for this. But we believe that the people in the county should come first. The towns, however, have no faith in Hamilton's ability to handle the acting quickly enough to solve its urban pressure problems — and they may be right. The province, has offered a solution, and there seems to be some annexations to solve pressing problems, and in the future boundaries can be set when the county is ready. A November deadline has been given for suggestions from the four involved municipalities, or the province will make the decision.

Hamilton seems to think November is still 40 years away.

Within weeks it became clear the Russians planned to use their possession of the bomb as a bargaining issue in international affairs. George Mackenzie, leader of conceded Stalin on his death, warned that with the bomb Russia would ensure the end of capitalism in a third world war. He added that Russia did not want war and planned to use the bomb to conquer peace.

"And that repentance and remission of sins should be preached in his name among all nations, beginning at Jerusalem." Luke 24:47

The Bible not only gives us the message but in whose name it is to be delivered. Byproduct this plain directive of the Saviour and we really have nothing to say.—Pause now and then the mighty name in prayer and praise.

Local Pot Not Potent

PICTON — If Prince Edward County residents are smoking marijuana it certainly isn't any plants grown locally.

Prince Edward County weed inspector Fred Hogg says samples of the plant forwarded to Ottawa for analysis reveal "little potency" from the weed, also known as cannabis sativa. Tests showed no side conditions in one unofficial report. Apparently the soil is not alkaline enough to give the drug a boost.

Mr. Hogg says marijuana is common in Prince Edward County. It seems to be particularly abundant along the edges of vineyards.

"We find that a great many people do not recognize the plant when they see it, calling on us for identification," said Mr. Hogg.

A spokesman from the Picton Police reports some people often mistake the similar stinging nettle for marijuana.

Meanwhile there is little cause for concern if marijuana is identified on your property, says the weed inspector.

Anyone wishing to destroy any patches of marijuana can do so by spraying it when the plant is about six inches high. Since it is an annual plant, reproduction by its own seeds, the plant is easy to eradicate.

Charged

TRENTON — Town police have charged David Weber of 77 Charles St., Belleville, with obstruction of a police officer after a scuffle resulted when police arrested the man's brother, Daniel Weber, Saturday.

Three Generations of Taffy Pulling

Every small village fair should have its own taffy pulling vendors. Wallworth fair had one Saturday in the person of Rick Ellis, a relation of the Hamilton's of Scott St., in Trenton. The family has been pulling taffy according to a recipe that is now three generations old. At the Wallworth fair Mr. Ellis pulled approximately 100 pounds of taffy, as Pauline Hamilton (Gibb) supervised.

Turnout for Walk-a-thon Poor

TRENTON — Saturday's scout walk-a-thon was not the hoped for success organizers had expected on data tabled at Trenton District Council members turned out to walk the 11-mile route. Cecil Paul, a council officer said Sunday.

The council, governing a scout membership estimated between 200 and 250, sent only 70 people along highways west of Trenton in an effort to raise money for town scouting activities.

"It was a poor show on the part of scouts," said Mr. Paul. Those scouts in Trenton is divided into 10) were not even represented.

"It wasn't that they didn't know it was this Saturday either. It was all laid out to them in June."

Mr. Paul also was upset at town council: "We didn't get any support from the town. Neither the mayor nor any of his representatives came out all day. There was no visible support," he said.

Support from town merchants, who donated nearly everything that scouts asked for, was good, he said. Assistance from other groups — the Brighton OPP, the Trenton Senior Citizens Club and the Quinte Valley Five Waithes Radio Association — was top notch.

The public relation office completed the 11 mile course in the wheelchair he is normally confined to. Bruce Bean, a Quinte Easy Riders member who joined Mr. Paul on a wheelchair Saturday, did not finish the walk-a-thon completing 12 miles before his wrists gave out.

Only 68 of the 98 starters walked the full route in Saturday's cold and wet weather. It is not known yet who completed the walk-a-thon first. The shortest time was clocked by two Trenton High School students, David Lowrey and John Mortimer, who jogged the 21-miles in three hours and 34 minutes.

Alarm Box

Belleville firefighters responded to the following calls for assistance in the weekend period ending 8 a.m. Monday.

Saturday, Sept. 21, 9:17 p.m. — Faulty electrical wiring in car on Cassilton Rd. and McFarlane Drive, extinguished before arrival.

Sunday, Sept. 22, 7:30 a.m. — Truck fire at Elliot Motors Ltd., on North Front St., minor damage.

Mr. Paul, who had hoped to raise a $100 a mile sponsorship, managed $672.51 — or $6.31 per mile.

Final receipts from all walkers will not be known for several days, he said.

In recalling Scout-a-Thons '74 he had special thanks for Brighton OPP Constable Gus Riddell who escorted him along Highway 2 from Brighton to town limits. Trenton police followed Mr. Paul back into town.

Without the officer's escort, he would have had to give up his efforts to complete the full 21 miles. Travel along the highway on a wheelchair would have been unsafe, he said.

Sore and tired, but pleased with his own endurance, Mr. Paul said Sunday he estimated his time at 4½-miles an hour, but he was clocked by the OPP at 18 miles an hour going down the CPR overpass on Highway 2, west of Trenton.

DEMORESTVILLE — Fred Hope is a collector of the past. In the basement of his R.R. 2 Demorestville home you will find him surrounded by old stamps, coins, photos and artifacts from years gone by.

Attracting the most attention will be his collection of old books. Dating back to the late 1700's, many of these are school books, brought over from England by his grandfather.

Mr. Hope says he has some of the first readers ever printed in Ontario. Grammar books, arithmatic books and books dealing with morality printed in the mid-1800's line the shelves of the Hope residence.

Many of the volumes Mr. Hope says have been handed down from one generation to the next. Others he has acquired from friends and relatives.

One of his most cherished books is a World Geography, printed in 1809, half of which is in English, the other half in Latin. Also in his collection is an Ontario Atlas, dated 1879, included in the 1871 census enumerating the livestock, forest products, agricultural products, acreage and acreage devoted to every county in Ontario. But Mr. Hope says he was somewhat disappointed in the book when he bought it.

"Someone had ripped out Prince Edward County and all its census, the very page I was most interested in."

Another book, Shoppell's Building Plans for Low-Cost Houses was printed in 1894. It shows plans for two-storey houses, starting at a modest $700. For $2,000 one could erect a larger house complete with dining room and fireplace.

The book went on to say that fair price for one-quarter acre of land was $150 and suggested that great tact be used here. The owner of the property should have been warned that the buyer had little money, but by putting up a handsome house it would increase the value of the owner's remaining plot of ground.

A 1897 Toronto telephone directory in Mr. Hope's Collection measures about 8" by 10", it contains a name in the pages. Listing not only the subscribers' names and addresses but their occupations.

Books Of Memories

Each book in Fred Hope's vintage library represents a piece of an author's life and serves as a memento of Mr. Hope's hobby of antique book collection — a life-long pursuit. Mr. Hope's Demorestville basement is filled with his collection.

Rain Dampens Attendance

WARKWORTH — Warm-lighted fluffy hippies and hamstrung nails for peak. Children competed in the freckle-counting contest. Loudspeakers warned spectators to stand clear of the truck and minutes later, harness horses thundered by.

In short, the Warkworth fair Saturday was one with some memory of distinction. The village of 500 is home to the oldest consecutively running agricultural society in Northumberland County. This year it celebrated its 136th birthday.

The weather, however, didn't join in the celebration. Rain and cold helped keep crowds away, Percy Agricultural Society officials said. President Gordon McKibbin indicated attendance was down from the approximate 2,000 people who attended last year's festivities.

The fair also competed with the Canada-Soviet hockey game and a big auction in Peterborough, officials said.

But rain or no rain, fair activities and livestock competitions were held. As umbrellas sprouted periodically on the fair grounds, platform announcer Tom Rich, a Rochburn resident, drummed up enthusiasm for several children's races, a biscuit-eating contest, and nail-driving competitions.

Why $500 worth of stripes in front of your eyes beats $500 worth of spots.

The next time you turn on your colour TV, go up to the screen with the magnifying glass, and take a close look at what's really making up that colour picture you're looking at. Dots. Red, blue and green dots.

If the dots are kind of blurry, they're coming at you through a fine mesh. If the mesh has about that at least 5 years old. Because the matrix improvement has been around long. Colours against a black background are much better than colours against a white background.

And we can right now that tell you your set is old. Black mesh is about that against a ground will always stand out much better than colours against a white background.

So maybe it's time for a new colour TV.

When you do decide to go shopping take the magnifying glass with you. When the salesman turns a set on, go through the same procedure.

Examine the screen up close with the glass. The dots look much clearer now, because they're coming through a black matrix. Now stand back and look at the picture. You may be so impressed with the brilliance (as compared with what you've been seeing at home), that you'll start getting out your chequebook right then and there.

Don't do it.

Drop in to any Toshiba dealer.

And don't forget the magnifying glass. Go right up to the screen with the glass, as soon as the salesman turns on the 14" screen C-315. While he's talking about 100% solid state dependability, plug-in modules for easy servicing, Automatic Fine Tuning and Automatic Balance Control, you study what's happened inside the colour. Black background for definition, you've seen that already. But, the dots aren't dots any longer. They're stripes of colour. And it doesn't take a lot of thought to realize there's more colour area in a stripe than in a dot.

It's these colour stripes against the black background that give you the most brilliant colour picture in the industry.

Now stand back and look. That's called Toshiba Blackstripe™ colour television. It's $500 worth of colour if ever you saw it. And for only $479.95 (suggested retail).

Ann Landers

Gambler's Wife At Wits' End

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I will celebrate our 15th wedding anniversary in two months. If I can stick around that long. The problem is his gambling. I feel like a widow. He is either out playing cards, betting the horses, at a bowling game, or it's football, baseball—anything where he can lay down a bet. We have no life together because his only interest is gambling and I hate it.

We are snowed under with bills. I'm afraid to answer the telephone or the doorbell. It's "cash only" at the grocer's now, also the drugstore and the dry cleaners where we used to have charge accounts. It's humiliating not to have any credit.

My husband didn't gamble when we were first married. It started about four years ago when he won at the track and then he picked up $200 on a world championship fight. Now gambling is his whole life and I'm a nervous wreck because of it. My doctor says I have every right to divorce him. What is your advice?—Dada Against Me.

Dear Friend: Apparently you haven't heard of Gamblers Anonymous. They have done a remarkable job of rehabilitating compulsive gamblers who had been hooked for years. At present G.A. has 250 chapters in the U.S. and Canada and around the world. Look in your phone book under Gamblers Anonymous. If they are not listed, write to the National Headquarters for literature. G. A. has helped many families through correspondence. The address is: P. O. Box 17173, Los Angeles, Calif. 90017. For wives whose husbands won't go—there is GamAnon, which I heartily recommend.

Dear Ann Landers: My prize Parents, Kids and Goodnight Kisses. Our friends have three lovely children. The mother insists that the kids kiss everyone in the room "goodnight" before they go to bed. It makes no difference if they are seeing the people for the first time. Everybody has to get slobbered on. One kid doesn't care much for kissing and it's always a hassle to get him to do it. The other two top it as a stalling technique.

Will you please share your thoughts on this subject?—Against Free-Form Osculation

Dear Against: I think it's sweet when children kiss their parents goodnight, and anyone else they feel like kissing. But to berate the little darlings to kiss strangers (or even relatives) if they don't feel like it isn't a good idea.

As for those overtime snoozers who are trying to stay up later, they should be told, "One kiss only—and off to bed." Period.

Dear Ann Landers: When my husband died he left me with no money, no insurance—just two married children. I never went to my children for help. I sold all my fine things to pay the hospital and doctor bills. Then I went back to work.

My first child never asks for anything and never gives me anything, which is OK. My second child has borrowed sizable amounts of money from me and when I ask for repayment I am treated like some kind of a greedy monster.

Both my children spend money like it's going out of style. They never heard of Mother's Day, my birthday, Christmas or Easter.

I have good friends, I'd like to visit on the coast and if my child would pay back at least part of the "loan" I could make the trip. Any ideas?—Exploited Mother

Dear X: Keep asking. Socking $5 or $10 a week, anything to show good faith, Keep at it. And for heaven's sake, don't give that kid another dime. "Sharper than a serpent's tooth. . . "

People and Events

The Belleville General Hospital Auxiliary dropped the word "women's" from its title at its September 12 meeting.

According to auxiliary public relations chairman Charlotte Rathbidge, the move is in keeping with other Ontario auxiliaries who hope to attract male volunteers to their projects.

At the meeting, the auxiliary discussed "the gift of time" volunteers can give to the community.

The theme for the meeting was the need for more volunteers to work in the hospital. Joan Wilson, chairman of hospital volunteers, can be reached at 962-9723 by prospective volunteers.

The group's annual dinner dance will be held September 28 at the Four Seasons. For reservations, telephone Dorothy Locke at 968-8713.

Successful Living

What to Say to a Dying Atheist

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: If you have any canned comments to use on an atheist, who is proud of it, please send them. This is a patient who curses God continuously. It makes one cringe to say a word.

I was a geriatric nurse for 23 years and saw death many times, in many ways, but the few times I had mentally clear patients who had no God, were the most sickening experiences I ever had.

Now it is my daughter's turn and she is very reserved and a Pentecostal, but if she had a ready-made comment she would use it.

Good Luck

Dear Good Luck : It would make me cringe too. It is highly likely that an aged patient like this is experiencing tremendous frustrations at this point of his life, especially if he honestly believes that this is all there is. Do you think you might suggest to him that his deliberate cursing of a God who does not exist (for him) is somewhat contradictory?

Example is still better than precept. The nurses who recognize opportunities to declare their own Christian outlook, and who act like Christians by giving love even where it is not returned, are, I think, the best witnesses.

But I would like to pass your question on to our readers. I am sure there are nurses and others who could provide us with a few (one right "canned comments" for your atheist-and-to-coud-of-it!.

(Your own dilemma may not be as hopeless as it looks. Write to Doris for help, care, of this newspaper.)

Dear Doris: This year I — against my protests — have been made BEMAY convener. I don't know the first thing about convening a bazaar!

Could you give me any good ideas about how to get going at it? I'd like to do a decent job.

W.I. Member.

Dear Member: We have just the thing for you: our latest leaflet entitled "Bazaars Can Be Fun", they can be money-makers too.

Send in a large, stamped, self-addressed envelope, and 25 cents for your copy. The leaflet is full of good ideas; many of them first hand from bazaar thickers who seem to know all the answers.

First Time

Problems of Facelift Outweigh Advantages

TORONTO (CP) — Getting tired of seeing those wrinkles all over your face? Maybe you think a facelift will do wonders for you and make you look younger.

Forget it, advises Irene Gilbeck of Thornhill. Get them wrinkles. Her face is chock-a-block full of them and grandmother of five, who had one more than a year ago.

"I'm against a facelift," said the 53-year-old mother who doesn't look her years. "It's something to think about very carefully."

"You can be embarrassed by looking too young at 35 when you're 53—and you still go around with your own age group.

"If I had known what I had to go through, I wouldn't have had it done. I won't have any further repair work done on my face. What's a little wrinkle here or there?"

Irene entered hospital April 27 last year and had her face lift the next day. Today she is still suffering side-effects from the operation.

"My ears feel as if they've been to my head, and I feel like I have a tight strip under my chin all the time.

"If it is damp or going to rain, it tightens right up and feels worse, not painful but a sensation that there's pain.

Irene said she has to wear her hair the same way all the time because of bad scars just above the ears.

"The scars can be closed up but I won't have it done. It would be like having a face lift."

Irene had thought about having a facelift for five months.

"I had pouches on each side of my chin, a scrawny wrinkled neck and a tired look that made my face look pained down."

It involved a four-hour operation and five days in hospital.

After the operation Irene's face felt as though "it had all been cut up."

Then she was home her mother of three and grandmother of five, who had one more than a year ago.

"I'm against a facelift," said the 53-year-old mother who doesn't look her years. "It's something to think about very carefully."

Surprise Appointment

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — City solicitor Lori Stapley views her appointment to the Ontario Municipal Board (OMB) as at least a challenge and "a bit of a shock."

"It is a kind of spine-tingling sensation to be the first woman on the board," she said.

"It'll be a real challenge to be on the other side of the coin."

Miss Staples, 37, took a leave of absence from her duties as studied law at the University of Toronto.

"I never dreamed I'd have the opportunity to do that kind of work."

She considers it quite an honor. It was a bit of a shock to be asked.

She will move to Toronto this fall and her duties start Oct. 1.

Miss Staples, a native of Northern Ontario, has been city solicitor since January, 1971. She was solicitor of the Metropolitan Toronto parks and recreation committee before going to Sault Ste. Marie.

She is sorry to leave her redecorated house which she fixed up as a hobby, and will miss the friendly atmosphere of Sault Ste. Marie.

Martha Misbehaves

LONDON (Reuter) - Martha Mitchell caused another stir in Britain on Sunday when she refused to be searched by security guards at London's Heathrow Airport.

A Heathrow security official said: "She was shouting and refused to be searched by one of the security girls. When we told her she would not be able to fly with us if she was not searched, she calmed down and we used an electronic device to search her. Nothing was found."

Mrs. Mitchell shocked Heathrow viewers Friday when she claimed in the interview that Alabama Gov. George Wallace had told her former president Richard Nixon was behind the 1972 attempt to assassinate him.

Wallace has since denied saying this.

Federal Aid for New Homes, Not for Existing Housing

OTTAWA (CP) — Funds under the federally assisted home ownership program (AHOP) will be provided for new homebuyers, not for existing housing, a government source said Saturday.

The source said money will not be handed out for existing housing under the aid program for low-and moderate-income homebuyers.

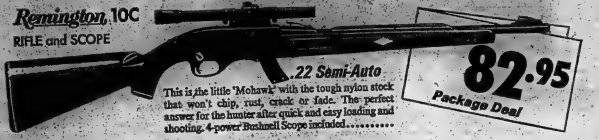
He said the main purpose is to ensure that more new housing is begun this year. The pace of new housing construction has plunged in the last few months. Subsidies for interest payments and other aid is provided under the AHOP program. About half of the 16,000 purchases funded under the program in the first eight months of the year were for existing housing.

About $226 million of a $500 million AHOP budget has so far been spent this year.

Allegations Denied

BOWMANVILLE, Ont. (CP) — Walter Hall, deputy superintendent of the Pine Ridge training school, Saturday rejected allegations about conditions at the school made by an unidentified youth.

Published reports Friday quoted the youth as saying he spent 18 months at the Pine Ridge institution and that the other trainees who were giving the staff trouble.



The youth, who appeared on a Toronto television program, was quoted as saying the staff gave him extra privileges for assaulting other youths.

Faced With 7-2 Deficit, We Still Kept Plugging

Before Saturday's Game 3 of the Russia-Team Canada series, 37-year-old Gordie Hackstrom offered the opinion that our side could produce more real team the afternoon match would be won by a two-goal margin.

"From my vantage point, it appears Ralph hit the nail on the head.

We just didn't have it.

And that's not a knock against Team Canada.

Our representatives in the skinny sheepskins showed they're made of more stuff than they rushed to bad-mouth during behind T-2.

Lesser men would have reacted to the humor with this attitude of defeatism thinking about Game 4.

From the very beginning Saturday, when Russian referee Vladislav Romishevsky gave every indication he was going to give the Soviets a seven-goal man on their team(s), things looked less than rosy for our side.

Forced to kill a rash of penalties, it seemed our team was out of logic. And it's no wonder.

There is little doubt the Russians will once again have their backs half-wheel when the next encounter is in Vancouver, tonight.

BLUES . . . Why are Canada suddenly forgotten how to present a hockey game to the public, the way they did in the good days of class?

We're still waiting for a top notch presentation. We've been waiting since 1972.

Saturday's game was getting replays while live action had resumed.

"What next?"

Try turning down the volume on your set and you'll be hearing in to Bill Cole's play-by-play on CBC radio, 21 below.

A perfect example of the underestimation our guys had for this meeting with the Soviets was brought out during the second period, Saturday.

Tom Webster, fighting high into the air after giving Canada momentary tie on a great piece of work, promptly fell to the ice in heap. Man, does that WHA attract guts.

Goalie Ilya McLeod may be flogged at the gout in some circles but it sure here he was thrust into the breach at an opportune time for Bobby Orr often, he was left to his own resources after making the save and was at the mercy of the Soviets on rebounds.

The Melrose team league champs played champion of the South Hastings Baseball League this season, really cleaned up on the silverware.

Besides taking plaice finish brought the club the Carl Jones Trophy, Trophy donated by Lou Grills and Jack Pascoe were the reward for taking the player title.

Bruce Pascoe was a double winner for the individual awards, taking most sports-manship award (Hugh Petrie Memorial Trophy) and most valuable player, (Grad Thompson Trophy).

Team-mate Terry McHugh, league's highest scoring pitcher, received the Jack Bond Memorial award. Team manager Harold McMechan, organizer of the year, was presented with an award donated by Doug's Food Service.

Lads players came in for their awards at the Del Wanamaker home run trophy sent in by Bob Smith while Dale Bamber captured most valuable player in the playoffs honors and the Jack Stewart Memorial Trophy.

Beating the deadline by inches comes word that Belleville Bobcats won and tied in their weekend exhibition games.

Cats made it two in a row over a Peterborough team, Saturday, chalking up a 5-1 win.

In Kingston, Sunday, a battered Belleville squad battled back with a goal in the last minute to earn a 4-4 tie.

Word back in Belleville Rifles Construction dropped the second game of its Intercity Series 4-1 to St. Thomas Sunday. We're told Kaufman scored a 9-4 win to force a third and deciding game expected to be played in Belleville.

Trenton Legion Drive Stalled

Emeryville Peewee Team Pushes OBA Final to Limit

TRENTON — After two games in the Ontario Baseball Association Peewee C final, there's no way Trenton Legion and Emeryville (a suburb of Trenton) can be termed "losers".

Coming out on the short end of a 10-1 score at Belleville Saturday, Emeryville rallied away Trenton had of staging a victory celebration here Sunday by pulling out a 7-6 win.

The Ontario title will be decided on a neutral diamond, Saturday. It is expected the series will meet to the big one, at Hamilton.

Until the fifth inning, Trenton appeared to have the series wrapped up in two games. The home side had 4-1 at that point but fell apart dramatically in the fifth when the visitors scored three to square it.

Legion edged back in front with one in the sixth but in the top of the seventh, Emeryville's bats came to life and produced another three-run rally.

Facing a 7-5 deficit in the bottom of the seventh and final frame, Legion got one back but couldn't pull it out.

Brad Chambers got the win. He gave way to Richard St. Pierre with two out and the tying run on base in the person of Keith St. Pierre got pinch-hitter Brian Dierscenno on a fly to left to end it.

Touched for eight hits, Chambers struck out seven, walked three and hit two batters.

Kevin Patrick started for Trenton with Paul Dierscenno taking over in the sixth. They were touched for nine hits, fanned eight and walked seven.

Third baseman—Gerry Thibeault had two hits to lead the winners.

Ben Lavery had three Trenton singles while Patrick slugged a two-run homer and Curtis Smith collected a double and a triple. David Wilkinson and Doug Payette had the other hits for the losers.

Saturday in Emeryville, Legion said it with Dierscenno's solid pitching, some slick fielding and a balanced batting attack.

Dierscenno limited the home team to just five hits, none for extra bases, struck out five and walked six.

The lone Emeryville run came in the third off a walk and back-to-back singles. After that Dierscenno and his mates closed the door.

Trenton rallied to make it a 2-1 ball game with a pair in the fourth and exploded for five in the fifth. Smith's double out the scoring in the game with a three-run shift.

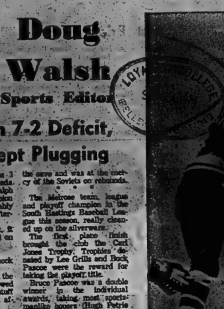
Steve Alexander and Patrick each slammed three Legion hits. Wilkinson had a pair with one each for Lesley Dierscenno, Greg Hassard, Smith, Darrah and Mike Peterson.

Nicked for 14 safeties, losing pitcher St. Pierre fanned four and walked one.

SACO Loses Opener

GRANTHAM (Special) — Failure to come through with men on base cost Belleville SACO heavily here Saturday in the first game of the Ontario Amateur Softball Association Peewee A playoff semi-final.

Grantham scored a decisive 8-3 victory as Belleville, idle for about two weeks before this series opened, left 10 men stranded on the base paths.



Second game in the set is scheduled for Belleville's Alumni Park, Saturday, at 2.30 p.m.

Bob Mahood paced a 10-hit Grantham attack with two home runs and a single.

Sharing six hits given up by winning pitcher Don Nichols, were SACO's Paul Soule, Bob Hedge, Tim Soule, Ron Begley, Tony Miller and Andy Rossi.

Nichols struck out nine and walked four on the way to the win.

Tim Soule worked the first five innings for the visitors striking out four. Andy Rossi finished up.

Boris Mikhailov shoots Russia in front 2-1 with this goal early in the second period of Saturday's 5-5 win over Team Canada. Defenceman J. C. Tremblay is too late to help Team Canada goalie Dan McLeod. Story on Page 10. (CP PHOTO).

OASA Senior B Playoffs

Devolin Motors Bows Out 2-0

Danny McCusker's run in the top of the seventh inning was all the Wingsen Park Cabevers of Toronto needed to defeat Devolin Motors here Saturday night.

The win gave the Toronto team a two-game sweep of the best of three series. Belleville lost the first game, a heart-breaker 3-2 in 14 innings.

Ally O'Quinn's bases loaded hit in the hole between short and third allowed McCusker to score the winning run after he had put himself on base with a single.

Both teams had numerous opportunities but were unable to cash in on them.

It was a duel between the pitchers. Don Crowley of Toronto and Don Hosiery of Belleville. Neither pitcher got by, constantly throwing hard, fast pitches. Hosiery proved he nightmares for the hitters, but Crowley's best chance came in the bottom of the game when Hosiery came to bat with runners on second and third.

With two out, Hosiery's bat appeared to be going to and between first baseman Keith Werung and the right fielder Mike Scott. An excellent catch by Werung retired the side and left the game tied at 0-0.

In the top of the ninth Ian Bishop relieved Hosiery. Pitcher Moloway after O'Quinn sacrificed to send Conker to make it 2-0.

Larry Griffin took over the pitching duties for the remaining two outs and wasted no time in disposing the next two batters.

Devolin, going into the bottom of the ninth, needed to get something going. The first batter, Eric Maher appeared to have an extra-base hit but watched helplessly as the ball last drifted into field territory before taking the fence.

This appeared to take the steam out of the Belleville team and Crowley retired the side.

Crowley finished up with a five-hitter. He struck out six and walked two.

Holoway was touched for nine hits while fanning one and walking two.

Griffin struck out the only two men he faced.

Trenton Team In OASA Final

SIMCOE (Special) — Trenton Dickson's Sonics moved to the Ontario Amateur Softball Association Midget B finals here Saturday, edging the Simcoe squad 6-5.

Held to only four base hits by losing pitcher Steve Ronaghan, Trenton club produced their safeties when it counted most while wrapping up the semi-final set in straight games.

A perfect fielding display also helped the visitors get the job done. They didn't have a miscue over the nine innings while the home side was charged with four errors.

Down 3-0 after one inning, Trenton battled back with single runs in the second and fourth and pulled ahead with three in the seventh after Simcoe had counted its fourth run in the fifth. Both sides scored once in the eighth.

Nicked for 10 hits, Rob Oliver went the distance for the win. The Trenton right-hander struck out 10, Ronbough fanned 12.

Glen Leclair banged a triple and pulled off a big fielding play for the winners. He also had a runner at the plate after making the catch on a fly ball to complete a twin killing.

Oliver and Greg Kendrick each supplied a double for Trenton. Vic Podmilsak also walled.

OASA convener Bill Huffman of Trenton, said Sunday night that the Ontario final will be played in Trenton, the weekend of October 5 with Ed Mott Lake supplying the opposition.

Chargers Outscore Bayside

Centennial Secondary School senior Chargers were full value for an opening game high school football win Friday, downing Bayside Secondary School 34-6.

Kevin Solmes and Rob Scully each romped for a pair of Centennial majors and Steve Hicks had one.

Steve Tilley also showed he's got the facest of the game down pat, connecting for four converts on five attempts.

Bayside's lone touchdown came when speedy Curt McLean returned a kickoff for the six points.

Game 4 Tonight

Soviets Square Series In High Scoring Match

VANCOUVER (CP) — Team Canada and the Soviet Union go into tonight's fourth game of their exhibition series looking for the win that will give them the advantage going into the final four games in Russia.

The Soviet Union charged its way Saturday in its 8-5 triumph at Winnipeg that evened the series at one win each and one tie.

The Soviets came out hitting the Canadians, returning check for check, hipcheck for hipcheck. And when Team Canada let down in the second and third periods, the Russians scored five consecutive goals and then held off a furious rally in the final minutes.

Coach Billy Harris is expected to revert back tonight to the same Team Canada lineup that produced the tie and win at Quebec City and Toronto. He used five different players Saturday's lineup.

Team Canada captain Pat Stapleton said of the Soviet change of style in the third game:

"Maybe it was because they knew it's referees, but it was the first time they stationed anyone in the crease.

"We got two or three penalties from there, I don't understand. Russian had the referee

PAUL HENDERSON

Hatskin: Experiment A Failure

VANCOUVER (CP) — The experiment intended to provide top-notch officiating for the Russia-Canada hockey series has failed, Ben Hatskin, chairman of the board of directors of the World Hockey Association, said Sunday.

The World Hockey Association and the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association collaborated to provide a pay-series school for officials, in Edmonton at the start of the Team Canada training camp Sept. 1, costing about $20,000.

BEN HATSKIN

Officials from several European countries, the United States and Canada were involved.

Hatskin said statements attributed to him that Soviet Union officials were unhappy were vastly over-rated, but "we have to do something to improve the officiating."

He said it is unfortunate that great teams such as Canada and the Soviet Union must battle against each other as well as against inefficient referees.

Hatskin said the series already has proved that the World Hockey Association has received no little attention in North American cities, "but the gap is narrowing almost day by day."

He said the ultimate solution to officiating problems in international competition would be to provide referees — perhaps from North America, "because they're the best in the world."

"But what we have is the best in the international picture, and I guess we're stuck with them.

"It would be unreasonable to expect the Soviet Union to accept North American officials."

indicated he didn't want me to do that again after I moved one of the Russians out of the crease early in the game."

The Soviets scored three goals from the edge of the crease, either completing crisp passing plays that began or went through the middle.

The mobility of the Soviet defencemen was a strong contributing factor towards their victory and Team Canada's breakdown. The forechecking Canadians often were caught up-ice when the Russian defencemen swung away and then quickly fed lead passes to centre ice.

Despite the Soviet changes, Bobby Hull said the Canadian team simply "let them have too much room to operate."

"With those guys you have to check them close, hit them everytime they move.

The Soviet's led 7-2 before Team Canada rallied in the final 10 minutes and Harris said afterwards that comeback could be very important to future success.

"In Game 2 in Toronto we became a little frustrated wondering what we had to do to score," Harris said. "We're a little more familiar now. We go to work and pull Perlick or we know we can score on him."

"We're getting better shots now. In 1972 they had those two big defencemen who stood in front of the net and blocked most of the shots. They were like a concrete pads. But this year the defencemen are more mobile; they move out to cover up the middle."

Jackson Out For A Week

CHICAGO (AP) — Outfielder Reggie Jackson of Oakland A's says he will be out of action for about a week. Jackson, last year's most valuable player in the American League, pulled his right hamstring muscle in the eighth inning of Sunday's Oakland-Chicago baseball game. It's the fourth time this season the 28-year-old Jackson has suffered a muscle injury.

Niki Lauda Spins Out, Fittipaldi Leads Field

MOSPORT, Ont. (CP) — Emerson Fittipaldi ate dust from Niki Lauda's car Sunday for 8 laps until an accident forced the Austrian out of the race and gave Fittipaldi a victory in the Grand Prix of Canada and a spot at the top of the standings in the world drivers' contest.

As top qualifier, Fittipaldi held the pole position in the 300-mile race but Lauda's Ferrar jumped into the lead on the first lap while the Brazilian's Texaco MarSpro remained second behind Regazzoni from Switzerland.

Then, with only 11 more laps to go, Lauda spun in sand on the track and was out of the race.

The Austrian's bid for victory was a valiant one. Three times he broke the record for Mosport's 2.65-mile lap and when lap-scorers sorted it all out late Sunday night he was designated as record holder with a time of one minute, 12.659 seconds—a speed of 18.1281 miles an hour.

Third place went to Ronnie Peterson of Sweden who moved his Lotus to a little more than a second behind Regazzoni from 10th spot.

Briton James Hunt was fourth in a Hesketh, while Patrick Depallier of France finished fifth in a British Tyrrell.

Five of the surprises of the race was Jody Scheckter's hard luck. Almost from the start he held third place, pursuing Fittipaldi and Lauda. But on the 58th lap, brake failure sent his Tyrrell into a safety barrier and out of the race.

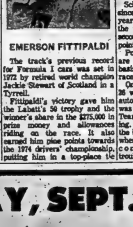
Scheckter, who has reformed since his charging days of last year, still has a chance to win the world championship. He is second in the standings with 45 points.

Points in Grand Prix racing are awarded on a 9-6-4-3-2-1 basis for the first six in each race.

Only Canadian in the field of 20 was Eppie Wietzes, Toronto auto dealer, whose Brabham was running under the colors of Team Canada Formula I Racing. Wietzes looked along near the back of the pack for 37 laps when he was forced out of the race with transmission trouble.

Griffins In Front

BY THE CANADIAN PRESS



Despite eight goals in two games by John Grant, Philadelphia Wings Sunday night fell behind Rochester Griffins in the National Lacrosse League finals.

The Griffins defeated the Wings 17-12 before 1,961 fans to take a 2-1 lead in the best-of-three championship series that resumes Tuesday in Rochester.

The Wings had tied the round with a 12-10 victory at Philadelphia Saturday.

Grant's four goals gave him 22 in the playoffs. Terry Lloyd and Terry Lipinsky each connected twice, while Larry Lloyd, Jim Hinkson, Jim Wasson and Terry Rowland got one goal apiece.

Al Gardineer, Brian Wilson and Bill Poole paced the winners with four goals each. Bill Hocnik and Gomer Connor each scored twice, while single goals were supplied by Paul Warden, Larry McCormick, Kelvin Parsons and Rick Bisson.

EMERSON FITTIPALDI

The track's previous record for Formula 1 cars was set in 1972 by retired world champion Jackie Stewart of Scotland in a Tyrrell.

Fittipaldi's victory gave him the Labatt's 50 trophy and the winner's share in the $275,000 in prize money and allowances for the race. It also earned him nine points towards the 1974 drivers' championship, putting him in a top-place tie

Ottawa Wins Game, Loses 2 Stars

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa Rough Riders may have lost two key players in their 36-6 victory over Saskatchewan Roughriders Sunday afternoon. Defensive lineman Rudy Sims and fullback Wayne Giardino were helped from the field as the Riders took solid possession of third place in the Eastern Football Conference, four points ahead of Toronto Argonauts.

Saskatchewan's second successive loss to eastern clubs has left it tied in the Western Conference, two points behind Edmonton Eskimos and British Columbia Lions.

Saskatchewan quarterback Ron Lancaster also left the game with a big injury.

Aided about by Riley Lancaster, who threw three interceptions in less than a half of football, merely shrugged his shoulders.

Harris and Eley Carry B.C. Lions

VANCOUVER (CP) — Running back Lou Harris led a six-point ground attack to a 20-10 British Columbia Lions' victory Saturday night over Winnipeg Blue Bombers in Western Football Conference action.

The repeated tributes to Harris—shouts of "Lou - Lou!"—from the crowd of 32,708 at Empire Stadium were matched after the game by B.C.'s head coach Jackie Parker. Shortly after the adjective "super" to describe the play of his entire offensive unit.

Harris, with 26 carries for 104 yards, and running mate Monroe Eley, with 17 tikes and 135 yards rushing, were obvious choices for praise from the coach.

"Monroe Eley and Lou Harris just had a super night, our offensive line did a great job of blocking," he said.

Coach Kays credited insertion of import offensive guard Mike Labood into the lineup for a great part of his club's outside running power. Labood recently recovered from an injury.

"We felt like we had to have a little more speed outside and we felt we had to run from the particular formation that we ran from tonight in order to get the back outside. We did have two tight ends in there and we did have two wingbacks flanked outside, so we could go either way and they really couldn't type us to which side we were going to go."

B.C. quarterback Don Moorehead threw 16 of his 18 passes for completions as the Lions moved into a tie for first place in the WFC with 12 points on six wins and four losses. Eskimos also have 12 points but have played one less game than B.C.

Blues host Ivy Winnipeg with a 4-4 record.

Harris had touchdown runs of 1 and one-yards in the second half and Eley had an 11-yard major in the first quarter on a pass.

Two field goals and a pair of conversions by Lions placekicker Ivan MacMillan an eight-point shutout.

Blues host his ranks and Glazier his hopes in the game that was decided early by Saskatchewan mistakes. The club lost the ball nine times, once on a fumble and a record eight times on interceptions.

"We can't turn the ball over that many times and expect to win," coach John Payne said.

Vandy Mattingly, who took over for Lancaster, gave up three interceptions and fumbled once inside his own five-yard line, giving Ottawa defensive end Wayne Smith a clear path to touchdown on the recovery.

The first Lancaster interception produced the Ottawa touchdown, in the opening quarter.

Rod Woodward made the interception on the Saskatchewan 45-yard line and ran it back to the six. The Ottawa attack stalled there, but Woodward ran a fake field goal attempt for a touchdown from the 13-yard line.

Gerry Organ converted both touchdowns, kicked three field goals and a single to round out the Ottawa scoring.

Saskatchewan got its only touchdown on an eight-yard pass from Mattingly to Leo Petterson in the dying seconds.

The late-game surge gave Saskatchewan an edge in first statistics. The team had a better net offence than Ottawa—319 yards to 234—and a superior passing game—200 yards to 45—and an 18-12 advantage in first downs.

But the westerners committed more than enough errors to allow Ottawa to bounce to the win before 18,948 fans.

Barber Winner

MASON, Ohio (AP) — Miller Barber's victory in the Ohio Kings Island Open golf tournament turned the whole season around for the troubled, worried veteran from Sherman, Tex.

"You got to the point," Barber said Sunday after his three-stroke triumph, "where you begin to think you're not ever gonna win again. You know, the ball always bounced wrong. Every bad thing that could happen did happen."

Cards, Dodgers Widen Leads

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

St. Louis reliever Al Hrabosky survived both the psychological and physical jinxes that stemmed from it with two innings of his own pitching Sunday to beat Chicago Cubs 6-5.

The victory moved the Cardinals 1½ games ahead of second-place Pittsburgh in the National League East. The Pirates were blanked, 4-0, by New York Mets.

Elsewhere, Los Angeles Dodgers increased their lead in the West Division to 4½ games over sagging Cincinnati with a 6-3 victory over San Diego Padres, the Reds were shut out by San Francisco Giants 5-0, Houston Astros outlasted Atlanta Braves 3-2 in 16 innings and Philadelphia and Montreal split a pair, the Phils winning 3-2 and the Expos 8-5.

The cards and the Cubs were locked in a 5-5 tie in the top of the ninth when Chicago's Phil Regan stalked out of the batter's box in protest over Umpire Shag Crawford ordered Maddock back to the rubber and when he didn't come, Hrabosky delivered a pitch and Crawford called it a strike. Maddock then headed back for Hrabosky's next offering and promptly lined a single to center, scoring Joe Hague with the winning run.

"I jumped up and he was standing there with the ball and I thought he was throwing over," Hrabosky said of Maddock. "I got up and he said, 'Get out,' then I hit him."

The battle raged for about ten minutes with players from both sides milling on the ground. When the fuss was finished, Cubs Manager Jim Marshall was ejected.

Hrabosky retired the side without further incident and the Cards won it in their half of the inning when Lou Brock singled, Reggie Smith walked and Tim McCarver singled off reliever Ted Abernathy to score Brock. Hrabosky's second victory in nine decisions against 11 saves and a 2.45 earned run average.

Dave Lopes clubbed a three-run homer and Joe Ferguson added a two-run shot as Los Angeles recovered its composure for another win over San Diego. Ferguson's blast off loser Dave Roberts came after Bobby Bonds had been passed up the two men in front of him with a pitch by starter Clay Kirby and Mike Marshall got his 14th appearance of the year in the relief.

Rookie John Montefusco pitched a two-hitter, checkmated on seven hits and also belted a home run. Dave Kingman added a two-run homer for the Giants off loser Don Gullett. The Reds have lost five of their last six games and the Giants have won straight to San Francisco.

Pitcher Tom Griffin, pressed into service as a pinch-hitter when it was learned in the top of the inning that starter Jerry Reuss was scratched because of a virus infection, delivered a single to drive in the winning run in the 16th inning for Houston. Griffin was credited with the victory in relief of Jim Ray Hart, who pitched the last two innings for Atlanta.

Jay Johnstone's two-run triple in the first inning lifted Philadelphia to victory in the opener. The Phils' two-run single scored Johnstone with the go-ahead run in the second inning for Montreal's two runs in the nightcap.

Bobby Murcer Powers Yankees

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Bobby Murcer isn't ready to call it quits, but he's getting close to it as the American League East race is concluded.

The Yankee star is a four-hit and two home-run hero as the New York Yankees defeated Cleveland Indians 7-3 Sunday, moving within 1½ games of Baltimore Orioles, who lost to Detroit 8-2, Oakland edged California 4-3, Minnesota beat Chicago White Sox 5-4 and Kansas City took Texas 4-1 and 4-3.

With the scores tied 1-1 and two on in the sixth, Murcer crashed his fifth homer of the season off Cleveland starter Bruce Ellingsen. It was his second home run in two days.

Boog Powell's three runs batted in, including his 11th homer of the season, helped Baltimore beat Detroit.

Jim Perry, seeking seeking his 20th victory of the season, pitched Oakland's Catfish Hunter for the top future in the Baltimore Rangers' lead. Frank Robinson with three runs in the sixth inning as was one hit.

Jackson, who has had his best his career high for victories in one season, allowed seven hits and struck out five while walking a batter.

Dave Johnson, Jim Fuzz dropped Oakland on five hits to relax his record to 10-10. The loss put the A's a full over Texas in the AL West to 4½ games.

The White Sox went ahead 3-1 in the sixth on singles by Bill Melton and Ken Henderson, an infield out and a sacrifice fly. Henderson joined in the eighth and scored on insurance run on Dave Nelson's single.

The A's also lost outfielder Reggie Jackson for about a week. He pulled a hamstring muscle while chasing a fly ball in the sixth.

Cyrus Kosich's two scoring singles highlighted a three-run rally in the sixth inning that broke a 2-2 tie for the Twins. Vic Albury got the victory, evening his record at 8-8.

Reggie Sanders drove in four runs with a single, double and two-run homer but only Mike Epstein pitched out of a seven-inning jam for the Rangers.

Al Kaline had one single in four times at bat, leaving him one short of becoming the 13th player in major league history to reach 3,000 hits for his career.

NHL Opens October 9

MONTREAL (CP) — The Na-Scouts and Washington Capitals of the league's two new expansion franchises.

Other opening night play will see New York Islanders visiting Montreal Canadiens, St. Louis Blues at California Golden Seals, Minnesota North Stars at Chicago Black Hawks at Detroit Red Wings and Atlanta Flames in Vancouver to play the Canucks.

Each NHL team will play 80 games—40 at home and 40 away—as part of the 720-games schedule. Last year, each of the NHL teams played 78 games.

The Scouts will not play at home until Nov. 3 when they play host to Chicago. Labor difficulties led to a delay in the construction of the new Kemper Arena which is to be the Scouts home ice.

The NHL season closes April 6 and the top 12 teams will be eligible for the playoffs. Three from each of the four new divisions.

The Islanders, Rangers, Philadelphia and Atlanta are in division 1 while the Canadiens, Detroit, Pittsburgh, Los Angeles and Washington make up division 2.

Kansas City is aligned in division 3 along with St. Louis, Chicago, Vancouver and Minnesota, with the Maple Leafs, Boston, Buffalo and California forming division 4.

Capitals Show Well In First NHL Start

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Washington Capitals received their first taste of National Hockey League competition Sunday night and made a respectable showing despite an exhibition loss to Buffalo Sabres at St. Catharines, Ont.

Captain coach Jimmy Anderson, who is trying to pare a training camp squad of 60 players, did not have his No. 1 draft choice, Greg Joly, or veteran Doug Mohns in uniform, but Washington got one goal from an amateur draft choice—John Paddock—and another from veteran Jack Egers.

Pete McNab paced the Sabres with two goals as Buffalo rapped 18 pre-season record at with a pair of goals, Bill Hogaboam, Earl Anderson and Nelson Hyatt were the other marksmen for the winners.

In other games Sunday, New York Rangers defeated Detroit Red Wings 7-3 at Kitchener; Chicago scored a home-ice 5-1 victory over Montreal Canadiens; Atlanta Flames beat California Golden Seals 4-2, and Minnesota North Stars topped Los Angeles Kings 4-2.

In Saturday's action, Canadians blanked Boston Bruins 6-0 and Philadelphia Flyers beat the Vancouver Canucks 6-1; Vancouver downed Los Angeles Kings 4-1, St. Louis Blues topped Pittsburgh Penguins 4-1, the Black Hawks and Toronto Maple Leafs battled to a 3-3 tie; and New York Islanders tied Minnesota North Stars 1-1.

In the World Hockey Association, Phoenix Roadrunners, a new entry in the league for season, beat Vancouver Blazers 5-5 in overtime at Vancouver.

Greg Polis scored two goals to lead the Rangers, while Steve Vickers, Pete Stemkowski, Brad Park, Gilles Marotte and Ted Irvine got the other goals.

Mickey Redmond led Detroit with a pair of goals, Bill Hogaboam, Earl Anderson and Nelson Hyatt were the other marksmen for the winners.

Both the Black Hawks and Maple Leafs scored in three-goal clusters for their victories.

The Hawks scored three times in the second period at Chicago to subdue the Canadiens. Cliff Koroll, Dan Maloney, Jim Pappin, rookie Alain Daigle, Dennis Hull and Germain Gagnon were the snipers for Chicago. Jacques Lemaire scored the Canadiens' only goal on a power play.

The Leafs collected three of their goals in the third period before only 822 fans at Kingston, Ont. It was the second game for Atlanta which left nine of its regular players at training camp in Ottawa.

Keith McCreary, Bob Leiter, Jerry Byers and Hilliard Graves, formerly of the Seals, scored for the Flames. Larry Wright and Terry Murray connected for the Seals. Graves' goal was shot into an empty net with 15 seconds remaining in the game.

Second-period goals by Blake Dunlop and Henry Boucha within three minutes sparked the North Stars.

9¾% EVERY YEAR FOR 9 YEARS

GOOD NEWS ABOUT THE CANADA SAVINGS BONDS YOU NOW OWN!

If you are one of the two million Canadians who already own past series of Canada Savings Bonds here's good news for you. The cash bonus payments announced last May have been increased to produce, from September 1, 1974 to maturity, an average annual yield of 10½%.

Everyone who owns unmatured Canada Savings Bonds, dated on or prior to Nov. 1, 1973, will be entitled to receive the new, higher cash bonus payments on the dates payable, provided that the bonds have not been cashed in the meantime. Here are further details.

1. When a cash bonus becomes due, simply present your bond to any Bank or authorized Trust or Loan Company and Caisse Populaire and you will get your bonus immediately.
2. For tax purposes, the Government of Canada proposes to permit taxpayers to treat cash bonus payments either as interest income or capital gains. As a result, if holders include such interest under the proposed $1,000 deduction for interest income, the bonus payments will become exempt from tax. Alternatively the holder may find it to his advantage to include the bonus under the favourable tax treatment accorded to capital gains.
3. The cash bonus payments are in addition to all the other outstanding features of your Canada Savings Bonds. Bondholders who are taking advantage of compound interest privileges may continue to do so and will continue to be paid compound interest in the amounts specified at the time of issue of each series.

Eritrean Landing Was Made By Arrangement Says Canadian

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Clifford Jarrow, 27, of Walkerton, Ont., who was taken captive after air mastry by the Eritrean Liberation Front (ELF) in Ethiopia, says news reports that he was forced to land in Ethiopia because of weather conditions are untrue.

In an interview with The Free Press, Mr. James said the landing was pre-arranged with the governor-general of Eritrea and Ethiopian army officials.

After landing in Eritrea, the northern province of Ethiopia, Mr. James was taken under guard, along with Donald Webster, 37, of Calgary, and Fyvonne (Bill) Crews, 34, Mattie Tevell, 33, and William Rogers, all United States citizens.

Mr. James said in the interview that the group entered the mission to land in Ethiopia to inspect damages done to a mine after the ELF blew up a generating station. The mine is owned by the group's employer, Tenneco Oil Co. of Houston, Texas.

They were taken captive by the ELF March 8 and Mr. James and the three Americans were not released until April 17.

Mr. Webster was released earlier this year.

The ELF has been waging war against the Ethiopian government in support of independence for Eritrea.

Mr. James said the crew made its first stop safely in Sheg and later moved on to Eritrea.

There had been some reports in that area that a mine had been forced down because of weather. That's entirely untrue. It was a planned landing.

Mr. James said Mr. Webster had visited with the ballonists while he and the other three set out on a survey flight.

"Then about two minutes later ... I heard the first burst of gunfire from automatic weapons.

"All of us, after more-or-less a moment of being stunned, decided that the best thing was where the firing was coming from."

Mr. James said the men then started running, trying to reach a point off where they might hide.

"I was going at a pretty good clip when an ELF soldier appeared on the first hill. . . .

"He was the one who opened fire on us. A burst of bullets went over my head and hit the rocks about six feet in front of me."

Mr. James said he and the three others were motioned back to the helicopter where soldiers took away their watches, money and anything else valuable.

"We were not armed; definitely not. It's always been my policy in Ethiopia not to be armed. That's where you get into trouble when you are armed."

He said that after they were captured the group watched from quickly away from the helicopter.

He said they marched a long way during the first night, hiding only once when an ELF executive committee."

The executive committee is one of the side (division) of the ELF. The hierarchy consists of the revolutionary council, which makes policy, and the other is the executive committee, which executes policy.

During the first night, Mr. James said they slept on the ground and were given no food.

They learned later that the reason was because we'd crossed Eritrea without permission."

Mr. James said at first the group was quite calm about being released and believed they would be let go the next day "because the first night an English-speaking fellow turned up and said he'd be here in no big trouble—sort of guaranteed that we would get back to our own beds . . . that night."

However the mission was wrong and the promised release never came off.

They spent 10 days marching during the morning, then sleeping at night. The idea was not to march anytime during the day when we might be spotted.

"Then we arrived at our first basing camp, way off in the bush . . . a real hell-on-earth area. There's no way in the world they could have found us."

They stayed in the first camp for 20 days, he said. The food was very meagre and rudimentary, but it was the same as what the guerrillas ate — a diet of cous cous, water.

"Then our final line did we ever try to overpower our captors. There were too many of them. We had always split up, right from the beginning to the end, as the area camp, there were quite a bit safer.

"Then we started to get to remember, were armed to the teeth."

Mr. James said they maintained this camp until June 30 when they moved to North Agordat to west Eritrea and remained until Sept. 2, when they got a message that they were to move toward the Sudanese border.

"We had hoped that our release would be the reason we were moving to the border, but it wasn't until about four days later that we ran across a member of the revolutionary council and he came to us and had congratulations had been completed and that we were to be released. He smiled was for us to get to the border."

Mr. James said the group was released on the Eritrean side of the border and told they were going in the direction of Kassala.

However, they did not know how far away they were from Kassala.

He said a group of Sudanese soldiers were in the area and had been told to be on the lookout for the group of their release, photographed and brought them to Kassala where Tenneco representatives were waiting with a chartered aircraft.

Davidson Portrays 'Female' Killer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — On a hunt he has to convince the cops is a private eyeball. The private eye is a female.

Sea, Producer John Davidson plays Carol Marlow. She is a killer.

John Davidson?

The singer, the personality boy next door, the Tonight Show subbost, the star on Hollywood Squares with all those straight-faced blurbs? The same.

Carol Marlow is really Kent Scott, a disturbed man who goes into drag when the killer overtakes him.

"That's the biggest challenge I've ever had," said Davidson, "not because I play a woman, because the guy's a woman. His mental problem is the great challenge.

"For instance, I have a scene where I argue with myself—a schizophrenic. It's a mind-boggling thing. Flipping back and forth like Dr. Jekyll and Miss Hyde."

Davidson was so anxious to play the part that he gave up two weeks of theatre in the round at $20,000 a week to take the role for $3,500.

When a variety performer does an acting role he loses thousands of dollars," he said.

"You have to make a decision. Do I grab the bucks or do I make a career move, an artistic move. I really want! For my career and my acting. It was important to do this role. I've gotten three movie scripts from people who'd heard I could read a male camp, thank you."

To play a woman, Davidson spent several weeks working with Greg Hammond, a former female impersonator.

He also had to shave his eyebrows sideburns and more than an inch of the front of his hairline.

"The thing is, you must believe I'm a woman. The cops go after a woman and that's the trick of the script. I know talking about it blows the effect, off the ledge.

Marmora Man Killed

MARMORA — A 21-year-old man was killed Sunday when his car crashed into the open pit mine of the Marmoraton Mining Co.

To retrieve the car, police had to call a mobile crane from Belleville.

A crew from United Riggers worked about six hours to reach the wrecked car and hoist it

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Tuesday, September 24

Aries (March 21-April 19) Stern methods in dealing with others will achieve little for you at this time. On the other hand, diplomacy and kindness work wonders.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) Your attitude is apt to be a bit too negative early in the day. Things will go well with more cheer. Later, you'll get back in the groove.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) Don't expect another to cover your obligations for you. You'll only disappoint him. Hand bill on your own two feet.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) After you decide upon something, stick to your decision. You'll placate yourself with self-doubts. Things will work out fine.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 21) You still tend to feel you are being put upon by another. The fault lie true, but it's a burden you can shoulder easily.

Virgo (Aug. 22-Sept. 23) Someone you'll be running into is a friend of a good contact who need. Even though you don't like this person, be charming.

Libra (Sept. 24-Oct. 23) You will have to tackle a little extra domestic responsibility today, but the reminder of your family you're doing it for truly appreciate it.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Try to associate with those you can't or cannot today. You won't quite get it as being in the company of others.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If you're going to be out shopping, it's time you treated yourself to something you feel would enhance your image.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Today's companion of apt to be a bit nervous and fretful. It's going to be up to you to keep everything on the lighter side.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) You're going to neglect something you should be doing because it's a trifle tough. It will be just as hard later when you won't be able to dodge it.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20) Give someone you know only casually a chance to redeem herself in your eyes. Don't judge her on one unpleasant incident.

Churchill Stamps

These four stamps, commemorating the life of Sir Winston Churchill, mark the first time a commoner has appeared on more than one issue of British stamps. The 4½p stamp shows him in 1940, the 5½p shows him as he appeared shortly after Dunkirk in 1940, the 9p as Secretary for War and Air in 1919 and the 10p shows Churchill in the uniform of the South African Lancer Horse in 1899. Spying Was Real Breeze For Brandt's Guillaume

BONN (AP) — Guenter Guillaume, the East German spy, walked from the communications room in the house where West German Chancellor Willy Brandt was staying. He carried with him a secret message from President Nixon.

The scene was Norway, summer 1973. Nixon's message had been sent in code from Bonn to Brandt's holiday retreat. It was decoded in the communications office and given to normal, readable typescript to Guillaume.

Spying for Guillaume, 47, now under arrest and awaiting trial, was as simple as that during the 2-week vacation period—a walk across the lawn with secret papers for the former chancellor in hand, intelligence sources here say. As Brandt's top aide in Norway, he is assumed to have been able to see virtually everything on the communications wire.

The Nixon messages were described by Bonn intelligence sources as part of an exchange between the two leaders on setting up a system of consultations between the United States and Europe.

The allied intelligence community is reluctant to discuss what was lost during the six-week period, but it is known that Guillaume had access to tactical material involving Bonn's partners in the Atlantic Alliance.

Despite an assertion by Brandt's successor, Helmut Schmidt, that Guillaume's spying did not damage the alliance, there are indications to the contrary.

The tendency in Bonn has been to play down Guillaume's importance as a spy, suggesting that with the exception of the Norway vacation period — his job involved Nielsen with the Social Democratic Party (SPD) rather than anything touching West Germany's security relations with other countries.

Again, a report from a non-German intelligence source disagreed.

The source said Guillaume was a prolific "document Klauer"—document snatcher—and that the yield was considerably higher than the Germans admit.

This can be assumed from the method of operation of Guillaume's wife, Christel, to who, the source said, was Guillaume's primary courier. Evidence being developed on her use of dead drops—leaving material in pre-arranged places for another courier to pick up—suggested substantial volume.

The informant said the spy's main concern was the West German position on relations between the two Germanys. Another intelligence officer, asked to assess Guillaume's effectiveness in his area, replied: "I think he got plenty."

Two painful ironies surround Guillaume's story. Seeded into the federal republic as an East German refugee in 1956, he worked as a hot-dog vendor and salesman before climbing through the rank and file of the SPD to the chancellor's office.

A considerable time before his unmasking, Guillaume was tipped as a possible East German agent. The second story was that by all accounts, Brandt found Guillaume a boon.

The first suggestion that Guillaume was a spy came from one of the quirks, now abandoned, of East Germans broadcasting coded birthday greetings to their agents in the West. One of the birthdays corresponded to that of Guillaume who, as an East German refugee, was already filed in a non-German intelligence service's data bank.

The coincidence was immediately pointed out to the West Germans.

By May 29, 1973, there had been pointed accusations about Guillaume. Brandt was informed of them and that there was circumstantial proof. It was up to Brandt to decide whether Guillaume would go along to Norway. He was included in the official party.

Reflecting on the situation later, Brandt told a friend he said in his security report: "I don't care if you do catch a spy in my office. I am not playing games with counter-spy games."

Brandt's attitude was explained by friends as coming from considerable irritation over the years with security reports on some of his closest collaborators that came to nothing.

Brandt, nonetheless, informed one of his top assistants, Reinhard Wilke, that Guillaume was under investigation. But while Brandt was to Norway, Wilke was on vacation and the man who replaced him as top assistant in Bonn, Wold-Dietrich Schilling, was not told.

Schilling channelled the normal flow of dispatches directly to Brandt's security men once his Norwegian summer retreat was set up. Before that, Guillaume began his walk across the lawn.

Vilhe Bruhns, a television reporter who spent a month in Norway preparing a magazine article on Brandt during her vacation, has something approaching total recall of the period. She said Brandt often took long walks with Guillaume and other guests, but she rarely saw the chancellor and the spy speak.

She said:

"Brandt considered Guillaume a hard-working guy who got things done but who had nothing at all to say. Guillaume probably never once spoke to Brandt unless he was spoken to first.

"Guillaume had an absolutely incredible memory and was a top-flight organizer. But he had no imagination and pretty poor taste."

Guillaume was arrested April 24 this year after returning from a trip to France where he had seen a contact. Brandt resigned less than two weeks later, saying he accepted responsibility for "negligence."

West German press reports said he found it impossible to continue as Guillaume had knowledge about the chancellor's private life that held him open to blackmail threats.

But Brandt said although his resignation was partly to keep his private life from becoming the subject of public gossip, the decisive factor was that the affair had affected his impartiality toward the Soviet bloc nations with whom he had begun his policy of detente.

Service Stations' Free Air Can Sometimes Spell Grief

OTTAWA (CP) — The dinging-ding of the free tire pump at the friendly neighborhood service station can actually spell bad news for motorists, a Canadian Press survey indicates.

Many of the 25 pumps tested at random in the Ottawa area were shown to be delivering higher or lower air pressures than registered on their gauges.

Federal tire experts said some of the inaccuracies shown by using a hand gauge checked for reliability by a government laboratory, indicated underinflation generous enough to threaten hazardous auto handling or tire failure at high speeds—blowouts.

Five of the pumps delivered air pressure right in line with that on their gauges. Most varied two to four pounds under or over their indication.

Variations were recorded of seven pounds less air pressure in the tire than stated and five pounds more than stated.

The safe course is using a pocket gauge, authorities said.

One official of a company which manufactures tire air dispensers said he always carries his own gauge.

The CP survey also points up the fact that the pumps' accuracy is controlled by federal, provincial or municipal legislation.

"It's a courtesy service offered without charge," said Gwyn Jones of the weights and measures division of the federal consumer and corporate affairs department.

If a fee were demanded for the air, it would automatically fall under the jurisdiction of the Weights and Measures Act and be monitored by inspectors. The accuracy of gasoline pumps is checked under this act.

Firms specializing in the installation of air-pressure gauges said they do not routinely check their accuracy. They said they get few phone calls from station operators for such a service.

And Ken Gard, president of the Ontario Retail Gasoline Merchants' Association: "I suppose, it's like everything else. They're probably accurate when they're new, but some of them are pretty old. No one in the oil companies ever checks them either."

Mr. Gard, who operates a service station, said his staff occasionally checks his pump, "and it might be out a pound or so."

Oil company spokesmen said a service station and its equipment are leased and maintenance is the responsibility of the operator.

"I don't believe the pumps were ever intended to be exactly accurate," said a Shell Canada spokesman. "They should be used as a source of air and the pressure checked with a proper gauge."

BP Canada Limited agreed. "If motorists don't have their own pocket gauge, the service stations always do," said a spokesman.

A Texaco spokesman said all tire pumps at his company's service stations are routinely checked once a month.

George Rasmussen, eastern regional manager for the Bennett pump division of the Tokheim Sales Corporation Company, which manufactures many of the tire inflation devices, said they are accurate when they leave the factory.

"But then nobody gives a d a m n about maintaining them," he said. "Everything mechanical deteriorates in time, and our pumps are no exception. They should be calibrated at least every six months."

Mr. Rasmussen said he uses a pocket gauge when checking the tires on his own car.

Too little air in a tire is its worst enemy, especially during the summer when prolonged, high-speed highway travel with a full load is common.

Heat accumulates within the tire. As the air pressure is decreased, the beds and cords generate heat because they rub together with the flexing of the tire wall and the squirming of tread on pavement.

Police report incidents where under-inflated tires have caught fire.

In addition to the blowout dangers, handling of the vehicle worsens, tire wear increases and fuel consumption rises.

Peter Keith, special projects officer with the federal ministry of transport's road and motor vehicle safety branch, said under-inflation "is unquestionably a safety hazard."

"It's difficult to say exactly when the greatest hazard is posed," said Mr. Keith. "There are many variables—the load on the tires, the speed of the car, the outside temperature, the type of road surface. Heat is the No. 1 killer of tires."

A circumstance which the engineer termed "real trouble" would be tires underinflated by six to eight pounds on a car or station wagon travelling at 80 m.p.h. with a full load.

Standard bias-ply tires and radial tires are the most resistant to heat buildup, he said. Bias-belted tires were the most susceptible. Belted tires contain more material and their construction is conducive to buildup of heat under conditions of heavy loading or under-inflation.

Jim Bancroft, chief of the transport department's accident and defects investigation branch, links poorly maintained tires directly with accidents.

But over-inflation is not considered a hazard until pressures reach 50 to 60 pounds per square inch.

"The solution is to use gauges only as a source of air," said Mr. Keith. "A pocket gauge is an inexpensive item and they're generally pretty accurate. This is what motorists should be using when they check their tires.

Ambulance Of Air Proposed

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Toronto lawyer and author Richard Rohmer proposes a fleet of aircraft and pilots to participate in a proposed St. John Ambulance air division emergency medical program.

He told the Ontario Flying Farmers 13th annual convention Saturday that an initial $15,000 budget had been obtained and the air division program will begin as soon as a full-time administrator is hired.

Mr. Rohmer is a member of the St. John Ambulance Ontario executive council.

Private fliers are being invited to join and be trained in first aid at local St. John Brigades. Pilots will receive about eight hours of free emergency first-aid training, Mr. Rohmer said.

The pilots would be asked to help fly for medical emergency cases, especially in the province's remote areas.

CIA Innocent

NEW YORK (Reuter) — William Colby, director of the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA), has denied that the CIA was involved in the coups which toppled governments in Chile and Greece.

In a Time magazine interview, Colby said: "We were not involved in the 1967 coup in Greece or the coup in Chile last year."

Oppose Plan

PORT ELGIN, Ont. (CP) — The Canadian council of the United Auto Workers (UAW), representing the union's 136,000 members, called on the weekend for unconditional amnesty for all United States Vietnam war resisters in Canada.

The 250-delegate council asked that the minister of external affairs make strong representation to the U.S. government for those who refused to fight "an illegal and immoral war in Indochina."

160 Drowned

DACCA, Bangladesh (AP) — More than 160 people are feared to have drowned after a passenger boat capsized last week in the Bay of Bengal, government officials said Sunday. The boat with about 250 passengers aboard went down off Hatiya Island on a voyage from the mainland. Initially only 21 persons were rescued, the officials said, but another 62 were picked up later.

Nominated

CORNWALL, (CP) — Paul Rouleau, a local lawyer, was nominated Saturday as the Liberal candidate in the Oct. 17 provincial byelection for the riding of Stormont.

Back Amnesty

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — Fifty-nine per cent of the American public think conditional amnesty is the best way to handle amnesty for United States military draft evaders and deserters, the latest Gallup poll says.

Thirty-four per cent of the 1,583 adults questioned Sept. 6 to 9 said they are in favor of no conditional amnesty while seven per cent had no opinion.

Coming Home

NICOSIA (CP) — The ordeal of a Canadian tourist family trapped by war in Cyprus is apparently coming to an end.

Nicolas Ioannides of Edmonton, his wife and four young children will be turned over to the United Nations or to the International Committee of the Red Cross today, it was learned Sunday.

Four Additives Safe

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) announced Saturday that it has established the safety of four common food additives.

They are the first to be approved since then President Richard Nixon ordered a review of more than 650 food ingredients and additives in 1969 after the sweetener cyclamate was banned.

FDA Commissioner Alexander Schmidt called the action "an important milestone in our goal of assuring that all food ingredients, whether old or new, are evaluated for safety by the best available scientific methods."

Affirmed as "Generally Recognized As Safe" (GRAS) were the antimicrobial agent propyl and methyl paraben, the sweetener sorbitol and the thickening agent locust or carob - bean gum.

Draft Dodgers Are Mostly U.S. Residents

TORONTO (CP) — Despite the American military exiles in Canada and other countries, the largest number of illegal war resisters still live in the United States, the leader of a U.S. anti-draft group said Sunday.

Irma Zigas, national co-ordinator of the National Council for Universal and Unconditional Amnesty, based in New York, said she is attending a weekend conference here of draft resisters and military deserters living abroad to tap their reaction to President Gerald Ford's offer of a conditional amnesty.

Mr. Ford's offer "has had a strengthening impact on unconditional amnesty forces in the U.S. ... punitive were its terms," Miss Zigas said.

Chamber of Commerce Asks Inflation Parley

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Chamber of Commerce called Sunday for a high-level meeting of government, business and labor representatives to deal with inflation.

J. E. Kluge, outgoing chamber president, urged the federal government to convene an early meeting "of the chiefs of labor and industry to our most serious problem, inflation."

Making the opening address to the group's 47th annual meeting, Mr. Kluge said he fully supports a proposal originally suggested a month ago by the Canadian Manufacturers Association.

The recent premiers' conference also called for a summit meeting of representatives to deal with inflation.

Prime Minister Trudeau has said such a meeting is unnecessary.

Mr. Kluge also asked the more than 700 members from across Canada to support efforts by business to improve communications with the public.

People are subject to so much anti-business propaganda they are puzzled by it, he said. Moreover, they were puzzled because there was a lack of information about how business works.

"I think that, instinctively most Canadians do not think that profit is a dirty word," he said. "If they work for a company, they know full well that unless that company makes a profit, their jobs and security are in jeopardy.

People must understand that the government's ability to finance necessary social programs depends on a healthy business environment, and its ability to generate profits and create jobs, Mr. Kluge said.

An Imperial Oil official told a panel at the meeting that government regulation of oil and natural gas prices must end so prices can reflect their world market value.

D. H. MacAllen, the company's vice-president of corporate affairs, said Canada's national energy policy must be directed toward total self-sufficiency.

Continued government price regulation will prohibit this, he said. Furthermore, government taxation and royalty policies and increasing government involvement through public energy companies is jeopardizing the recovery of future energy supplies.

Refugees Leave Trees

Naked Tots Burn In Honduras Sun

For the Poor - - Calamity

Children of families who took refuge in a stadium in the northwest Honduras town of Choloma munch on fruit distributed by relief workers Monday. Much of the town was swept away by Hurricane Fifi, which killed nearly 3,000 people there. (AP Photo)

TOCOA, Honduras (CP) — The floodwaters from Hurricane Fifi were subsiding today and countless hundreds left their refuges in trees and on rooftops in the Aguan Valley of northeast Honduras to flock to relief-aid centres looking for food and clothing.

Refugees whose houses of wood and palm fronds were washed away stood in groups waiting for help. Dozens of children were naked, and their mothers tried to keep them out of the hot sun. Almost, nobody had shoes.

"We never had very much," said Maria Angela Cantor. "Now we saved and we tried to buy a few nice things. Now we have nothing. Can't you help us?"

Missionary David Adams from Miami said many of the victims brought to his makeshift medical centre were suffering from exposure after two days of fierce tropical rainstorms without food or shelter.

Many of the children brought in were suffering from mild forms of dysentery and there was an upsurge of malaria but the graver epidemics fears earlier seemed not to have erupted.

Several hundred were sleeping on the floor of a school in this small town in the heart of the valley. They have no powdered milk for their babies and a few local grapefruit that survived the storm. But food and clothing have not arrived, and there are no blankets for the sleepers.

"We are all dying of hunger," said Odelia Perez, who escaped from Fifi's neck-high waters with only the mud-splattered, soaked dress on her back. "When is help coming? Look at my son, he has no clothes. We have lost everything."

The government late Monday night raised the official casualties of the total dead in northeast Honduras to between 7,500 and 8,000, and reports indicated it might climb to more than 12,000.

Military officials in the devastated San Pedro Sula-Choloma area, in the heart of the Ulua Valley estimate between 3,000 and 5,000 bodies have been burned or buried.

John Taylor of Boston, an executive of United Brands, one of the country's two major banana producers, said the crop was almost completely destroyed. Others put the loss at about $300 million and said it would take at least two years to rebuild the plantations.

Bananas are Honduras major export.

Finance Minister Manuel Acosta Bonilla said the official estimate of damage done by Fifi's rampage last Thursday night was $900 million, half the estimate given Sunday by Col. Ruben Villanueva, the chief relief officer in the San Pedro Sula-Choloma area.

President Oswaldo Lopez Arellano announced that an emergency committee was being set up to study the problem of rehabilitation.

Foreign Minister Cesa Batres said all hemispheric foreign ministers in New York for the United Nations General Assembly were to meet today to discuss the Honduran disaster.

Batres praised the emergency aid that has already arrived in Honduras but said more help is "indispensable for the reconstruction of the country."

Maria Anselma, whose five children died in the flooding, said she had had nothing to eat but a few pieces of fruit since wading through the water to safety three days ago. The only possession she had saved was a battered black umbrella and some borrowed shoes.

Honduran army officers said they desperately needed food and sanitary toilets for polluted drinking water.

In the capital of Tegucigalpa, aid was coming in from the U.S., West Germany, and many Latin American countries including Cuba but there were not enough planes to supply the valley and other devastated areas quickly.

Speed Limit Stays Same

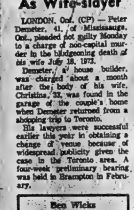
TORONTO (CP) — An Ontario government report recommend Monday says it is doubtful that reducing highway speed limits would reduce the highway death toll.

The report, prepared for Transport Minister John Rhodes by his department's safety branch, says that speed is not consistently an important factor in causing accidents. Road conditions, traffic volume and speed variance "may be more important." the report said.

However, speed was an important factor in the severity of road accidents.

The report follows widespread demands that speed limits on provincial highways, currently 70 miles an hour on regular highways and 70 miles an hour on controlled-access freeways, be lowered to reduce traffic deaths.

Advocates of lower speed limits quoted preliminary United States figures that seem to indicate a drop in highway deaths during the recent energy shortage when speed limits were reduced to 50 miles an hour.



Opponents of the idea say the reduced number of deaths is more closely related to a reduction in traffic volume than to lower speed limits, a conclusive the transport ministry report seems to support.

Mississauga Man on Trial As Wife-slayer

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Peter Demeter, 41, of Mississauga, Ont., pleaded guilty Monday to a charge of non-capital murder in the bludgeoning death of his wife July 18, 1973.

Demeter, a house builder, was charged almost a month after the body of his wife, Christina, 32, was found in the garage of the couple's home when Demeter returned from a shopping trip to Toronto.

His lawyers were successful earlier this year in obtaining a change of venue because of widespread publicity given the case in the Toronto area. A four-week preliminary hearing was held in Brampton in February.

Japanese PM Meets Trudeau

OTTAWA (CP) — The first Canadian-Japanese summit meeting in 13 years opened Monday with a promise by both sides to open a new chapter in relations between the two countries.

Japanese Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka, concluding a North and South American tour, met for two hours with Prime Minister Trudeau after arriving for a four-day official visit.

Their hastily-arranged affair adhere to Mr. Trudeau, said the men in private reviewed existing Canada-Japanese ties and agreed that intensified efforts should be made to broaden relations.

Both admitted that too little has been done to mould a relationship bringing maximum benefit to both countries, he said.

He told reporters that Mr. Tanaka dealt quickly with the main Canadian sore point in existing relations—the high percentage of raw materials exported to Japan.

While anxious to expand trade further, Canada wants more secondary manufacturing done at home and a higher percentage of finished products leaving the country. More than 90 per cent of all goods sold to Japan in 1973 were in raw or unfinished form.

By contrast, more than 70 per cent of all Japanese imports in Canada were finished goods.

Mr. Head said the visiting premier took pains to emphasize that Japan understands and accepts the Canadian position and is willing to promote increased secondary manufacturing.

Immigrants Keep Canadians Out of Classes

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. Bette Stephenson, president of the Canadian Medical Association (CMA), said Monday that a controversy is developing because some qualified Canadians are not able to enroll in Canada's 16 medical schools.

At the University of Toronto, which boasts the largest medical school in the country, 25 per cent of first-year medical students are Chinese, mostly from Hong Kong, she said in an interview.

Dr. Stephenson said the Chinese students are academically qualified but hundreds of qualified Canadians are being refused admittance to medical schools across Canada because foreign students are filling an ever-increasing number of places.

Judge Suggests One Court Rule on All Nixon Issues

WASHINGTON (AP) — A United States federal judge has proposed that a single trial court resolve all questions arising from the pardon of former president Richard Nixon.

U.S. District Judge Charles Richey said Monday "it might be desirable to have at least one trial court resolve whatever questions are extant with respect to the validity of the agreement and with respect to the validity of the pardon."

The comment came as Richey postponed action on attempts to retain some of Nixon's Watergate tapes for use in related civil suits.

In another Watergate-related court action Monday, Supreme Court Justice William Brennan rejected requests from former White House aides H. R. Haldeman and Gordon Strachan for a delay in the cover-up trial set for Oct. 1.

A similar postponement request from former White House aide John Ehrlichman was rejected last month.

Monday night, CBS reported that Nixon said on an unreleased tape that Jeb Magruder was supposed to "lie like hell" before a Watergate grand jury. The network said unreleased tapes of meetings April 25 and 26, 1973, between Nixon and Haldeman also showed, Nixon telling Haldeman he make sure no one, including then domestic affairs adviser Ehrlichman, knew that conversations were being taped.

CBS added that on the April 26 tape Nixon said he was afraid of becoming involved in Watergate and Haldeman noted that he would have to be innocent first and said that wouldn't happen.

The network then quotes Nixon as saying "No, I've been on that a little. Oh, my God, what have we done to be impeached."

Prosecution lawyers plan to use 32 tapes in the cover-up trial including the April 1 25 and 26 conversations.

Connally Asks For Dismissal Of All Charges

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former United States treasury secretary John Connally has asked dismissal of all charges against him in connection with an alleged $10,000 payoff for his help in securing a 1971 increase in the government's milk price supports.

His lawyers Monday asked Judge George Hart to throw out charges of bribery, perjury and conspiracy or to order the trial moved to San Antonio, Tex., near Connally's cattle ranch.

Canadians Don't Shun Dirty Work If They Find Jobs Challenging

TORONTO (CP) — It is not true that Canadians do not want to work, Robert Andras, minister of immigration and manpower, told the annual meeting of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce Monday.

What is true is that Canadians want satisfying jobs, he said. A federal government study shows fewer Canadians are interested in pay packets alone.

"They want more satisfying jobs, jobs where they are treated humanely and have a sense of achievement," he said. "They are prepared to do tough, dirty, disagreeable jobs, but they want personal as well as financial rewards."

Mr. Andras said the new desire for job satisfaction will put considerable pressure on Canadian employers and the government's manpower policies. But he said dissatisfaction will decrease as jobs are improved.

Earle Weichel, public relations executive director of the Ford Motor Co. of Canada Ltd., echoed Mr. Andras's concerns.

He urged businessmen to eliminate conditions which make work meaningless to employees.

Participating in a panel discussion, Mr. Weichel said today's worker wants to serve his own conscience and is no longer content to be "just another tin soldier in the platoon."

He said employers must "progressively upgrade" the satisfaction of individual workers.

Mr. Weichel said business must also respond to criticism, "Perhaps the fastest means of weakening our efforts now is to attempt to create the impression that everything is well, that our entrepreneurial system is cloaked in absolute purity, that every product and every service is without fault, that all profits are reasonable," he said.

In other business Monday, N. E. Currie, vice-president and economic advisor for the Bank of Montreal, cautioned against a switch to inflation accounting, which most companies are considering.

He said the only real solution is eliminating inflation from the system.

Mr. Currie said he wondered if changing the accounting system "would not merely substitute one illusion for another and cause a great deal of confusion to boot."

Provincial Corp. Tours City's Industrial Parks

Officials from the Eastern Ontario Development Corp. (EODC), the province's financial aid body to incoming industry, toured Belleville's industrial parks today.

The corporation accepts applications from businessmen who are seeking initial funding to begin a business or re-financing to enlarge existing businesses.

The corporation's regular monthly meetings are usually held in Ottawa. Last month, however, the meeting in Kingston co-inciding with the official opening of a new EODC office in that community. It is believed Mayor Robin Jeffrey extended an invitation for the corporation to visit Belleville at this time.

The corporation held business sessions in council chambers and briefly toured the industrial parks on the city's northern limits.

Carl Weese, a Trenton businessman and local EODC representative, said "we're (corporation) getting a fair share of local applications to consider though no local applications were on Tuesday's agenda.

Fred Bemis, the city's industrial commissioner, said the fact the EODC held its meeting here is important to the city in that "it gives the corporation a chance to personally inspect the area."

Reporters were restricted from attending the EODC session — sessions which traditionally are held in caucus.

An itinerary of their visit was released in advance of the meeting.

City To Prosecute Illegal Dumping

The city of Belleville is going to get tough with persons who persist in illegal dumping of garbage and other refuse on vacant lots in the city.

This was stressed Monday by Mayor Robin Jeffrey who told council the city would prosecute anyone found dumping other than clean fill.

Clean fill means only dirt and rock, the mayor pointed out.

In the case of illegal dumping every effort will be made to determine the offenders, but if they cannot be identified then owners of the property on which the illegal dumping is done will face prosecution under property maintenance by-laws.

Two of Belleville's environmental watchdogs — Clarence Young and Kenneth Peoples — have repeatedly accused the city hall of failing to take action against illegal dumping in the city.

Woman Dies In Crash

TRENTON — A 56-year-old traveller, Ont. woman, Mary Ann Stewart, was killed Monday in a single-car accident on Highway 401 near the St. Hilaire underpass, about three miles east of here.

Her husband, James Harold Stewart was treated at Trenton Memorial Hospital and released. The Belleville detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police said the vehicle was eastbound on Highway 401 when it went out of control and rolled over onto the north shoulder.

Damage to the car was estimated at about $3,000.

Business Seminar Planned

TWEED — The Industrial Development Bank of Canada will hold a management seminar here for small businessmen, following a meeting of this community's Chamber of Commerce.

Doug Storey, president of the chamber, initiated the meeting after saying the chamber should be spending more time and energy in helping the community.

He covered current trends of high interest rates and rising costs and said "there has been a lack of supervision in management and now in a time of expensive money, management practices will have to be reviewed."

The seminar will be held in the Tweed Legion Hall, Sept. 26, beginning at 9 a.m. The chamber has extended invitation to businessmen from several communities including Stirling, Madoc, and Marmora.

Charges Laid

ELDORADO — Fern Lennon, 17 of Eldorado has been charged with impaired driving, careless driving and having a blood alcohol level in excess of .08 per cent following an accident at 3:30 p.m. Monday.

Miss Lennon was westbound on County Rd. 11, three miles west of Highway 62 when her car was in collision with a pickup truck driven by Kenneth Bateman of Madoc. Both vehicles were write-offs.

Mr. Bateman, and a passenger in the Lennon car, Debra Bazuhoor, 16, were taken to Belleville General Hospital where they were treated and released.

Officials Discuss Insurance Costs

TRENTON — Town officials will continue study of a possible change in insurance coverage for municipal employees in an effort to save the town money.

The town, now covered through a private insurance agency, pays cash in premiums that it would if Trenton covered its workers under the Workmen's Compensation Board (WCB), council's committee of the whole session was told Monday.

Councillor Robert Wannamaker said the town is paying approximately $6,500 more for its private coverage.

The concern, said Mayor Robert Patrick, is simple: "It's a dollars and cents issue."

Local insurance agent Douglas Whitley argued that coverage through his office provides additional services not available through the WCB.

Besides taking over all responsibilities of the board, and paying out in cases the WCB would not touch, it provides the town with employers liability and legal liability coverage, he said. Any board increases in workers' pensions are immediately met by his company.

Mr. Whitley said WCB will likely increase its premiums, but added that his company also will likely boost its rates within the next 18 months.

Andrew Accepted

A ten-year-old Belleville boy, Andrew Pape, who recently was accepted as a full-time student at the National Ballet school, has been chosen to appear in the company's presentation of The Nutcracker Suite.

The event takes place at the O'Keefe Centre in Toronto during the Christmas holidays. Andrew will take part in all 22 performances, playing the part of the 'Naughty Boy'.

Andrew, the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Pape of 13 Queen St., has been attending classes at the National Ballet school in Toronto since early this month. He is one of 48 new students selected from almost 500 applicants who auditioned in 15 cities across Canada earlier this year.

The blond-haired lad spent the month of July attending the National Ballet summer school in Toronto.

Pathfinder Offers Children Chance to Learn to Sail

By MARG HATLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Education has gone to the sea dogs through a pilot project this fall being conducted aboard the brigantine Pathfinder.

Students from Lakefield College School, near Peterborough, are spending a month on the ship from Toronto Brigantine Inc., accompanied by instructors.

In-depth study programs in science, history and geography are offered to the 19 boys, students in Grades 10 and 11 with prefects from Grades 12 and 13.

The Pathfinder's role in this unique project was described by her skipper, Captain Maurice Smith, to Picton Rotarians recently.

This week the brigantine will set sail for Kingston where a study of the War of 1812 will begin.

Capt. Smith, skipper of the Pathfinder since she was launched in 1963, explained the history of Toronto Brigantine Inc., whose ship has been at Waupoos Island during the summer.

He said in 1961 a group of Toronto residents chartered a boat to see the Harrowsmith Trophy races at Hayward Long Beach, Toronto, they saw the brigantine St. Lawrence II from Kingston with her officioal crew of teenagers.

The Toronto visitors returned home greatly impressed by the young men and decided to build a brigantine.

Funds for the vessel came from their own pockets and, in 1963, the Pathfinder was launched. The ship's interior was finished through volunteer labor by members of plumbers', carpenters' and electrical workers unions in Toronto and the vessel became "a community effort."

In 1964, the Pathfinder began, and a second training ship, Star crew members were young boys from the streets, wards of the Children's Aid Society, youngsters from disadvantaged backgrounds and other from privileged homes.

Capt. Smith noted that analysis has shown about 66 per cent of the trainees are from ordinary backgrounds. The remaining 40 per cent are either underprivileged or highly privileged youths.

A summer camp was developed by Toronto Brigantine Inc. and a second training vessel, The Playfair, built.

The organization depends on donations and is strictly non-profit. It receives no government subsidies of any kind.

Next summer, hopefully, the Pathfinder, the Playfair and the St. Lawrence II will operate from Waupoos Island.

Capt. Smith suggested service clubs might consider sponsoring boys from the Picton area as lightness as there have been few from Prince Edward County.

Cost for each young sailor this summer was $90 per week but rising costs will boost this figure to about $130 in 1975.

Each group of trainees spends a week on Waupoos Island for basic training before going aboard ship for one or two weeks.

The boat and equipment, valued at $1,500 was found abandoned. It is owned by Robert Grabowski of Buffalo, New York.

REAL ESTATE:

WHO PAYS CAPITAL GAIN TAX?

Ed. McConnel
A. E. MacDonald Realty Ltd.

When you dispose of real estate, by giving it away (not to counsel), by dying (the hard way), or by selling it as a profit (the best way), a capital gain tax is payable. But not every property owner is required to pay the tax. No capital gain tax will be paid if the profit is made on the sale of one's "principal dwelling". This includes up to one acre of land. Farmers may use this rule or deduct $1,000 per year from the gain on the sale of house and farmland. All other real estate owned and sold and producing a net financial gain to the owner is subject to this tax.

Fifty percent of the net profit realized from the sale is added to your taxable income. If you are lucky enough to be in the 25% bracket, it means that the government gets 25% of the net profit. If you lose on a sale and gain on another, half the losses may be deducted from the gain. If there is a loss balance left, you may deduct up to $1,000 from the untaxed portion each year in the future from any income.

Bill Davis, clean up your Act.

As premier, you presided over a pretty oppressive piece of legislation.

An Act called CECBA (Crown Employees Collective Bargaining Act).

Remember it?

It concerns our rights, as your government employees, to bargain for better working conditions and benefits.

In fact, it denies us rights.

It means, for instance, that our disputes are settled by an arbitration board that's stacked in your favour.

You get to appoint two out of three members. Including the chairman.

Even though you're the people we're supposed to be bargaining with.

That's what we call oppressive legislation.

We want you to make that Act a fair one.

We only want bargaining rights equal to those of other Ontario workers. Including other public employees.

One word sums it up. Justice.

Be fair, Bill Davis. Change CECBA.

It's a very tough Act to swallow.

Drinking Problem

Law enforcement with regard to impaired drivers varies across the province, according to a report from the Centre for Forensic Sciences in Toronto.

For instance a comparison of charges laid under breathalyser tests in 1973 indicates that in the city of Brockville the ratio of charges laid is much higher than in any other major centre in the province.

Brockville's police chief, Les Sterritt, is quoted as saying that the figures — 281 charges for a population of 20,000 — "indicate that we have better enforcement in Brockville."

But Sault Ste. Marie with 379 charges for a population of 32,000 came close. Compare this with Belleville, with approximately the same population, and only 194 charges laid.

Cornwall, a city of about 44,000, issued only 210 charges last year. Kingston, with 54,000 people, showed 351 charges. Brantford, with 85,000 people, laid 274 charges. In Metro Toronto there were 9,055 charges for impaired driving out of a population of close to two million.

Other cities showed varying ratios, but from an international conference on drug and alcohol abuse in Toronto last week perhaps the most disturbing intelligence is the fact that for every charge laid an estimated 2,000 drinking drivers escaped police attention.

The conference recommended the introduction of inundatory, year-round roadside breathalyser checks. Under the present sporadic checks, it has been found that the incidence of impaired driving has increased when checks decrease. But in countries where there are roadside checks it has decreased markedly.

Another warning of the problems associated with alcoholism — this time as it effects the individual, his job, and industrial output — from Lloyd Fell, former Kingston representative for the United Steelworkers of America. Now a staff representative for the steelworkers in Toronto, an admitted former problem drinker, and a director of a union-management plan working to assist others with this problem, Mr. Fell says drinking on the job is becoming so prevalent that it will be "an uncontrollable monster in ten years."

It seems, that is, stringent measures — by police and organizations such as his which combine compassion with practical measures aimed at rehabilitation — are the only counter the trend. There would seem to be no choice really: tackle the problem resolutely, or face the consequences.

Margaret Trudeau

Life has its ups and downs and it is perhaps not too difficult to understand the emotional strain which Mrs. Margaret Trudeau is suffering from at the present time.

From the retiring, sheltered, life she led prior to the last election, the Prime Minister's wife has become a highly visible prominence. Suddenly she was a public personality. More significantly she was a political personality. Where before she had stayed in the background, she was now in the public eye. People clamored to see her. And sometimes her children were with her.

There is no doubt that in "coming out" as it were, she played a strong role in the Prime Ministers and the Government's success. And she sustained this role right up to the end when a picture showed a radiant Mrs. Trudeau and her husband entering their official residence after his election victory.

But then the bubble must have burst. The political uncertainty which the country has been languishing since the election, with a minimum of action and decision and leadership from Ottawa, may have been getting to Mrs. Trudeau too. It has all been so much anti-climax.

With the Prime Minister presumably busy with affairs of State, however limited they appear to have been, Mrs. Trudeau could be just another victim of boredom, loneliness, and family inactivity. Perhaps she needs nothing so much as a part-time job — if that is feasible for the wife of a Prime Minister with two small children — to get her out of the rut. Perhaps even do some more bike riding along the canal banks, which she used to do in the early stages of her marriage.

Pre-budget Parley with Ottawa Is A Lot Easier Said Than Done

By DON O'HEARN

TORONTO — The second most pressing request of Ontario by the provincial premiers (the first was for an inflation conference), was for an "interim" federal-provincial top level meeting prior to the federal budget.

At first glance this looks quite reasonable. Just let's sit around the table and you tell us what you are going to do so we won't be shocked on budget night. And perhaps while we're at it listen to a few of our complaints.

Ordinary courtesy seems to say that such a meeting should be in order.

However, it isn't all that simple. And neither is it all that practical.

So one confusing, awkward and inefficient fiscal system, where the federal government gives great hand-outs to the provinces, and the provinces, in turn, pass on massive payments to the municipalities,as if where the fiscal actions of one level of government can serious affect or strain the fiscal capacities of another, some consultation obviously is not only desirable but essential.

But consultation in its proper place and at the proper time.

The premiers may say that they are only looking for a "informal" meeting and otherwise grid the cat.

But any such meeting couldn't help but be a stormy, confused affair.

And in effect it would mean that 11 men instead of just one, the federal finance minister, would be trying to draw up a budget.

And this just isn't practical.

There is good reason why our system has fixed it that just one man is responsible for the budget. For anything else would be a class.

We attempt many things by committee, with the many varying views to be considered and most of them to be half satisfied, would have to lead to frustration, anger and weak policy.

That said, Ottawa still deserves reprimanding for inflicted roundhead.

It should be absolutely sure it knows the provinces' views and seriously considers and weighs them.

It has never done this sufficiently and recently it has been doing it less than hitherto.

For the sake of national fiscal peace and health it should listen more.

But not at budget time when the plans have been set. And not in the interesting months when it is first thinking about and forming these policies.

Cold War Politics Fast Fading In Light of Economic Realities

By GEORGE KITCHEN
UNITED NATIONS, (CP)

Emphasis in the United Nations is shifting from the political to the economic and this process is likely to be accelerated in this new fall session of the General Assembly.

The great East-West confrontations of the cold war are rapidly becoming a thing of the past because, as one diplomat put it, they now are increasingly irrelevant to the economic problems facing a large part of the world.

Confrontations still develop periodically in the security council but they have none of the fire and the drama of the political clashes which grew out of such world-shaking events as the Berlin Blockade, the Korean War and nuclear testing in the atmosphere.

The General Assembly discussions now turn more and more to economic problems, often spurred by the demands of underdeveloping countries. The core question is getting a better standard of living and a greater share of the world's wealth.

An example was the special session on raw materials called last March at the behest of the developing countries. The smaller nations finally achieved the objectives of the bigger, industrialized countries and, by virtue of their greater voting power, overwhelmed through a series of resolutions calling for the big powers to give them greater economic help.

Another example is the approaching world food conference and the emphasis United States President Ford placed on this in his address to the UN on Wednesday. Ford urged the countries of the world to join in a global strategy for food and energy, warning that failure to cooperate on food, oil and inflation "could spell disaster for every nation represented in this assembly."

What the diplomats call the "decolonization era also is virtually over, that era, which generated some of the great debates in the UN's early years, "world" countries fought for the freeing of colonial lands, has been brought to a close by Portugal's action in deciding to grant independence to her African colonies.

Only two major issues remain in that field—the questions of Rhodesia, where a large black majority is ruled by a small white minority, and South Africa, where policy of apartheid has long been condemned in UN debates.

The passing of the political era also has seen the development of growth of not always harmonious, co-operation between East and West. The Soviet Union, which shunned the formation of the UN peace force during the Korean war of 1950, now supports the new UN emergency force formed last fall to police the ceasefire that ended the October war of 1973.

The Soviet Union already has indicated interest in getting an Eastern European contingent into the ranks of the UN peace force in Cyprus when the force's mandate comes up for renewal later this session.

The Belleville Red Cross Society yesterday held its monthly meeting at the home of the Vice-President. Mrs. Stuart Lazier. A report of the year's activities was given by Mrs. Lazier and Miss Anna Hurley, special stress being placed on the Work Room activities and the Home Nursing Classes held under the guidance of Miss Hurley.

50 YEARS AGO

September 24, 1924

What the diplomats call the "decolonization era also is virtually over, that era, which generated some of the great debates in the UN's early years, "world" countries fought for the freeing of colonial lands, has been brought to a close by Portugal's action in deciding to grant independence to her African colonies.

Only two major issues remain in that field—the questions of Rhodesia, where a large black majority is ruled by a small white minority, and South Africa, where policy of apartheid has long been condemned in UN debates.

The passing of the political era also has seen the development of growth of not always harmonious, co-operation between East and West. The Soviet Union, which shunned the formation of the UN peace force during the Korean war of 1950, now supports the new UN emergency force formed last fall to police the ceasefire that ended the October war of 1973.

The Soviet Union already has indicated interest in getting an Eastern European contingent into the ranks of the UN peace force in Cyprus when the force's mandate comes up for renewal later this session.

Six boxes of gold bullion worth $215,000 were stolen from an unguarded building at Malton Airport, near Toronto. The gold, awaiting air shipment to Montreal, was never found but investigations indicated it had been flown in a private aircraft to New York. It was then believed to have been smuggled to Hong Kong and eventually to Communist China.

1778—The first shipment of furs from Canada sailed for China.

1789—The U.S. Supreme Court was established.

1974 — Wreckage — tele graph service from U.S. to Japan started.

Warning of "Zero Economic Growth" But Turner Remains Optimistic

By VINCENT DEAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Reporter
Thomson News Service

This month could be the crucial period for the future of the troubled Canadian economy.

Finance Minister John Turner and his staff are working toward presentation of a new budget at the forthcoming session of Parliament—a budget that must try to solve the problems of the present and the future.

Mr. Turner is being given advice by the cabinet. (Much of it, however, appears to be based on practises that he does not accept.)

Some of it was given to him at the recent Canadian Conference on Banking in Montreal, sponsored by the Canadian Bankers Association. There, the former head of the Economic Council of Canada, Arthur Smith, warned that today's inflated consumer prices still do not fully reflect the "big increases" that have taken place in non-monetary fuel and wholesale prices.

Then the finance minister travelled to France, West Germany and Britain to confer with his opposite numbers.

Next, a full-scale conference in Ottawa with the provinces.

Finally, the annual meeting in Washington of the 136-country World Bank and International Monetary Fund—the gathering place, each September, of the financial leaders of virtually all the non-communist countries.

According to the IMF, the world economy at mid-1974 was "in the throes of a virulent and widespread inflation, a deceleration of economic growth in reaction to the preceding high rate of expansion, and a massive disequilibrium in trade."

It would be comforting to think that these problems could be readily solved by the wave of a wand. But the finance ministers, armed as they are with so much expert advice, know that's only eyewash.

But that's only eyewash. And hope, in the face of the continuing danger that most of the economies of Western Europe will, one by one, follow Italy into near-bankruptcy, as their foreign-exchange reserves are depleted by the soaring cost of crude-oil supplies from the Mid-East.

As Messrs. Trudeau and Turner hover tire of talks, another Finance Department appearance has been better than that of most of the industrialized countries. (An exception is West Germany, where inflation is also at about half the Canadian level.)

But there are ominous signs of impending trouble here—some of them with far widespread strike- activity, huge contract settlements (more than 65 per cent over Great Lakes deck officers), a slowdown in new orders, a 30-4 per cent increase in non-residential construction activity, the likelihood of a $3-billion current-account deficit in our 1974 foreign trade.

"Growth rates will be basically negative for the next several quarters," says economist G. Leigh Skene of Fry Mills Spence Ltd., investment dealers.

"Canada is entering a recession which threatens to be prolonged."

John Turner, as usual, is more optimistic. "I do not believe for one moment that the world is rushing headlong to economic disaster," he told the bankers' convention.

But he concedes that recent economic developments reduce the prospect for early easing of Canadian inflationary pressures and for the maintenance of "balanced and healthy growth" of the Canadian economy.

The finance minister concluded his talk to the bankers with a reference to his "big loyalty of the next 12 to 24 months."

Mr. Turner has certain advantages as he prepares his budget—plenty of expert advice from sources both outside and inside the government at a secure majority position in Parliament, the prospect of at least four years in office.

Let's hope that he also has the political will to recognize the serious economic problems become—regardless of comparisons with other countries—and then to deal with them effectively in his budget.

Clearly Majority Government Goes With The "Divine Right to Rule"

By RICHARD JACKSON
OTTAWA (CP)

Nothing in their Establishment is more there is nothing quite like a bracing shot of majority government medicine to restore a government's feeling of justification in its divine right to rule.

Remember the humility of the Pearson years? In the first years of its uncertain minority mandate when it survived from one day to the next by the grace of the Opposition's inability to unite, until last spring, to bring it down.

Even Prime Minister Trudeau was humble.

He said so himself.

And then came the summer election with the Conservatives throwing it away on wage and price controls and the Jones Affair which not only cut into their support, but drove New Democratic votes into the Liberal camp.

It didn't matter that the Liberals went through their customary clean sweep of Quebec with enough fringe support from the Conservatives in the north and a stingy handful of votes in the West to give them just about the most regionally unbalanced representation any government has ever had.

They won. And that's what counted.

And do they know it!

The old feeling of indispensability is back.

Infallibility, too.

And with it all, a renewal of their faith in the creed of elitism.

U.S. "Cure" Worse Than The Disease

By Stratford Expositor

It is a year since the elected government of Chile's Salvatore Allende Gossens was cruelly thrown in a bloody coup d'etat led by Gen. Augusto Pinochet Ugarte.

It now appears that the coup which was spawned in a wrath of right-wing millionaires, has managed in one year to pursue in ferocity most if not all of the shortcomings that the Marxist Dr. Allende brought in his three years of his ill-spent leftist rule. Where Allende mismanaged the economy and brought the country to the verge of bankruptcy, Pinochet has succeeded in imposing a rule of terror closely akin to the Stalinist purges of the 30s - the very doctrine from which the right-wing coup sprung.

In doing so he has failed to solve any of the economic woes and in fact exploitation has increased with a free hand given to Canadian and U.S. capital in the world form.

While the cause of the coup matched the first anniversary of the assassination of Allende there was a blanket lack of complimentary well - wishing from around the world. Instead there was growing uneasiness that the coup may have led to the backing of the American Central Intelligence Agency. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger is alleged to have commanded while advising the CIA panel on activities in Chile "I don't see why we have to stand by while such a country go Communist due to the irresponsibility of its own people."

Given that logic the American cure for any country from Red! Invariably results in the cure being worse than the disease.

Land Purchases Go Sour on Buyers

By Montreal Gazette

The old fiasco film. Once again American investors have bilked into spending millions of dollars for small parcels of flat, marshy worthless Quebec countryside. They've bought it for 30 and 40 cents a square foot because of sharp operators who had bought it first for two cents a square foot told them it would soon be worth $1.50.

One couple told the Montreal Urban Business Bureau they borrowed $10,000 in hopes of tripling their investment in a few months. But they're finding nothing to show for it but rising taxes and a mortgage on their land. It's home, it is a sad story, and the saddest part is the inhuman foolishness of greed.

There is nothing new about this. Americans and Canadians have been fleecing themselves and one another for years with spurious bargains all the way from the Earth Wants to be Green Estates, which "Septemier, of the was growing uneasiness that the coup may have led to the backing of the American Central Intelligence Agency. New Rape Laws Ready For Study

HALIFAX (CP) New courtroom safeguards for rape victims and legislation establishing a federal commission of human rights to deal with discriminatory practices will be introduced at the next session of Parliament, Justice Minister Otto Lang said Monday.

He told a news conference that when new laws regarding the victims of rape are proclaimed, complainants will no longer feel they are being doubly attacked by being exposed to open courtrooms and harsh defence lawyers.

Rockefeller Impresses Senators

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nelson Rockefeller returns today for more questioning of his ability to become vice-president of the United States, leaving almost certain that his youth represents no danger to the country.

Senator Robert Byrd, a Democrat from West Virginia, said in an interview that Rockefeller's performance before a Senate committee Monday had eased fears that "big business, big oil and big banks will run it."

Both Senator Howard Cannon, chairman of the Senate rules committee, and Byrd said they see little obstacle to confirmation of the former New York governor as vice-president.

Committee members Monday asked Rockefeller about matters ranging from his personal and family finances to his approval of New York's controversial abortion law.

"You were great," Rockefeller's wife, Happy, told him as she kissed his cheek after the session.

West Richer

OTTAWA (CP) — Last year was a good one for westerners, a report released Monday by Statistics Canada shows.

The report showed the increase in total personal income in 1973 in the four western provinces was greater than the national average, with only one other province—Prince Edward Island—above average.

Paper Price Up

NEW YORK (AP) — Price Paper Co., one of Eastern Canada's largest newsprint producers which supplies newsprint to such papers as the New York Times and the Washington Post, kicked off Monday what some analysts agreed would be the next round of newsprint price increases.

Blaming rising costs of fuel, wood pulp and chemicals from which paper is made, the company said its next boost of $25 per ton, the fourth increase announced in a year, will go into effect Jan. 1, 1975.

Give Self

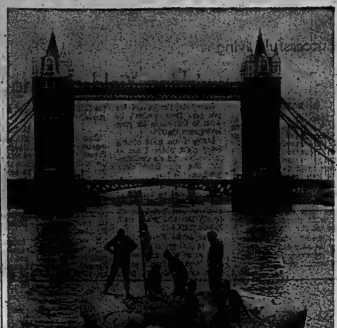
TORONTO (CP) — Paul-Emile Cardinal Leger said his highest dinner of this year's United Way campaign Monday that it is not enough to give by collecting money for worthy social causes.

"You should also be making a gift of self," said Cardinal Leger, who retired seven years ago as Roman Catholic cardinal of Montreal to work with the lepers and handicapped in Africa.

Wound Fatal

MONTREAL (CP) — Adolpse Potvin, 49, a security guard shot during the Aug. 21 armed robbery of a Brinks' Canada armoured truck in Toronto's Dundas, died in hospital Monday.

Mr. Potvin of Plumbins, Que., was rushed to Montreal's Notre Dame Hospital for surgery to remove a bullet lodged above his right eye. He remained on the critical list until his death, a hospital spokesman said.



For Three Rs

BAPAKA, Ont. (CPG) — Dr. William McLean wants the Lambton County board of education to go back to the three Rs, in a school in the county.

Dr. McLean, vice-chairman of the board, insisted Monday he was not the "old-fashioned" in calling for a disciplined approach to elementary school studies, but said he wants to reverse the trend of a "permissive" attitude in schools.

The board agreed to ask its administration to prepare a report by Jan. 31 on such a scheme for the county.

U.S. Seeks European Support In War on High Oil Prices

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The Ford administration's attack on high oil prices marks the beginning of a new offensive to turn world sentiment against the producing countries and to unite Western Europe with the United States in energy co-operation.

President Ford, Treasury Secretary William Simon and State Secretary Henry Kissinger all came down hard Monday on the continued high prices set by the oil-producing countries. They contended that no country, including the oil states, can escape the consequences if the world is pushed into a depression.

In speeches by Ford and Simon in Detroit and by Kissinger at the United Nation General Assembly, the U.S. all but demanded an end to rising oil costs.

The next strategic move will be a meeting of the foreign and finance ministers of major non-Communist industrial countries at Camp David this weekend to discuss energy problems caused by price rises by the Arabs, Iran, Venezuela and other producers.

It is not entirely clear what actions can be taken to carry out the blunt words by Ford, Kissinger and Simon, but among the possibilities are said to be joint conservation steps and a pooling of energy for disaster situations. The use of force is considered very much out of the question.

Ford, who is a UN speech last Wednesday cautioned oil producing countries that manipulation of energy prices could lead to counter action using force as a political and economic weapon, told the World Energy Conference in Detroit Monday. "The danger is clear. It is severe. I am nevertheless optimistic. The advantages of co-operation are as visible as the dangers of confrontation."

Simon told the same meeting the oil-exporting countries were jeopardizing their own economies by keeping prices at high levels.

"The international investments of all nations are in jeopardy and the old fable of the goose that laid the golden egg can be seen developing in today's business and in international cable traffic," he said.

Kissinger, in even tougher language, told the General Assembly, "the world cannot sustain over the present level of prices, much less continuing increases."

Oil Minister Ahmed Zaki Yamani of Saudi Arabia, whose country is the largest Arab oil producer told the Detroit meeting later that the oil countries' price increases were an overdue reaction to the removal of the 'fat that for many Western oil companies had kept oil prices.

He said the solution to the financial problems resulting from the high oil prices "will be largely contingent upon the cooperation of both developed and developing nations with the oil producing countries to create a healthy environment for investment opportunities" of the oil countries' huge surplus funds.

Canadians Discuss Gas Price Increase

DETROIT (CP) — Most Canadian action took place behind closed doors Monday, as the ninth world energy conference opened five days of talks on a wide range of topics.

Energy Minister Donald Macdonald met two United States cabinet members, to discuss a 7-per-cent increase announced last week in the price of Canadian natural gas exported to the U.S.

Today, the minister hoped to hold talks on international petroleum prices with Sheik Ahmad Zaki Yamani, the Saudi Arabian minister of petroleum.

The U.S. officials—Treasury Secretary William Simon and Interior Secretary Rogers Morton—said during the meeting they were disappointed at the price increase.

But despite their unhappiness, the Americans said there was no question of economic retaliation, Mr. Macdonald told reporters later.

The two U.S. cabinet officials suggested that Canadian prices also should be increased.

Mr. Macdonald said he told them higher domestic prices are expected, but not necessarily to the same level as export prices.

The wellhead price of Alberta gas is being increased to 42 cents from 45 cents a 1,000 cubic feet, a move that would put the price of gas in the large Toronto market to between 80 and 90 cents, he said.

At present, gas sells there for about 70 cents.

Negotiations between the federal and provincial governments on domestic-price increases are continuing, Mr. Macdonald said.

Child Taken

CINCINNATI (AP) — Police say the four-year-old daughter of Charles Mechem Jr., board chairman of Taft Broadcasting Corp., was kidnapped Monday as she played in front of her home.

A $2,000 ransom was demanded for the safe return of Allison Mechem in one of at least two phone calls to the family, police said.

FBI agents joined police in the search for the child.

Consult Citizens

OTTAWA (CP) — The transport department, scarred by controversy over airport development plans at Montreal, Toronto and Vancouver, announced Monday that citizens' advisory committees will be set up to help plan new facilities at Hamilton and Windsor, Ont., municipal airports.

A joint federal and Ontario government technical committee will also be set up to coordinate technical studies for expansion of the two airports which are congested at peak hours.

Worldwide Protest Is Planned Against Ford Amnesty Scheme

TORONTO (CP) — Plans for worldwide protest demonstrations on Oct. 5 were announced here Monday by United States war resisters intent on a unilateral boycott of President Ford's conditional amnesty program.

Irma Zigas, co-ordinator of the U.S. National Council for Universal Unconditional Amnesty (NCUUA), told a news conference that demonstrations are being planned across the U.S. and at embassies and consulates in many countries during the NCUUA's Week of Concern, Sept. 29 to Oct. 5.

Renewed condemnation of the Ford amnesty offer and a campaign for a total boycott against it were announced as the major resolutions of the three-day conference of U.S. military deserters and draft resisters from Canada, England, Sweden, France and the U.S.

Mrs. Zigas and other spokesmen agreed that the message of the conference is directed more to the "hundreds of thousands" of war resisters living underground in the U.S., than to the relatively small number in Canada and elsewhere.

Henry Schonenfeld, a spokesman for the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU), said the most important result of the conference is to throw resisters who are thinking of "surfacing" in the U.S., "despite the president's offer."

"They would be foolish to do so because they don't realize the stigma they would be attached to a 'clemency' discharge. Not a 'General' or 'Honorable' discharge would mark a resister for life."

Mrs. Zigas said there are "at least 200,000 persons in the United States who have been made aware of the Draftdodgers' Rights Act of 1974."

She said the NCUUA steering committee decided to attend the war resisters' international conference here as a method of communication with resisters underground in the U.S. She advised them to stay underground.

The NCUUA said in a statement that the "wheels of treacherous traps will be sprung on those who give themselves up even if the first few will be treated fairly."

Indian Caravan In Kenora

KENORA, Ont. (CP) — A native people's caravan of about 200 strong—arrived here Monday evening.

The group, which includes Sioux, Cree and many children, was staying at the Friendship Centre, where most of the negotiations between town officials and Indians took place in the pavilion of Anicinabe Park todate.

Ed Burnstic, a member of the American Indian Movement is said to be the group co-ordinator, expressed optimism about the chances of achieving the group's objectives when it arrives in Ottawa for the opening of Parliament Oct. 8.

"We've received a lot of moral support from people who are able to give us support and have a strong say in Ottawa," he said, though he declined to specify who these groups were.

Switch Plans

TORONTO (CP) — Location of a meeting on women in prisons, originally to have been switched from the Toronto Men's Press Club to a room in the Ontario legislature after the chairman of the meeting discovered the club does not admit women as members.

Forced Paper Sale Opposed

FREDERICTON (CP) — There should be no forced sale of Irving newspapers in New Brunswick because no one-man monopoly now exists, an Irving lawyer argued Monday to a provincial Supreme Court appeal hearing. The case continues today.

John J. Robinette of Toronto, one of the country's leading newspaper lawyers, said any monopoly was dissolved in the spring of 1973 when ownership of five Irving dailies was split between John Irving and his brothers James and Arthur, all of Saint John, N.B.

Last July Mr. Justice Albany K. Bridges ordered two papers, The Times and The Transcript in Moncton, sold to a purchaser group having no connection with the Irving interests. They said in it he could not afford what a year after court action is concluded.

The sale was then followed conviction of four Irving companies on a new price monopoly charges and the imposition of fines totalling $50,000. When charges were laid in 1971, New Brunswick's five English-language dailies were controlled by K.C. Irving Ltd., headed by the millionaire father of the present owners.

Mr. Robinette argued that the appeal court Judge Robichaud had no jurisdiction to order John Irving to give up his sole ownership of the Moncton papers. He said John Irving was not charged, played no part in the trial and had been ordered to dispose of his assets without a hearing. He was a son of K.C. Irving but he had the same rights as any citizen.

Wheelchair Doesn't End Romance

By ANN LANDERS

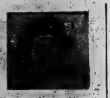
Dear Ann: I've been reading your wonderful letters about people in wheelchairs. In my opinion, one of the greatest services you have ever performed is letting people know that just because a person (male or female) is in a wheelchair, it doesn't mean he or she cannot perform sexually.

My husband and I were married only 19 months when he had an accident that paralyzed him from the waist down. He spent two months in a hospital with a broken neck and eight months in that wonderful Rehabilitation Institute in Chicago.

I took a three-month instruction course to learn how to care for him. We both were instructed on the sexual aspect of living together.

My husband has been back at work for nearly a year. Our sex life was wonderful before the accident, and it is wonderful now.

Again, my thanks for all the good you do.—An Ann Fan



Dear Friend: And my thanks to you for another chance to inform my readers in this very sensitive area. I appreciate the opportunity immensely.

Dear Ann Landers: May I respond to Mrs. Sherlock Holmes? She wrote about that dude who hiccoughed every time he was excited. Do you know he did it to attract attention.

I am not a professional, but I have had plenty in the course that I'm a victim. Please tell Mrs. Sherlock that she could be wrong.

The first time I had the hiccoughs it went on for nearly eight weeks. After several days I had to go to the hospital. Everyone thought it was very funny, but my chest was so sore I could hardly stand for the doctor to put the stethescope on it. He told me I had a physical problem, gave me medication and prescribed cosapnea bed rest. In about 10 days I stopped hiccoughing.

In the last two years, however, I have had three recurrences, each lasting from one to three weeks. This time I'm getting back on medication and waiting it out. Please tell people not to jump to conclusions when they hear someone hiccoughing in a public place. It could mean you

How can I stop this rotten habit?—A Thief

Dear Friend: I urge you to talk to a guidance counselor at school. Or, since money appears to be plentiful in your family, you could ask your parents to send you to a therapist. No need to be explicit. Simply tell them you feel depressed and troubled and that you want professional help.

Once you understand why you are stealing from your dad you will be able to stop. A good therapist will also help you straighten out a few other problems which you didn't mention, but is all probability exist.

Sky-watching Yields Falling Stars

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: Last night at dark I paddled out in the middle of the lake, lay back on the gunwales and stared up at a sky so clear you could almost be certain of seeing even the tallyho stars in the Milky way.

For my effort — no effort at all, lying down and gently rocking with the waves — I saw three falling stars and a satellite; was haunted by the call of a nearby loon.

Knowing your fascination by the stars and your leaning to astronomy I just wanted to share it with you.

Peter

Dear Peter: I'm jealous! Are you sure there wouldn't be room in that canoe for your loving aunt (me)?

Monday, I am quite content being right where I am — in comfort and air conditioning. But oh, those clear Nebraska skies! ;)

The stars are so bright, so numerous and so close, that you feel you could almost reach up and turn them on or off. But who would want to turn them off?

Dear Doris: Should someone in the groom's family, such as an aunt, have a preacquainted tea for the bride-to-be, so that she can meet the family and friends of the groom?

Canadian Customs

Dear Canadian: Not necessarily but a lovely thought. Friends who have cared about the bride-to-be ever since she was little, will want to meet the groom's family too. It should not be a shower, but a pleasant informal evening. Perhaps it would provide an evening's fun to get together on making up a Bride's Scrapbook.

If you would like instructions for this, write in again, enclosing 25 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelop. (This idea is a good one for any pre-wedding party or shower. The leaflet, "Bride's Scrapbook," is available to anyone for mild 25 cents and 7 stamped envelops.)

(Doris invites comments or correspondence, in care of this newspaper. If you need about a problem similar to the one you have solved, let's hear about it.)

Planning, Not Abortion Should be Top Priority

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian debate over abortion is preventing development of effective family planning programs, a report in the Canadian Medical Association Journal says.

Douglas Cowie, the medical association's director of communications and writer of the report, wrote that an obsession with statistics, personal rights and moral issues "has obscured and deterred Canadian society from addressing itself to the development of meaningful, effective, co-ordinated family planning programs."

The Criminal Code says abortion may be performed to protect the health or life of the pregnant woman.

The report notes that Justice Minister Otto Lang has said the intent of the law is to permit abortion only when there is definite proof the mother's health is in serious jeopardy.

But the problem is that a definition of health has not been established in legislation or courts, the report says.

Mr. Cowie's report calls on all segments of society to stop the debate on abortion and place top priority on a major birth control program.

The medical association has recommended that advice and assistance on family planning be made readily available to all residents of the country.

JUST IN TIME

CHESTER, N.S. (CP) — The skipper of the Tancook ferry Shoreham received a call last night at midnight from Rev. Charles L. Belong, Protestant minister on Tancook Island, nine miles off this south shore Nova Scotia town. Within 45 minutes, Capt. Arthur C. Stiles completed the round trip to the island, bringing Mr. Belong's wife to the mainland where, two hours later, she gave birth to their first child after 10 years of marriage.

USE LOTS OF SALT

OTTAWA (CP) — In pickling use coarse salt rather than table salt to prevent the brine from becoming cloudy, advises the food advisory service of Agriculture Canada. Use plenty of salt. Pickles will be soft or slippery if enough is not used; if too little they may shrivel and become soft.

Running Through It Once

Spring and fall. Traditional seasons, for a lot of pleasant activities and particularly, in Belleville anyway, the times for fashion shows.

The game card is always the same. Women's groups and merchants work together — sometimes for months — to put together a program that will do justice to both of them.

The models — almost always members of the women's group — want to look, if not glamorous at least great. And the merchant wants her clothes to look ... well, buyable.

All the effort is usually in a charitable cause and in the end, everybody's happy including the hundreds of women who attend the show itself.

The show is just the tip of the proverbial iceberg and up to showtime, there's a mountain of work to producing a good show.

Monday night, for example, members of the Bay of Quinte Chapter of the National Secretaries' Association got together with representatives of Jackson-McIlvier to put the finishing touches on the fashion show they'll present Wednesday at St. Michael's Auditorium.

Here's what it looked like last night.

Barbara Miller, who organized the NSA fashion show, gives models a pep talk before Monday's run through. Myrtle Marchen, of Jackson-McIlvier, was on hand to help.

While Sandra LeBreque models one of the fashions she'll wear, Barbara Miller practices her commentary in a relaxed way.

Waiting their turn backstage: Nancy Lupenette, Tammy Miller and Cindy Gare.

Union Man Who Knew Nothing Remade Image of Far North

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — When he walked into his Ottawa office to find himself being appointed deputy commissioner of the Northwest Territories, Stuart Hodgson, 52, tried straight pins and argued taps in a desk drawer.

"That's all there was, nothing else," he recalled.

The files started to come and no one showed me anything. I don't know what PA meant or EP or T. And if you don't know that you'll never get anywhere in the civil service. Because PA means put away, EP means hefig forward on a certain date and T means transfer."

"I literally went right to the bottom. I would spend the mornings with the letters and mail and understand his job. Then I'd go back and try to do my job in the afternoon. Then next morning I'd go to the bottom job, I went through the whole building. It took me one hell of a lot by the end of that year I knew it."

The self-imposed crash course helped make Mr. Hodgson, a woodworker's son who dropped out of high school to become a union organizer in Newfoundland, a colorful and controversial commissioner of the Northwest Territories.

During his first year as deputy commissioner he kept a low profile, listening and learning. In 1966, he got the break he'd been waiting for.

He was called into the office of Commissioner Ben Sivertz and advised that the commissioner was expected to give speeches in Ottawa and Whitehorse on the same day and night.

"I'm going to Whitehorse and you're going to give my speech for me in Ottawa," Mr. Sivertz told him.

"Have you got the speech so I can make it for you?" Mr. Hodgson asked.

"No," replied Mr. Sivertz, "make your own speech."

"I could have kissed him because the three things that I had always had strong points were the ability to negotiate, the ability to run a meeting and ability to express myself in public. But I had never had a chance to use any of those and I had to rely on things I started with as strong in like writing a position paper."

Mr. Hodgson said he was introduced to the civil service gathering as a representative of the territorial government which was "just a little teeny thing in the Canadian bureaucracy."

"I stood 'em on their ear because they had never heard anyone like that. I was at that stage of my development, a fiery orator. When I finished, Mr. Frank Carter, the director, said say was, 'Well, you certainly got across the territorial point of view.'"

The territorial view was that the government should be in the North, not in Ottawa.

The speech did wonders. "I suddenly found in the department that where I'd been kept waiting outside a door for an hour I had no difficulty any more."

On March 1, 1967, Mr. Hodgson's telephone rang. Could Mr. Hodgson please come over to Mr. Carter's office?

"So I went over to the House and Mr. Lalog said, 'I've decided to appoint you commissioner.'

Mr. Hodgson discovered there were those who doubted his credentials and ability.

"In the summer of '67 I decided the only way to do it was to go and face my critics," he said. So I organized meetings of the staff in Fort Smith, Yellowknife, Inuvik, Churchill, Frobisher Bay and two in Ottawa."

Ottawa was his toughest audience.

"I used every trick I ever learned—the dumb guys were always over, 'Oh, I don't know these—ever said anything about a federal civil service' and suddenly some guy comes in and is going to take over and is advocating that the people up here run the governments. That doesn't go over well.

"I think I was the right man at the right time in the right environment. I was lucky. So, man when I count on my feet. I don't mean to say I didn't get a few lumps. But at least I had the courage and guts to stay there and fight."

The decision on when the territorial government would move north was handled by Mr. Hodgson in a manner that would become known for quickly, firmly and perhaps autocratically.

"I didn't consult Ottawa, the minister or anybody. I called it over with John (Deputy Commissioner John Parker) and decided we would come here on Sept. 16."

From a welcoming party at the Rita Hall to Yellowknife, the territorial move, known as his rented bungalow. The cupboard was bare.

The next day Mr. Hodgson and Jack Oates, its aide borrowed from the federal government, bought some food. They didn't bother to purchase cooking utensils because they knew their pots and pans would be arriving from Ottawa in a week or so.

They polished off the contents of a couple of cans of tomato juice and corn and used the empty tins to cook and boil water in.

There were no government offices. John Parker nailed signs on the doors of the curling rink and an old school that read: "Office of the Commissioner of the Northwest Territories."

Mr. Hodgson, meanwhile, sat in his living room chuffing through job applications, a process that has increased the territorial establishment from less than 30 in 1967 to more than 2,500.

The commissioner then tackled the next important job—getting the people of the North on his side.

First he approached the business community to Yellowknife and asked its advice on policy matters. Then he began the first of his annual trips to each of the North's more than 70 communities.

Previous visits by federal government officials had usually been cursory. Mr. Hodgson held public meetings in the settlements.

Mr. Hodgson said he had a plan mapped out before he left Ottawa in September, 1967.

"We would begin by building an administration in Yellowknife. We would take over the full Mackenzie region on April 1, 1970, and we would take over the eastern Arctic on April 1, 1976.

"There were those who said, 'Hodgson will never make it.' We weren't a second off."

With the territories physically united, Mr. Hodgson faced his next challenge—the union of its people.

He decided on a centennial celebration, with the Queen as guest of honor at a territorial ball. The ball brought 13 gether Eskimos and Indians in traditional dress and wishes in hundreds and attracted attention in the south, particularly from journalists and MP's who criticized Mr. Hodgson for wasting money.

The commissioner had no apologies.

Until that time the North had just been a shivering place of ice behind a curtain. When I joined the council we had $7 million to spend. Now we have $120 million."

Mr. Hodgson said running the territories is a different ball game now.

"Some feel discovered oil and now you've got the land claims thing and ethnic organizations and things of that kind."

The discovery of oil at Prudhoe Bay, Alaska, in 1968 started talk of a Mackenzie Valley pipeline, which in turn has awakened native organizations to the opportunity to press for unsettled treaty obligations.

Times have changed the North but Mr. Hodgson said he hopes history will acknowledge that "I made a positive start in making the North, and helped to plot its course, when federal government."

"If I've done nothing else, I've put the Northwest Territories on the map of Canada."

Vocal Civil Servant Northern Administrator

REGINA (CP) — Douglas McArthur admits he's pretty worried about the difficulty he'll be facing him as deputy minister of the problem-plagued department of northern Saskatchewan.

Both insiders and outsiders were surprised when the 31-year-old former Governor-General's Gold Medal winner and Rhodes Scholar from University of Saskatchewan was named to the post effective Oct. 1.

An outspoken white southerner, Mr. McArthur joined the Saskatchewan NDP government as deputy agriculture minister and has earned the image of being outspoken and controversial. He particularly objects to the concept that civil servants at the deputy minister level should not become involved in political debate.

He says bluntly in the particular kind of criticism because that seems to suggest that civil servants should be bland, unheard, unthinking people who have no ideas, who do not look at, and talk publicly about policy considerations," he said in an interview.

"I don't think a civil servant should be outspoken about government policies and that sort of thing."

He said his new position scares him in the sense of the difficulty of the job, "the many unknowns and uncertainties."

In particular, there is the relationship with native people and other groups in the North.

"It would be foolish of me or naive to say there wouldn't be some fairly serious difficulties in that section or some questioning about how well this guy understands the North and what he's going to do."

Mr. McArthur feels he has no preconceived ideas and is starting with a clean slate, any particular interest in the area.

He stressed the department must not attempt to take over the North but must act as a catalyst to provide essential maintenance services, leadership and participate.

The department must give important consideration to redressing the imbalances in opportunity that have been created. It must play an important role in providing social and economic justice to peoples generally and, as a result, must be a partner.

He said he applied for the position because he feels he can contribute something.

"A lot of things have happened in agriculture and I'm pleased and proud of what we've done here and I think the department's in pretty good shape."

He said that he's made statements that "could be considered to be partisan to government" and statements at times that could be considered as "criticism of government."

"I consider it my role within government to try to influence policy. I have my own opinions, my own ideas and I consider myself my own man within government and I can be, if I reach my own conclusions about the way we should go."

As he faces the new position, he knows the options are open.

"I have no hang-ups about wanting to be in one civil service or one area of employment all my life. I'm much more concerned with doing constructive, interesting things that I can agree with," Mr. McArthur said.

"No government is going to have trouble getting rid of me if we're in disagreement. I've got lots of options. They've got lots of options."

Lalonde Asks Beer Ads Show Drinks Refused

OTTAWA (CP) — Beer commercials had better start showing "real people in real-life situations" or advertising regulations could be tightened, Health Minister Marc Lalonde said Monday.

Mr. Lalonde told the Brewers' Association of Canada that too many brewing companies try to convince people their products are essential to having a good time.

Beer commercials showing "a bellion ride on a sunny summer day, a jolly party for rich young swingers, volleyball on a white sand beach in southern climate, sailing on an expensive yacht, don't reflect society's values," said Mr. Lalonde.

Beer companies should take advantage of their freedom to use advertising to educate the public in the wise use of alcoholic products, said Mr. Lalonde who, himself, abstains from alcohol and tobacco.

He said commercials should sometimes show people saying, "No thanks, I've had enough, because I have to drive home" or simply "No thanks, I've had enough."

Mr. Lalonde, quoting figures that show every drinking Canadian consumes an average of 33 litres of beer a year, said public awareness is being aroused to "the ravages of alcohol abuse" and that governments are being urged to abolish alcohol advertising altogether.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 26, 1972

City's Strong Industrial Growth Means Long-term Prosperity

The rapid industrial growth Belleville now is experiencing will mean 500 new jobs for the area and residents during the next year and a half.

In recent months six industries have announced their intention of locating in the city and begun construction of facilities.

Fred Bemis, the city's industrial commissioner and Roy Bilsen between Belleville and potential industrial clients, said Monday in an interview "those jobs will become available over the next 18 months."

"Some companies are already beginning to hire staff to get training programs underway. This is to augment personnel with new equipment before the company commences full production," he said.

Based on government statistics the average wage across these companies is expected to be approximately $140 weekly.

"These jobs will earn more than $3 million a year spending the financial dollar in every portion of the community," said Mr. Bemis.

In addition, nearly 300 "spin off" jobs will be created through this industrial expansion, the industrial commissioner said.

"For every industrial job created, three other service industry jobs have opened somewhere in the community," said Mr. Bemis.

This three-to-one ratio is "realistic" said Mr. Bemis. "It's a standard figure used by economists in describing the total effects of industrial development on a community."

However, Mr. Bemis added the ratio does not mean 300 people will be hired to handle the nearly 300 new manufacturing jobs.

"It might be a case where agriculture could help in many full time as trade increases," he said.

Plan Expected Soon

Belleville's long awaited official plan will be before city council for approval some time next month.

At least that is the hope of Mayor Robbie Jeffrey, who Monday said she wants the plan to be in Toronto for ministry approval by the end of October.

Copies of the long awaited official plan were circulated to council members Monday when referred it to the Special Planning Advisory Committee for consideration at their next meeting.

At the meeting SPAC will determine whether it is necessary to hold further public meetings.

If the committee decides on further public meetings are necessary the plan will be sent back to council which will then deal with it at a special meeting. In any event the public will be entitled to attend the special committee meeting.

The Quinte Planning Board some weeks ago cut off further submissions in connection with the official plan.

Equipment Taken

There are some thieves in Belleville with a discriminating ear. Early today city police said thieves broke into Vaughan Electronics and Appliances Ltd. on Church St. Taken were $1,500 worth of stereo equipment, including a stereo receiver, record changer, and an eight track tape player.

Last Roses of Summer

Tuesday brought the first day of fall. But the last roses of summer still bloom in Corby Park. Peter Koekman, park gardener, checks the final showing of thousands of blooms he carefully tended through warmer days.

Council Rejects Proposal To Relocate New Bridge

Belleville city council will not go along with the idea of a new high-level bridge across the Bay of Quinte being located west of the city.

This was indicated Monday at the regular meeting of council as members voted non-concurrence in a resolution from Ameliasburgh Township stating that the new bridge should connect with the Wallbridge-Loyalist Road west of the city limits.

Such a location, the township suggested, would be to the best general benefit of residents from Ameliasburgh and Prince Edward County. It would provide a direct access to Highway 401 without the necessity of travelling through Belleville.

But the resolution failed to get any support from city aldermen.

Alderman Arthur Keegan said he wonders what would happen to present Highway 14 if a bridge location west of the city was approved while Alderman John Stock claimed the Ameliasburgh suggestion is just not valid.

He said there already is a direct connection with Highway 14 and suggested any change in the bridge's location would necessitate a whole new highway system.

"It would be a waste of money to build a bridge somewhere," he said.

Alderman Paul Russell said he has been aware of the proposal suggesting a more western location for the proposed bridge, and suggested council should not take out

Bridge Given Little Support

TRENTON — A request by Councillor John Bonn that the town consider asking the province to look into a Bay of Quinte overpass at Loyalist/Wallbridge Rd. met with little enthusiasm during council committee of the whole session Monday.

"Now is the time to express our opinion," said the councillor. "The province is doing the feasibility studies now."

The councillor's comments followed remarks encouraging council to support a resolution, passed by Ameliasburg Township, that called for a bay crossing near the junction of Highway 2 and Loyalist-Wallbridge Rd.

Last week the rural bay crossing was suggested to council in a letter from a Trenton resident. Two other crossing, both at Belleville, one by skyway and another by tunnel are under consideration At present Provincial authorities are committed to drafting plans for a skyway bay crossing.

The Loyalist-Wallbridge crossing would by-pass advantageous to us than what it now is by Belleville" said Councillor Bonn.

George Green was the only other member to say he would support any move to call for a provincial study.

The councillor's comments followed remarks encouraging council to support a resolution passed by Ameliasburgh Township that called for a bay crossing near the junction of Highway 2 and Loyalist-Wallbridge Rd.

Alderman Jack Ireland wondered if the city should undertake the original location suggestion to help prover to the Ontario ministry of transportation and communications first the bridge location should remain where it is.

Local municipal officials have been campaigning for several years for a new high-level structure to replace the present swing bridge which frequently tied up traffic.

The answer of the ministry had been that traffic volumes did not warrant a new bridge but ministry head John R. Rhodes several weeks ago surprised everyone with an announcement that plans for a new high-level bridge are going ahead.

Since then Belleville Alderman Jean Smith two weeks ago brought in a motion asking the ministry to undertake a feasibility study for a tunnel rather than a high level bridge.

The motion was approved by council and has been passed on to the ministry.

Local Resident Seeks Aid For Hurricane-ravaged Country

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Brian Stevenson is hoping to arouse response in the Quinte district to the plight of stricken Honduras.

People may not fully appreciate the human havoc wrought by the tiny central American nation by Hurricane Fifi.

But his anxiety is both public and personal.

While he's been appealing for help for Honduras in recent days, Brian also has been trying to make contact with the ravaged country.

Brian's wife is of Honduran. His family — parents and six brothers and sisters — are living in or near La Ceiba. It's one of the cities hit hard Thursday by Fifi.

Brian, a 28-year-old electrical maintenance supervisor at Ontario Hydro's eastern region offices, has been trying to make contact since the weekend.

He's being helped by Howard Fralick, a Belleville ham radio operator. So far, attempts to make contact — from the basement of the Fralick Palmer Rd. home — have been unsuccessful. The airwaves are occupied with the signals of disaster and rescue operations.

Meantime, he is plugging for help on behalf of the Help Honduras Foundation. The organization, originally founded in Cobourg to aid a Honduran orphanage has been attempting to mount a relief operation since Fifi's devastation.

Medical supplies and food appear the major needs, says Brian after listening to radio messages on the Fralick monitor.

While awaiting word on whether the federal government will send a relief plane, the foundation has an agreement with authorities at CFB Trenton, says Brian.

Supplies such as food, tents, stoves, blankets, can be left or sent to the Air Movements Unit at the base, marked for the Help Honduras Foundation.

Donations for the purchase of relief goods can also be deposited with the Toronto Dominion Bank.

Brian, himself, has been canvassing his neighbors on the Point Anne Lane, and spreading the word among fellow Hydro employees.

Brian — who first came to Canada 10 years ago as a student and has been in Belleville a year — says it may be difficult for Canadians to appreciate the havoc caused by the hurricane.

CORBYVILLE — Thurlow firefighters are learning how to save lives with bandages as well as hoses.

creased for an emergency vehicle that firefighters have outgrown their two-year-old, converted van.

Bob Pearce, a spokesman for the emergency team, said there is no more room on the truck for new equipment and the department now is trying to raise funds for a larger vehicle.

Deputy Chief Buster Middleton said in an interview that the fellows didn't have the slightest idea about first aid before this course".

A general mandate for the course is common sense . . doing the best you can do in the situation you're in, he said.

Mr. Howell said the course is comprehensive and will give firefighters the knowledge of how to save a life, prevent further injury and alleviate pain.

"It is more than first aid . . . it is more sophisticate," he said.

The course — with the exception of the cost of textbooks and certificate of completion — is free of charge. Instructors are volunteerjs their time.

Almanac Adapts To Present But Keeps Traditional Flavor

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

An old favorite is back.

The Farmers' Almanac has made the 156th annual appearance with the 1973 edition.

And the big news is out — the weather for next year, it's going to be a normal winter, says the Almanac's oracle, but next summer will be hotter than usual.

The Farmers' Almanac is riding along now on the crest of a wave, of nostalgia that at one time it was a household bible, especially in rural areas. Fastened to the wall, it was well-thumbed for planning times, weather forecasts, medical nostrums and household tips.

But the bold Almanac has been updated. It now has a page devoted to women's lib, and takes issue with the chauvinistic practice of ending prayers with Amen, recommending that feminists end their prayers with "Awomen".

But tradition hasn't been forgotten. On the next page is a list of "wife savers". How to dry zinnias, how to revive wilted celery, how to give a child unpleasant medicine. Even the wife saver department has an eye on the contemporary scene. It advises that for foods which require long cooking the oven is more economical than the slow-top burner.

But it's for its calendar that the Almanac is prized. All the principal holy days of the Episcopal (Anglican), Catholic, Hebrew and Greek churches are marked, along with the phases of the moon and lucky and unlucky days.

Eclipses of the sun and the moon also are noted as are the dates when the planets are brightest, and the exact time, to the minute, when winter, spring, summer and fall begin.

Most important for farmers, now ever, is the planting and garden calendar.

The Almanac is also packed with jokes, recipes, poems, tips on building compost piles and figuring out how to calculate a lawn fertilizer spreader. It has a fishing calendar and a feature story on "thinking metric".

Circulation of the Almanac reached an all-time high last year, when more than five million copies were bought by sponsors for free distribution to readers. Victoria and Grey Trust distributes it in Belleville. Now published in Lewiston, Me., it was originated in 1792 by Robert Bailey Thomas.

Current editor Ray Geiger, has become a minor television personality through appearances on talk shows to explain the perennial appeal of his Almanac.

Still prominently featured is his selection of the "thought of the year". For 1973, he suggests that "the best way to forget your own problems is to help someone else solve theirs".

Ballard Accused Of Holding Out

VANCOUVER (CP) — Chairman Leo Lafaive of the international committee of Hockey Canada charged Monday night that Harold Ballard of Toronto Maple Leafs is trying to complicate the financial picture in the current Canada-Russia international hockey series.

Lafaive said Ballard has refused to transfer to Hockey Canada's bank account about $250,000 in receipts from the second game of the series in Maple Leaf Gardens.

In Toronto, Ballard said the delay in transferring the receipts after the game last Thursday was caused when an accountant was required for jury duty.

Later, he suggested Hockey Canada needs the money to provide transportation for Russia for several unnecessary campaddresses of the World Hockey Association.

Lafaive said between periods of the 8-6 Canada-Russia deadlock at the Pacific Coliseum that the funds should have been transferred the day after the second game in Toronto.

"After all, he demanded that the Toronto Toros pay a large sum of money (about $70,000) for their tickets before he would release them for sale," said Lefaive.

"He got the money about two weeks ahead of time."

The Toros of the WHA were allotted 85 per cent of the tickets for the second game.

Lefaive also blasted Ballard for refusing to allow employees working on a Hockey Canada film of the series access to Maple Leaf Gardens.

"First he wanted $10,000 then he backed off that position because we said we wouldn't pay it—we would just avoid shooting the game in Toronto."

On the night of the game, Lefaive said, Ballard again refused to allow the photographers in, but one sneaked in.

General manager Bill Hunter of Team Canada said in Toronto that Ballard was co-operative in providing films for both Canada and Russia to work out. It forced some juggling of schedules because the Leafs also were working out.

On Team Canada's first day in Toronto, former Leaf Paul Henderson visited his former dressing room as general manager Jim Gregory asked him to serve.

Henderson quoted Gregory as saying Ballard "might punch me in the nose."

Eight former Leafs are members of Team Canada '74, comprised of WHA players.

Soviet Union 5 Team Canada 5

VANCOUVER (CP) — A malfunctioning scoreboard clock at Pacific Coliseum showed only minutes—no seconds—but it didn't click them away fast enough for Team Canada '72 Monday night.

The Soviet Union kept the eight-game hockey series tied with two goals 51 seconds apart in the final four minutes then tallied a critical penalty to gain a 5-5 tie.

The result gave each team a win, a loss and two ties as they head for Moscow for the fifth game Oct. 1.

The Canadians held a 5-3 advantage at the end of the third period as Bobby Hull scored three times in five minutes and four seconds to run his series goal production to six.

Frank Mahovlich and Gordie Howe got the other Canadian goals, Valeri Vasiliev, Boris Mikhailov, Alexander Yakushev, Alexander Maltsev and Alexander Gusev scored in that order for the Soviets.

The Russian comeback followed consecutive penalties to Johnny McKenzie and Red Berenson for high sticking, elbows and gloves in the Soviets' faces for nearly every shift.

McKenzie, booed by some fans after he took ten penalties that could have been costly, said he was frustrated by the officiating.

"I'm not saying it cost us the game, but it's the last few games we've taken almost three times as many penalties as the Russians and I'm sure we're so that much worse than they are."

McKenzie said the club was downcast but that the World Hockey Association players would be ready when the series resumes after exhibition games with the national teams of Sweden and Finland.

"I think we're getting stronger and I still think we can win this thing," McKenzie said as he nursed a cut upper lip.

Russian coach Boris Kulagin said he was not surprised when his club came back against Team Canada, a "great, very talented team."

He said through an interpreter that left-winger Yakushev may miss the early games of the Russian part of the series.

Yaushkev was laboring after the first period when he took a body jolt from Gordie Howe. But he got his fifth goal of the series with the start of the third period, on a 40-foot slap shot.

Yakushev, who injured his hip in the 3-3 tie in Quebec City, was picked as the outstanding Russian in the game.

Hull, who received the same accolade for the Canadiens, said his club let down slightly after the first period.

"We didn't bear down. We have to play 60 minutes against this great Russian team."

Mahovlich and the Canadiens were better off than the 1972 National Hockey League version of Team Canada which left for the Soviet Union with one win and a tie in the first four games.

After the Vancouver game in 1972, the Canadiens left amid a chorus of boos, but this time the 15,772 fans in the steaming coliseum were in an uproar.

In the wide-open first period the teams started scoring where they left off in the 8-5 Russian victory Saturday in Winnipeg.

Defenceman Vasiljev beat Gerry Cheevers, who also played in the 4-1 victory in To- ronto, at 3:34 of the opening period on a screened drive from the right point.

Howe evened the score 46 seconds later when he took a Ralph Backstrom pass and drove a wrist shot high over the shoulder of the falling Vladislav Tretiak.

McKenzie was serving an elbowing penalty when Mahovlich scored his second goal of the series from Cheevers' doorstep as Vladimir Petrov dug the puck out of a scramble behind the Canadian net.

The momentum swung when Gusev took a slashing penalty as his team-mates had a two-on-one break.

Hull evened the short-handed goals at one apiece when he gathered in Mahovlich's pass and beat Tretiak with a blue-line blast along the ice.

The Golden Jet continued his scoring spree when he scored three times on the three shots he had in the first period—by taking Pat Stapleton's pass to beat Tretiak high again from 20 feet out to give Canada the lead for the first time.

A smart play by Rejean Houle sent the puck to Henderson's wrister. Houle dodged a Soviet defenceman at the blueline then held the puck at the side of the net before firing a pass to Mahovlich who tipped his goalmouth swoop perfectly.

Hull scored the final Team Canada goal with another high shot, taking a pass from Andre Lacroix and blasting the puck just under the crossbar.

The Canadians stayed with the Russians in the second period but needed a big save from Cheevers who cha'rged Vlasdislav Shedrin on a breakaway from centre.

Tretiak pulled off a big save himself in the third period as Team Canada made one last effort with Gennadi Tsygankov serving a two-minute sentence for tripping Mark Howe.

Peiter Mendie shaped at a rolling puck inside the Soviet zone and Tretiak missed it with the stick hand but blocked it with his body.

The tying goal by Gusev came after the Canadians failed to control the puck in their own end. The shot went through a game of legs.

The game ended in frustration and confusion for the fans as the scoreboard clock failed to show seconds remaining in the last game and overtime.

The clock did show the minutes remaining and the exact time was kept at the timer's bench.

World Record For Bulgarian

MANILA (AP) — Georgi Markov of Bulgaria set a world record of 616 pounds in the over-all featherweight snatch and jerk competition Monday at the world weightlifting championships.

The two lifts by Todorov, a 22-year-old army capsain, broke the old mark of 610¼ pounds set by Yoshinobo Miyake.

Todorov snatched 275 pounds for the gold medal and won a silver medal with 341 pounds in the jerk.

Announce Government Program

3-Level Course for Coaches

TORONTO (CP) — A training program for amateur sport coaches was announced Monday by Rene Brunelle, Ontario minister of community and social services.

The program, to be financed by federal and provincial contributions, is aimed at improving coaching in Canada and producing highly competent coaches to train athletes for the 1980 Olympics, Brunelle told a news conference.

Asked about the 1976 Summer Olympics in Montreal, Brunelle said the program will help Canada's chances, but the main goal is 1980.

"Better late, than never," he said.

The program is divided into three levels of proficiency. The first courses are to be taught in universities and community colleges across the province, beginning this fall.

Gordon Smith of the ministry's recreation branch said the courses are aimed at giving coaches a better understanding of the theory of coaching. The material covered was not specifically related to any sport.

After coaches completed the theory stages, technical training would be given by the governing bodies of individual sports, supported by government grants.

So far, development of the course has cost about $175,000, Smith said. Costs for the rest of this year would run to about $150,000 and, in all, up to $2 million may be devoted to the project.

Smith said coaching is at a fairly low level and needs improvement.

The program would give would-be coaches a better understanding of the over-all needs of athletes and produce better coaches.

He said he hopes that eventually most coaches in the province will be certified.

About 2,000 persons are expected to take part in the first course this winter, he said.

The program is open to both men and women, and Brunelle said he would like to see more women involved as coaches.

Dr. John Richardson of the University of Western Ontario said the courses were developed by a special committee of academics and sports personnel over the last 1½ years.

Rangers, Leafs Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

New York Rangers and Toronto Maple Leafs are showing a good early foot in the National Hockey League exhibition schedule although the attention of hockey fans has been diverted for the most part to the international series between Team Canada and the Soviet Union.

Ratelle—Two-goal Man

The Rangers, playing on home ice, defeated Boston Bruins 6-4 Monday night, while the Leafs, also at home, edged Detroit Red Wings 4-3.

Jean Ratelle and Bill Fairbairn scored two goals each to lead the New Yorkers to their second consecutive victory. They won their opening game 7-3 against the Red Wings.

Rick Middleton and Steve Vickers cashed the Rangers' other goals, while the Boston markers were spread evenly among Wayne Cashman, Don Marcott, Carol Vadnais and Bobby Schmautz.

The Leafs had to weather a three-goal rally by the Red Wings in the third period to escape with victory before 15,307 fans at Maple Leaf Gardens. The Leafs built a 4-0 lead, Mark Howe 3-3 in their first pre-season game.

Former Philadelphia Flyer Bill Flett led the way with a pair of goals, including the winner at 7:31 of the final period. George Ferguson, Inge Hammarstrom, Lanny McDonald and Darryl Sittler added the others.

Bill Hogaboam matched Flett's effort, scoring two goals for the Red Wings. Dale Tallon, Pierre Jarry and Marcel Dionne each got one.

Rookie Mike Palmateer shared Leaf goaltending duties with Gary Bromley, yielding only one goal to the Wings.

Bob Ethier—In Command

13-hit Attack Produces 8 Runs

Printers Square QFL Final

Exploding for a pair of three-run innings, Howard and Robert Printing subdued Trenton Augers Men's Wear 9-2 to insert the Quinte Faceoff League playoff final at 2-2, at Alemite Park, Monday night.

A potent 13-hit attack by the Printers backed another solid performance by winning pitcher Bob Ethier. The left-hander set the Augers down on six singles while striking out 14 and walking only one.

Bob Richardson toiled the distance in defeat, fanning nine and walking three.

Except for the third and ninth innings when Auger's picked up single counters, Ethier was in command. He struck out the side in the fifth and eighth frames.

Base hits by Dave Skelton, Larry Potter, Ethier and Terry Pope sparked the Printers' three-run burst in the third inning and opened the scoring in the game.

In the fifth, Potter led off with a home run to trigger another outburst. Ethier and Wayne Woods supplied safeties to account for another pair of runs.

Howard and Robert rounded out its scoring with Pope's bases loaded single which plated two, in the ninth.

A walk to Skip Balch and Dave Henry's single gave Auger's its run in the third. Hits by Al Ferguson, Jim Clement and Joe Tkatchuk were good for the losers' last-gasp run-getter in the bottom of the ninth.

Skelton and Pope each slammed three base hits to lead the Printers' production.

LARRY POTTER

Potter had his homer and a double while Ethier and Woods also collected two safeties each. Dwight Rathwell singled for the other Howard and Robert hit.

Tkatchuk was the only Auger player to connect for more than one safety. He poked a pair of singles. Ferguson, Clement, Jack Jory and Henry had the others.

The Auger Club, without catcher Larry Mavety (in training camp with the World Hockey Association Chicago Cougars) and pitcher George Ferguson (in training with Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League) is beginning to have its troubles.

The championship playoff series resumes at the Alemite tonight and the teams go at it again, Thursday. Game time is 7 p.m.

Dodgers' Magic Number Is Four

Pirates Just ½-game Away

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pittsburgh scrapper Harry Mastrangelo said it was "a heartbreaking play" that took down Los Angeles Dodgers' chance to top the Pirates.

Leo Durocher, hotshot just elected to the 1150th base of the year, was second by the tenth inning. Then he tried for No. 1151 at third.

But Manny Sanguillen got there ahead of the throw from Dodgers' victory.

Bottom, 10-9, who singled and doubled to drive in two Los Angeles runs, was credited after giving up a single to Craig Johnson, a triple to Wes Parker and a home run to Howard Johnson.

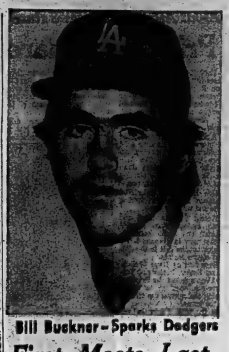
Bill Virdon collected a double and three singles, drove in one run, scored one and had a homer and two triples. Dick Hafner in the fourth inning when he drove in the game-winning run with a single to left field wall.

The Brewers remained within half a game of the leaders in the middle of the NL East standings with the twilight split.



Milwaukee won the opener with four runs in the ninth inning, two on Tim Johnson's pinch-hitting double. Two-run homers by Charlie Smith and Leron Lee led the Indians to victory in the nightcap.

First Meets Last

CALGARY (CP)—Calgary Stampeders, trying to salvage what remains of the Canadian Football League season, run into the top team in the Eastern Football Conference when they meet Montreal Alouettes tonight.

"They're certainly the best team in the East and I have the feeling they are probably the best team in the country," says Stampeder coach Jim Wood, whose team is last in the West with 0-7 mark.

Montreal coach Marv Levy has cautioned his players, who have won seven games in nine outings, about being overconfident. At the same time, he talked about what it feels like to be a winner.

"It's a great feeling to be part of it (success) whether you're a player or a coach. It's a constantly developing process, not something that happens all at once.

"It's more like two steps forward and one backward. The team has indicated it can play better with winning. It's taken a continued good effort by everyone."

MARV LEVY

Levy is looking for a repeat game from the Stampeders who feature quarterback Peter Liske and receiver Rudy Linterman, the top passing combination in the CFL.

They'll be joined in the lineup by two newcomers, defensive half Omal Collier and defensive end Larry Minor, both late National Football League cuts.

The speedy Collier will team with Howard Starks and Ted Rashman to give the Stampeders three import defensive backs.

The defensive backfield will be put to the test to stop the explosive combination of quarterback Jimmy Jones and receiver Johnny Rodgers.

The game will be televised beginning at 8 p.m. EDT on the CBC national network.

Eagles Win 13-10

Cowboys March On Treadmill

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Tom Dempsey's 45-yard field goal with 25 seconds remaining carried Philadelphia Eagles to a 13-10 victory over Dallas Cowboys at Franklin Field Monday in the National Football League opener.

The winning field goal was set up when Dallas cornerback Nemiah Wilson intercepted a pass by quarterback Don Meredith and returned it to the Dallas 39 yard line with 1:56 left.

The Eagles gained just one yard on two running plays and an incomplete pass before Dempsey booted the decisive three-pointer.

Tom Dempsey, however, never quit. After taking the opening kickoff, the Eagles moved to the Dallas 39 yard line. Quarterback Norm Snead completed passes of 31 and 29 yards to Tommy Brasseaux for a first down at the Cowboy 9 yard line.

But that was as far as they got, and Dan Reeves' 4-3 defense held Dempsey to a 26-yard field goal try for short end wide to the left of the uprights.

The Cowboys, who won their opening game last year, 38-0, a week ago while the Eagles were losing 7-7 to St. Louis, took a 7-0 lead in the second period on a three-yard run by rookie Duane Thomas. The Eagles tied it in the third quarter when cornerback Irv Lavrentes picked up a fumbled Dallas punt and raced 26 yards down the left sideline for a touchdown.

Dempsey sent the Eagles ahead 10-7 with a 12-yard field goals early in the fourth quarter, but Dallas came back in the fourth quarter to tie it at 10-10 by Percival with 9:24 remaining.

The Eagles' offence in the first half was almost nonexistent as the total Dallas defence allowed only 78 yards—48 on the ground.

Meanwhile, Staubach was directing the Cowboys to a 203-yard first half.

Eagles' quarterback Roman Gabriel completed five six of 11 passes for 84 yards while Staubach connected on 19 of 33 for 217. Meredith carried 13 times for 67 yards.

Tigers' Kaline

One More Hit And Al's There

BALTIMORE (AP) — Al Kaline has an unique knack among athletes, journalists and sportswriters alike. He's a winner.

Kaline has managed to win seven games in Detroit this season to reach the lofty level in the park where he has played since 1953.

The Orioles have made preparations to honor Kaline, but more elaborate ceremonies are planned in Detroit's Tiger Stadium on Sunday.

Kaline did not accompany the Tigers to Baltimore for the final weekend, going home to be with his wife during surgery that day, and was unavailable for comment on the approaching milestone.

But manager Ralph Houk explained why there was no attempt to delay the occasion for Detroit.

"I discussed it with Al and we decided this was the way to do it," said Houk. "I figured he'd reach the goal this year, so I kept him in there. I'm very glad he might have a freak accident and then not do it.

Anyway, the Orioles are happy to win the American League East division title. They've got to play our best pitchers.

AL KALINE

Kaline was signed by the Tigers upon graduation from Baltimore's Southern high school at the age of 18. In 1955, his second full season, he hit .340 and at 20 became the youngest player ever to win an American League batting championship.

Although he suffered broken bones in 1968, 1967 and 1968, Kaline set a league record by playing 100 or more games for 20 seasons, including 19 in a row prior to last season.

Schumacher Forfeits Set

TIMMINS, Ont. (CP) — Schumacher Hemlocks were told Sunday that the club has forfeited its winning series against Seattle Ste. Marie Steelers and will not be eligible for the all-Ontario finals of the Ontario Amateur Softball Association (OASA).

OASA secretary George Miller of Windsor told Hemlocks that the reason for the forfeited series was because they used ineligible players in the series with the Steelers.

The Steelers protested the use of some players in the three-game Intermediate A semi-final playoff finals, won two games to one by Schumacher last Saturday.

Merchants fired the ineligible players to bolster their pitching staff.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Wednesday, September 25

Aries (March 21-April 19) Be as diplomatic as possible in your partnership arrangements. Somebody tricky is coming up, but it can be managed.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) Don't let your attention wander from any mental work you are doing today, if you do, costly mistakes will result that could be avoided.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) Your social plan will suddenly head for a very unusual reason. Don't despair. Something much better will take its place.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) Check things out for yourself rather than assume something is a fact just because another says so. It's to your advantage to probe a little.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) In your haste to get on to something that pleases you more, a task you'll undertake will get some pretty sloppy treatment.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) The solution for a problem that you haven't worked out yet will be found shortly. It will call for quick action.

Pisces, (Feb. 20-March 20) In any commercial dealings you have today, don't jump at the first price. You'll come out far better if you bargain a bit.

Opening lead—J ♠

By Oswald and James Jacoby

The old adage, "There are none so blind as they who will not see" certainly applies in bridge.

East came to us with a long story about how his partner let South make an overtrick at three notrump. He described his partner's crime as follows:

"South won the spade lead in his hand and led a heart to dummy's queen. Then he proceeded to make all the wrong tricks while my partner was obliging enough to chuck three diamonds.

"Next South cashed the high spades, threw my partner in with a diamond and ultimately made his tenth trick with the king of hearts."

We didn't bother to ask East if he had concluded anything to the defense's because he had already heard from West. It seems East had discarded two hearts and a diamond while the clubs were parading.

East's first discard should have been a spade and his second discard another spade. That would have told West that he could throw spades with impunity safely. As it was poor West had been afraid that South held four hearts and that he, West, just had to hang on to all his cards in that suit.

Periodic Blisters Like Cold Sores

By G. C. THOSTESON, MD

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I don't understand why I get these blisters when I have my period. They have come on my period now for the first time. They have been coming on my ankle in clusters.

I have had blood tests but nothing shows up. I can't understand what is lacking in my system.—J.L.

Who says anything is "lacking"? The regularity of your "blisters" suggests a form of herpes plaque. The sort of condition that brings on "cold sores" (fever blisters).

Common as this is, and annoying as it is, people who suffer repeatedly. What causes (and treatment) continued to baffle medical researchers.

The most plausible concept today is that a virus has settled into some area, or perhaps more than one, and behaves like a good neighbor until some vital impetus activates it—and the blisters or sores pop out.

But believing that this is the cause and finding a way to prevent it or cure it are not the same thing. A series of ordinary smallpox vaccinations might help. Sometimes this works; sometimes not. It's perhaps worth trying if you're desperate.

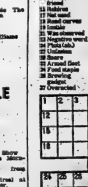
Dashing with rubbing alcohol may hasten the drying process after they appear. Some folks have their own pet remedies: camphor mixtures and so on, but rubbing alcohol, I think, is successful as any and very inexpensive.

Reason you break out when you do is, apparently, that any change in body physiology seems sufficient to activate the virus.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Once you have a cold sore, is it ever possible to get rid of them completely, or do they always return? Is an operation the only answer? Would this be a surgery?—Mrs. E.S.

Yes, it is possible to get rid of hemorrhoids (which are rectal varicose veins) completely, but there is no guarantee that other veins may not become varicose and turn into hemorrhoids. Guarding against constipation and straining at the seat is the best protection. Small hemorrhoids sometimes can be kept comfortable without surgery, but surgery is the only way to get rid of them.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I would like to have an opinion on horsemeat. I how it fits into diets, etc. Am I correct in believing that it contains less cholesterol than regular beef?—R.V.G.



Lean horsemeat and lean beef have virtually no cholesterol. The more fat in the cut, the more it contributes to your cholesterol. Horsemeat in general tends to have less fat, so that helps. As to any others specta of diet, there isn't enough difference to amount to anything.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My husband, 58, had to take an army physical. The doctor said that he had a heart murmur but didn't do anything about it. My husband has several prostate problems but nothing was said about a murmur. He never had rheumatic fever.

Is a murmur dangerous? Why wouldn't it have been noticed before? Could it have just developed? Should he consult a physician?—Mrs. C.S.

Most likely probability is that the murmur has been noticed before but with no indication that it was otherwise significant, so it wasn't mentioned. Functional murmurs that don't indicate any harmful condition are rather common, and in such case I suspect it is best not to mention them even.

Mohawk Chief Defends Industry On Tyendinaga Reserve Land

TYENDINAGA — Other Indian reserves have organized business corporations and the Quinte Mohawks are setting up precedent on Tyendinaga reserve, Chief William Brant says.

The chief, in a prepared statement reviewing the current dispute on this reserve, says the controversy had been caused by a minority, playing on the Mohawks' fears while lying and telling statements out of context.

Text of the chief's statement is as follows:

Councils in the past have tried to get industry to locate on this reserve, but there have been major holdbacks, even though the Federal Government has been willing to offer incentive grants to companies willing to locate a d d investment, employment through industry.

The major holdback is as follows:

In order for a company that would locate industry, employment to locate and create revenue for the band, there would have to be considerable money spent on building or renovations to facilities such an enterprise.

There has not as yet been any company such as I have mentioned that would locate on a short-term permit, which is all a Band Council can issue and which offers no real security for large investment.

For any length of term over five years (which most companies want to protect their investment), we would have to surrender the land to the crown (Federal Government), under a conditional surrender and they would act on our behalf.

To date, people of Tyendinaga Indian Reserve have not been in favor of land surrender, conditional or otherwise, having a standard set for as industry is concerned.

After much discussion with our legal advisers, business men, Department of Indian Affairs, the Mohawk Band Council feel it would be ground, the lot of bureaucracy of land surrender by incorporating our own development company.

Tyendinaga Mohawk Limited was created as a development corporation of which leather sewing was to be only one segment. Under the terms of the Charter this company could branch into most any business except banking i.e. construction, tourism, food stores, etc.

It was hoped that we could develop this company one step at a time through financing by a way of grants, Department of Indian Affairs loans, profits generated and incentives offered through Canada Manpower.

The Council felt at this time the Federal Government (Department of Indian Affairs) was offering incentive grants to non-Indian companies, we might as well take advantage of their generosity in developing Reserve businesses.

As a development company it would:

1) Create lax free employment for the Indian residents of our Reserve. Indian income while working on a Reserve is income tax exempt.

2) Be a source of revenue by which we could build up our capital and revenue band funds one step toward making our reserve self-supported.

3) Attract our graduating students, as the company branched into different areas thus offering a larger variety of job opportunities.

The reason the Council took the incorporate route we they wanted to show good faith to our non-Indian creditors which was otherwise made impossible by section 89 of the Indian Act, which states:

"Subject to this Act, the real and personal property of an Indian or a Band situated on a Reserve is not subject to charge, pledge, mortgage, attachment, levy, seizure, distress or execution in favor of any person other than an Indian."

It is possible to obtain consent from the Department of Indian Affairs by way of section 89 but it is time consuming because of red tape. It is more desirable to discuss finance with a banker and of course day results because in the world of business, corporations do not wait for governmental legislation.

The Council has now loaned $50,000 to make the airport buildings structurally sound. After this was done, the Council then cited our Mohawk Airport facility as Industrial Park "A". The Council planned to rent space to Tyendinaga Mohawk Limited, as we knew the company would accept the short-term permit because the Band would in fact own the company.

Anyone can see the jobs that would be created as the development expanded. As this company grew so would Band revenue from rentals from industrial property.

It is true that if the company showed a net profit it would be taxable, but there are numerous legal ways in which the net profits can be sown back into the company.

During the first stage of this project we, the Band Council was negotiating with Bata Industries and the Department of Indian Affairs. once councillor took some statements out of context and with the help of a professional protester misled the people before it could be explained at a planned general council.

Prior to the first scheduled general council, a petition was circulated bearing approximately 200 names. When the general council was called to explain the project and planned for our airport facility, approximately 50 to 110 showed even though the petition indicated more interest.

The Council had their legal advisor present to explain the ramifications of this company and also to show the proposed financing. I advised at that time how many were in favor of the project and a hand count revealed about 50 per cent of the people were for, 50 per cent against Band ownership of the company.

We scheduled yet another meeting to explain our proposed plan. At that time we had the director of CESO Economic Development Organization on hand to explain and further answer and clarify the position of a corporation. The people indicated that they did not wish to have the Council sitting in a board of directors for fear the corporation would be doing Council business.

Upon, explanation of financing and workings of the corporation, I asked the people present if anyone would be interested in acting on the board of directors, only one person indicated interest. The people asked that a referendum vote be held and the Council granted their wishes. At this time, although the preliminary work had been completed to make the corporation a reality, there had been no commitment on the part of the Band. This preliminary work had involved a great deal of time on the part of the Council, the Department of Indian Affairs and CESO Economic Development Organization. Only the preliminary expenses such as no details had been approved by Council.

In order to meet a deadline, it was decided that the company should be formed. So, if the electorate had been in favor of Band ownership, the company would already be formed in order to meet its September deadline than not losing an opportunity.

The Company was then formed under private ownership transferable to Band ownership, pending the results of the referendum vote.

From a possible 321 eligible voters as certified by the electoral officer, only 178 voters actually cast a ballot and of these only 162 were against Band ownership, 97 were for and 18 were recorded as spoiled ballots, indicating non band-ownership. The company is continued under private ownership.

Since that time, Council has treated this company as it would any other company and had absolutely no financial interest in the company.

Mr. C. Brad, councillor, having a vested interest in the newly formed company, disqualified himself from any issues involving Tyendinaga Mohawk Limited and the Band Council as recorded in Council minutes dated July 17, 1974. Further, all funds that Mr. C. Brad received as salary while acting as Industrial Commissioner in connection with Tyendinaga Mohawk Limited will be refunded in full after the results of the referendum were known.

Since the referendum vote on Tuesday, July 13, 1974, another petition was circulated, called for the dissolution of Council and stated that the wishes of the people were not met. The petition was presented to the Council September 16th and here it is names.

The main fears as expressed by those opposing a corporate structure is that this will open the door to taxation, they feel as yet no concrete proof to substantiate their allegations. If there was any evidence indicating that this in fact could lead to changes in the Indian Act governing taxation, I would most certainly be opposed, as would my Council. Furthermore, we are not setting a precedent as opposition to Tyendinaga Mohawk Limited would, as we believe, as evidenced by:

1) Port Hawkesbury Band which formed Ojibway Resorts Limited

2) Whitefish Bay Reserve which formed Shoguny Ski Corporation Limited

3) St. Regis Band which has Mohawk Lacrosse Limited located there

4) Wikwemikong Nursing Home Limited located on the Wikwemikong Reserve on Manitoulin Island . . . to mention only a few corporation located on the Reserve.

In my opinion, a corporate company is what the term implies, it is neither Indian nor white in origin as I believe I do not see how it has any bearing with regard to Indian Status.

History for the most part has shown that the Indian has been taken unfair advantage on the board of directors, and rightly so in many instances. Some Indian Reserve residents today are very suspicious of any change, and rightly so in some as a further step to their assimilation. A minority of people, for personal reasons have played on these fears and suspicions, have taken statements out of context and have lied outright. This has led to the protest, which was witnessed on September 16, 1974, if the Band Council there had been no agitation, the situation would never have occurred. I have called for another general council meeting, to answer all questions concerning this controversial issue.

In closing, I would like to, state as I have many times before, that I am very proud to be Indian, and to serve my people as Band Councillor, chairman. I have never frowned upon our native dress and would do whatever possible to promote and keep our culture alive.

Stirling Searches For Crossing Guards

STIRLING — Children in this community have to contend with the dangers of getting to school without the help of crossing guards.

There are 900 children attending three public schools in Stirling, two of whom are town children, the rest arriving by bus.

There were two crossing guards at Stirling public school year, but they have resigned. Municipal council has tried in vain to hire two others.

Principal George Patton said he is concerned and can't measure the life of a child in dollars and cents", he said.

In the morning the 300 local pre-students from kindergarten age up to the Grade 8 level have to cross two busy highway to get to school. Only about 30 go home for lunch, but all 300 have to make that trip back home to fort again when school is out at the end of the day.

Also, the students in Grades 6,7 and 8 who live in the town and home economics have to cross highway to another school at 10:30 a.m. to take these classes, and then return again at 1:30 p.m.

The speed limit where the youngsters cross is 30 m.p.h. but traffic moves considerably faster. The Ontario Provincial Police have set up radar traps occasionally and there are mobile patrols as well, but they do not act as crossing guards.

Mr. Patton said he could not ask the OPP to assist the children across the highway, but cannot could. However, he said he feels that despite the heavy traffic flow, the OPP would have to tell Stirling council it is their responsibility since the flow of traffic is not heavy enough to warrant police crossing guards.

In Toronto, city police accommodates most school crossings but in they, are, usually traffi-lane round with exceptionally high traffic volumes.

Stirling council is responsible for the safety of the children going to and from school while the onus is on the board of education while the students are moving from one school to another for shop and home economics.

Stirling council is offering to find a way to co-ordinate crossing guards and Mr. Patton said by using school funds he will add another $25 a week to get the students to other schools for economics classes.

Mr. Patton pointed out that in Belleville and Trenton crossing guards received $32.50 last year. He said he is prepared to match whatever council will offer to have protection for the children.

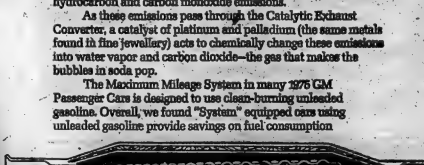
GENERAL MOTORS

Maximum

We call it our Maximum Mileage System because it represents the most advanced engineering and technology GM can offer in many 1975 Chevrolets, Pontiacs, Oldsmobiles, Buicks and Cadillacs.



Catalytic Exhaust Converter

Cleaner air. Better performance. Improved operating economy.

The Catalytic Exhaust Converter, an important engineering breakthrough, meets this year's more stringent requirements for hydrocarbon and carbon monoxide emissions.

As these emissions pass through the Catalytic Exhaust Converter, a catalyst of platinum and palladium (the same metals found in fine jewellery) acts to chemically change these emissions into water vapor and carbon dioxide—the gas that makes the bubbles in soda pop.

The Maximum Mileage System in many 1976 GM Passenger Cars is designed to use clean-burning unleaded gasoline. Overall, we found "System" equipped cars using unleaded gasoline provide savings on fuel consumption over 1974 models. Of course, the amount of savings will vary according to such factors as optional equipment, car size, road conditions and your driving and maintenance habits.

In conjunction with the Converter, the engine's been recalibrated for lower idling speeds, quicker warm-up and smoother overall performance.

Museum Craftsman

British Museum Bindery Requires Skilled Work

LONDON (CP) — The British museum has accumulated more than 25 million books, and among them are fine antiquarian, rare books, and ancient manuscripts that, experts say, should be cared for by men and women at the museum's bindery.

The bindery is where the work of book restoration and, occasionally, the design and binding of new books or repairs to older ones. In a bookbinder's not just the one who puts the covers on; he is usually concerned with preservation of the printed word.

This summer the museum held an exhibition of bookbinding of the Restoration period, that is of the 40 years following the restoration of King Charles II to the throne, from 1660-1700.

The exhibition was devised by Howard Nixon, head of the department of rare books, in collobio with the 300th anniversary of the birth of Samuel Mearne, who worked for King Charles II. The Restoration period was a golden age of bookbinding; during those 40 years British binding flourished and developed a style of its own.

The exhibition showed the different kinds of bindings: from those with simple lettering to the ornate patterns executed for the Royal Library. The Royal Bibles and prayer books were changed every four years, the older ones being sold to members of the king's staff. So many are in existence as their new owners were quick to keep them. Armoth style adopted in the Restoration, that is markedly British, is known as voltaire roof. The golded pattern is cut further by a strip of fine black leather (or sometimes vellum) sloping of a roof.

Research into bookbinding has not been easy as binders did not sign their names. But the exhibition held some documents mentioning Samuel Mearne's name, particularly one from his wife after his death telling of King Charles to do worth of binding Mearne, it seems, charged 2s for a binding, but he did not always receive it.

The art and style of bookbinding is virtually unchanged from the 17th-century days of Mearne and many book-binders. Bob Turner, the bindery's production manager, says that the work still is done by hand—"this is not a trade that lends itself easily to machinery."

With so many books needing attention they are three years behind in their work and so are constantly seeking to speed up the process.

"But you can't experiment on rare and irreplacable manuscripts, you have to be sure they work beforehand. We use old materials like animal gelatine, size and flour as I paste-paste."

A book's life in the bindery begins in his hands, where the work needed is assessed. The pages may be old and crumbly or they may need sorting and collating. The conservation department deals with the old pages. Basically, they patch up the tears, using old scraps of paper whose they dye to the right colour. The paper itself has to be straightened and to do this they have several methods.

If the book is to be used by students in the reading room it has to be strengthened for constant use. They use laminated rag or nylon tissue which is carefully put on both sides of the page. For some books, where it is impossible to retain the original characters, they use only animal gelatine size. The main enemies of paper are dampness, and acids in the air and the ink.

The pages are often placed on stiffer paper at the binding edge, thus strengthening the book's back. Leather is covered over the spine and the boards, and it is then bended over to the finishers who impress patterns on the outside. The finisher, using heated brass tools, sticks the gold to the leather and rubs off the remainder.

"It's expensive work and slow," said Turner, "but it's worth it to give the books another 800 years of life." The Museum has just purchased a new Oriental manuscript, very rare and precious. Turner and his men can't wait to get their hands on it.

Civilized Man Seat of Badness States Amazonian in Brasilia

BRASILIA (Reuter) — When he was a child, Uru-Ura used to hunt and fish naked with bow and arrow, live in a primitive straw hut deep in the Amazon Basin and pray to the great spirit Toreksan.

Now he lives in this ultra-modern capital with its futuristic buildings, wears stylish wedge-heeled shoes, drives a car and prays to Jesus.

At the age of five or six he saw his first white man and fled in terror, for his father had told him all that his tribe had suffered at the hands of the white race.

Even now, 16 years after that first contact and eight years since he began living among the "civilized," he still does not trust the white man.

And when he is asked, Uru-Ura, one of the last descendants of the Carajá tribe and of Brazil's dwindling Indian population, said he still returns to the haunts of his childhood and pray once again to Toreksan.

"My father told me before I left for the white man's civilization that the white man is bad, that he robs, that he is not to be trusted," Uru-Ura said.

"It is correct what my father said, for I see all the badness around me. We think the civilized man is the seat of badness. The civilized man took our lands.

"Even today I'd rather trust a white man, even when I have known him a long time.

"But I would trust any Indian, even from another tribe, even if I did not know him."

Uru-Ura is one of about a dozen Indians in Brasilia working with the government's National Indian, Foundation.

He is tall, slender, with long, lank hair and a ready smile. Under his almond eyes he bears the blue circular markings of his tribe, scarred onto his face with a sharp stone when he was 14. He speaks fluent Portuguese.

When he was 15, the Indian Foundation sent him from the island of Bananal on the Araguaya River to the town of Belo Horizonte to learn to drive a tractor.

"In my tribe, on special nights, we would meet and pray and thank God, saying to Toreksan," Uru-Ura said.

"But in Belo Horizonte I became a Catholic because it was very difficult to return to my village to continue with our religion. So now I have two religions.

"I think that here in civilization Christ has more force, but in my village it is Toreksan who has the power and I pray to him wherever I return there."

He still believes strongly in the superstitions of his tribe—such as that of the bats fish, which is said to have irresistible power to attract women if a man wants its tooth or eye around his neck.

"It is true," Uru-Ura affirmed. "I do not need it now, because I am young. But when I am older I will wear it and I will only have to look at the girl and she will automatically come to me without even knowing it."

There is no doubt about which society Uru-Ura finds morally superior, although he confessed he has been seduced by the comforts in Brasilia and a desire to progress—he wants to study engineering.

"When I am older I will return to my village because here in the city one cannot rest," he said. "But I will take with me such comforts as I can, such as a radio.

"And even if I marry a white girl and have children, we will be accepted, for within the tribe there is no racial discrimination."

Changing Weather Is Threat

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Scientists are coming to the conclusion that changes in the world's weather pattern pose a grave threat to the global food supply that could lead to widespread crop failures and mass famine.

A number of weather scientists fear increasing variability in the weather could increase the risk of disastrous droughts, widespread hunger and at the devastating floods and other catastrophes.

Some experts say that man is ill-prepared for a new trend of adverse climate which seems to be imminent.

Weather conditions in many part of the world are causing grave concern among experts.

They cite the lack of monsoon rains over key agricultural regions of India that have caused the death of thousands, have washed over Bangladesh.

In Europe, scientists note, the weather had been too hot and dry at some times and too wet and cold others.

In North America, a weather expert recently reported that ice was lingering abnormally on the coasts of Newfoundland and the new evidence showed that the Gulf Stream was taking a more southerly course.

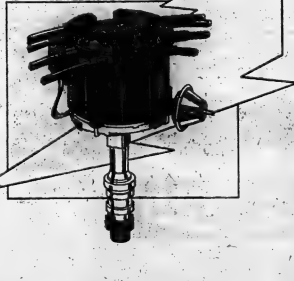
Mileage System.

The muscle behind the system.



Faster starts. Improved performance. Fewer service intervals. Lower maintenance and operating costs.

The system includes GM's new High Energy Electronic Ignition, another important engineering breakthrough, which can deliver up to 35,000 volts—more volts than conventional breaker point ignition systems.

Since it can deliver higher voltages, it can give you quicker starts with less drain on the battery. Even in damp or wet weather. With the High Energy Ignition System and the use of unleaded fuel, spark plug life of up to 22,500 miles can be expected.

What's more, there is neither condenser nor points to require periodic replacement. That alone should save you money on tune-ups.

The rest of the system. Radials.

Longer life. Better performance. Improved operating economy.

Steel-belted Radial Tires are standard on all 1975 GM Passenger Cars.

They're engineered to provide the most desirable balance between mileage, traction, handling, noise and appearance.

They offer better traction in snow and wet, plus lower rolling resistance.

A system with a warm heart.

Faster warm-ups.

In cold weather, an automobile engine needs more gasoline during starting and warm-up to overcome the gasoline's slower vaporization. In 1975, most GM passenger car engines have a new Fast Warm-up Carburetion that allows the choke to disengage faster.

This means you can really stretch your gasoline dollar.

We want you to buy what you like, and like what you buy!

'Day They Kidnapped Pope' Proves Smash Hit in Rio

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — The Brooklyn cabbie is tense. The kidnaped Pope is stashed in the pantry. The rabbi tears. Franzia and the European audience loves it.

It is not every day that a Brazilian playwright absconds with the Pope in New York and murders the Secretary at the United Nations. The Day They Kidnapped the Pope first opened here in 1971.

Sources say that if the Vatican likes the comedy with a message, it may run in a Rome theatre during the upcoming Holy Year festivities.

The play opened in Rio, toured Argentina, Mexico and Venezuela for more than a year and a half, and then hit the European boards. By the end of the year it will have played in 35 theatres from Berlin to Antwerp, Paris to Tel Aviv.

"And then," said author Joao Betencourt, "we try for London and New York."

Set in contemporary New York, the play traces the actions of Sam, a Jewish taxi driver from Brooklyn who kidnaps Pope "Albert" and brings him home to his wife Sara. While Sara cooks dinner, newscasters report that the pontiff will not be freed until the world comes up with the ransom of "24 hours of peace."

Police intend by to charge the house, but Sam thwarts their efforts with bogus Red Chang cranes; then the Pope gives Sam and Sara personal gifts and leaves their home. Returning to his pantry cell, the Pope tells the world the story of Sam's humble attempt to rescue him and Sara from violence and war.

Betencourt is pleased with the success of the play that once stood New York characters for what is probably Brazil's first theatre hit abroad.

The 40-year-old playwright studied at the Yale Drama School after he gave up a fledgling career as an agricultural engineer on his family's farm.

He financed his Yale studies when he wrote a tragedy — his only one — in the early '50s and won a prize from the Teatro de Estudantes.

Then 13 years later, Betencourt defines his style. "There are two kinds of writers: those who believe in the values of life; they write tragedies. And those who believe in surviving; they write comedies."

His latest play, a police farce, is currently squeaking by federal censors and starting to show in Rio.

Working in a country where plays are often closed by the official vigilantes on opening night for reasons ranging from the political to the sexual to the unknown, Betencourt is philosophical: "Most of the world's great playwrights wrote under censorship. Even the ancient Greeks had censorship."

Betencourt and his characters are masters of the art of surviving.

The Day They Kidnapped the Pope has more than survived—it has flourished. First presented in 1971 in a small 350-seat Copacabana theatre where it ran a year and a half, the play was translated into German and landed in Zurich's famous international Schauspielhaus theatre to begin its real climb to success.

It was reviewed by Zurich newspapers and taxi drivers who were invited to attend performances did voice opinions. Horns honked, theatre columns were peppered with exclamation points and the play was launched.

In Israel, famed actor Topol is considering the part of the taxi driver, while Italian film star Vittorio de Sica is being asked to play the Pope.

Meanwhile Betencourt, considered by his critics to be one of Brazil's most important playwrights, sits on Copacabana Beach and waits for a phone from Broadway or Hollywood.

NEW YORK (AP) — Jazz musician Lionel Hampton was reported in good condition Monday, recovering from surgery last Tuesday to stop internal bleeding, a Mount Sinai Hospital spokesman reported.

The 61-year-old musician was forced to cancel appearances here and may disrupt a planned European tour in October.

NEW YORK (AP) — Cher Bono, whose top-rated Sonny and Cher show was cancelled by CBS last spring after her marriage to Sonny Bono broke up, will have her own weekly variety series next fall, CBS said Monday.

Her former husband already has his own variety show, but on ABC. It premiered last Saturday.

Robert Wood, president of the CBS Television network, said Cher has been signed to an exclusive CBS contract, will appear in a one-hour variety special in February, and will star in a regular variety program scheduled to begin in the fall of 1975.

No details of the contract were made public.

Bonnie LeClair's Voice Strong Gutsy Instrument

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — When Bonnie LeClair climbs on the stage, and pulls up the inevitable stool, it is with a practised grace that somehow seems unpractised.

Although she is 19, she has been singing in public for long enough for it to show. Not overtly, but in the simple directness in which she relates to the audience. No pretension, or coy gestures.

The image is that of a young woman, of a certain vulnerability. Dark hair, hair framing an open smile, she sits balancing her guitar, granny dress draping to the floorboards. Almost like your sister, or even daughter, about to give her first high school concert.

But when Bonnie LeClair begins to sing, the image changes. Her voice is a strong, gutsy instrument. A powerful one that can edge on shrillness, then jump to clear, lullingly-sweet notes. No adolescent trills, or forced vocal gymnastics. Just an audience-hushing, this is-for-real quality.

It was a voice that impressed Warner Bros. enough to make her the first new performer in four years to be signed to the prominent record company. Actually it was not just her voice.

She also is a promising songwriter in public appearances, her repertoire is entirely hers. And it gets eclectically-eclectic.

Take a recent concert in Wolfville, N.S. Bonnie was the warm-up act for Gordon Lightfoot. In the concert that afternoon, Lightfoot was on edge and grumpy. He asked the audience to tap and complained repeatedly about the acoustics.

Some critics said later Lightfoot was an anti-climax. Bonnie LeClair, in that sun-filled Acadia University gymnasium, provided the real substance of entertainment.

Backed by an electric guitar and bass she played a surprisingly nimble acoustic guitar. Some songs were introspective and poetic, others extroverted and rollicking.

When she walked on stage, few people had heard of her. When she walked off, to waves of applause, few would forget her.

The concert was a salve to some bad news. Because of a plastic shortage, an album that Bonnie had painstakingly cut for Warner Bros. was shelved.

"It was really taxing," she said in an interview later describing the month-long recording sessions.

"It took about a month to get together. I had to get pinched up for each song. I would try to think about how I felt at the time—to really re-live what I feel.

"t-is just one of the things you have to take. I make some really good friends while I was making the album anyway."

Bonnie has been singing in earnest for about five years—mostly her own compositions.

"I can't explain how I write songs—here's not my way. Some people can write songs in a set manner but I can't. I guess extreme moods make me write songs well, I think."

Perhaps part of the sense of naturalness evoked by her voice is due to the fact that she sings only by ear.

"Sometimes I wish I had taken lessons. I took some music theory at school but I always made low marks."

But she has a highly-developed professional discipline.

"I don't smoke. I tried it but I got bronchial trouble. I do watch out for colds; worry a lot about getting laryngitis or a bad cold. Right now that's all I've got—a voice."

But she also has a dancing ability that impressed Jack MacAndrew so much he asked her to audition for the Charlottetown dancing troupe, Les Feux-Follets. MacAndrew is also the director of the Charlottetown Summer Festival.

After the audition, he wasted no time in offering Bonnie a contract to appear as a singer-dancer on a fall tour of the troupe.

Born Dec. 28, 1905, in Toledo, Ohio, Arquette quit school at 14 to get into show business. Arquette did his first radio network show with Fred Allaire and Charlie Butterworth and later worked with Burns and Allen and Jerry Vallee.

He was on the daytime game show Hollywood Squares from its inception in 1966.

Higher Increases in Prices Forecast for Coming Year

OTTAWA (CP) — Higher rates of price increases and probably bitter labor disputes during the next year were forecast Monday by the Conference Board in Canada.

Arthur J. R. Smith, head of the private economic research organization, said the current slowdown in the economy is expected to last for about a year.

He was commenting at a news conference to release the first in a planned series of quarterly forecasts of short-term performances of the economy. The projection is for real growth—after discounting the effects of inflation of 4.1 per cent this year and 1.3 per cent next year.

The consumer price index is projected to rise by 11.1 per cent this year and a further 12 per cent in 1975.

Most, if not all, of that projected 1975 per cent real growth next year will be in service industries, and activity in goods-producing industries is expected to be flat.

The forecast contains several gloomy projections:

—Total employment levels will remain about the same between now and the end of next year while unemployment rises to a quarterly average of 7.5 per cent by the last three months of 1975.

—Starts of construction on new housing units will total 172,000 in 1975, which would be the lowest since 1967.

—Spending by consumers on durable goods—on such things as cars and appliances—will decline by four per cent next year after discounting the effects of price rises.

pricesincreaseswill ENROIL

—Imports in 1975 will drop by 2.9 per cent in real terms and imports by 4.7 per cent.

Mr. Smith said he anticipates the continuing high rates of price increases will intensify labor pressure for higher wage settlements.

At the same time there will be a drop in demand for goods both in domestic and export markets. Thus corporations would be more willing to accept strikes.

Farmers' Leaders Advocate Unions For Land Workers

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian farm workers should have the right to form unions and to strike, officials of two major farmers' organizations said Monday.

Walter Miller, vice-president of the National Farmers' Union, and Gordon Hill, president of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture, said they support an appeal by federal Manpower Minister Robert Andras for changes in provincial laws to give farm employees the same protections as industrial workers.

"Everybody has the right to collective bargaining," Mr. Miller said in an interview. "It is discriminatory to deny farm workers the protective that they need."

Mr. Andras said last week that provinces should amend labor relations and employment standards legislation to include farm workers. At present, he said, only Newfoundland extends collective bargaining, minimum wage, hours of work, child labor and other protective legislation to farm employees.

In Ontario an estimated 100,000 farm workers are exempted from the province's labor relations act which governs dealings between management and unions. Ontario farm workers who try to form unions could be prosecuted under legislation barring conspiracies to restrain trade, a provincial labor department official said.

Mr. Andras was responding to reports that low pay, long hours and squalid housing are causing some migrant farm workers who harvest crops in Ontario. The manpower department uncovered "intolerable and inhumane" conditions among migrant workers in an investigation a year ago.

Mr. Miller said the National Farmers' Union is supporting "the struggle for good collective agreements" among grape pickers and other farm workers in the United States. There is no reason why the right to organize should not be extended to farm workers in Canada, he said.

Mr. Hill said a committee of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture now is reviewing the inclusion of farm workers in labor standards legislation and will likely have recommendations for the provincial government sometime this winter.

Mr. Hill said protection for farm workers should include the right to form unions and conduct collective bargaining and coverage under provincial minimum wage laws, but not necessarily limits on hours of work and use of child labor.

"It would be a mistake to tell someone that he could only work eight hours a day during the harvest," Mr. Hill said. As for child labor laws, "most farm kids are doing some work from the time they are five or six years old."

The Andras proposal was dismissed as "tongue-in-cheek" by Conservative MP Jack Murta (Lisgar), the party's chief agricultural critic in the Commons. Mr. Andras, Mr. Murta said, "is now talking about the same law (as) he tried to be covered in union contracts.

MPPs Recommend Resource Industries 75 Pct. Canadian

TORONTO (CP) — An Ontario legislature committee on economic and cultural nationalism has recommended that new ventures involving non-renewable resources be at least 75 per cent Canadian-owned within 15 years.

The committee's third interim report, released Monday, sets out recommendations designed to promote greater domestic participation in exploitation of non-renewable resources.

The ownership recommendations said that the 75-per-cent Canadian participation in non-renewable resource ventures be introduced in three stages over 15 years.

Another resolution said that no single non-resident or related group of non-residents should hold more than 18 per cent of such equity.

The report says that 78 per cent of assets sales and profits in the non-renewable resource industries were foreign-owned in 1970.

The committee, composed of seven Progressive Conservatives, two Liberals and two New Democratic Party members, called for a new deal for economic policy, to make manufacturing ventures more attractive and to emphasize the resources sector.

However, the committee said that action should take the form of encouragement for manufacturing without discouraging resource ventures.

As a broad recommendation, the report suggests policy should aim at "a strong and viable Canadian-controlled presence in the non-renewable resources sector."

Another resolution says the province should be empowered to invest up to 51 per cent of the equity for new resource developments.

Two committee members, Douglas Kennedy (PC—Peel South) and Gordon Walker (PC—London North), objected to the government participation clauses.

In a written dissent, they said it represents the first step toward nationalization of the resource industries.

However, the two NDP members, house leader Ian Deans and Elie Martel (Sudbury East) stated in a written statement that new resource ventures should be undertaken with direct government intervention.

Richard S. Smith, (L—Nipissing) joined the two NDP members in that recommendation.

Other committee suggestions included recommendations that:

—Greater attention be drawn to foreign sources of capital other than the U.S.;

—More attention be paid to increasing Canadian raw materials.

So 28,000,000 Eggs Rotted

Egg Board Refused 50-million Order

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto exporter said Tuesday his order for 28 million eggs was rejected in April by the Canadian Egg Marketing Agency (CEMA) because the price offered was too low.

Andrew Tuval, president of Resim International Ltd., a food broker, said he had the order, from one of Angola's largest food importers, signed in the Canadian embassy in Vienna with the Canadian trade commissioner there as witnesses.

Mr. Tuval said the CEMA need not have wasted any of the 28 million eggs recently found rotting in storage areas if it had pushed European exports.

"But I saw no evidence the egg agency was interested."

Canadian eggs, he said, have better flavor, color and sanitary conditions than the East European eggs usually sold in Angola, which is a major importer of eggs. If the price had been right, a good market could have been developed, he added.

Resim was developing the Austrian market with the help of the Ontario Egg Producers Marketing Board, with Resim working on commission. An experimental air shipments of eggs to Vienna were started in late 1973 with, the Ontario board's help.

But when the national egg surplus began to mount last spring, CEMA took over export responsibilities from the provincial boards, along with responsibility for disposing of the surplus.

He bowed out and turned Mr. Tuval and his order over to CEMA. Brian Haworth, manager of the Ontario board, said, Resim's offer to CEMA was in the low range," recalled Henry Faulx, director of market development for the Ontario Food Council, a branch of the agriculture department.

"But the point is that every offer should have been looked at in the light of the surplus around."

Mr. Faulx said, "CEMA wouldn't even come up with a counter-offer."

Resim's offer to CEMA was 53 cents a dozen for eggs delivered to Austria, including air freight charges of about six cents a dozen.

At the time of the offer, egg boards were paying farmers 66 cents a dozen for grade A large eggs that were then sold to stores for 81.5 cents a dozen.

"We felt the price was workable and we could have come to some agreement," Mr. Tuval said. "We asked for a counter-

'Vicious Plot' Seen To Destroy Agency

CHATHAM (CP) — The president of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture said Tuesday a "vicious and deliberate" plot is brewing to destroy the Canadian Egg Marketing Agency.

Gordon Hill, president of the 36,000-member federation, said that producers are soon people in department of consumer and corporate affairs, some spoiling station operators, and some large egg producers "who would like to corner the market."

He said a deliberate campaign offer from CEMA, but it never came.

A CEMA spokesman said Tuesday it was the first time the current CEMA administration heard of the Resim case. CEMA directors set up a management committee of three people in July to replace Ed Morgan, manager of the British Columbia egg board who was on loan to CEMA for six months.

Meanwhile, the Ontario Egg Producers Marketing Board announced at a news conference Tuesday that Ontario egg producers are going to cut their flocks by another 500,000 birds during the next few weeks to reduce overproduction. Ontario farms now have nine million hens, down three million from the number they had when the board was set up two years ago.

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Canada, warning of a growing threat of nuclear catastrophe, called upon all countries today to place under international supervision the stock of nuclear fissile material they now hold for peaceful purposes. External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen urged the General Assembly to seek broad international measures to halt both the multiplication and the wider dissemination of nuclear explosive devices and check the spread of nuclear weapons technology.

Calley Freed

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — A United States federal judge today overturned the court-martial conviction of former U.S. Army lieutenant William Calley for My Lai murders and ordered him released from military prison.

U.S. Suspends Aid

WASHINGTON (AP) — Over-riding the recommendations of State Secretary Henry Kissinger and its own leaders, the House of Representatives voted Tuesday to suspend United States aid to Turkey until there is progress for peace in Cyprus.

GM Seeks Relief

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors has begun to flex its corporate muscle in support of a three-year moratorium on new auto safety and emissions standards, which it considers to be them inflationary. In his strongest criticism yet of federal regulations, GM Chairman Richard Gerstenberg also called for a joint U.S.-government-industry review of the need for existing and proposed regulations.

Frost Hits Again

LISBON, Ont. (CP) — After a second night of record frost in southwestern Ontario, crop analysts Tuesday generally declared estimates of losses, but less severe than originally feared. Kent County tomato losses alone, Andy Watson, provincial agriculture representative in Chatham, said his Monday estimate of $2 million was "enough too low."

Discrimination Charged

TORONTO (CP) — Michael Sheehan, industrial organizer in the Canadian Maritime headquarters of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada, said Tuesday the rival union he helped organize and a shipping company are discriminating against him by denying him membership and employment.

Henry Mahood

On the Road

Jack Ellis, MP Hastings, took to the road again Monday, touring community centres in the riding to talk on-the-spot with constituents about their problems. Last night he hauled his mobile office in Belleville's Foster Ward, one of the stops in the week-long tour.

U.S. Pipeline Firm Regards Canada Unreliable Partner

DETROIT, Mich. (CP) — Energy Minister Donald Macdonald said Tuesday a United States pipeline consortium's characterizing Canada as "untrustworthy" to help promote the company's plans for a natural gas pipeline across Alaska and Canada is "an all-American route" was that he did not want the U.S. dependent on a foreign power for security and price.

Mr. Macdonald said in an interview the consortium is trying to foster a negative view of Canada since "the best chance for the proposal is to defeat the trans-Canada route."

Canadian Arctic Line Supported

TORONTO (CP) — Consumers' Gas Co. said Tuesday it continues to support the proposed Canadian Arctic Gas pipeline as offering northern gas supplies to Canadian markets at the lowest cost and the earliest time.

Cut Your Prices to Us Oil Lands Reply to U.S.

By The Associated Press

The oil-exporting countries are responding to the United States government's campaign to roll back the price of crude oil by demanding that the U.S. and other industrial countries cut the cost of their exports.

The tough new U.S. line also brought a warning from France's foreign minister against trying to bully the Arabs. He said oil prices can be brought down only through a peaceful dialogue.

President Carlos Andres Perez of Venezuela, the chief foreign supplier of oil for the U.S. and Canada, told President Ford in an open letter that the higher prices are a justified response to "economic oppression" by the industrial powers.

"We see no other way to confront the economic - totalitarianism that has been creeping to the fore in business and world trade," he said. He said that for many years oil prices were steadily declined while the cost of industrial machinery and manufactured goods from the United States increased.

House of Representatives Refuses to Restrict CIA

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — The U.S. House of Representatives defeated Tuesday an attempt to restrict Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) activities abroad, despite recent disclosures of covert CIA operations against the toppled government of former president Salvador Allende in Chile.

The House voted 291 to 106 against an amendment by Representative Elizabeth Holtzman (Dem. N.Y.) that would have barred use of funds by the CIA "to undermine or destabilize" any foreign government.

The move was prompted by disclosures that the CIA spent $11 million for covert operations to undermine the Allende government—overthrown last September in a military coup in which Allende died.

The amendment was attached to a resolution providing temporary funds for United States government agencies until Congress acts on pending appropriations bills providing the money.

Ottawa Is Blamed For Health Costs

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial health ministers placed much of the blame for rising health costs on the federal government Tuesday at the first session of their two-day closed-door conference.

Frank Miller of Ontario told reporters following the conclusion of the session that the provinces all face hefty jumps in health-care budgets next year and want a new arrangement with Ottawa to share the burden.

Mr. Miller said the provinces will ask Ottawa for frequent conferences on cost sharing "as soon as possible."

Mr. Miller has said earlier, Ontario's health budget is expected to increase about 23 per cent this year and will reach about $7.5 billion.

He said the other provinces are facing similar increases.

Bread

Loaves Could Be Cheaper If Old Ones Not Returned

OTTAWA (CP) — The price of a loaf of bread could be reduced two cents if all bakers refused to buy old bread back from retailers, the bakery spokesman agreed Tuesday it is a risky business.

Peter Wygant, president of General Bakeries Ltd., said in an interview this arrangement had stopped buying back old bread from its retailers 10 months ago, adding:

"All grocers, large and small, would rather that the baker pick up the bread. If one baker does take back all stales then the tendency is for the store to do business with that baker. We took that risk ourselves when we did this."

Still, he said, the move created an additional profit of about two per cent for the country by not having to have trucks picking up the bread and then having to find a buyer for it at a thrift store or as pig feed.

"The meat packers don't take back old meat, produce suppliers don't take back unsold vegetables," Mr. Wygant said.

What the company now does is grant the stores a five per cent credit for unsold over Christmas and February. So far only General Bakeries has made the move.

Mr. Wygant said he is due within a few days to send out the forms and, as it can.

"The move is in line with a suggestion from the federal food prices review board last

Milk

There'll Be Less Sold After Price Jumps

OTTAWA (CP) — Consumers will buy less milk than they need for proper nutrition if the government increases the 29 cents-a-quart milk subsidy, the food prices review board said Tuesday.

In a statement, the board said removal of the year-old $106-million subsidy would impose "an undesirably heavy burden on Canadian consumers."

"Milk is an essential food and price increase in the order of 29 per cent will discourage its adequate consumption.

"This constitutes a threat to the nutrition and good health of Canadian families."

The board said it realized the need to curtail government spending because of the "intensity of current inflationary pressures," adding it was also aware of federal arguments that the subsidy could be cause family allowance and other payments now are being increased as living costs rise.

But it said it regretted the government's decision to end the subsidy now, when consumers are being faced with a number of food price increases.

"The board said it realized the need to extend the subsidy until inflationary pressures ease and a long-term dairy policy is adopted or, at a minimum, to extend it 12 from four months the period during which the subsidy gradually will be ended.

Next Meal Refugees' Big Worry

CHOLOMA, Honduras (AP) — Throngs of hungry Honduranas made shoeless by Hurricane Fifi jumped up and down trying to catch bunches of green bananas donated by local merchants.

At the airport in nearby San Pedro Sula, there were cartons of clothes and mountains of yams of food or sack of grain left.

Nixon's Lung Has Blood Clot

Trent Canal Due For Minor Repairs

TRENTON — Trenton's Lock One and several dams on the lower portion of the Trent Canal System are due for repairs once the canal closes for the summer Oct. 15, Donald Gormley, system superintending engineer said Tuesday.

Meneely Remanded

MADOC — Jeremiah James Meneely 18, was remanded for one week in court here Tuesday in a charge of murder in the death of his father

He has been in custody since his arrest Aug. 21.

He was charged with murder not punishable by death in the shooting Aug. 1 1973, of Jerrett Meneely, RR 4 Marmora.

Thief Escapes

BRIGHTON — A lone masked gunman in a red Volkswagen escaped police roadblocks Tuesday after robbing Inderjit Singh, co-owner of Lyle's Cut-Rate Gas on Highway 2 of $227.

Provincial police today said they are continuing their investigation into the hold-up at the gas station, on the south side of Highway 2 between Trenton and Brighton near Smithfield.

Co-owner and brother of the victim, David Singh, said today the gunman entered the station but did not stop at the pumps.

"He walked into the store, I thought he came in for cigarettes," he said.

David Singh said his brother ran into the garage after the robbery and he ran out to see the car.

"He was already starting the car when came out," David Singh said, "I couldn't see the licence number. It was taped with two or three strips of black tape."

Police set up roadblocks on Highway 2, coming into both Trenton and Brighton.

Police patrols on Highway 401 were alerted as were various police departments in the area.

Fire Damages Car

IVANHOE — Fire broke out in an automobile on Highway 62 about six miles south of here today.

The fire started in the motor of the car — driven by Dorothy Raspel RR 2, Stirling — and caused about $1,500 damage, said police.

Mrs. Raspel and a young daughter were uninjured.

Madoc volunteer firemen were called to the scene.

Beerfest Success

TRENTON — Octoberfest, Middleton Park's first annual fall bash, was an unqualified success says festival co-ordinator Master Cpl. Jim Hooton.

The event drew more than 400 base personnel on each of the two nights it ran last weekend. Only 300 people had been anticipated originally both Friday and Saturday.

Enthusiastic crowds forced organizers to shift the festivities from a beer tent at Tent City at CFB Trenton to the Southside Recreation Centre.

"It started to grow so big that at the last minute we had to move it to the recreation centre," Master Cpl. Hooton said Tuesday.

"It was just fantastic," he said, though admitted that a few organizational errors had been made.

Middleton Park's first Octoberfest had a two-fold purpose: To raise money for community council supported minor sports programs and to bring base personnel together after a summer of leaves, new arrivals and departures.

Master Cpl. Hooton said he felt both intentions were fulfilled. The event has put approximately $900 into council coffers.

Local Firms Get Contracts

OTTAWA — Four federal contracts totalling $78,635, have been awarded to three Belleville firms, the Department of Supply and Services announced this week.

AOCO Ltd. received two contracts worth $45,300 to provide optical services at various Ontario locations for the Department of National Defence and the Department of Veterans' Affairs.

Moira Schaefer Fuels was given a $13,958 contract to supply fuel oil to the Department of Public Works and Strudwick Industries Ltd. of 139 N. Front St., will receive a $11,467 contract to supply carpeting to the Department of National Defence.

The four were among 197 unclassified contracts — each for $10,000 or more for a total value of $8,958,583 — awarded to Canadian companies during the week ended Sept. 15.

Ferry Removed

CLAYTON — Effective Wednesday, Sept. 25, the ferry Quinte Loyalist will be out of service for approximately 10 days to permit repairs to docks and ramps.

The ferry Quinte will continue to provide half hour service departing Glenora on the quarter hours and Adolphustown on the hours and half hours. Load limit for trucks is restricted to 18 gross tons.

Ferry captain Keith Dancey this week reported that traffic over the ferries has steadily increased in the last four years. There has been a steady increase as well. In July, 1974 the ferries carried a total of 38,121 vehicles and in August 36,847 cars had trucks.

With both ferries in operation 27 cars can be carried on each trip made by the boats.

'Reformists ... Do-Gooders' Under Fire

Toronto May Be a 'Great' City But Problems Abound Too

By VINCENT BOAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
The News Service

The United States has the oldest established permanent theatre crisis on earth—in the city of its critics.

Our neighbors, Canadian critics appear to be examples that all the world should follow. Which brings this writer to a glowing article about Toronto in the current issue of Fortune, a magazine that is to U.S.S business men as Downbeat used to be to jazz buffs or Sporting News to baseball fans.

The article concludes that Toronto is one of the few cities of the world that can be described as great—although some of its accolades could be applied just as well to other Canadian cities.

But any Fortune reader who intends to move to Toronto would do well to consider the other side of the picture.

Some of Toronto's problems were outlined in the recent annual conference of the Canadian Real Estate Association in Halifax by Brian Magee, who just finished his term as CREA president.

He cited the importance of "reform" city council, "do-gooder," special-interest groups and planners who have no stake in the developments over which they exercise much power.

This combination, he claims, is placing Hamilton—north of new construction activity and causing the city to lose in a decade 275-million in $36-million a year.

Certainly no municipality should give real-estate developers a free hand. But examples of uncontrolled "development" can be found all across Canada.

But real-estate developers are by no means the only special-interest group that ought to be controlled. Yet in Toronto, although the municipal council can—with the right combination of possible support—control strategic-street special privileges from city council—that body has been almost unanimously in the service of reform.

Certainly the people are pleased to have homes on public parklands, ignoring eviction notices long after their leases have expired.

They are physically barred from well-do-do neighborhoods, or blocked by a platoon of traffic restrictions.

And new buildings of an economic size are banned in the large central area, thus according a fast-increasing existing structure—strategic special privileges from city council—that have

Bread-and-Butter Letters

By Paris Clark

That bread-and-butter letter! Dear Lucy letter — sometimes impossible — which should follow your return home from a holiday visit to a friend.

Tell me which would you rather receive:

(1) Dear Joan: I enjoyed terribly much after our long drive. Thank you for your hospitality. Bill sends love and thanks with mine. Grace.

(2) Dear Joan: I have been telling Marianne and Bobby about your lovely garden, our delicious barbeque, and the way you took us around to see the sights. Now they want to come to see you.

But the best part of it all was you yourself, and your long talks and many laughs over the things we did when we were in training together. Your Jack and my Bill enjoyed each other too.

It was all great, and thank you for going to such pains to see that every moment was a delight!

Bill sends his love with mine, and says next time you two have to come here. Lovingly, Grace.

The point is the letter should have more than just a sentence or two saying "thank you". A thoughtful hostess deserves some reference to the work she has done to make things right, and happy, for you. These are the sentences in your note which your friend will look for and read over twice.

And your thank-you should go into the mail as the very first "must" after you are back inside your own front door.

DEAR DORIS: My husband's mother is Dutch and of course I'm not. He never ceases to compare me to her. He also has told me many a time that Dutch women are the best lovers. This makes me angry not to say that it hurts my ego as his sexual partner.

Please can you tell me, is this true? And is there a survey to back this comment?

I hope this doesn't sound silly to you but I'd really like to know.

Defiated Ego

DEAR DEFIATED: Non-sense! People are individuals, and emotional natures depend more on what we have learned from our parents than on racial origin.

If there is affection in your family, you are more likely to be a responsive, affectionate partner. But if your background included adults who were of the touch-and-go variety, you have probably learned reserve.

Would you like me to send you my list of recommended books on marriage relationships? If you really tackle this sex problem seriously, I'm betting on you as a sexual partner!

Then your ego will be all inflated again.

Confidential to Puzzled Wife: You say "doctors are reluctant to give me information about the course of this disease or to refer me to anyone else".

They may have two reasons for this: (1) They feel that the trouble is so rare as to be almost unheard of, and that, not would not understand anyway; or (2) they have no hope whatever for the situation and feel it would only upset you to tell you this.

Since you are more upset by not knowing, ask for a private appointment with the doctor and take your brother along. Have written out a list of actual questions you need answers for. Including one which requests suggestions for keeping your patient as optimistic and as comfortable as possible.

There are resources right in your own community which can HP your morale and his, and help both of you.

Have you asked Doris about your dilemma? Perhaps she can suggest a Canadian resource that will help. Write to her in care of this newspaper.)

Slumps to Grunts: Good Eating the Old-Fashioned Way

Have you ever had a slump?

Not that kind. The kind of slump we're talking about is made with apples and was such a favorite of American sailormen (Louisa May Alcott (Little Men; Little Women) that she named her Concord, Massachusetts home after it.

It's just one of a whole tradition of North American pioneer dishes with names that sound . . . well, a little silly. Some are quite descriptive, some a bastardization of a foreign term or a name used by native peoples. And sometimes the names we use today for the foods are based on a word lost in the years.

At any rate, we thought you might enjoy some of these old-fashioned recipes. Most are Canadian, some are strictly Yankee, many are based on "old country" favorites. And because they're old-fashioned they're generally simple and economical.

Today, the sweet group of pioneer style recipes, next Wednesday, the savories.

And now, Louisa May's very favorite dessert.

Apple Slump

six cups apples, sliced one cup sugar
one tsp. cinnamon
¼ cup water
1½ cups flour
1½ tsps. baking powder
milk

Combine apples, sugar, cinnamon and water in a saucepan. Heat to almost boiling. Combine flour, baking powder, add milk — about ½ cup — to make a soft dough. Drop dough onto apple mixture like dumplings. Cover and simmer over low heat for about half an hour. Serve warm.

Fried Flagers

This rather gruesome name is what the ladies of Bank St. Church in Ottawa dubbed this homespun dessert when they produced their cookbook. The Canadian Economist in 1881.

thick slices of stale bread egg
milk
sugar
vanilla

Cut the thick slices of bread in fingers. Beat egg with milk, sugar and vanilla. Soak the bread for one hour. Fry these in butter and serve on a platter in a pyramid, sprinkle with sugar and pat jelly around.

Brown Betty

There must be 300 recipes for Brown Betty, a traditional pudding. This one comes from a cookbook published in Toronto, in 1892.

apples bread crumbs
two cups brown sugar
¼ cup sugar
two tsps. cinnamon
½ tsp. nutmeg

Fill a pudding dish with a mixture of unbuttered bread crumbs and two-thirds apples. Combine remaining ingredients and spread on apple mix. Bake very brown.

Fat Sparrows

These are obvious. The fried cakes look like their namesake. They're really Fetschpatze so named by their Mennonite founders who set them hot, dipped in maple syrup.

one egg
one cup sour cream baking soda
flour

Combine egg, beaten, with sour cream and one rounded tsp. of soda. Add flour to stiffen to consistency of bread dough. Drop plain sized pieces in boiling fat and cook until golden brown.

Johnny Cake

This cornmeal cake is the subject of a debate: some say its name is a bastardization of journey cake because travellers took them on trips. Other say they were first known as Shawnee cakes after the Indians. Another "classic" with a hundred variations. Ours is a sweet version, but purists insist no sugar allowed.

one cup cornmeal
¼ cup milk
½ cup shortening
¼ cup sugar
one cup flour
2½ tsps. baking powder
½ tsp. salt
one egg
one cup milk

Combine cornmeal and ¼ cup milk. Cream shortening, blend in sugar. Sift together flour, salt, baking powder. Add dry ingredients to creamed mixture along with egg and one cup milk. Blend in cornmeal. Bake in 9 inch square pan (greased) at 350 degrees for 40 minutes.

Blueberry Grunt

New Englanders apparently were especially fond of giving unusual names to their foods. In the great tradition of foods with names like snickerdoodles, brambles and tangle breeches is the berry grunt. The name apparently refers to the unappetizing sound the steaming pudding makes.

two-thirds cup sugar
one tsp. cornstarch
1½ cups blueberries
one tsp. lemon juice
1¼ cups flour
four tsp. baking powder
½ tsp. salt
½ cup shortening
one egg
one cup milk

Combine sugar, cornstarch in a saucepan, and stir in blueberries and lemon juice. Cook to boiling point, stirring, then let simmer one minute. Combine flour, baking powder and salt. Blend in shortening as for pastry. Beat egg and milk and stir in. Drop by tbsps. on hot blueberries. Cover tightly and simmer 20 minutes.

Ann Landers

Grampa's Loss May Be Family's Gain

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: My husband began to boil when I read the letter about Aunt Clotilde, the rich relative who kept he family in the lurch by intimidating them with threats. She kept warning them to "behave" or they would be cut out of her will.

My father-in-law practised the same kind of quiet blackmail. He told everyone in town that he was leaving our children his entire estate but they'd have to live up to his expectations or they wouldn't get a dime.

Now for the G. D. "big finish." Last week the old buzzard turned 80. In 1971, he made some bad investments and has since suffered horrendous losses in the stock market. Three weeks ago he had to be put in a nursing home. Guess who is paying his bills?—Go Know

Dear Know: Maybe your children are fortunate. Inherited money (especially when it's been long anticipated) can make some out of them faster than anything I know of.

Dear Ann Landers: Every time I've started to write to you I've lost my nerve. It all sounds so sordid I feel as if I'm degrading myself by telling such a thing on my husband. But today it made up my mind: "No more excuses. I'm going to write to Ann Landers."

You've written several columns about Funny Uncles, or in some cases they were Funny Grandfathers or Funny Step-fathers. Whatever the relationship, the men could be described as overaged skunks. I'm the wife of one of those skunks and it took me 10 years to find out. The information came from the fourth young relative he got funny with. (She signed the other three.)

My advice to all young girls who have such a problem is this: Tell his wife immediately. If there is no wife, tell your own mother or father. But for God's sake, tell somebody! I found out too late to do anything about it. I am 62 now and can't get a job or start over. So I go on living with a man I despise. Do you have any advice for me, Ann?—Learned Too Late

Dear Friend: The advice I'm about to give you appeared in a housekeeper—afraid to open my mouth for fear of interfering. Maybe you're next.

His letter was signed "Learned Too Late." The reader told her:

"Too late, half! It's not too late. If you stay in a house where you are miserable, you're nuts.

It's time to add that: According to law your husband must support you. Get a part-time job. Cultivate new friends and make a new life for yourself.

Continents Collided

Newfoundland Half European And Other Half American

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Newfoundland is considered a museum piece of the Old and New Worlds culturally, and scientists now believe the island was born of a physical meeting of the European and North American continents as well.

The proposal by bears under study by scientists at Memorial University's geomagnetic research laboratory (GRL). The early findings, based on the fossil magnetism in rocks, support the view of many geologists that eastern and western Newfoundland once lay far apart on opposite sides of an ocean.

The study is part of a broad research program on the earth's magnetism which was launched here in the mid-1950s, at a time when new discoveries about continental drift were affirming that seafloors and continents are actually moving "plates" that slide along the earth's mantle.

The GRL research workers, all geophysicists with the university's physics department, now are entering a crucial stage of their studies by participating in a deep-sea drilling project.

The idea of Newfoundland's cataclysmic birth was first voiced as part of a hypothesis by Dr. J. Tuzo Wilson of Toronto, an internationally recognized geophysicist and proponent of the continental drift theory.

Prof. Wilson suggested that half a billion years ago there existed a "proto-Atlantic" similar in shape to today's North Atlantic Ocean. According to his hypothesis the proto-North American and proto-European continents then came together, displacing the sea. One of the points of contact was Newfoundland in the region that became Notre Dame Bay.

Eastern sections of the North American plate collided with the western rim of the European plate and the rocks intermingled. Geologists say such an upheaval explains why thick piles of rocks called ophiolites, a type believed normally to exist only several miles below the ocean floor, now are found on land near western Notre Dame Bay.

Upheavals from collisions of continental plates built up mountain ranges such as the Himalayas, even though the plates moved only a few inches a year.

As the proto-Atlantic Ocean closed, mineral deposits were pushed to the surface near the contact zone. An example is the Notre Dame area with its widespread deposits of copper and other ores. Near an old mine at Betts Cove, the GRL researchers found throughs majestic—study traces of native copper iron. The metal is normally found only in a chemically combined state such as iron ore, and this seems to be the first time it has been discovered in its native state in any terrestrial rocks.

Dr. Ernst Deutsch, professor in charge of the research centre, explained in an interview the discovery and its significance.

He and graduate student Kendori Rae had been testing samples of 50-million-year-old ophiolites. As all magnetic rocks do when sufficiently hot, the samples lost their magnetism, but at higher temperatures characteristic of pure iron.

"Previously the only rocks for which similar behavior had been reported were lunar rocks," Dr. Deutsch said. "On the moon, the magnetism tends to reside in iron that has not become oxidized because of the insufficient atmosphere. On earth, however, native iron in rocks can prevail only under highly unusual conditions. Such conditions probably existed during the origin of ophiolites—but in during the formation of the landward thrust of the ancient sea floor.

"Furthermore, although the amount of native iron was minute, its presence may give clues to potential economic resources. In several areas of Newfoundland, rocks corresponding to the iron-bearing ones are found to contain copper and other metals that may point to yet undiscovered commercial ore bodies. To this end, we are collaborating with members of the geology department on a rock, magnetic and geological study in the Notre Dame area. It is a good example of how research into continental drift can be put into practical use."

Geophysical evidence showed that about 30 million years ago the Atlantic began to open again. As the continents parted, Newfoundland and other sections of eastern North America retained former pieces of Europe-Africa and began to assume their present shapes.

A decade ago, Dr. Harold Williams, now professor of geology at Memorial University, pointed out the hybrid nature of insular Newfoundland's geology. The eastern and western parts are of different origin though of similar age, and are bonded by younger rocks in the middle part, the "central mobile belt."

Dr. Deutsch explained that the opening of the Atlantic began when molten basalt rose from the earth's mantle along what is referred to as "the Mid-Atlantic Ridge.

THE TREES AND FIELDS WENT THE OTHER WAY

Evelyn Eaton was born in Switzerland, the daughter of ardently Anglophile Canadian parents. She was educated in England and France, lived for some years in Nova Scotia, and became a citizen of the United States when she was 21. She writes about her ancestral history, Edwardian upbringing and her career as a poet and novelist. She recalls adventures, such as her reluctant presentation at Court to her chilling experience of psychic phenomena. It is a very candid and unassuming memoir.

PURSUIT, THE SINKING OF THE BISMARCK

by Ludovic Kennedy

The German battleship Bismarck was in 1941 the most formidable fighting ship afloat. In May of that year she escaped into the Atlantic where, her presence posed a fearful threat, to the convoys that kept Britain alive.

On May 26th, soon after dawn, the Hood, most famous and beloved of British warships, caught up with Bismarck. A shell pierced Hood's armor-plating and exploded in her magazine; she sank within two minutes. The Bismarck continued. For a day and a half Bismarck escaped her pursuers. Finally, as she neared Brest, aircraft from Ark Royal launched an attack on her. Badly crippled, she was cornered and sunk. Mr. Kennedy has written a vivid and immensely exciting story.

Extensive research has been used by Mr. Kousoulas in producing this frank, affectionate, but sometimes critical, history of contemporary Greece. Today Greece is one of the most unique nations in the world. This book traces the social, political, economic, and emotional forces that shaped the nation's history. It shows how these link with the past, so inseparable part of being Greek, continue to shape the thinking of today's Greeks.

No Welfare Without Proof No Job Exists

HARRISON HOT SPRINGS, B.C. (CP) — Labor Bill Vander Zalm of Surrey says the provincial government will cut off welfare benefits to people who cannot prove they are unable to find a job.

He said in an interview Monday that a directive from the government on Aug. 26 ordered municipalities "not to pay welfare to any individual who cannot prove he is unable to gain employment."

The directive puts all B.C. municipalities "in the same boat as Surrey," Mr. Vander Zalm said, in forcing all employable people off welfare.

House Approves $398,000 For Nixon's Transition

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Democratic-controlled House of Representatives appropriations committee approved $398,000 in transition money Tuesday for former president Richard Nixon but said his White House tapes and papers should not be moved until the Watergate prosecutors and courts complete arrangements for access to them.

The committee approved a cut made in subcommittee last week of $422,000 from the $820,000 requested by President Ford for Nixon's expenses in winding down his affairs.

It rejected all but $118,000 for a tenth, near San Clemente, Calif., in which Nixon and the Ford administration had agreed to store the tapes and papers jointly.

The House committee acted only hours after the Senate government operations committee approved a bill providing for government custody and control of Nixon's tapes and papers. The Senate bill would supersede a Ford administration agreement with Nixon's lawyers.

Argentina Agrees To Reactor Terms

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada and Argentina have come to terms on a special bilateral agreement whereby the South American country pledges not to use a new Canadian nuclear reactor for making explosives, Dwight Fulford of the external affairs department said Tuesday.

Still to be settled, however, is a bilateral safeguard agreement between Argentina and the International Atomic Energy Agency (IAEA) in Vienna, said Mr. Fulford, director of the external affairs energy division.

Settlement of this agreement, which, among other things, sets up an inspection procedure for the new reactor, is expected within a few months, said Mr. Fulford.

The Canada-Argentina agreement makes explicit the Canadian position that nuclear explosives are not to be manufactured from the Canadian reactor for any purpose, peaceful or otherwise, he said.

The agreement contained none of the ambiguity that enabled the Indians to develop a nuclear device with Canadian technology, and then claim they hadn't broken the agreement because the explosive was for so-called peaceful purposes.

The 600-megawatt, $750-million Candu reactor now is under construction by Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd. and its Italian engineering partner, Italimpianti, at a site about 300 miles west of Buenos Aires.

AECL has been asked exclusively by Argentina to submit a proposal for a second nuclear power station.

Lorne Gray, AECL president, said the bid is expected to be submitted soon.

Davis Almost Arrested in Rome

ROME (CP) — A funny thing happened to Ontario Premier William Davis on his way to Pope Pius's heir Tuesday.

He and his wife, Kathleen, and a 15-man news media contingent were nearly taken into custody by a zealous Roman policeman near the Fountain of Trevi.

Davis Not Surprised By Lawrence Quitting

ROME (CP) — The resignation Tuesday of Bert Lawrence, former Ontario minister of resources and development, came as no surprise to Ontario Premier William Davis, the premier said here.

Davis said the former cabinet minister had discussed the possibility of his resignation with him before Davis left for a 5-day visit to Sicily and Italy.

Davis said he had also discussed with Ottawa Mayor Pitts, Bryant the possibility of Bryant's running for Lawrence's seat in Carleton East in a by-election which the premier says he expects to call on his return to Canada next Monday.

A television team from the British Broadcasting Corp. was attempting to interview Pope when Mrs. Lindsay-Hogg of Rath, when the portly policeman came running up, shouting in Italian that filming was illegal.

The premier stood to one side and chuckled as the policeman, engaged in a friendly conversation with interpreter Paolo Meloni. The policeman was surrounded by photographers who shouted at him in two languages.

"He wants to take us all to the police station," Meloni said at one point.

The interpreter tried to tell the white-helmeted policeman that Davis was "El Primo Ministro" as the Italians call him.

"I don't care who he is," the policeman replied.

"I don't know him," Ozma with me."

Inspector John Clem of the Ontario Provincial Police, accompanying Davis as a security man, flashed his badge. The Roman policeman waved it away.

But he apparently abandoned the idea of arresting the whole group and settled for Colin Allison, a cameraman for the Canadian Television Network.

"Tell him I haven't taken any film yet," Allison urged the interpreter.

Allison "escaped" to the safety of the Davis bus when John Downing, a six foot two-inch, 200-pound columnist for the Toronto Sun planted himself in front of the policeman and demanded to know who the superior officer was.

The policeman discreetly covered his badge number on his chest.

"For awhile there, I thought I was going to have to practice a little law," said the premier when the party finally moved on, his number intact. The premier is a lawyer from Brampton, Ont.

The BBC crew later got its interview with Davis in front of the Forum, the ruins of ancient Rome.

Lalonde and CRTC Do Not Believe Beer Essential Part of Good Life

OTTAWA (CP) — Imagine being confronted by a television beer commercial showing a sick drunk in a dirty dark alley behind a tavern.

Not quite what Health Minister Marc Lalonde has in mind when he talks about making beer ads show "real people in real-life situations," but he definitely wants to get away from the promise that beer drinking is a vital part of an active social life.

He has made this clear in a speech to the Brewers' Association of Canada and elaborated on it in an interview Tuesday.

"It's the type of excessive pushing of beer drinking that's going on at the present time; that the only way to have an enjoyable time is to drink, and to drink beer in particular."

The type of advertising prevalent on TV today usually shows a group of what Mr. Lalonde calls "lean young people enjoying themselves" on a luxury yacht or in a sparkling swimming pool behind a sumptuous house.

Shades of Old 4-4-1

It not only smears the health minister, it lumps the Canadian Radio-Television Commission (CRTC), which lays down broadcast advertising regulations, and the 100-year-old Women's Christian Temperance Union (WCTU).

At least one province, Ontario, intends to crack down on beer and beer advertising and Mr. Lalonde says that's the with the nice sober provinces for some time.

A spokesman for the Brewery Association said Tuesday that nothing Mr. Lalonde has said shocks, or even surprises him.

"We obviously are going to go along with any regulations," he said, adding that all beer advertising is screened by the CRTC before it goes on network television.

But CRTC lawyer Michel Lalonde said this is not exactly accurate.

"We just see the script and the story board," he said, the latter being a tightly condensed version of the ad itself.

Mr. Lalonde said the story board shows certain areas of the ad, but that the commission does not see the final product because it might have to reject a film that has cost many thousands of dollars.

"We have to have confidence in the advertising agency, that they will respect the content of the story boards."

Mary Graham of Toronto, president of the 100-year-old WCTU, said in a telephone interview that the union has approved a package dealing with TV beer ads at its convention in Ottawa a week ago. She said the resolution probably will be forwarded to Health Minister Lalonde's.

Mrs. Graham agreed with Mr. Lalonde's stand that the advertising in his present form places "too much emphasis on the good side of life."

What advertising did not reveal was the statistics on alcoholism and its attendant social and financial costs.

Mr. Lalonde said the La Dain commission on the non-medical use of drugs, which submitted its final report to the government early this year, has testified that, "quite clearly" the alcoholism situation.

"Alcoholism is, in absolute terms, a much more serious problem than drug addiction in this country," he said.

"It is very important that we take steps to make people very conscious of the implications of excessive use of alcohol. This is one way . . . that we can attack this particular problem."

He was asked what kind of beer advertising would satisfy him.

"It's not a question of plenty big nos," he replied. "It's a question of responsible advertising."

Marc Lalonde Not Teetotaller

OTTAWA (CP) — Health Minister Marc Lalonde has scotched a rumor that he's a teetotaller.

"Oh no, I'm not," he said in an interview Tuesday, when asked to confirm a report on his speech to the Brewery Association of Canada here Monday. I said he does not smoke or drink.

"I drink beer, I drink gin and I love wine," he said with a laugh.

Wait Year for Housing

TORONTO (CP) — Immigrants and newcomers to Metropolitan Toronto will have to live in the city for a year before their names are placed on the waiting list for assisted housing, Metropolitan Toronto council decided Tuesday.

"So I'm not a 'great social Trudeau,' let's put it that way. I love wine with my meals."

Clement Wants Beer Alcohol 3 Per Cent

TORONTO (CP) — John Clement, minister of consumer affairs, said Tuesday the Ontario government plans to tighten restrictions on advertising of alcoholic beverages, especially on radio and television.

He told reporters that new regulations will reduce the number of hours advertisers will be able to use to promote alcoholic drinks on the air. Now, the maximum is 78 hours a year.

Mr. Clement said he also plans to restrict the type of advertising, cutting down especially on so-called life-style ads which suggest that people have more fun if they consume a certain kind of beer.

The proposed changes would be made through amendments to the advertising code of the Liquor Control Board of Ontario, which imposes mandatory controls on liquor advertising.

Mr. Clement's remarks Tuesday were made as a follow-up to a speech he gave Tuesday at a closed-door meeting with the Brewers' Association of Canada at Ottawa.

He told the brewers he wants to see more educational programs dealing with drinking and also said they should offer weaker beer at lower prices to try to reduce the toll of alcoholism.

He suggested that brewers produce draught and bottled beer with a three-per-cent alcohol content.

The weaker brew would be offered as an alternative, and regular strength beer—normally about five per cent alcohol by volume—still would be sold.

Mr. Clement said education on alcohol abuse should also be improved, to reduce the estimated four per cent of Canadians who have serious drinking problems.

Mr. Clement's decision to restrict ads follows a threat by federal Health Minister Marc Lalonde to do the same thing.

Mr. Clement suggested that radio and television ads need more stringent controls because they form such a potent advertising potential.

The minister, a beer drinker himself, said the idea of weaker beer may find opposition, but he thinks it will be helpful.

Draft Resister's Wife Missed Sunday Dinners

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — The first United States draft resister to cross the Canadian border into New York state entered the United States on Tuesday on the Buffalo side of the Peace Bridge.

Myron Ostapchuk, 28, formerly of suburban Williamsville, appeared with his wife, Carol, and a van filled with personal belongings.

"We won't turn him in until sometime next week, probably Friday," Ostapchuk's lawyer Andrew Diakun, said.

"This is my own personal decision and I intend to stick to it." Ostapchuk said of his return. "I hope I am not interfering with the work" of other draft resister groups, he added.

His beaming wife said she is glad to be back in the U.S. because she misses "Sunday dinners, Christmas, Easter, everything."

"And football games," added Ostapchuk.

Ostapchuk left Waterloo, Ont., Tuesday morning as had been prearranged by his lawyer and U.S. attorney, John Ellwin.

He had been living in Waterloo since he fled to Canada in 1967 to avoid the U.S. military draft, he said.

Under rules of President Ford's clemency plan, Ostapchuk has 15 days to report to the U.S. attorney.

City Control Of Abortion Advice Urged

TORONTO (CP) — A Toronto public health nurse wants city control the quality of 1a abortion counselling services.

Phyllis cUrry, who founded and heads Central Abortion Referral and Education Service (CARES), said that until some kind of criterion is established women have no way of knowing whether they are getting the best help available.

The year-old organization helps about 100 women a month by providing counselling for a flat fee of $35. Emphasis is on pregnancy prevention and family planning.

Miss Curry said she would like to see better advertising of contraception, the federal government has issued posters and these should be better displayed."

Until medical professionals and administrators begin to provide effective services, women will continue to make use of profiteering abortion services, she said.

In its report on abortion counselling services here, a study group set up by Mayor David Crombie on the status of women urged a look at licensing the abortion counselling services.

Collectors Are Given Assistance

TORONTO (CP) — A leading Canadian art connoisseur has some practical advice for the novice collector.

Hugh Pryce-Jones, director of development of the Art Gallery of Ontario, said "becoming familiar with art dealers and their wares is of supreme importance."

"Spend your weekends talking to various dealers," he suggested. "Visit the principal dealers and establish the kinds of work and artists they handle. Make yourself known to them."

"But, he cautioned, "if you are buying 'primarily' for investment, buy only through an established dealer."

Mr. Pryce-Jones said he has learned more from dealers than from art textbooks.

"Many dealers are frustrated because customers are afraid to speak to them. A good dealer would be give good advice and educate you."

He recommended dealers listed through the Professional Art Dealers Association and the reading of magazines respected in the art world, such as Arts Canada Magazine and Vie des Arts.

In Toronto, the Art Gallery of Ontario has a members' rental service, through which a painting can be borrowed for a monthly fee that is applied to the purchase price if the borrower decided to keep it. A similar agreement may be worked out with individual dealers in other areas of the province.

"Most galleries will provide a brief approved period, before purchase or work something out with you after the sale. Some exchange the work or perhaps buy it back. However, you should remember that when you buy a painting you are buying it, retail; when you are selling it you are selling it wholesale.

"If the gallery sells the picture for you it may charge a commission, depending on the circumstances.

For young people with the urge to acquire worthwhile art but not the finances to indulge heavily, Mr. Pryce-Jones advised starting with limited-edition prints signed by the artist. The cost of a print from a limited edition consisting of up to 150 prints would range from $75.

He noted that prints by a Toronto artist were auctioned recently for $350—$275 more than their selling price a few years ago.

The art expert urged purchasers to be sure the work is authentic, avoid reproductions and only buy artists with whom they are familiar.

The care of your art purchase is of great importance, he said. Leave repairs and cleaning to the professionals. Do-it-yourself attempts can cause irreparable damage to a fine work.

Chairman Warns Raise Fares or Close Transit System

By COLIN BRUCE
Staff Reporter

"Spending money than it is making has become a fact of life for Belleville's Transit Commission, a public utility that has found itself $1,000,000 in the red since it was acquired by 14 years ago.

Harvey Burtt, chairman of the transit commission said in an interview Tuesday, "In five years the transit commission will be faced with a half million dollar deficit," from operating losses.

The commission's "one year" bad habit has become a $174,000 deficit. The annual deficit is shared equally by the municipality and the province.

"If we don't raise fares and expenses and possibly fares don't increase, we'll have to abolish the service," said Burtt, adding, however, city council would not permit such a move.

In its current budget released by commission staff, it is anticipated revenues will total $304,000 — which includes subsidies to reach nearly $478,000.

The increasing deficits "is the main problem facing the commission," said Mayor Burtt.

"Unless the province relieves us from paying individual fares, Belleville taxpayers will be picking up a quarter of a million dollars in losses in 1976," she said.

Of the five bus routes in the city, two break even, two are continued losing operations and the remainder is marginal operation, said Mr. Burtt.

Fares seem to be the root of the commission's deficit problem.

There have been no fare increases in three years, Mrs. Burtt said Miller is the commission's highest expense and are expected to increase considerably.

Mrs. Burtt plans to do something — they have to set up route maintenance and age specifications.

Expenses for 1974 total $478,000 with revenues of $174,000 — which includes subsidies to reach nearly $478,000.

Mrs. Burtt said, "While our passenger fare revenue increases there is need a fare increase and employee benefits are increasing by 14 per cent annually.

Because of upcoming negotiations with the union, it is hopeful the province will help the deficit and that the city can have fare by spring.

Mrs. Burtt says a passenger (adult) pays 35 cents for a ride, a ride that totals the transit commission "a child of cents to provide." Last year, 1.2 million passengers were carried by the service, travelling 671,000 city miles, a 7% cent-a-mile operation loss in 1971, climbed to nearly 36 cents-a-mile by last year, based on commission statistics.

John Harold Kivi, executive assistant to the minister of transportation and communications said in an interview he doesn't know if the fares will be relaxed" though many communities are faced with similar problems."

"Costs (to transit commissions) are going up considerably due to labor settlements ... we're (ministry) taking a look at it," said Mr. Kivi.

Mr. Kivi also said he "assumes" the transportation minister will be taking a document to the cabinet concerning transit commissions "is debatable" he said now being compiled by the province's provincial police by branch.

Should the province allow a fare increase, Mrs. Burtt feels it will probably be "minimal."

She suggests a five-cent increase and the addition of bonus tickets. "Rather than giving tickets away permanent the customer buys several and gets one tic free, it would be a five cent rise. She could not estimate how much the commission could save through this measure.

The transit board of commission is composed of a chairman and two voting members and is responsible to city council. The chairman earns an honorarium of approximately $900 and councilors earn approximately $600.

Keeping Buses Bright

New building of Belleville Transit Commission includes drive-through facility for washing buses. Commission operations are being plagued by annual deficits for which solutions are still being sought.

Corbyville Couple Sail Atlantic On 39-foot Sailcraft to Britain

CORBYVILLE — Fast like, setting the Atlantic in a 39-foot boat?

To start with get a good craft, compatible crew, good stocking — and don't be daring. Prepare to the last detail.

But those are only basic tips, offered by a Corbyville couple who know. For full details talk to Peter, and Jill Cox.

Exactly two months ago they were based out of Halifax, part of a five-member crew sailing for England. Just 35 days and 2,789 miles later they were heading into Plymouth breakwater.

And the only misadventure was a finger injury to one of their companions.

"The point is the whole thing was planned in a very careful thoughtful way," emphasizes Peter.

As a result they had an exhilarating experience which they're prepared to do again.

"I think we'd both do that trip again if we were offered the chance," he says.

The opportunity for their first crossing came with a British Royal Air Force friend who was assigned to the service's staff college in Toronto for three years.

Wing Cdr. Tony Vasey was intent on buying a craft to sail back to England when his assignment was up this summer.

His chance for the venture-some voyage came when he reached an agreement with a Kitchener yachtsman who wanted to get his boat to the Bahamas.

Peter Cox, president of Mohra Fibre Glass manufacturing and a sailing enthusiast and his wife had agreed to help crew if the venture came about.

They joined the crew, which also included Vasey's 13-year-old son and Montreal racing yachtsman Mike Flanagan.

They cast off from Halifax July 24 aboard the 39-foot yawl Sans Souci.

For more than three weeks they made no human contact. The radio equipment developed problems and were idle shipping. But they were not alone.

They had a close-up of a whale, flying fish and curious, playful porpoises.

At first the weather varied from flat calm to heavy gales — with seas running 30-40 feet high.

Navigation was by sextant and chart and, says Peter, they sighted land exactly as they had planned — off the Scilly Isles — in the time period they had estimated.

Request Rejected

Hastings County council at its September session took no action on a request from The Bay of Quinte Conference of the United Church in Canada for the county to use its influence to initiate government policy to preserve prime agricultural land.

A letter from the conference asking council to use its influence in such a policy was read at last week's council session but was filed without discussion from members.

Chief Says He Will Continue To Govern Despite Protesters

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

TYENDINAGA — Indian Affairs Minister Judd Buchanan says the Mohawk reserve council here is entitled to stay in office until the next regular election. Chief William Ignace said today.

The chief met with Mr. Buchanan in Ottawa Tuesday to discuss the current dispute on the reserve.

Meantime, Cecil Maracle, director of education and spokesman for a group which has declared council dissolved, says a general meeting of the Mohawks tonight will be blockaded.

He warned that the presence of provincial police or other law enforcement agencies could lead to violence.

Council has been disbanded by the people, claimed Councillor Maracle, and therefore has no authority to call a meeting.

The people have chosen 24 enforcement officers. Thus OPP presence is not requested or required.

"This is an internal problem and can be settled by Indians alone," he said. "Any injection or interference by other law agencies could cause violence."

He said the protest movement has not contacted any outside group for assistance.

The controversy — started by formation of an Indian-owned industrial corporation, last Wednesday now down to the council chamber stormed by protesters, who confined council. The dissidents have demanded that council vacate and call an election in 45 days.

Mr. Buchanan discussed the dispute for about an hour with Chief Ignace and other members of council Tuesday.

Chief Ignace said the minister assured the delegation they are the reserve's "duly-elected council" and cannot be removed before the next band election — in late 1975.

Mr. Buchanan also voiced support of council in a letter written to the protest group, a copy of which the chief brought back from Ottawa.

Budget Cuts Source Of CAS Complaints

PICTON — The Prince Edward Children's Aid Society is requesting a review of budget cuts proposed by the provincial government says county CAS president Walter Drescher.

Mr. Drescher made the statement this week in a letter to Rene Brunelle, minister of community and social services.

The CAS was informed in July that the government had reduced its budget for 1974 by $5,000, as part of a province-wide cut in spending.

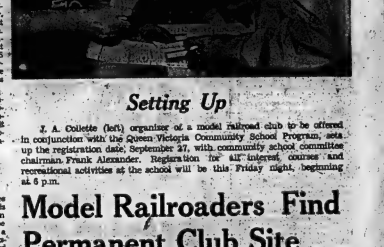
"We hardly feel that we can accept what appears to be an arbitrary chop of $5,000," says Mr. Drescher.

"To put it, by reviewing the diversity of budget cuts inflicted on Children's Aid agencies over the province, we have a picture of a ministry, clairvoyant in hand, wandering erratically up and down Ontario, lopping an arm here, a leg there, perhaps a head or two in Hamilton and Toronto while missing Hamilton altogether."

Mr. Drescher protested the ministry's timing of the late July announcement saying that the Child Welfare Act provides the director should have been informed of budget changes within a month of the time they were submitted.

He explained the possible effect of the proposed reductions on the Prince Edward CAS.

"If we accepted the $5,000 cut, we simply would not be able to cope if three or four children came into care or if more wards required specialized care. We have been especially careful this year in estimating the number of children in care, aware as we are of rising costs all around us, accompanied by tightening purse strings."



"But in this case, your tightening string may become a noose around our agency's neck," said Mr. Drescher.

C. Garth Smith, director of the Prince Edward CAS said county council had approved the budget letter rejected by the provincial government.

He said the CAS is almost out of funds for its program and an emergency could strain the remaining money.

The uncertainty of the budget allocation concerns Mr. Smith, who commented that it makes it difficult to plan. He suggested that with setting up Hastings County CAS, the budget be raised. Later the CAS could find itself without adequate funds and is forced to necessary to ask the parents to refund the expenses.

In reference to the recommended budget cut CAS president Walter Drescher commented, "We do not like it and we do not propose to accept it, for a number of reasons."

Setting Up

J. A. Collette (left) organizer of a model railroad club to be offered in conjunction with the Queen Victoria Community School Program, sets up the registration date, September 27, with community school committee chairman Frank Alexander. Registrations for all interest, courses and recreational activities at the school will be this Friday night, beginning at 6 p.m.

Model Railroaders Find Permanent Club Site

Model railroading in Belleville has found a home — at Queen Victoria Public School.

The Belleville model railroad club will run its program this year in conjunction with the Queen Vic community school program. Organizer is J. A. Collette, who has called the first meeting for Sept. 27 at 7 p.m. at the school. There is no fee, and everyone from age 14 and over who has an interest in building and running model trains is welcome.

Mr. Collette has organized two previous model railway clubs in the city, but, faced the problem of a place to build and to store the displays. The display in the Rotary Hobby show two years ago, (the largest between Toronto and Montreal) took a winter to build, and had to be dismantled immediately after the show because of lack of storage.

"We older people can take the disappointment, but it's kind of hard on the kids to see something they've made destroyed," said Mr. Collette.

And it's kids he's interested in. Older model railroaders, it seems, get as many kicks from passing their techniques along to the younger generation as they do from running their rolling stock.

Mr. Collette's group is prepared to build a display of any type in any gauge, including live steam and battery. If that is the wish of the membership.

He is particularly eager to attract parent-child members, including women, whether they are mothers or daughters. Family teams make the ultimate model railroaders, he finds. But Mr. Collette is as anxious to bring out individual as he is families.

Mr. Collette has organized two previous model railway clubs in the city, but, faced the problem of a place to build and to store the displays. The display in the Rotary Hobby show two years ago, (the largest between Toronto and Montreal) took a winter to build, and had to be dismantled immediately after the show because of lack of storage.

"We older people can take the disappointment, but it's kind of hard on the kids to see something they've made destroyed," said Mr. Collette.

And it's kids he's interested in. Older model railroaders, it seems, get as many kicks from passing their techniques along to the younger generation as they do from running their rolling stock.

Mr. Collette's group is prepared to build a display of any type in any gauge, including live steam and battery. If that is the wish of the membership.

He is particularly eager to attract parent-child members, including women, whether they are mothers or daughters. Family teams make the ultimate model railroaders, he finds. But Mr. Collette is as anxious to bring out individual as he is families.

"I know there are 100 model railroaders in town, if I could find them," he says. "Many of them are loners. We're sitting in a railway city, with contacts with two big rail companies, and we should have one of the best clubs."

Mr. Collette has a nucleus of 12 adults and four young men to start his club. He will put in all the rolling stock and the experts will advise on planning and building a display for the Rotary Hobby Show in March. With modifications, the display will go on to the Belleville Fair and any other exhibition that wants the attraction.

"That's part of the hobby — giving the kids a chance to show what they can do and an opportunity to learn how to meet the public."

Cost, says Mr. Collette, is the factor that keeps most interested people out of model railroading.

But cost is a minor factor, he says.

It costs less to start a kid with his own model train than it does to outfit him for hockey," he says.

For members of the club, the cost is zero. Junior members of the core group will put up the money for necessary materials and will contribute their equipment, Mr. Collette blieves will provide materials worth $200 to start.

The club rule, when starting in the hobby, is "don't buy anything new" says Mr. Collette. "Experienced hobbyists can sell invoices how to get equipment together for next to nothing."

The club has the use of the shops at Quest Vic, and will make most of its equipment. The cost to track is cut by one-fifth if it is made, not purchased. A transistor throttle can be built for $8 instead of the $20 for a purchased item. The club has two technicians who will teach others the techniques needed for model railroading.

"When we get to scenery we want women, because they're usually good artists," says Mr. Collette.

Propelled by the left-arm of a cooperative newcomer to the Quinte Fastball League, Trenton Auger Men's West took a 3-2 lead in the playoff final, Tuesday, blanking Howard and Robert Printing 3-0, at Alemite Park.

Morden, a Trenton Junior pitcher, limited the Printers to four hits while recording the shutout. He struck out seven and walked three. His only other QFL appearance was as a pinch-hitter during Monday night's 8-2 loss to Howard and Robert.

It was a battle of lefties. Printers' Bob Ethier took the loss. He allowed eight hits while fanning 12 and walking three.

Unfortunately for Ethier, four of Auger's hits were bunched in the eighth inning when the winner accounted for all their runs. Dennis Orr's two-run single was the big blow. It came with two out.

Only one Howard and Robert runner got as far as third base. That was in the sixth when Ethier, who had two of the four hits off the Auger rookie, stroked a two-out single and Wayne Wood followed up with a double to put a pair in scoring position. Morden responded by getting Terry Pope on an infield roller to put out the fire.

Al Ferguson doubled and singled to lead the Auger attack. Jim Clement had a pair of singles while Roger Drake slammed a double. Rounding out the winners' hit parade were Jack Jury, Dennis Orr and Dave Berry with a single each.

Dwight Rathwell added a single to the safeties by Ethier and Woods to look after the losers' hitting.

The series resumes at Alemite Park, Thursday at 7 p.m.

It was announced Tuesday that Auger catcher Larry Mavety has been named the league's most valuable player and Elks Juniors' pitcher John Sprecket, the most gentlemanly player. Voting was done by team coaches and the score keeper.

Huskies Apply Pressure

Belleville Bobcats' defenseman Harold Robert (left) dumps the puck out of danger as forechecking Frankford Huskies Paul Pollard (23) and Gary Thompson (6) close in. Cats scored 11-2 win in Tuesday night exhibition match at Trenton Community Gardens.

Bobcats Claw Huskies

By DOUG WALSH
Sports Editor

TRENTON — Twenty-three seconds after the exhibition game with Frankford Huskies started here, Tuesday, Belleville Bobcats opened their scoring. With a million more than four minutes remaining in the third frame, they closed it.

In between, the Metro Junior B Hockey League club rattled in nine goals on the way to an 11-2 romp over their Junior C opponent.

Huskies got off on the wrong foot when starting goalie Jim Conley showed it was going to be one of those nights. He did not have a hot hand and after giving up Bobcats' ninth goal with less than four minutes gone in the second period, he gave way to young Bruce Hamilton of Belleville.

A first year midget, Hamilton cut down on the Cat parade, only allowing only five goals during his stint.

And while Huskies were having their troubles in goal, Cats definitely were not.

Bob Moore went all the way for the Timmy Williams-coached squad and he was sharp. Displaying excellent reflexes, Moore surrendered only a second period counter by Scott Pouppert and one in the third to Alex Gaudet.

Huskies insisted on adding to their woes by showing a remarkable reluctance to pass the puck. Playing the individualist, a habit demonstrated by several of their number, the Frankford skaters did little to benefit their cause.

A three-goal outburst by centre Bob Thompson highlighted Cats' five-goal first period.

Operating between Bobby Thompson on the left side and Al MacIntosh/Bob, a member of the Trenton Lions Midgets last season, clicked for his hat-trick in less than two minutes.

A right-hand shot playing left wing, Belleville's Bobby Thompson was with Floyd Crawford's Yardmen minor midgets during the 1973-74 season. He was in on two of the rapid-fire goals. MacIntosh, part of Trenton's Ontario Minor Hockey Association championship Juvenile team last season, assisted on all three.

Sixteen-year-old Scott Samis from Bancroft also made his presence felt. He produced a pair of Cat goals in just under a minute.

Other marksmen for the Cats were Al Jeffery, Robbie Foster, Grant Keegan, Wayne Clapp, John Locke, who also picked up three assists, and Curt McLean.

Discussing the absence of some familiar Cat faces for this one, team manager Russ Soule disclosed that goalie Bruce Clark suffered a minor shoulder injury during Monday's practice session; Midget-aged Jeff Merrill, a goaltender, is trying out with Smiths Falls Bears of the Central Junior League; defenceman Dave Taylor, and forward, Danny Lopezoste were working. Al Garrison was ill.

Defenceman Joey Edwards who has seen action with the Cats the past two seasons, was not dressed for any of the club's three exhibition games last weekend. He turned out with Huskies, Tuesday. And he earned an assist on the club's first goal.

Cats, preparing for their first Metro League start, Saturday in Toronto, against the new Whitby entry, make their final pre-league appearance Thursday at Memorial Arena when Pickering Panthers will be the visitors.

And if some of the Belleville players' approach to the game of hockey can be judged from their actions here, Tuesday, coach Williams may have his problems.

Too many Cats took senseless penalties. At least two engaged in the useless practice of jawing with the referee, and they earned game misconducts.

Next Stop Moscow

VANCOUVER (CP) — Team Canada '74, sagging mentally after blowing a three-goal lead in the fourth game of the international hockey series with Russia, left Tuesday on the 10-hour flight to Helsinki, first stop on route to Moscow.

Team Canada plays an exhibition game Friday at Helsinki against the Finnish national team and will meet the Swedish national team Sunday in Gothenburg.

The Russian segment of the series begins Tuesday. The other games are scheduled for Oct. 5, 7 and Oct. 9 in Moscow.

Harris said he expects a great finish in Moscow, when the eight-game series concludes Oct. 9. Canada enters the last half of the series tied with the Soviets, each with one win and two ties.

Harris and his players welcomed the rest.

"The time in Finland will give us a chance to straighten things," said Harris. "We made some mistakes but we're not discouraged.

"We're even at this point and that's better than a lot of people expected from us."

Marc Lalonde Favors NHL-WHA Nationals

OTTAWA (CP) — The team representing Canada in any future hockey series against the Soviet Union will have players from both the National Hockey League and the World Hockey Association if Health Minister Marc Lalonde gets his way.

Entering a cabinet committee meeting Tuesday, Lalonde said he is pleased with the results so far in the present eight-game series, tied with one win for each team and two ties.

"But I hope that once this one is over we can start planning for the next series in two years time with both leagues getting together.

"I hope this will be possible and I'll do anything I can to help it happen."

It is understood that Hockey Canada and hockey groups in other countries are working on plans for a spring tournament to precede the 1976 Summer Olympics in Montreal.

A spokesman for Hockey Canada, the group that formed both Team Canadas for the 1972 and 1974 series, has said it is hoped that both the WHA and the NHL would contribute to the Canadian team which would play the Soviets, Czechoslovaks, Swedes, Finns and possibly the Americans in the tournament.

The health minister would not specify what sort of competition he expects Canada to be involved in after the current series winds up next month in Moscow.

He said discussions are going on "at the international level" for the renewed participation of Canada in international hockey.

Valtonen a Winner

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Jorma Valtonen, who only a week ago played goal for Finland's national side against a team from Russia, made a successful debut with Pittsburgh at Peterborough, Ont., as the Penguins defeated New York Islanders 4-3 Tuesday night in one of two National Hockey League exhibition games.

In the other game, played at Moncton, N.B., goaltender Wayne Thomas was not quite as impressive as Montreal Canadiens lost 5-3 to Atlanta Flames.

In the only World Hockey Association match, at Brandon, Man., Phoenix Roadrunners, an expansion team, defeated Winnipeg Jets 3-1 for their third consecutive victory.

Griffins Fall Short

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (CP) — Rochester Griffins rallied for seven goals in the third period Tuesday night, but lost 11-10 to Philadelphia as the Wings tied the National Lacrosse League finals 2-2 before 1,614 fans.

The fifth game of the best-of-seven series will be played in Philadelphia Thursday with the sixth scheduled for Rochester Saturday.

The Griffins outscored the Wings 7-3 in the final 20 minutes in which they fired 27 shots at goaltender Wayne Platt. They outshot Philadelphia 54-37 over-all.

Larry Lloyd paced the Wings with four goals, giving him 21 in 10 playoff games. Larry Ferguson and Jim Hickey added two goals each and Zeny Lipinski, Carm Collins and Mike Collins got one apiece.

Len Powers led the Rochester attack with four goals. Dave Willcox scored two, with singles provided by Glen Nesman, Graeme Gall, Billy Foote and Bill Houlik.

Orioles Squeeze Into First Place

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A 10-inning surprise bunt by Andy Etchebarren brought Brooks Robinson home from third base, catapulting Baltimore Orioles past New York Yankees into first place Tuesday night in the American League East.

Etchebarren's squeeze bunt allowed Robinson to score the winning run in the eighth inning and give the Orioles a 5-4 victory over Detroit Tigers. The Yankees, who started the day with a one-game lead, dropped a twi-night doubleheader to Boston 2nd for 4-0 add 4-3 and fell to second place.

Baltimore's climb to the top of the AL East took some of the glamor away from Detroit's Al Kaline, whose fourth-inning double made him the 12th player in major league history to reach 3,000 hits for his career.

"I'm happy it's over with, but I'm sorry we didn't win," Kaline said. "That would have capped it perfectly."

Elsewhere in the American League, Milwaukee Brewers nipped Cleveland Indians 4-3 in 11 innings, California Angels defeated Kansas City Royals 8-3 and Oakland A's trounced Minnesota Twins 9-1. Chicago White Sox' doubleheader at Texas Rangers was rained out.

Pirates On Top

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Despite an injured wrist, Willie Stargell managed a three-run homer Tuesday night to lead Pittsburgh Pirates to a 7-3 win over St. Louis Cardinals and a one-half game over the Cards at the top of the National League East.

In the West Division, Los Angeles widened its lead as the Dodgers beat Atlanta Braves 3-1 in 10 innings. They reduced five games ahead of Cincinnati Reds and reduced their pennant-clinching number to three.

In other National League games, Cincinnati beat Houston Astros 8-1, Philadelphia Phillies downed New York Mets 6-3, San Diego Padres edged San Francisco Giants 3-2 and, in a double-header, Chicago Cubs beat Montreal 6-4 before the Expos bounced back to romp 11-3 in the second game.

Stargell had been hit on the right wrist by a pitch in the sixth inning, but by the seventh inning, the pain was the furthest thing from Willie's mind as he hit his 34th homer of the year.

In the seventh, Stennett and Al Oliver singled before Stargell unloaded his homer to left-centre field off Rich Folkers.

The Dodgers can clinch a tie for the West Division crown in their last home game tonight.

Stampeders Stun Alouettes 38-13

CALGARY (CP) — Calgary Stampeders pulled off one of the biggest upsets in the Canadian Football League this season Tuesday night, with a 38-13 win over Montreal Alouettes.

Montreal, now 7-3 and two points up on second-place Hamilton Tiger-Cats in the East, fell apart at the beginning and never recovered. Three Calgary interceptions led directly to Stampeder touchdowns and quarterback Peter Liske guided the Calgary offence to 353 yards in the air and 53 on the ground.

"When it counted, Peter got the points," Wood said. "The Tensilve line did a brilliant job giving him protection, but the main thing was that Pete played with the game plan and executed perfectly."

Playoff Final Tied

OSHAWA (CP) — Oshawa and Tony's squared the Ontario Football League final at two games each Tuesday with a 44 victory over Niagara Falls Muldons.

A four-run Oshawa fifth inning forced the teams to a fifth and final game Friday in Niagara Falls.

Paul Wanzamaker struck out nine batters, walked two and gave up seven hits in going the victory Saturday, was the hero, allowing 11 hits as he pitched with the game plan and executed perfectly."

Crash Divided Family, Now They Hold Reunion

ST. AGATHA, Ont. (CP) — Ray Wilson remembers standing on a Kitchener street in 1958, waving and crying as his little brother and sister were taken away for adoption. An aunt had tried to keep the six children together but it was too much for her.

But recently the children, ranging in age from six months to 15 years when an Ontario crash killed their parents, held a reunion at the home of the eldest brother Doug, now 21.

"When you're brother and sister you just have to look at each other and you know," said Ray, a 20-year-old Guelph, Ont. carpenter.

It took the family baby, 18-year-old Debbie (now Cathy Thomas) of Cambridge, Ont. to instigate the reunion.

After two years of letters and telephone calls to find everybody, Doug and Ray took Debbie to see James (now Patrick Downey) and their sister Kathy, both adopted by the same Chatham, Ont. family.

It wasn't until Bob arrived and all six were reunited in Chatham that the tenseness disappeared.

"We all cried," said Ray. "There were tears, tears and more tears."

No Chance of Talk With Other Worlds

STIRLING, Scotland (CP) — A British scientist says it is almost inconceivable that intelligent beings in other worlds... And if such conditions were available, earth people would not be concerned in whose people of other planets would be saying surveys.

That is the dim prospect for communications among worlds, said Prof. D. R. Bates of Queen's University, Belfast, in a speaking at the British Association for the Advancement of Science here.

He said there are restrictions common in the universe, most stars having them as satellites. In earth's 41 over galaxy there were possibly 100,000 technical civilizations—assuming that life did originate if it could, and that it developed the way that earth's has. On that optimistic assumption, it still would be many than five centuries before a radio-signal signal earth to the nearest civilization could be said. answered.

This nearest neighbors would be about 300 light years away. To beam a radio signal over that distance strong enough to be heard above background noise would need about 1,000 megawatts—the entire output of the time lag pus conversation out of the question, Prof. Bates said. There would be, use dialogue, just monologue; perhaps the contents of an encyclopaedia might be transmitted to the stars. After the first excitement at receiving messages from space, there would be little interest in the information, even if people could understand it.

About the only chance of finding other civilizations was by scanning millions of radio

Run Out of Luck

LONDON (CP) — A British couple are congratulating themselves on running out of luck. Beryl Leckley and her husband Les completed a non-profit ex- part drive—of four-leaf clovers wave bands, monitoring Earth might then just detect television carrier waves from programs on other planets.

They answered a flood of re- queries after Mrs. Leckley announced she was hoping to establish a world record by picking nearly 1,000 of them from her lawn.

And all is well with him.

Lewis Glad Election Will Not Be in Italy

TORONTO (CP) — Stephen Lewis, Ontario NDP leader, said Tuesday he objects to what he described as the political nature of Premier William Davis's two-week official visit to Italy.

"If an election was held in Italy this week, Premier Davis would sweep the country," Mr. Lewis told a luncheon meeting of the Canadian Society of Safety Engineering.

"I must stick in the throats of the injured Italian workmen here in Toronto when the lunch is being made of the tour over there."

The Union of Injured Workers, many of its members Italian, demonstrated outside and outside the legislature had sparing during the passage of improved workmen's compensation benefits, and picketed at the airport when Mr. Davis left on the, trip to Italy 10 days ago.

Mr. Lewis said the government was being opportunist in having Mr. Davis announce in Italy that officials of the Ontario and Italian governments are to co-operate on education and safety programs for immigrant workers.

Letter to Editor

Protesters Say Industry Infringes on Rights

TYENDINAGA — Corporation legislation — under which an industry has been organized on the Quinte Mohawk reserve, is an infringement of native rights, says Cleil Miracle.

He makes the claim in a statement on behalf of Mohawks protesting the corporation now operating on the reserve. They have also called for resignation of the reserve council.

Following is the text of the statement:

It has been years since a house to house census has been taken to determine the exact number of eligible voters.

Pertaining to the Referendum vote the voters list was not posted for the required length of time.

Pertaining to the Referendum vote the question posed on the ballot was not posted.

The question posed on the ballot was not relevant to the issue at hand and was deliberately misleading, cohesive, by wording and merely asked a question as characterized by the following: "Would you cast a ballot to decide whether or not the Band Council should obtain the ownership of Tyendinaga Mohawk Ltd. for the Band!" (Yes or No answer).

Advertisingly, one week before the referendum vote Sudbury and surrounding area turned into private hands as revealed in a newsletter-from the Band Office.

All the Band Councillors were not notified at the time of the transfer of the factory and Corporation into private hands.

The Corporate seal was in the Chief's hands and Band Council committee was already before the Issue was raised to the people.

Carl D. Brant in a public meeting and in reference to the corporate structure publicly rebuked Councillor Cleil Miracle for "acting it is not". Did they have acceptable to side?

The letter from Economic Development states that a Band Councillor should observe as Industrial Commissioner, Carl L. Brant, a councillor, occupies this position.

Carl D. Brant, an active member of Band Council and Reserve Industrial Commissioner, along with being paid $56 a day for overseeing improvements to the area, became owner and President of the said factory Tyendinaga Mohawk Ltd.

The Department of Indian Affairs has been, and is pushing Incorporation on Indian Reserves in conjunction with their White Paper Policy of 1969.

The Corporation will be subject to Provincial and Municipal regulations.

The profits of the Corporation are subject to taxation and will be subject to the income tax act of Canada.

Mr. Delaroche of the Department of Indian Affairs office in Kingston, said that the native owners would be subject to taxation.

There is no provision in the Indian Act for the establishment of a Corporation on a Reserve.

Chamber of Commerce Asks Farm-marketing Setup Review

TORONTO (CP) — The Canadian Chamber of Commerce called Tuesday for a review of Canada's farm-marketing programs.

In a wide-sweeping look at Canadian agricultural policies, the chamber said it is concerned about what it termed increasing attempts by organized marketing programs to "manipulate" product prices by controlling production.

The chamber said it recognizes the important role marketing agencies play in helping producers to sell their products, but because of the serious implications of their present approach, policies must be re-examined to consider the impact on producer and consumer.

The recommendation was included in a comprehensive policy statement adopted at the chamber's annual meeting which ends today. The statement, covering all areas of government regulation and activity, will be presented to the federal cabinet later this year.

Consideration should be given to maintaining a minimum inventory of key agricultural commodities to cushion wide price fluctuations experienced periodically, the statement said.

In addition, producers must be supplied with more information on the supply and availability of specific products on the market.

Special income-tax deferral systems should be developed to ensure a more stable income for farms.

"To protect produce during adverse marketing conditions, a more realistic floor-price mechanism for key farm products is also needed.

The chamber also urged an early federal-provincial meeting to consider reducing or removing restrictions on interprovincial trade of farm products.

Suggesting a special review board study of transportation policies, the chamber said that in the absence of a plain-cut transportation policy, dirtier production is "unduly influenced" by artificial differences in transportation charges between different products.

At the push of a button it can be switched from a 74-octave grand piano to a honkey-tonk piano, a harpsicord or a synthesizer.

Whitby Woman Shot Four Times

WHITBY, Ont. (CP) — A 23-year-old woman whose frozen body was found in a wooded ravine at Ovono, Ont., on April 13 had been shot four times, a Supreme Court of Ontario jury was told Tuesday.

The weapon, the Crown alleged, had been borrowed earlier by the dead woman's husband, Sarabjit Singh Kalirai, 26, formerly of Toronto, who is charged with murdering Mrs. Ravinder Kalirai last Dec. 6.

Crown counsel Bruce Affleck said two 12-year-old girls found the body in woods at the junction of Highways 35 and 115 April 13 — halfway between Peterborough and Oshawa.

Pathologist Dr. Hans Sopo testified the woman had been shot three times in the head. A ballistics expert, Robert G. Mounsett, said a rifle sent to him by police and some shell casings matched.

N.B. Judges Reserve Decision In Newspaper Monopoly Case

FREDERICTON (CP) — Three judges of the New Brunswick Appeal Court reserved decision Tuesday on an appeal against four monopoly convictions in the Irving newspapers case.

The court's verdict is not expected before December. The case may then go to the Supreme Court of Canada for a final ruling.

The total cost of the legal action is unknown. A defence lawyer estimated two years ago it may reach $500,000.

Parliament was told last April that prosecution costs were more than $134,000 and continuing. That did not include expenses and time of federal department and combines officials and staff.

It all began in 1969 when the federal combines branch began seizures of Irving records in Saint John, Moncton and Fredericton.

More seizures took place in 1970 and four monopoly charges were laid at Burton, N.B., Dec. 1 that year.

A provincial court held a preliminary hearing the following spring. The New Brunswick Supreme Court trial opened in Fredericton in October, 1972, and ended in Moncton last December.

Opposing lawyers tendered written arguments early in 1973 and Mr. Justice Albany Rotchaud rendered his guilty verdict at Bathurst Jan. 26 this year.

Last April 2, he imposed fines totalling $150,000 on K. C. Irving Ltd., New Brunswick Publishing Co. Ltd., Moncton Publishing Co. Ltd., and University Press of New Brunswick Ltd.

The last three publish the five English-language dailies in the province.

Judge Rotchaud held another court session here in June, followed July 27 by an order requiring the Irving interests to sell the Moncton papers, The Times and The Transcript, within a year.

However, execution of the order was deferred until all legal proceedings are finished.

Rhodesians Say Gods Razed Town

UMTALI, Rhodesia (CP) — A legendary village is said to be buried under the rubble of a collapsed mountain near the eastern Rhodesian city.

African legends say the village was wiped from the face of the earth by angry gods long before the coming of the Europeans.

It was said to be located in an area now known as Chirawe-Tombo. Is people were profligate and chauvinistic and their behavior offended the anger of the gods.

A priestess was sent to the village to warn the inhabitants that unless they mended their ways they would be destroyed. When she was mocked by the villagers she warned that at a certain phase of the moon the side of the mountain would fall and all who lived there would be buried.

As the predicted day drew near some of the villagers decided to move away.

At the appointed time, the area was hit by a violent storm. Then, at midnight, the whole area shook violently and a loud rumbling was heard.

The next morning people who had left the village returned and found the area a wild mass of boulders and earth.

There was no vestige of any living thing—grass, trees, animals or man.

The legend says that as the survivors left the devastation they were followed by the weak cries of the people who had defied the gods and had perished.

Today the rubble is still there. Africans tell about the scene to visitors and tell the legend.

If there was such a village its secrets lie buried beneath thousands of tons of rock. The mountain still hides what may have been a Rhodesian Gomorrah.

Insects Are Likely To Be Food

OTTAWA (CP) — A Toronto zoology professor says that if current population trends continue for another 25 years we'll probably be eating insects to stay alive, the Canadian Wildlife Federation (CWF) reports.

Insects would have to be displayed in some way, William Friend, a specialist in insect nutrition, told a writer of the CWF publication Wildlife Report.

"The problem is that food is an emotional subject."

While a mound of custard-like insect larvae may not be as appealing as a slab of roast beef, the two are chemically similar, the article said. Insects are about 15 per cent protein and 4.5 per cent fat.

"An acre of good land and a year of effort is required to produce about 800 pounds of beef. An insect farm could raise tons of larvae every day."

In Brandon, Man., Bruce Derrybar, general manager of Western Regional Development Inc., said his firm will ship a ton of grasshoppers to Japan, where they are considered a delicacy. His company will receive $4.13 a pound for the insects.

The idea started in October last year when a Japanese trade delegation visited Manitoba looking for new supplies of popular Japanese foods. Japanese consumers pay $3 a pound for grasshoppers and provide 70 per cent of the world demand.

Shah Threatens Oil Bartering

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Shah of Iran rejected today the United States call for reduced oil prices, but called on the industrial countries to cut the prices of their exports first.

The shah, one of the leaders in the drive to increase oil revenues for the producing countries, told reporters in Canberra, Australia: "No one can dictate to us. No one can wave a finger at us, because we will wave a finger back.

The shah said the Middle East oil countries are prepared to fix a retail price for oil if it could be related to an index of 20 to 25 commodity prices.

"If world prices go down, we will go down with oil prices," he said. "But if they go up, why should we pay the bill?"

In Vienna, Abderrahman Khene of Algeria, secretary-general of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC), said oil prices may rise again next year at the same rate as inflation.

Khene said his organization's financial experts will meet on Oct. 22 to review the price situation. If they decide the world rate of inflation is likely to be 12 per cent, it is "conceivable" they will recommend raising prices next year by one per cent a month.

Venezuela Mines Minister Valentin Hernandez said the OPEC may hold a special meeting soon to discuss President Ford's call for lower oil prices.

Representatives of the nine countries in the European Common Market met at United Nations headquarters in New York with the foreign ministers of 18 Arab nations, but informed sources said the meeting produced no prospect of lower oil prices.

The French government announced it will cut France's 1975 oil imports by 10 per cent. A government spokesman said petroleum imports will be limited to 110.1 billion, the same amount that is being spent this year. But at current prices, France will get 10 per cent less for its money than it has been getting.

Canadian officials denied reports that their government was considering following the OPEC lead by ordering an increase of 35 cents a barrel in the export tax on crude oil shipped to the United States. The current tax is $5.38 a barrel.

Commonwealth finance ministers meeting in Ottawa reached general agreement Wednesday to take co-operative action on oil prices and supplies. However, Canada and Nigeria, which are both oil-exporting countries, withheld their approval.

Canada Steers To Left

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau is determined to give Canada a strong new activist role on the left wing of international affairs, Iran Head, Mr. Trudeau's special foreign affairs advisor, said Wednesday.

With the help of Allan MacEachen as his new external affairs minister, Mr. Trudeau will seek to heighten Canada's world influence by taking a more moralistic approach to international problems, Mr. Head said in an interview.

The new emphasis will be on the human problems affecting people wherever they live and on strengthening Canada's ties with Europe, Japan and the developing countries of Asia and Africa.

Prime Minister Trudeau, secure with a majority parliamentary majority, already has begun a busy round of meetings with international leaders to put the new approach into effect.

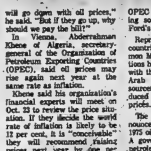
The meetings began in Ottawa this week with a formal visit by Australian Prime Minister Kalmel Tanaka and will continue over the coming months. Mr. Trudeau will make three foreign visits by mid-November and receive several foreign leaders here this fall.

Among them will be Swedish Prime Minister Olof Palme who, Mr. Head said, has greatly impressed Mr. Trudeau with his outspoken left-wing approach to international problems.

Mr. Head said the Swedes, with their denunciation of the Vietnam war and the military revolt in Chile, have become "the cutting edge of the left-very active, outspoken and moral."

Canada can be expected to take a similar, though not necessarily identical, approach to such problems in the future, he said.

Mr. Head said Mr. Trudeau wants to avoid the mistakes of national relations and hopes Canadian foreign policy "will be measured for the effect that it has on individual human beings."



"He is determined that if at the end of his four-year term of office there is criticism of our foreign policy, it will be also of commission rather than sins of omission," Mr. Head said.

This means new stress on efforts to solve increasingly complex international economic problems, to dissuade other countries from isolating themselves from world problems and to increase the international importance of developing countries, he said.

Mr. Head said Mr. Trudeau met the Swedish prime minister in Austria last winter and was keenly interested in learning more about Sweden's activist foreign policy.

"We will be more outspoken on some of the moral issues than we have been in the past."

He said one indication of Mr. Trudeau's concern lies in his choice of Mr. MacEachen to replace Mitchell Sharp in external affairs. Mr. MacEachen is an 11-year cabinet veteran with a record in the health, welfare and manpower portfolios and a strong cabinet backer of expanded social policies. This contrasts with Mr. Sharp, a former senior government bureaucrat and industrial executive, who took a moderate line in the external affairs post.

ALASTAIR GILLESPIE

Car Makers Urged To Invest

OTTAWA (CP) — Trade Minister Alastair Gillespie says he is urging Canadian auto manufacturers to keep up investment in Canada next year to counter other pressures from U.S. parent companies.

Mr. Gillespie told reporters he would be expecting U.S. auto companies to press their Canadian subsidiaries not to increase investment next year so auto production can be stepped up at home.

But he said he has already told senior executives of the Canadian subsidiaries to stick to provisions under the Canada-U.S. auto pact requiring increased investment as auto sales in Canada rise.

Auto sales in the U.S. have dropped 26 per cent so far this year compared to the same period last year while the Canadian market is up.

This decline in U.S. sales is one of the reasons Canada had a $500 million deficit in auto trade with the U.S. in the first half of the year, Mr. Gillespie said.

MacEachen Pledges Aid

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen announced in the United Nations Wednesday that Canada will provide $225,000 worth of emergency assistance for the hurricane victims of Honduras. Mr. MacEachen made his announcement after the Honduran foreign minister had left the General Assembly for aid.

Commonwealth Not United

OTTAWA (CP) — Co-operative action on oil supplies and prices has received general approval of Commonwealth finance ministers but there were indications Wednesday that at least two countries—Canada and Nigeria—do not favor a united Commonwealth front.

Discussions on oil supplies have taken on a new urgency as producing countries and the United States appear to be preparing for a confrontation.

Commonwealth finance ministers were told "in-depth" annual meeting that poor countries soon may not be able to afford to buy oil and other basic commodities.

Arnold Smith, Commonwealth secretary-general, told reporters after the closed session Wednesday that ministers agreed a mechanism is needed to stabilize prices of essential commodities but he had little comment on what action might be taken.

Finance Minister John Turner said he believes such international forums as the International Monetary Fund (IMF) are the most appropriate to deal with the oil price situation. The Commonwealth meeting regularly precedes the annual IMF meeting, scheduled next week in Washington.

Indians Issue Bomb Threat

HAMILTON (CP) — A leader of the Ottawa-bound Indian caravan said Wednesday night Indians with guns strapped to their bodies will invade the Parliament building if their demands are not met.

Lou Cauchal, who left the caravan for a food-raising tour of southern Ontario, made the threat at a public meeting of about 150 people. The caravan, which left British Columbia last week and expects to arrive at Ottawa for Monday's opening of Parliament, now is at Sault Ste. Marie, Ont.

Tyendinaga Dispute Still Smoulders

Chief William Brant faced crowd demanding resignation of Tyendinaga reserve council as threatened confrontation among Mohawks ended peacefully Wednesday night. Behind chief is Carl Brant, member of council and president of industrial corporation at centre of dispute. Latest development sees protest movement demanding solution from Indian Affairs department in Ottawa today. For details see first page, second section.

Nixon Rests

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Richard Nixon rested quietly in a hospital today and the former president's doctor says he thinks the three-times blood clot in his right lung can be successfully treated.

A hospital spokesman said the clot passed through Nixon's heart before lodging in the lung. If it had blocked a heart artery, it might have been fatal.

Caley Kept In Barracks

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — "I don't have a battalion to storm Fort Leavenworth and take him out," one of William Calley's lawyers said about the United States Army's effort to stay a federal judge's order freeing Calley.

the man," said Houston Gordon, the 28-year-old Tennessee lawyer who has been the driving force behind Calley's fight for freedom. "The judge's order is to release the man forthwith, and I understood that meant immediately."

Calley, 31, remains in disciplinary barracks at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., today while the army moves to appeal U.S. District Judge Robert Elliott's decision overturning Calley's murder conviction in the My Lai massacre of Vietnamese civilians.

The army has said it also will recommend that the justice department, which acts for it in cases before federal civil courts, move for a stay of Elliott's order to release Calley.

The former army lieutenant "will not be released from confinement pending a decision on these recommendations," the army's announcement said.

Elliott ordered Calley released once before; on bail last February, but that order was revoked by a higher court when the army filed an appeal.

More Eggs Bite Dust

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ten thousand dozen commercial-grade Newfoundland eggs have been ordered destroyed because they were rotten on arrival in British Columbia.

The eggs, part of a rail shipment ordered by the Canadian Egg Marketing Agency (CEMA) in Ottawa to Vandergul's Eggs Ltd. in nearby Surrey, arrived Monday after a three-week trip and were condemned Tuesday by an inspector from the provincial agriculture department.

Ben Wicks of Vandergul's said he would be contacting CEMA would absorb the $4,000 loss. He said he was amazed that an order for commercial-grade eggs came from so far away.

Fight Rages For Food

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP) — Police have been ordered to disarm hungry villagers fighting for food in the devastated Aguan Valley, where relief officials believe combined victims of Hurricane Fifi are starving.

Lt.-Col. Eduardo Andino Lopez, head of the national emergency committee, said he ordered the police to collect the villagers' machetes after police dropping food to them reported they were battling for the packages.

Province Gives Elderly Another $100 per Year

TORONTO (CP) — The province's guaranteed annual income for elderly, blind and disabled is being raised to $2,700 annually for single persons and $5,400 for married couples effective Oct. 1, it was announced today.

The treasury ministry said in a statement the increase is being made to meet rising living costs.

The provincial system makes up the difference between federal old age pensions and pension supplements and the guaranteed figures.

It had originally guaranteed $2,400 for a single person and $5,200 for a couple.

The news release said the extra $100 a year for single persons and $200 a year for couples will be made up of increases in the federal pensions and in the provincial payments and will bring the cost of the plan to the province to about $112 million a year.

The new payments will go to about 300,000 needy residents.

The increases will also bring another 4,500 persons under the plan. Previously, their incomes were just over the ceiling.

It was the first increase in the provincial guaranteed income plan since it was announced last April.

The increases guarantee a single disabled person or pensioner $225 a month or $450 for a couple.

The increases are to be contained in the October cheques, the ministry said.

The announcement comes a day after the announcement of a cost-of-living adjustent in provincial welfare payments.

Vandervoort Conservation Area at Thomasburg and the Flinton Park as well as the Deerock Reservoir. Big Deal For Faraday

BANCROFT — An agreement with an Italian government agency has raised prospects for an early re-opening of the Faraday uranium mine here.

The annual meeting of Federal Resources Corp. — a United States company with a 51-per-cent interest in the mine — was told an agreement now under review by the Canadian government involves purchase of about $75 million of uranium concentrate by the Italian agency.

Moira River Conservation Authority for the purchase of additional acreage in the west riverbank park area in the north end of the city.

The authority already has purchased seven parcels of land in the area for which an over-all long-term development plan has been prepared by the board of parks management. The area lies between the river and North Park Street and runs from the hydro substation north almost to Highway 401.

A swimming beach, change house and canteen and parking area already have been developed in the area while plans call for extension of the roadway through the park area to connect up with Bell Blvd. .

Union Rejects New Bata Offer

BATAWA — Union-company talks are proceeding today in Belleville in an effort to avert a possible late-October strike by Bata Industries Ltd., footwear division — workers here and in Picton and Campbellford plants.

Thomas Middleton, president of Local 713, Boot and Shoe Workers Union, said Wednesday the meeting was called by Bata after union members rejected the latest company offer Tuesday and voted to strike.

He declined comment on union demand but added the contract presented to workers had been recommended to the workers.

Of the 677 workers who voted Tuesday 64 per cent voted for strike action. Any strike would become legal late in October after receipt of a conciliation report.

The current contract expires Oct. 5.

The union negotiating team represents Local 713, 749 and 464, each located in plants in Batawa, Picton, and Campbellford. The majority of the workers are at the Batawa plant.

Mr. Middleton said a new two-year contract is being negotiated jointly by the locals. At the outset of talks, now two months old, the union wanted all hourly rates increased by $1.50 an hour, in addition to any increase in the provincial minimum wage.

Poetry of Hockey

Al Purdy's tall rangy figure was behind the wheel as he turned his sighing but substantial auto into Market Square from Pinnacle Jne other day.

At the time the Russians and Team Canada had done battle in Quebec City and in Toronto but had yet to draw blood in Vancouver.

Al Purdy is a poet and a resident of Ameliasburgh.

Hockey also is poetry of a sort — poetry of motion.

The aesthetic features and shock of hair are the mark of Al Purdy the poet and intellectual whose work has become well-known to Canadian readers and placed him in the front rank of Canadian literature.

On the ice, men thrust themselves forward, hands headed to their sticks, responding automatically, seeking out the vital opening.

And it was Al Purdy the poet who said it, in a short sharp observation Globe and Mail sports writer Jim Vipond extracted from memory the other day: hockey, said Purdy, is the Canadian specific.

Typical of Beddoes, a man of sensitivity himself, to have reached into the literary sphere for the right descriptive.

Hockey: the Canadian fact, the stuff of legend and endless dialogue. Or "hard knocks and not a little hysteria — but of poetry too.

...And Another Side

One aspect of hockey that causes some of us to get a little uptight is the extravagant togetherness that ensues among players after a goal is scored.

It is odd, but in tennis — for long regarded as a less than manly sport of games — there is almost the same lightning touch and shot-making, yet for the most part the players reserve their plaudits for the end of the match. Even then it is usually limited to a handshake.

Not so in hockey.

The same phenomenon occurs among the soccer fraternity in Europe. A British sports writer, the late J. L. Manning who wrote for the Daily Mail, put it this way: "The hugging and kissing seem to upset us!"

Then there are the fans . . . but they are another story, especially in Britain these days.

Familiar Figure

Speaking of hockey, it was good to see Belleville's Jack Devine front and centre in the Vancouver hockey hustings. Mr. Devine, CJBQ sportscaster and president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association was interviewed at intermission time. This time the familiar voice came with the personage of Mr. Devine himself on television.

An Era Past

The passing of two Hollywood personalities are reminders of the film industry of an earlier time, and of its evolution to the present day.

In the case of Walter Brennan, whose death has occured at the age of 80, he had been working until comparatively recently. The career of the sage old philosopher of many an movie and television production spanned the generations.

Then there was Otto Kruger, the grey-haired and suave actor who will be remembered in a wide range of roles, including several in the musicals that were such a feature of the forties and have now passed into limbo. Kruger was 89 at the time of his death recently.

It is a different world today than the one in which these men grew up, but they exemplified qualities which the young generation have passed on, and which are needed per haps more than ever in this era of shifting values.

Without Ted Kennedy as Candidate in 1976 Democrats Left Somewhat in the Wilderness

By BRUCE LEVETT
WASHINGTON (CP) — Senator Edward Kennedy, rejecting a run at the White House at least for 1976—has set the stage for the most wide-open Democratic party nomination race in nearly 15 years.

Kennedy appeared to be the only clear and obviously formidable Democratic prospect who could be pulled back Monday with the explanation that "my primary responsibilities are at home."

Now, the guessing is among at least three senators — Henry Jackson, Washington; Walter Mondale, Minnesota; and Lloyd Bentsen, Texas—and Representative Morris Udall, Arizona, all of whom have been making preliminary moves at the nomination.

However, with Kennedy out of the running, more prospects are expected to emerge, including senators Birch Bayh, Indiana; Adlai Stevenson, Illinois; Edmund Muskie, Maine; William Proxmire, Wisconsin, and others.

The prospects among the governors are led by George Wallace of Alabama, and including John Gilligan, Ohio; Dale Bumpers, Arkansas; Dan Walker, Illinois; Jimmy Carter, Georgia; Wendell Anderson, Minnesota; Reubin Askew, Florida, and Patrick Lucey, Wisconsin.

Not since Harry Truman retired in 1952 has there been such a large field of potential candidates. Adlai Stevenson, the senator's late father, won the nomination that year, losing to Dwight Eisenhower—a loss he suffered again four years later.

There are few who dispute Kennedy's announced reason for not seeking—at this time—the post which has held such a fatal fascination for his family.

There are few, also, who appear to accept it as the only reason.

Kennedy would have faced President Ford in 1976, and political strategists point out that it's tough to beat the man in the job. Ford would not be eligible to run in 1980 when Kennedy, at 48, would be of an ideal age.

Ironically, Kennedy—despite the fact that he is a Democrat—stood to suffer heavily from a heightened public concern over political morality that results from the Republican scandals of Watergate.

Republicans, who suffered the disillusionment of watching a Republican president—Richard Nixon brought down by scandal, would have been unlikely to have let the public forget the Chappaquiddick incident.

Kennedy himself recognized that unanswered questions concerning the July 19, 1969, car accident at Chappaquiddick, Mass., in which a young secretary was killed, would haunt his campaign.

A week ago he said that if he became a candidate he would answer any questions raised about the accident.

With Kennedy out, Mondale appears to be the most liberal of the early field, with Bentsen a dark horse possibility.

Jackson could gain strength with organized labor, now that a Kennedy alternative is removed, but he still is expected to face tough opposition from party liberals.

Some sentiment remains for Wallace, particularly in the South, and Wallace—like Jackson—appears to be strong enough to put his stamp on whoever wins the nomination.

However, Wallace's early anti-racial integration philosophies are expected to make him generally unacceptable.

Democrats, who had hoped that the Kennedy name in itself might have been an asset, now admit to a feeling of lost opportunity to be approaching the first presidential election since Watergate without a single, strong candidate.

Bureaucrats Moved by New Spirit of Militancy

by DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau
Thomson News Service

TORONTO — The newly-militant Civil Service Association of Ontario has taken the first step towards the show-down confrontation with the government that has been expected.

The CSAO, which has been a great shakeup in the CSAO. The old officers, who tended to be conservative, have been replaced; a new general manager, G.C. Norman, has been appointed, and a number of high-priced organizers have been recruited to form more aggressive trade unions.

Now, after a week-end meeting of its executive, it has announced that if it lacks a contract by the end of the first week of its members will "withhold services."

This has become the custom to call the action a strike. Perhaps it would be more suitable to claim it as "radical."

For in its action it has been going beyond the bounds of mere militancy.

It, of course, wants the right to strike; which Ontario civil servants have never been given.

Then it is asking a fantastic 60-per-cent increase each year. And it has started a $250,000 advertising campaign which in its opening rounds definitely has the shrillness of radicalism.

A significant point about this campaign is that it appears to be directed more at the CSAO membership, the civil servants, than at the general public.

It is themed to keys such as that the government has made 40,000 Ontarians "second-class citizens" and talks of "loss of human rights" and "oppression by law."

These are points which would appeal to employees much more than to the general public, for whom such words as approach would be logical.

For the association has a big selling job to do among its own members.

The fact is that a good many civil servants don't want the right to strike.

And while perhaps nobody is averse to more money in the end cheque the fact is that except at the lowest levels there doesn't appear to be that much unhappiness about pay or conditions within the ranks.

The CSAO, however, probably can foment a lot more unhappiness.

It has a kitty of better than $3 million a year to work with, and with that kind of money a determined group can do a lot of damage.

A Mother's Dramatic Protest — But Does End Always Justify Means?

Whaley Tribune

An example of how the means, any means, are often used to justify the end these days has cropped up in Whaley.

It concerns the young woman who left her children in the steps of the Legislature Building as a very visible protest that her welfare payments would not cover babysitting costs while she attended college.

It worked. Within hours, provincial officials yielded to the woman's protest, and agreed that she probably qualified for more aid under a new provincial day-care program.

On the face of it, the young woman's aims — to get off welfare and care for her family herself — are laudatory and admirable. But, what about the means used to attain those worthwhile ends? Is it right that she should abandon her children, the brutal responsibility for their care upon someone else? Is it proper that children be used to further the objectives of adults?

There is a proper procedure to be followed in cases of this sort, but this young woman chose another more dramatic method to achieve her ends — a method which many would term a form of blackmail, a holding of a figurative gun to the province's head, an extortion that it worked, and that "no harm was done.

However, surely part of the problem in the world today stems from the so prevalent attitude that anybody justify the sought-after end. And that everybody should be permitted to do their own thing, another way of saying "I'm O.K., Jack." The international nature of the travel agency regulates that a strong provincial regulation be enacted to protect the public."

While the travel agents themselves may not go wholeheartedly along with that, they are agreed that the reputation of their industry is jeopardized by a few bad apples.

Travel Agencies' Difficulties

Toronto Star

Another Toronto travel agency has gone bust, meaning that, while members of the Ontario government are enjoying their holiday, more than 300 other persons may not get theirs — or the money they've already paid for them.

Four Seasons Travel Ltd. has gone out of business leaving the vacation plans of between 300 and 320 customers in shreds. Many of them have prepaid bookings and another travel agency, Calladine and Baldry Ltd., is trying its best to pick up the pieces.

Meanwhile, the Ontario government, which promised action on the problem of defaulting travel firms before summer, has gone fishing.

The promise came after the collapse of a schoolbreak charter flight last spring. John Clement, minister of consumer and commercial relations, gave the travel agency industry a month to come up with its own suggestions for preventing future failures, or at least for guaranteeing compensation for victims of fraud or incompetence by travel retailers.

The government has also had for months, the report of an auditor appointed to look into the affairs of an earlier bankrupted travel firm.

He recommended:

All travel agents should be required to keep customers' trust payments in a fund separate from general operating funds, and should carry insurance covering at least 75 per cent of the average amount in the trust fund during the year.

Agents should be licensed by the provincial government. The licenses would be renewed each year, when the agents would be required to supply an audited financial statement and proof of his trust position and insurance.

Summarizing, the auditor noted that travel agents operate in a position of public trust, and added: "The international nature of the travel agency requires that strong provincial regulation be enacted to protect the public."

Sufficient Energy Supply For Many Years to Come Is In the Cards for Canadians

By VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

The old beaver-of-wood controversy has been smiling benefitted again, with the visit to Canada of Japanese Prime Minister Takeo Tanaka and the forthcoming Tokyo round of multi-lateral tariff talks.

For as long as most of us can remember, Canada has been complaining about its role as a supplier of raw materials to the world. Hence the clichés about "hewers of wood and drawers of water."

So far our efforts to up-grade our exports, through greater processing in Canada, have been only slightly successful. All that our equally prolonged efforts to contain inflation.

One of the problems of international trade today is that the privileged position belongs to the countries that export raw materials. The Arab oil-exporting countries of the Persian Gulf, for example, will receive about $35 billion from their sales of crude this year alone.

At the same time, industrialized countries are wracked with debate about environmental damage that is blamed on industry.

Canada, in a sense, has the best of both worlds. This is the only country of a highly industrialized world that is a net exporter of energy resources.

The doom-sayers forecast that we will run out of oil and gas soon today's known reserves are sized up, in 12 years. But last year's governmental report on Canada's energy policy indicated that energy supplies would be adequate—assuming that new discoveries continue to be made—well into the 21st century.

By then, if history is any guide, new forms of energy will have been found.

Canada does not live in isolation, however. In a world man-aced by scarcities, it is only prudent for Canada to encourage the conservative development of our natural resources, and their further processing by Canadians.

Industry Minister Alastair Gillespie has promised to take the opportunity offered by the Tokyo trade talks to press for reduction or elimination of tariff and non-tariff barriers on goods processed beyond their raw state—a position that has presumably been emphasized to the Japanese prime minister in Ottawa.

The shape of Canada's future course was indicated in Energy Minister Donald MacDonald's recent policy statement on uranium, which Japan and other countries are seeking to buy in huge quantities under long-term contracts.

It provides that uranium will be exported in the most advanced possible form; that export contracts will be limited to 20 years; that, in the future if, for example, fish exports are to be confined to a large proportion of fish sticks or fish dinners.

The quandrupling of world oil prices during the last year has put many of our traditional overseas customers into a buying frenzy. Canada will be forced them to restrict their imports. The same trend has left, within Canada, to the unseemly underprivileged and underpaid the share of the price increases.

It will take a good deal of statesmanship to keep a balance and abroad, to bring about any fundamental improvement in Canada's traditional role as an exporter of raw materials.

Canada Trades with Taiwan Despite Political Curbs

Cornwall Standard-Freeholder

Taiwan lacks an ambassador in Canada. He was sent home when we opened trade with the land government of Mao Tse-tung in 1970. It wasn't a true mission, not welcome either, we understand. Yet Taiwan continues Canada as a trade partner. Importers . . . and not without reason either.

Taiwan is a little like the character in the Kipling poem who wasn't there again today. "I really wish he'd go away." For years the United States once as Formosa, was representer to all major capitals around the world.

But due to increasing number of countries began recognizing the communist regime on the mainland. And the United nits have insisted that the nationalist Chinese be left out of using in each case. Some countries such as Great Britain have permitted the "trade office" to maintain trade missions. Canada hasn't. However, Ottawa also seems to be a rigid if unstated policy that the government is doing to irk the Peking regime. No doubt this has something to do with the fact that about one the fact mainland China holds the prospect of becoming a big customer for other Canadian goods over the long haul.

In the meantime we are buying goods worth some $170,000,000 annually from Taiwan. Canadian goods reaching that island republic are worth only some $35,000,000. That's quite a large trade imbalance.

When is the source of this information? Well, Taiwan may be denied official recognition in Canada but it at least has a public relations officer, Mr. T. Hyde Chang, of Hyde Chang and Company, Toronto. And Mr. Chang has been hosting the bushes around Canada for his agent and was at Cornwall recently.

Taiwan is booming its textile mills and electronics manufacturers out a wide assortment of goods from clothing to television sets, refrigerators and other electrical appliances. Industrial expansion also includes radios, petrochemicals and so on.

The people are prosperous by Asian standards. Both Japan and an and the United States investing heavily in the island's industry. Taiwan has developed its cheap and efficient labour.

Trade relations between Canada and Taiwan, but only because private companies such as the big mail order houses are sending buyers in and Taiwanese buyers are seeking out Canadian goods.

It is not very realistic for Canada to bury its head in the sand and pretend that Taiwan does not exist, particularly when there is the potential for increased trade which could benefit both countries.

Ottawa Mall Panhandlers

Letter in The Ottawa Journal

As a young person who enjoys the Sparks Street Mall I would like to draw attention to one form of activity that is becoming increasingly irritating.

The various groups and sects who frequent the Mall lend color and variety and have become an accepted part of the Mall scene. There are however among them a few who I find extremely objectionable.

While freedom of expression and action is admirable there are certain groups who relentlessly solicit from and approach the young people persist even after it should have become obvious that they are going too far.

Groups who take advantage of these freedoms should, if they continually abuse other's freedom of choice be restricted or not to their cause, be subject to some form of regulation. Ideally regulation should be self imposed, but since this seems impossible then surely the city has an obligation to act to ensure that all users of the Sparks Street Mall can do so without undue interference.

Questionable Movie Fare

Letter in the Christian Science Monitor

What a travesty that our young people cannot find decent movies to attend. If we should not have a double standard of behavior of men and women, why should we have a double standard for youth and adults? It is really a sick policy that makes the word "adult" synonymous with rottenness. A young person achieving adulthood today doesn't know whether to assert his new adult privileges by going out and buying [illegible] or attending an X-rated movie.

Quinte Bridge Marks Seventh Anniversary

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

GREEN POINT — The Quinte Skyway Bridge, spanning the Bay of Quinte linking Prince Edward County with Hastings East, marks its seventh anniversary this month.

The $3 million bridge was opened officially Sept. 6, 1967, by Ontario prime minister John Roberts. Assisting him were the late Leslie Frost, George Gomme, minister of highways, Norris Whitney, MLA Prince Edward-Lennox; Charles Rollins, MLA Hastings East and Picton mayor, the late H. J. McFarland.

Construction of the bridge began in 1965 after a series of petitions dating to 1950. Some historical newspaper accounts show a bridge in the Green's Point location was discussed even in the late 1800s.

When completed, the Quinte Skyway was described as one of the most modern bridges in Ontario. It spans approximately one quarter of a mile of water and rises to a height of about 150 feet above water level. Overall length of the bridge is 2,760 feet.

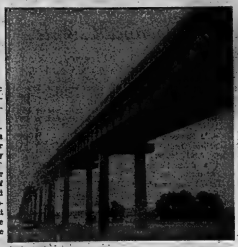
Approximately 2,000 tons of structural steel is contained in the Quinte Skyway, designed by the department of highways.

A crowd of about 500 persons gathered at the bridge Sept. 6, 1967 to watch the ribbon-cutting ceremony.

The bridge was hailed as a direct connection between the holiday resorts of Prince Edward County and the Macdonald-Cartier Freeway via Highway 401.

The late Leslie Frost suggested one of the advantages of the bridge would be easement of traffic on scenic Highway 33 where the Glenora ferries serve as a connecting link.

This week, however, Capt. Keith Dunlavy, reported a steady increase in the number of vehicles using the ferry service.



Monthly figures this year show regular increases of from 900 to 1,000 cars and trucks. Capt. Dunlavy attributed the rising traffic counts to a general increase in the number of motorists on the highways.

Before construction of the Quinte Skyway Bridge motorists fished on the Deseronto Ferry, a vessel with a six-car capacity. The ferry operated at the same site used for the bridge and was owned by Arthur MacDermaid of RR 2, Picton.

Mr. MacDermaid operated the ferry for 16 years and when the bridge was under construction carried supplies for the contractors.

In return for his co-operation he was one of the first persons to travel the Quinte Skyway in an honorary crossing.

The ferry owner says he spent a great deal of time attempting to trace the history of the boat he purchased from a man named Creak. Although few of the persons he interviewed retained clear recollections of the ferry service, it was learned that a raft, sailboats and later a horsepowered boat were at one time used at the crossing.

Seven Years Old

The Quinte Skyway Bridge, spanning a quarter of a mile of water linking eastern Hasting County to Prince Edward County, marks its seventh birthday this month. The $3 million bridge was opened by John Roberts, who in 1967 was Ontario's prime minister and by the late Leslie Frost. A similar type structure is now being considered by the province to replace the delapidated swing bridge connecting Belleville to Rossmore.

Trenton Man Convicted Of Assault, Fined $100

TRENTON — An RR 1 Trenton man, Carl Anderson was fined $100 and placed on probation in provincial court here Wednesday after pleading guilty to a charge of common assault.

In making the probation order, Judge R.C. Jackson told Anderson to refrain from entering licensed premises in Hasting County and to refrain from consuming alcohol for two years.

Two other charges of common assault were withdrawn by the Crown.

The remaining assault charge arose from a fight at a wedding June 29 in which Anderson, 36, a relative, Steve Anderson, in the face.

Crown Attorney Glenn Dellis told the court Anderson's upper dental plate —valued at $200 — was damaged during the fight.

The court learned that Carl Anderson had consumed a considerable amount of alcohol.

Students Collect Soup Labels

BLOOMFIELD — Students at Picketers Memorial School are "souped up" for a campaign to earn a new 16 millimetre projector for their classroom.

The projector is one of the prizes offered in a competition called Labels for Education sponsored by the Campbell Soup Company. To qualify for the projector students must submit 60,000 soup can labels by December 14.

The contest is open to public and soup eaters throughout Prince Edward are invited to contribute their labels to a Picnecrest student or deliver them personally to the school.

Your Mercury dealer introduces an exciting achievement in luxury, comfort, room and economy. Put together in a new precision size automobile.

1975 Mercury Monarch. Precisely right.

It's not just a new car... it's a whole new idea.

The idea behind Mercury Monarch is this: design a car trim enough to give you excellent operating economy, together with the room and comfort you usually associate with a bigger car. Precision size Monarch is over one foot smaller than last year's average mid-size car, yet it has more front headroom and comes within 1.3 inches in legroom. Monarch seats 5 adults in comfort and its 14 cubic foot trunk offers plenty of luggage space.

Practical luxury interiors.

All Monarch models come with deeply padded all vinyl front bucket seats, orthopedically designed for long distance driving comfort. Instruments and controls are elegantly grouped and easily visible. Underfoot, there's the elegance of long wearing 12 ounce cut-pile carpeting in Monarch models and an even higher level of interior luxury is offered by Monarch Ghia models.

Monarch and Ghia standard equipment.

Both Monarch and Ghia models are equipped with a precision cast 250 C.I.D. six-cylinder engine, front disc brakes and deep padded reclining front bucket seats. In addition, Ghia models offer digital clock, high level ventilation, carpeted luggage compartment, vinyl roof, wire spoke wheel covers, body guard molding, foot operated parking brake, deluxe sound and ride package, opera window in the 2-door model, and even more.

Mercury 1975. A line of cars built for today's values.

In addition to the new 1975 Monarch, Mercury has many different cars for different kinds of people. At your Mercury dealer, there's the 1975 Comet, the little compact with a big reputation. The 1975 Montego, full-size ride with a mid-size price. And 1975 Cougar XR-7 is like nobody else's car. '75 Meteor is a solid, sensible buy. Mercury Marquis puts luxury well within your reach. At Lincoln-Mercury dealers you can also see the 1975 Lincoln Continental and Continental Mark IV. See all the 1975 Mercurys and select the one that's right for you.

IMPORTANT NEWS FOR NEW CAR BUYERS.

Some 1975 cars require the use of more expensive unleaded gasoline which is not readily available.

We want you to know all Ford of Canada 1975 cars/trucks can be refueled with any gasoline, at any pump, at any station, anywhere. This also means you can select the gasoline price that suits you best.

Some 1975 cars will be equipped with converters. The converter is an emission control device that requires the use of unleaded gasoline. Because the fuel is not readily available throughout Canada, Ford of Canada has redesigned most of the 1975 engines in its car line, the optional 2.8 Litre V6 for the 1975 Mavericks and Pintos, and the Lincoln Mark IV to meet the new Canadian exhaust emission standards without requiring converters. This means they can be refueled with any gasoline — unleaded, premium, or the lower priced regular. This is of particular importance to those who travel in rural areas where availability is substantially less than major urban centres.

"ECONOMY EXTENDERS".

In addition to convenience of fuel availability and choice, there are a number of features anchored into every 1975 Ford of Canada car/line that contribute to fuel economy and lower operating costs.

- Steel-belted radial ply tires.
- Solid state ignition.
- Improved engine tuning.
- Optimum rear axle ratios.
- Extended service intervals

Homework Question: How Long and When?

If it's any comfort to you, probably every other family with school-age children is having the same evening argument you are: How much study should parents have to do along of homework?

The problem doesn't usually crop up until grades three or four when youngsters must study for a spelling test, or collect autumn leaves for a science project. It reaches its peak around grade 11, when a teen-ager's interest in academic pursuits is apt to wane in favor of hockey, loud rock, or the opposite sex.

How much responsibility lies with parents to see that homework is done? At what point, if ever, does it become the child's duty alone?

There's not always agreement between teachers and parents about this problem, although the common view seems to be that exactly how a child is schooling he or she needs direct supervision.

If a parent takes time to spell with a young child words he does not arithmetic or she cuts out magazine pictures that illustrate "c" words, it's come a pleasant time of togetherness for both.

Thoughtful parents will avoid the trap of "doing for", which only results in over-dependent, insecure, and often resentful children. The parents' function at homework time should be simply supervisive, always letting the child do the actual work.

By doing a "better job" on some project than your child could, you can too easily create a false impression of your child's real ability. The teacher will be grateful for your interference.

The important thing is to establish a regular time and place for homework, and to set out patterns for behavior that the child understands. No television until homework is done is the most frequent (and sensible) household rule.

The teen-ager who assures you it's possible to learn French verbs while watching "Black Jet" or "Planet of the Apes" may be perfectly sincere. But every bit of evidence points to the unhappy conclusion that knowledge gained this way won't be as long-lasting as if the student had concentrated on only one thing at a time. Doing two things at once with one's eyes is too distracting for all but the incredibly bright.

However, the argument that playing music helps while doing homework may in fact be true for some. The difference is that music can help to blot out all else, making visual concentration that much easier.

Still, for most people, a quiet room is the best place to work. You can make sure your child has a comfortable chair, adequate space to unravel books and papers out, and the right amount of light to prevent eye strain and then you can cross your fingers and hope for diligent effort.

By the time young people are in high school, they usually prefer to do their homework without parental support. In other words they don't want to be nagged.

You'll know if your child is doing the proper amount of homework by the marks on tests and essays. If they're low, you may have to supervise a new, and longer, study schedule.

If you're wondering about how long homework's supposed should be, or if it seems you never see a history book being put through, don't ask Phone the school and get in touch with either the individual teacher or the guidance department.

"Teachers welcome the interest of parents," says Bob Pollard, guidance teacher at Quinte Secondary School.

"Parents should know whether teachers' assign work to be done at home or during class time. Teachers like to know that their students have interested parents."

Mr. Pollard says that a rough estimate of study time per day, ranging from one hour in grade nine to three hours in grade 13, is only the most general of guidelines subject to all kinds of exceptions.

Belleville's Elephant Collector

When Norm Wessels retired from National Grocers five years ago his wife Marguerite was concerned that he find a hobby to occupy his time.

When her husband asked her to suggest something, she replied: in jest, "Oh, I don't know, why not collect elephants?"

So he did.

And the Wessels' home now houses 297 elephants of every shape and size from all over the world.

Mr. Wessels keeps most of the elephants in a glass-enclosed case, which occupies one wall of the dining room. The collection has increased steadily since his four children and 12 grandchildren became enthusiastic about his hobby.

The "prize" elephant, in fact, is one which has no cash value, but means the most to the Wessels. It's a plasticine rendering of the floppy-eared beast, created by their ten-year-old granddaughter.

Most of the elephant have been given to Mr. Wessels by family and friends, although he also purchases them at local stores or on a trip.

There are elephants from Florida, France, Italy, India, Holland and Africa. There are elephants as small as your little finger nail and one that's more than a foot high.

There are gold-plated elephants, and ivory ones, and others made of wood, wax, glass, china, pottery, bronze, iron and velvet.

There are elephants made to hold toothpicks and others to use as bookends, door stops, vases, decanters, pitchers and pencil sharpeners. One big fellow carries a clock on his back, another is a tiny charm for a bracelet.

The elephants come in every sort of posture, trunks flailing and ears flared, or docile and contrite, walking (trunk-to-tail) along an ivory bridge.

Most of the elephants are new, store-bought for the collection, but one came from a garbage can, and another is well over 50 year old, made of celluloid.

Mr. Wessels has become more knowledgeable about these balking pachyderms over the years and explains the difference between Indian and African elephants is immediately visible in their structure.

"Indian elephants are the ones easiest to train, so they're the kind we see in circuses", he says.

Although he works part-time at Thrashers Feed, Mr. Wessels has had found a hobby that makes retirement enjoyable, not only for himself, but for all those who "keep an eye out" for likely candidates for his collection.

And does he ever see pink elephants?

Yes, he has six water-filled pink plastic ones to freeze and put in drinks!

1975 Monza 2+2
A great new reason to buy Chevrolet.

In the Monza 2+2, Chevrolet has applied the classic principle that form should follow function, to build a car that drives like it looks and looks like it drives. The Monza 2+2 gives you the best of both worlds. Bold. Sporty. Exciting to drive. And with all the authority of a rugged, well-constructed design. It features a hatchback rear, rectangular headlights, wrap-around taillights and power ventilation system with exterior pillar louvres. Power comes from a standard 2.3 litre 4-cylinder engine or the optional 4.3 litre V8 engine—(the smallest V8 we've ever made at Chevrolet). And new efficiency comes from a High Energy Ignition System and Radial Tires standard. Check the Monza 2+2 out for yourself. It's really something else. And a very good reason to buy Chevrolet in '75.

Ann Landers

This Baby Loved Best

Dear Ann Landers: I have been stunned by the letters in your column from that little middle child who complained about his spot, then the oldest and finally the youngest. Here is a charming little essay I found stuck between two baby books in our library. I don't know who wrote it or when I first read it, but I'd like to share it with you.

Dear First Born: I've always loved you best because you were our first miracle. You were the genesis of a marriage and the fulfillment of young love.

You sustained us through the hamburger years, the first apartment (furnished in early poverty), our first mode of transportation (1953 Ford), the first seven-inch TV we paid on for 36 months.

You were new, had unused grandparents, and enough clothes for a set of triplets. You were the original model for mom and a dad who were trying to work the bugs out. You got the strained lamb, the open safety pins and three-hour naps.

You were the beginning.

Dear Middle Child: I've always loved you best because you drew a laugh spot in the family and it made you stronger for it.

You cried less, had more patience, wore faded hand-me-downs, and never in your life did anything first. But it only made you more special. You were the one we relaxed with and realized a dog could kiss you and you wouldn't get sick. You could cross a street by yourself long before you were old enough to get married. And you helped us understand the world wouldn't collapse if you went to bed with dirty feet.

You were the child of our lady, ambitious years. Without you, we never could have survived the job changes and the tedium and routine that is marriage.

To The Baby: I've always loved you best because while endings are generally sad, you are such a joy. You readily accepted the milk-stained bibs, the lower bunk, the cracked knee and baseball bat, the baby book that had nothing written in it except a recipe for graham-cracker tapioca that someone had jammed between the pages.

You are the one we hold onto lightly. You are the link with our past, a reason for tomorrow. You darken our hair, quicken our steps, square our shoulders, restore our vision, and give us a sense of humor and security, maturity and durability can't provide.

When your helpline takes on the shape of Lake Erie and your over-children tower over you, you will still be our baby.—A Mother.

Dear Friend: Beautiful—thanks for sharing

Separated Family Gets More Funds

CAMBRIDGE (CP) — An official of the Cambridge Children's Aid Society (CAS) says that a welfare family of five is receiving more provincial money to remain separated than it would get staying together.

Ross Dawson, director of the CAS branch here, said Wednesday that social workers have nightmares about cases such as that of Marilyn Lacelle and her four sons, three of whom have been placed in a foster home.

Mrs. Lacelle, separated from her husband whose whereabouts she does not know, is living with her 14-year-old son on a welfare allowance of $561 a month, while her three other boys, aged nine to 13, have been separated from her.

Mr. Dawson said it is "terrifying" that provincial regulations allow the CAS to pay up to $900 a month to place the three younger boys in foster homes but forbid direct payment to Mrs. Lacelle—a payment that would allow the family to stay together.

Indians Leave Caravan

WINNIPEG (CP) — The 13-member contingent of Indians who left an Ottawa-bound caravan Tuesday plan to continue the journey separately, demanding $200,000 to build 20 houses on the Bonaparte reserve near Cache Creek, B.C.

Band leader Ken Basil told a news conference Wednesday the Indians will remain in Ottawa until the demands are met.

"We feel it time the delegation of the Bonaparte reserve must act . . . before the opening of Parliament."

"We are going to Ottawa to stress the urgent need for housing on the Bonaparte reserve. One demand that were going to make is to see that 10 houses are built this year and 10 next year."

The Bonaparte reserve Indians left the main caravan in order to focus special attention on the housing conditions on the reserve, Mr. Basil said. He decided earlier reports suggesting his contingent left in protest drinking among members of the main party.

He emphasized full support for the objectives outlined by the main body.

Ex-Mounties Drop Appeal Over Wrongful Dismissal

OTTAWA (CP) — Two former sergeants withdrew Wednesday an appeal from what they regard as wrongful dismissal from the RCMP, in an attempt to prevent top-secret documents concerning their case from becoming public.

The surprise action by the two former RCMP security men, Don McCleery and Gilles Brunet, in Federal Appeal Court, succeeded for an indefinite time in keeping the wraps on RCMP documents believed to deal with security as well as crime.

Whether the documents will eventually find their way back into the secrecy of the RCMP filing system depends on a decision to be made by the three appeal court judges some time in the future.

Meanwhile no government officials would confirm a published report Wednesday that, if true, would make the Government as much an embarrassment to the RCMP as to McCleery and Brunet—who claim they contain false information.

The '75 Nova is another great reason to buy Chevrolet

Seven years ago Chevrolet went small in a big way by introducing Nova. It was economical to drive, gave a great ride for six people and became a favourite with Canadians. So much so that Chevrolet never changed the basic concept—they just improved on it. And in '75 you can get all those famous Nova features, plus a lot more. Like new technological improvements that give most GM cars better operating efficiency and cleaner exhaust. And in the new Nova LN, there's dramatic new styling, a fashion designed interior with European style bucket seats and an optional redesigned console that all go to make a very good looking car. Also in the '75 line-up is the Nova Hatchback with station wagon space and the sporty Nova look. Plus the 4-door Nova to give you big car roominess with compact size economy. And they're all at your Chevrolet dealer right now.

NOVA FOR '75... READY AND WAITING FOR YOU.

Flood Claims Near $7 Million

BRANTFORD (CP) — Individual claims for damage caused by the May flooding of the Grand River have totalled $6,153,000 so far, a provincial inquiry was told Wednesday.

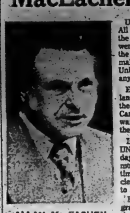
Robert Kerr, chairman of the Grand River Relief Committee, said the claims included such losses as damaged homes, furniture and crops. The total did no include disaster operations by business loses or repairs to highways.

More than 1,200 claims have been received, Mr. Kerr said, and there were likely hundreds more that might have been made.

There was no loss of life attributed to the flooding, as heavy rains swelled the river from the Kitchener area to Dunnville, south of here.

However, the case of a man stranded in a tree before being rescued by a civilian helicopter in the Cambridge area became a point of discussion at the inquiry.

Maj. Donald Foster, deputy commanding officer of the Canadian Armed Forces helicopter squadron at Camp Petawawa, disagreed with earlier witnesses who said the group had no night rescue facilities.



Maj. Foster said a call is received at the base at 2:15 a.m. May 13. A helicopter was dispatched to the scene and arrived only minutes after the man had been rescued by the civilian helicopter.

Maj. Daniel Campbell, director of air operations at national defence headquarters, said there are two ways to alert the armed forces for a rescue operation.

Cambridge chose the slower method by routing its request through Emergency Measures Organization, he said. The call to the rescue co-ordination centre in Trenton, Ont., would have produced faster results.

Today, the inquiry team is to tour some of the areas hit by the flood.

MacEachen Fears Nuclear Deathtrap

ALLAN MacEACHEN

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — All the warnings were there for the world to hear, and they were just plain scary. Although the big, square-jawed man making them was new to the United Nations, he didn't pull any punches.

External Affairs Minister Allan MacEachen delivered one of the strongest statements by a Canadian official when he warned of the nuclear deathtrap the world is getting itself into.

In his maiden speech to the UN General Assembly Wednesday, MacEachen said one of the most urgent problems of our times is how to control the nuclear arms race before it leads to holocaust.

He said the problem is no less that the nuclear powers—the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain, France and China—have a direct responsibility to solve it; and countries from outside the nuclear club—India is the latest member—must be stopped from acquiring weapons of nuclear capability.

Before he spoke, MacEachen went over highlights of his prepared text with Canadian correspondents at a brief news conference.

While Canada has an obligation to make available to other countries nuclear energy for economic development, Canada also has the obligation "that when we do transfer equipment and materials, that it is under the most rigid safeguards possible," MacEachen said.

In his speech, the minister said the all states should undertake not to transfer nuclear technology or materials except under international supervision. This would help stop the proliferation of nuclear weapons, because there would be a check on whether countries are secretly building A-bombs.

"In addition, all states should said that all states should unclear fissile material they hold for peaceful purposes under international supervision," MacEachen said.

Although he did not mention India by name in his speech when referring to the spread of . . ."

He said Canada had asked India cot to undertake further nuclear explosions pending completion of a review of the nuclear non-proliferation treaty.

India is not a signatory to the treaty, which it says is discriminatory.

Computer Crosses Up Byelection

CORNWALL (CP) — Michael Salhany, Stormont returning officer, said Wednesday that voters lists for the Oct. 11 provincial byelection have been disrupted because of a computer error in Ottawa.

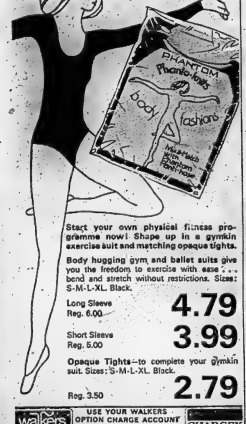
The returning officer said the lists were compiled by the provincial registrar's assessment office in Ottawa as an experiment to provide a permanent voters list, but left off the names of many voters and put others in polling divisions located miles from their homes.

"The trouble is, somebody pressed the wrong button," he said.

He warned prospective voters to check voting lists before Oct. 9 after which no date changes can be made.

He did not know how many voters were left off the list.

There are more than 36,000 eligible voters in the riding.



The seat was left vacant when Labor Minister Fern Guindon resigned and ran successfully in the July federal election.

Grain Exports Stalled

WINNIPEG (CP) — As the last-out and strike of Vancouver grain handlers enters its second month today, the total economic impact remains difficult to assess with any certainty.

The dispute, coupled with the strike of dock officers and the shutdown on the Great Lakes and St. Lawrence seaway, has brought exports of grain to a virtual standstill.

The ait of Canada Wednesday, only two grain vessels were being loaded, one at Prince Rupert, B.C., and the other at Churchill, Man.

Spokesmen for the grain industry agree that the situation could have a serious impact on Canada's credibility as a supplier of grain to nations around the world.

"The long-run effect is that it achieves our customers off for years to come," one official said Wednesday.

While the impact of lost export trade appears obvious, opinions differ as to the immediate effects of the two disputes on farmers.

The Canadian Grain Commission reported earlier this week that deliveries of grain by farmers during the current crop year through Sept. 15 were only 32.4 million bushels—about one-third the amount delivered in the same period last year.

A spokesman for the Canadian Wheat Board suggests that little could be attributed to delays in harvesting or could also be an indication that farmers are in a better cash position this year and aren't particularly rushed about delivering their grain to country elevators.

Storage space capable of handling 18 million to 20 million bushels of grain is still available in country elevators, the spokesman estimated. Terminal elevators in Vancouver and Thunder Bay, while well stocked, are still not completely full.

However, Bob Moffat, general manager of Manitoba Pool Elevators, said Manitoba country elevators are virtually full and say forcing farmers to store grain themselves. The major extra handling charges for all farmers affected and could put those in need of cash fair into a real squeeze.

Oil Output Will Blossom

DETROIT (CP) — Production of synthetic crude oil from the Alberta oil sands is expected to increase by more than 500 per cent during the next 10 years, the president of an Alberta firm said, Wednesday.

F. K. Spragins, president of Syncrude Canada Ltd., told a technical session of a world energy conference that production might reach 400,000 barrels a day by 1985.

At present, only one plant is in operation, the Great Canadian Oil Sands project, producing up to 65,000 barrels a day.

However, the Syncrude plant will go into operation in 1978 producing 125,000 barrels a day and Shell Canada Ltd. has been given permission from regulatory agencies to build a third plant. Other projects are planned.

"The time of the tar sands is at hand," Spragins told the session. "This is it, were here. But this doesn't mean all our problems have been overcome."

He said in an interview later that the major difficulty still faced by the company in finding adequate numbers of skilled laborers to construct needed plants.

Normally, skilled workers could be brought in from the industrialized provinces of Ontario and Quebec when the local work force has been used up. But construction projects in the east were making "subtle craftsmen" difficult to find.

Spragins estimates that Canada will need oil from the oil sands by the late 1970s or early 1980s, to avoid fuel shortages resulting from declining production of conventional oil in western provinces.

Suggestions that rising oil prices on the world market during the last year were the main reason for increased interest in the sands were discounted by Spragins.

Bagpipes Are Played For Fun

BANFF, Alta. (CP) — Jim Osanna's plans for his 34th birthday were simple—"play all day, drink all night and reminisce about good old times."

But the playing was a little unusual. He planned to take his bagpipes into the woods near the Banff Springs Hotel and pipe up a storm.

"I used to be a serious piper, but my priorities are fun now," he said. "I enjoy playing the pipes because it makes people laugh and get enthusiastic. I watch people's reactions—that's what I enjoy."

Jim, who doubles as piper and doorman at the Banff Springs Hotel, began playing the bagpipes when he was 11 and plans to continue doing so "till I'm 99 years old."

He was taught to play by George MacDonald, retired pipe major of Branch 28 Legion Pipe Band in Chatham, Ont., where Jim was born.

"It's hard to learn," Jim said. "I remember a lot of guys quit because the drummers learned. Drumming is one-tenth as hard as piping.

"You've got to learn the hands, the fingers, the blow and pump sequences, tuning the three drones and the chanter reed, and memorize the tunes."

Jim knows about 50 tunes.

At the hotel, his only formal piping assignment is during the flag-lowering ceremony each night. The rest of the time he works as doorman.

During the flag-lowering, he is the centre of attention and frequently photographed.

"They usually say 'Think you, that's very good,' even if it isn't, because they can't tell," Jim said. "They don't know what Scottish songs are supposed to sound like.

"If my timing's off, or I play a B instead of an A they don't know."

Union Boss Makes $75,000

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — The United Steelworkers of America biennial convention voted Wednesday to give $250,000 in increases to its 25 directors and three international officers, including a $15,000 increase for President I. W. Abel.

The increases boosts Abel's annual salary to $75,000.

Vice-President John Johns and Secretary-Treasurer Walter Burke each received increases from $62,500 to $65,000, while the directors received 40-per-cent increases from $35,000 to $50,000.

The increases passed on a voice vote that sounded close. It followed a short but bitter debate.

Johns, who presided over the constitutional committee that recommended the increases, adjourned the morning session before opponents were able to demand a standing vote of the 1,300 delegates.

However, during the afternoon session with Abel presiding, a stand-up vote was held, and proponents won overwhelmingly.

War-game Generals Revel in Rec Rooms

VANCOUVER (CP) — Good and fitting it is to die for one's country, said the poet when the veteran scoffed a life sentence to gravity wee.

The veteran of basement war games isn't as likely to scoff.

He knows wargaming is good because it is fun, although having your troop of French cheaseurs wiped off the streetcorn battlefield with a downpour of ho-dies can rankle.

And the exercise is filling in that the games are based on movement, weapons capacities, hand-to-hand combat, morale and a bit of luck, just like real war. Except that none of the contestants have to leave the rec room and nobody gets hurt.

"The big attraction is war without its messiness," said Jack Hastings, who has a war-room in his basement, where he started the games in Vancouver 19 years ago.

"Nobody dies. It's the end of the battle he soldiers go back into their boxes. This is the beauty of it. You can resurrect your army the next day."

Most battles are fought with three or four players a side but as few as two can play.

A player in the Lord Matthias need never go without an opponent. There are groups in North Vancouver, West Vancouver, Burnaby, New Westminster and the University of British Columbia. And more than 300 showed up for Vancouver's first annual military fair.

Variations on battles are limitless. This has led to a proliferation of publications and a burgeoning production of tin-lead soldiers, authentic in every detail.

A leader first grosses $2 million annually by making everything from Zulu warriors and Nepalese Gurkhas to ancient Britons and Macedonians.

A British firm has published information on the order of battle, dress, equipment and weapons of historic units from the Waffen-SS of the Second World War to Julius Caesar's legions.

The war-gamers do painstaking paint jobs on the tiny figures, which are sold unpainted, giving them the colors of a particular regiment or even converting them entirely from, for example, Saxon to Celtic warrior. Into guard cavalryman, of the Sudanese Khalifa.

Although war-gaming can be as exotic as individual artistry and imagination permits, most players, particularly in competition, stick to established battles.

The Trumpeters Club, which meets in Mr. Hastings' basement, devoted itself exclusively to the Peninsular War where British and Portuguese forces, mainly under the command of the Duke of Wellington, fought Napoleon's legions.

One youthful member of the Trumpeters, Kelvin, Host of Vancouver, says he prefers ancient warfare.

"Modern warfare, when you get the tech tanks and every tank is different is too hard to recreate," said Kelvin. He said in a recent battle against the Persian Byzantians his Macedonian army included five cohorts armed with 18-foot pikes.

"They are three and sort of lumber along but just deadly if they get you in a mass."

Kelvin has bought a plastic zoo set add his army included elephants and armored camels.

"We had to introduce a small factor in the rules because the smell of elephants and camels spooks horses and can cause runaway cavalry to bolt," said Kelvin.

There are many rule books for war games as there are players.

A three-hour battle can be fought with 12 infantry regiments, three cavalry troops and four artillery batteries a side.

Each type of soldier can advance a fixed distance per move. For example, infantry can move six inches, cavalry 10 inches.

Missile decreases as units suffer casualties. If a regiment retreats, all those within six inches of it must test their morale with a throw of the dice.

Gordon Aiken Writes Book for Backbencher

OTTAWA (CP) — Of all the books written about parliamentarians—and there have been many—it's doubtful whether any can match The Backbencher as a textbook for new MPs.

Any new member who expects to enter Parliament and alter the country's course in his first few years will get a jolting awakening from this book, written by a 15-year veteran of the Commons.

Gordon Aiken, Conservative MP for Parry Sound-Muskoka until 1972 knows what it's all about and he tells it with the same gentle wit that marked his popular presence in Ottawa. He does not downgrade the role or effectiveness of an MP; he merely puts it in perspective.

"Every member arrives in Ottawa with a mission . . . he has pictured himself getting up in Parliament within a couple of weeks at least and really blowing the roof off," he writes. "But everything runs along as if he were not there.

"The people on the front benches seem to get the floor, and by the time they are finished the day is over."

The Backbencher is different from other books written by politicians because Mr. Aiken has never taken himself too seriously. What he has done, with remarkable candor, is to recall all his aspirations, his victories, his disappointments and his funny moments during his 15 years in Parliament.

He talks of a romantic few months—harmless ones—with a female constituent, the problems related to patronage, the responsibility of pleasing all voters, the total frustration of trying to be heard, and the cannibalism of politics.

"Politics is a rough business. Cannibalism is just below the surface.

"While opposite members can talk and joke together in the lobbies and corridors, set one trip and fall and the others are upon him.

Mr. Aiken was given an early reminder of, to, take himself too seriously when he watched a defeated Louis St. Laurent leave the Commons in 1957.

"His world had fallen apart . . . his nine years as prime minister were gone, felled away in defeat. It was an object lesson for any private member whose self-importance was beginning to emerge."

The former MP does not take his readers into the depths of caucus or into the confidentiality of cabinet conversations which would throw new light on many historic occasions. He skims over such events as the quiet coup of the Diefenbaker cabinet, the missile crisis and the opposition of the War Measures Act of the Quebec crisis of 1970.

Aiken is all timid person. From his own vantage point, describing the difficulties faced by his colleagues, but saying nothing that would reopen old controversies or wounds.

It's a highly personal account of 15 years in Parliament with an old scores to settle. It is written in a comfortable, chatty manner with a generous sprinkling of humor.

And, if you really want to know what it's like to be an MP, there is probably no better guide than this book.

Company of Young Canadians Hunts Dreams to Make True

OTTAWA (CP) — One of the unpublished items in Finance Minister John Turner's last budget was $2,- 141,500 for the Company of Young Canadians.

This is the largest amount the CYC has received in its eight years. Nobody, not volunteers now being trained for jobs some 230 already in the field.

The company's announced purpose is to help resolve cases of hardship, inequality and poverty and to involve and redirect the best qualities of initiative and enterprise of the country's youth.

"We're in the business of finding dreams and proving that they're possible," said executive director Dal Brodhead.

"We're looking for people who don't believe the things they dream of can go any further than that.

"But we're trying at the same time to make sure, when we encourage people to develop these ideas, that they develop them in a practical sense, and that they use other experiences, so they don't fall into exactly the same pitfalls as everybody else."

Despite a major shaking-up the CYC received at the government's hands in 1969, its members deny that the organization has been "tamed."

"I think the company still is really radical," said Sylvia Hamilton, one of the head office staff. "The CYC said in 1966 that there were a lot of things wrong with the country, and it says the same thing today. It's not like the company has given up its ideal of social change."

But tactics have been altered. For example, in the early years volunteers were recruited nationwide and sent, missionary-like, to work in unfamiliar communities. Now they are recruited at the local level, and work where they live.

Before any project is established there is a period of "action research" to make sure that it is wanted, and to determine what skills will be needed to make it succeed.

"We talked for the first few years about creating a general awareness," said Mr. Brodhead. "Most individuals' concern around X number of problems.

"Like pollution, that awareness-creating thing doesn't get much time any more. People don't read that kind of material, they don't watch 48-hrs.

"So it's kind of past that stage. The easy thing to do is create the awareness. The harder thing is to tackle the problem, and that's what we're interested in."

The new approach is evident in the projects now being supported.

In the Lake Mission region of northwestern Ontario, the Ojibwa Indians have been helped to build a mobile radio station, broadcasting in their own language.

Lumber workers in Laurier, Que., with CYC aid have established a co-operative controlled over two local mills that were shut down several years ago.

In Winnipeg casual laborers have been helped to form their own company and are no longer dependent on costly private agencies to find their daily work.

About 200 CYC projects now are operating in the provinces and territories. Requests for more are said to be coming in at a steady rate. Visitors have come from as far away as Egypt and Hong Kong to study CYC techniques.

"We had a few years killing that were pretty colorful," said Mr. Brodhead, "which were in effect years when we worked out what we were good at, what our role could be, and also what we were not so hot at.

"Now we have a much clearer idea of what we can do, and what we can't do in help people who are not organized to organize. We're talking about people who have no resources, who don't already feel they have a voice."

Mr. Brodhead said he believes that work of this kind can have an impact beyond the immediate area in which it is done.

"We work on the basis of developing models that other people can pick up and use. So, for instance, we'd develop a particular kind of co-op, which is different from the traditional co-op.

"Then our job is to make that information available to anybody, so they can develop a different kind of co-op. There is no exchange of strategies.

"In effect what happens is, once you prove it's possible, other people can dream of it."

Regarding his own feelings about working with the CYC, Mr. Brodhead said: "It's a blast. It really is a blast."

Farm Work Is Used To Help Retarded

OTTAWA (CP) — A small farm here is being used to help mildly retarded men learn how to ease themselves into the world of responsibility and competition.

"It is really training on the job," says Silver Springs Farm manager David Hall.

"Whether it involves a horse getting loose or getting sick, the least ill, learns about feeding and grooming the horses, cleaning stalls and other farm work. They also learn to ride.

"You can see them develop confidence in themselves when they realize they can handle a horse or keep the small barn for proper order for a whole day," Mr. Hall said.

"The major problem with a few boys is establishing good work habits so they will work on a supervised or not basis. Then our boys don't end up working in stables or feed mills but the basics of how to do a job are the same.

"They learn to take responsibility.

"The men also learn group interaction, operation of small market garden, carpentry and building repair.

Mr. Hall said that with the right instruction and with proper boarding houses becoming to buy vegetables, there is considerable opportunity for the role to meet the public.

During the winter, when farm chores are fewer, the men are taught various skills and take part in group counselling. The association feels that the winter months would be an ideal time to contract carpentry jobs but there is no suitable building and no funds with which to do so.

The principal objective of the farm program was to train disabled men to work in the community, said Mr. Hall, however, there were men who worked well at Silver Springs but not on the outside and the farm has become a permanent place of sheltered employment for them.

"We have a high percentage of people who find jobs. Those who come to the farm are largely those who have overcome major behavioral problems, but it is still hard to find employers who have lots of patience."

He said the ideal situation would be to establish a protected industry so the men could receive proper pay without being forced to compete for work in the community.

Girl Foils Attacker

City police have issued a warning to young girls hitchhiking in the area after a 15-year-old girl told police she was threatened with a knife by a man she accepted a ride with.

Police said today the girl told them she accepted a ride with a man alone in his car sometime before midnight Wednesday on Dundas St. East near Pinnacle St.

The girl told police the man produced the knife after she refused to go for a drive with him. She said he poked her with it a few times before she managed to push him away from her.

At that point, the girl told police, the man became frightened, slowed his vehicle and she got out and ran home.

Police describe the man as being 5 and 6½ years old, white, weighing between 170 and 190 pounds, has a fat protruding upper lip, grayish hair with dark streaks, cut in a bracket style.

Protest Spokesmen

Earl Hill, immediate past chief of Quinte Mohawks, with Chief Maracle, member of Tyendinaga council, speaks to a meeting of their protest group Wednesday night. Both men were named to delegation demanding solution to reserve conflict from Indian Affairs department in Ottawa today.

Mohawk Protesters Take Case To Ottawa

TYENDINAGA — A delegation of Mohawks who want this reserve's elected council dissolved, are in Ottawa today to demand a solution to the dispute.

Spokesmen for the protest movement, now locked in an impasse with the council, had expected to meet with Indian Affairs Minister Judd Buchanan.

But, late this morning, a report from The Intelligencer's Ottawa bureau said Mr. Buchanan was in a cabinet meeting. He had delegated special assistant Irvin Goodleaf to meet with the Tyendinaga delegation.

Word that Mr. Buchanan had agreed to the meeting Wednesday night helped defuse a threatened confrontation between demonstrators and council supporters outside the reserve's community centre.

Earlier in the day, Chief Maracle, long dissenting councillor and spokesman for the protest group, warned a meeting of Mohawks called by Chief William Brant would be blocked.

The chief had called the meeting to air grievances and answer questions on the controversy.

A crowd of about 200, carrying placards protesting both sides in the dispute, had formed in front of the community centre by 8 p.m. when the session was to begin.

But, Joe Maracle said, news of the minister's decision to talk with protest spokesmen arrived two hours before the meeting began.

As a result, the move to halt the meeting was cancelled — but not before protestators had made a gesture of defiance against the council.

They blocked the community centre for 25 minutes before quietly dispersing.

"We didn't want any violence, but we still made our point," said Mr. Maracle.

Presence of council opponents at the centre showed that Mohawks are not going "to stand idly by" in the controversy, Earl Hill, immediate past chief later told a meeting of protesters at the reserve's recreation hall.

A week ago demonstrators called on councillors to resign, then confined them in the community centre after provincial police were called in.

Wednesday night, the only police on duty were reserve constables. The protesters also had about 20 men as marshalls to keep order.

Chief Brant denied a claim by an Indian Affairs department official was present to read the Riot Act if necessary. He said he had earlier suggested an official be present as an observer to report impartially on the meeting to Ottawa, but said he later changed his mind.

While the feared confrontation eventually dissolved peacefully, Chief Brant again was the target for shouted criticisms as he tried to speak to the crowd over a police loudspeaker.

He faced the Mohawks after a 45-minute discussion between councillors and leaders for the protest movement in the nearby reserve administration office.

Councillor Maracle said it had been suggested that a neutral chairman for the meeting be chosen from the crowd. But the proposal had been declined.

The councillor told the crowd although the meeting would proceed they did not have to recognize council at which the protest movement claim was dissolved following a non-confidence petition. He said a non-confidence vote would be called after discussions with Mr. Buchanan and Malcolm Montgomery, the Toronto lawyer retained by council's opponents. The meeting with Mr. Montgomery is scheduled for Saturday and will discuss an injunction.

Chief Brant was called on several times to resign but told the crowd he has "absolutely no intention of quitting" and council would serve its two-year term ending in 1975.

After the community centre doors were opened, the crowd divided. Chief Brant conducted the meeting, which lasted about two hours, answering questions on the conflict that stems from Tyendinaga Mohawk Ltd. — the Indian-owned industrial corporation which has evoked fears of taxation and intrusion of provincial and municipal regulations in reserve affairs.

Meantime, at the recreation centre, the council's opposition selected six representatives to address Councillor Maracle to meet with Mr. Buchanan.

Chief Brant met with Mr. Buchanan earlier this week at which time the minister supported the council. He also praised the initiative shown by the Quinte Mohawks, said the chief.

But, Mr. Maracle said, his delegation wants the minister to finally resolve the controversy today.

"We are going to demand a solution before we leave his office," he said.

Named to the delegation were Earl Hill, Freda Baptiste, Brant Maracle, Cecil Maracle, Harold Brant, Wes Bardy and Willard Hill.

Building Permits Double

Belleville has added more to its assessment this year than history any other in the history Alderson Ben Corke told members of the Subordinate Planning Advisory Committee to city council chambers Wednesday night.

The largest single building permit about the hospital was issued to Procter and Gamble for its $1,000,000 building at 335 University Ave., he said.

This figure should rebut the accusation that "Belleville has brought in a lot of tropical industries," he said.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey added that the total value of building starts in the city to the end of August is $15,344,000. This compares with at total of $7.5 million for all 1973. The mayor said permits have been issued for 55 single dwelling units this year and for 313 multiple units which included two senior citizens' buildings.

Clothing Drive Underway For Hurricane Fifi Victims

Tag Day Planned

The Quinte Branch of the Ontario Humane Society will hold a tag day Nov. 1 and 2, it was decided at the branch's regular meeting Wednesday night. A draw at Quinte Exhibition netted $258 which was awarded to the provincial office in Toronto.

ter indicated that a clothes drive was underway there.

Word of the drive was spread by way of radio announcements and through students at Trenton schools.

Mr. Weiss said all supplies collected will be taken to CFB Trenton today. But he added that clothes for the hurricane victims can still be submitted after today.

"We'll see that it won't go to waste," he said.

He said he also understands that the Hastings-Prince Edward Separate School Board has donated its surplus funds to the relief drive.

Another clothes drive is not an unusual undertaking for the Knights of Columbus. Two other drives are held each year with clothes going to the St. Vincent de Paul Society in Toronto and Madonna House in Combermere, north of Barry's.

Robber Escapes

BRIGHTON — Provincial police here remain on the lookout today for a red Volkswagen reported as the vehicle used by a rifle-toting masked robber who held up a gas station attendant and escaped with $227 Tuesday.

The man escaped police roadblocks set up along Highway 2 between Brighton and Trenton shortly after the 7.30 p.m. holdup was reported at Lyle's Cut-rate Gas.

Constable Bruce Hunt, investigating officer, said police do not have a description of the armed robber.

Official Plan Brings Low-keyed Reaction

Belleville's official plan was considered by city council last night by the Subordinate Planning Advisory Committee.

"It's essential that we get this plan going this year," said committee chairman Dr. John Stork.

Quinte planning director, Bert Sloan told the committee that the official plan is only a document of policy until its provisions are implemented by zoning bylaws.

"If it's kept in limbo for city council's not passing accompanying bylaws for two years like Trenton, it's hard to say what will happen."

Mr. Sloan said the plan changes very little of the existing zoning in the city. The amount of industrial land has been reduced in the area north of the new public utilities building between Elliott Motors and Sidney St., and east of Harchimer Ave. north of Stanley Park. These areas now are designated for residential use.

Mark Ireland expressed concern about the area on Albion Hill, in the vicinity of the Old spur line. The plan designates the area for residential use and Mr. Ireland said he wondered what would happen to the warehouses now owned by Ben Safe and the Zeppurs family. Mr. Kenny said they would be considered non-conforming uses and could be sold for similar uses.

Mayor Robin Jeffrey was not in accord with zoning land at the south end of Front St., between Bell and Pinnacle and fronting on Dundas St., for high-rise development. He said land there is expensive and asked how people could afford to rent apartment in so costly an area.

Alderman Ben Corke, in moving that the plan be sent on to city council for ratification said planners haven't been tough enough in telling people "this is how it should, be done."

"The benefit for one or two individuals must be disregarded for the benefit of the majority," he said.

Transport Jack-knifes

TWEED (Special) — A rainstick roadway is blamed for a tractor-trailer jack-knifing Wednesday afternoon on the Stone-Marlbank Rd. which saw the vehicle jack-knife and slide into the ditch. Damage to the tractor amounted to about $1,000 and to the trailer about $50. No one was injured.

Provincial Police Constable John Ball said the westbound truck was rounding a curve south of Sioco at the time of the mishap.

The transport is owned by Pollock Rentals Ltd. of Strathroy and was driven by Robert S. Ralph, 28, of Aylmer.

Also on Wednesday afternoon, provincial police recovered a 1968 Beaumont reported stolen by Roy E. Gordon of Madoc. The stolen vehicle was found abandoned on the third concession of Madoc Township where it had struck a tree. About $400 damage to the vehicle was reported.

Papineau Cottagers Say Their Lake Is Polluted

A provincial government environment study only confirms that Papineau Lake is polluted, says Harold Andrachuk, spokesman for cottagers meeting plans for a provincial park on the lake.

The study by the environment ministry shows only 41 per cent of cottagers have adequate sewage facilities.

Another 17.9 per cent are considered "sub-standard" and 35.1 per cent are given a "reliance" rating since 7.8 per cent cause direct pollution.

"All the study does is verify our position that the lake is polluted," said Mr. Carruthers, a member of the cottage association opposed to the new provincial park.

"We've been hammering away at the fact this lake is polluted. We can't understand how, in the face of the environment study, they can justify more people using the lake."

Of the 41 per cent sewage systems judged satisfactory, only four or five per cent are up to ministry standards, he said.

Contract Awarded

From the Toronto Bureau Of the Intelligencer

TORONTO — A St. Catherines firm has been awarded a contract for electrical and mechanical services at Prince Edward Heights, Picton, government services Minister Donald Snow announced today.

Stewart and Ekman submitted the lowest of five tenders for the project with a bid of $756,277.

The Prince Edward Heights facility for the mentally retarded is on the site of a former armed forces base. The project is expected to be completed by next August.

Residents to Get Promised Street

The 22 residents of Diamond Cres., off Haig Rd. in the city's east end, may be able to get into their street this winter after all.

The matter was in doubt until Monday night when Maurice Rollins and his road sub-contractor Lightfoot Construction, had made no progress in constructing the street.

Residents had complained that Maurice Rollins had promised the road while the Lightfoot company renewed any queries to Maurice Rollins.

The deputy city engineer said Rollins had until next year, under the terms of the subdivision agreement, to put in curbs and an asphalt-surfaced road.

"But we're insisting that it be done this fall," he said.

Alderman Ben Corke told the Subordinate Planning Advisory Committee Wednesday night that the curbs now are going in "although there's still a long way to go."

"There's been a bit of pressure exerted," added Mayor Robin Jeffrey.

Proceeds from the "buck a cup" promotion will go to the Belleville Rotary Club for its crippled children's work.

Mayor Says Roads Still City's Main Priority

By JIM SMELLIE
Staff Reporter

The mayor of Belleville painted an optimistic economic picture of the city in her report to members of the Chamber of Commerce during a breakfast meeting Wednesday.

"I'm very happy over the 1974-75 financial picture of Belleville. The future looks bright," said Robin Jeffrey told chamber members and guests at the Four Seasons Hotel, representing local business, commerce and industry.

"In the period, to date this year the city has had an increase in the assessment of over 9% million as compared to the total for last year.

"Our building permit value to date is $15,539,694 compared to total building value for 1973 of $7,110,617," she said. She added that building fees had doubled over the last year, with $32,000 this year, up $16,000 from 1973.

She said the large jump is due to six new manufacturing plants now under construction and the expansion of four existing ones.

Turning to the housing field, she said to date there are 313 family units and 256 multiple units under construction or built.

"Although more housing units are needed, 313 single or multiple housing units will be available for people.

"The city will be taking steps to service the remaining vacant residential land and pay its share of the cost in the new five-year capital works budget," said Mayor Jeffrey.

Mayor Jeffrey turned to the nation economic picture, saying she becomes distressed when reading in the newspaper about such things as inflation.

She said like other municipalities, Belleville is affected by inflation.

"If we can't get enough money in from increased assessment brought in from new building, industry or commerce, we have to get it from increased taxes or try to reduce government spending. I think it is better to reduce government spending than increase taxes," she said.

Turning to a recent report prepared by five students surveying the priorities of people in the city, the mayor said she agreed with the consensus that roads needed attention.

"Roads will remain a priority of this city with traffic arteries receiving first consideration. Ready for tender call are improvements to Dundas St. East and Sidney St. between College and Trudey.

"Pinnacle St. and its connection to North Front St. and Bell Blvd. underpass are planned for construction in 1975-76 with completion in 1977.

Another priority the report makes note of and with which the Mayor also agreed is downtown development.

"Much can be done to make the downtown core alive, colorful and economically strong. We can do this with the support of private enterprise," said Mayor Jeffrey.

Bringing in the New

Incoming Lieutenant-Governor of Division 11 of Kiwanis Clubs, John Trafford stands between the two incoming presidents of the city's two Kiwanis Clubs. Esks Shock Cats In 'Dream Win'

EDMONTON (CP)—"It's the sort of thing you only dream about."

That's how Tyrone Walls described his leaping catch of a last-second touchdown pass that climaxed an incredible rally to give Edmonton Eskimos a 23-20 Canadian Football League victory over Hamilton Tiger-Cats Wednesday night.

"Wilkinson scrambled like crazy and Walls jumped like hell," head coach Ray Jauch shouted over the clamor in the noisy Eskimo dressing room.

Quarterback Tom Wilkinson, yanked earlier when he couldn't get the Eskimos rolling, guided the Eskimos to 23 points in the last 19 minutes to wipe out a 20-6 Hamilton lead. The record crowd of 23,337 in Clarke Stadium went wild when Wilkinson hit Walls from 11 yards out with no time showing on the clock.

"Wilkinson threw it high, just like he wanted, to," said Walls. "It was a super call."

"We're riddled with injuries, down 20-6 and still believed we could score enough points in the last 19 minutes to win it," said Wilkinson. "We just have a lot of confidence in ourselves."

The Eskimos, who took over undisputed possession of first place in the Western Conference, two points ahead of British Columbia Lions, appeared to be dead when Hamilton's Andy Hopkins slammed over from the six at 2:37 of the final period to give the Ticats a 29-6 bulge.

Wilkinson came back to replace Bruce Lumberjean, who had taken over at quarterback when Wilkinson had trouble early in the game, then marched the Eskimos to a touchdown in three plays with Larry Highbaugh taking a 32-yard pass in the end zone.

An interception by Dick Dupuis set up a 25-yard field goal by Dave Cutler, then a seven-yards penalty against the Tiger-Cats, who saw their four-game winning streak snapped and remained two points behind first-place Montreal in the East, gave the Eskimos possession on the Hamilton 25.

Wilkinson hooked up with Highbaugh on a seven-yard scoring pass and the convert by Cutler, his second of three, narrowed Hamilton's lead to 29-20 with less than 90 seconds to play.

The kickoff by Cutler, whose field goals from the 12 and 19 accounted for all the Eskimo scoring until the final period, was conceded for a single. Hamilton was then forced to punt and Edmonton took over with 36 seconds left to play and 56 yards away from the Hamilton end zone.

Wilkinson passed the team to the 34 and then found Walls in the end zone.

The power running of Andy Hopkins and the precision kicking of Ian Sunier had allowed the Ticats to dominate the first 50 minutes. Hopkins ran for 116 yards and one touchdown, while Sunier had two converts, three singles and field goals from the 34, 34 and two from the 32. Quarterback Don Jonas accounted for the rest of the Hamilton scoring with an eight-yard TD run.

Resurgent Cards First

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

St. Louis Cardinals got off to the most twice Wednesday night to defeat Pittsburgh Pirates 2-1 and take back first place in baseball's National League West.

"People say a certain game makes you or breaks you, said Cardinal manager Red Schoendienst. "If there ever was a game to do it, this was it."

"It was unbelievable, said rookie Jim Dwyer, a seldom-used St. Louis reserve, who knocked in the winning run with a sacrifice fly in the 11th inning Wednesday night.

First, the Cardinals recovered from a 5-0 first-inning deficit. Then, they bounced back after the Pirates had scored three times in the top of the 11th and taken a 12-9 lead.

The Cardinals victory lifted them into first place, one-half game ahead of the Pirates. Each edge is in the win column. They have won one more game than Pittsburgh. Both teams have lost the same number of games.

St. Louis has six games remaining—three at Chicago and three at Montreal. Pittsburgh has seven games left—four at New York and three at home against Chicago.

Baltimore Hanging On

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Veteran Baltimore outfielder Frank Robinson was a game of sets with manager Ralph Houk of Detroit Tigers and the Orioles held onto first place in baseball's American League East.

With two out in the ninth, Davis looped a soft liner over second base to drive in two runs and give the Orioles a 5-4 win over the Tigers, enabling them to maintain their half-game lead over New York Yankees, who shaded Boston Red Sox 10-9 in 10 innings.

The Tigers were leading 4-3 when Davis came up with runners on second and third and Don Baylor, who has much less major league experience than Davis, on deck.

"I brought the outfielders in almost behind the infielders and be hit it over after that I thought, said Houk. "I didn't want to walk him and load the bases.

"Then (Mickey) Lolich could have up three good strikes to Baylor.

In Wednesday's other American League games, Minnesota Twins beat Oakland As 1-0, Cleveland Indians whipped Milwaukee Brewers 9-3, California Angels blanked Kansas City Royals 7-0 and a doubleheader between Chicago White Sox and Texas Rangers at Arlington was rained out.

WINGS CLAIM TRETIAK

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League have acquired negotiating rights to the services of Russian goalie Vladislav Tretiak, team officials announced Wednesday. Tretiak played on the U.S.S.R.'s national team during its matches with Team Canada in 1972 and 1974 and was highly acclaimed. The Wings would have the exclusive rights among NHL teams to bargain for Tretiak if he were permitted to play outside Russia.

Soviet Union Learned Its Hockey Lessons Well

Just the other day, the boss was commenting on how quickly the Soviet Union has caught on to hockey.

Observing that the Soviets have been involved in international hockey for a shorter period of time than Gordie Howe has been performing at professional ranks, he offered the suggestion that perhaps it was the late 1960s that the USSR began its climb up the ladder.

Well, we've been trying to pin it down.

No trouble digging back to discover that Howe's first season as a pro was 1945-46 with Omaha of the United States Hockey League. He began his long, successful NHL career with Detroit that same season.

Wings the following season.

When did the Soviets first challenge for the International Ice Hockey Federation crown?

A special release from Sweden containing information on the 1969 world amateur championships held in that country, gave 1954 as the first year the USSR made its venture into international competition.

We do know the Soviets took the title that year, with Canada second and Sweden, third.

Orval Gravelle, former Belleville Junior B coach who now spends many of his spare hours officiating in Ontario Hockey Association games, was a member of the Ottawa RCAF Flyers, Olympic champions in 1948.

The redhead recalls that in those days, the Soviets appeared to be using the National Team of Czechoslovakia to test their hockey capabilities.

"I remember that when we were over there, the Czechs were handling the Soviet teams quite handily in exhibition games," recalls Gravelle.

"Later, when they began to hold their own with the Czechs, the Soviets got involved at the International level. That would make it in the early 1950s."

Whatever the year, it's a fact the Soviets have caught on.

Incidentally, Orval predicts Team Canada '74 will do "extremely well" in the four games in Russia.

"These are pros and they'll be giving everything they've got," observes Gravelle.

ELSEWHERE — Here's how Toronto Star sports editor Jim Proudfoot and columnist Milt Dunnell described Bobby Hull and his efforts during the Canada-Soviet hockey confrontation.

Proudfoot: "And then there's the incomparable Hull, capable of winning this thing for Canada all by himself."

Dunnell: "Extolling the merits of Robert Marvin Hull as a hockey player is like endorsing Christmas as the season of goodwill.

"It's obvious now what Hull would have meant to Team Canada '72. There would have been no need for the miracle of Moscow if he had been allowed to play."

Habersdale, the Bay of Quinte High School Football League's season opened last week.

If we think we've got a communication gap, think what league convener Lorne Verkoef of Napanee and District Secondary School is faced with.

Lorne was saying Tuesday that the only game result he had so far, was one in which his school's team was involved.

Co-operation — isn't it great!

There are A and B Conferences this season. Bayside Secondary School, Centennial, Moira, Quinte and Trenton, in the A group, have junior and senior clubs.

B section schools, Belleville Collegiate Institute, Centre Hastings Secondary School, Napanee, and Prince Edward Collegiate Institute have senior teams only.

Quinte and Bayside are two local schools scheduled for action today.

The juniors took up at Quinte while senior teams are in action at the Bayside school.

Belleville Minor Hockey Association requires a convener for the novice house league section.

If you can spare the time to help out, contact association president Austin Walsh.

Drion Carlisle held its annual men's golf tournament recently at Belleville Golf and Country Club, Stirrytville.

Bob Zakowski e a 75 to take low gross honors in A Flight and Wayne Brown's 69 was good for low net. In B Flight, Ron High led the field with Karl Jair carding low net.

Earlier, the local industry staged its mixed tournament at Peppers Golf Club, Bloon.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hughes bowed in with low gross, 86, while Mr. and Mrs. Earl Bowen had low net, 68.

Gas House Hockey League officials are aiming for an eight-team group this season. There are seven definite starters with room for one more. But an eighth team must make its intentions known at a meeting scheduled for Sir James Whitney School (OSD) tonight at 7.30.

Stanley Structures, Chuckwagon Foods, Rollins Lennox, Belleville General Construction Carpet and the Intelligencer are back along with a new entry, B and A Motors of Trenton.

Yero Whalen has accepted the position of secretary with the league. Still to be named are a president, treasurer and vice-president.

It is expected the league will open, October 7.

And then there was one.

Belleville SACO Peewees are the last city representative in Ontario Amateur Softball Association playoffs with a shot at a provincial title.

Tuesday, Rollins Construction bowed out of Intermediate A competition as the result of a 1-0 loss to St. Thomas Empires, in the third and deciding game of their series.

Dartier Devoin Motors (Senior B), Boward and Bennett Printing (Intermediate AA) and the Ellis Juniors were put on the sidelines after making strong showings in the playoffs.

SACO Peewees trail their OASA series 1-0 to Grantham with the second game of the semi-final set scheduled for Alemite Park, Saturday at 3:30 p.m.

New Rules for Hunters as the Season Opens

By CASH MAHAFFY
Staff Reporter

NAPANEE — The rules are different, but the prospects for this year's small game season, which opens tomorrow, are near before normal, Saturday, look promising.

Ducks, geese and rabbits all had a good breeding year, says conservation officer conservation Jack Stewart of the Napanee regional office of the ministry of natural resources.

But, hunters have a new set of regulations to follow when it comes to waterfowl. Under the federal Migratory Bird Convention Act, bag and possession limits have been changed and decoy rules have been scrapped.

There is no limit this season on red breasted and American merganzers. Not more than one merganser in the daily duck may be taken daily and no merganser limit is now of each species.

The daily bag limit for duck is five and the possession limit is 10.

The possession limit simply means that you cannot have more than 10 duck carcases in your possession at any one time, no matter how often you go hunting. You may eat them or give them away — but not throw them away — and replace them. The possession limit at any time is 10, period.

After Oct. 12, hunters will be allowed to take two additional scoup (bluebills) a day and keep four in their possession.

"There's no population problem with the birds that are not protected — besides, they're not the best eating. That's why hunters are allowed to take more of them," Mr. Stewart explained.

"The Oct. 12 date is significant, too," he said.

"That's Thanksgiving weekend, and you'll find that 50 per cent of the hunters are out on that weekend and on opening day. The other 10 per cent hunt right through the season, and they get 90 per cent of the ducks."

Opening day hunters usually expect to see a lot of bluewing teal, but they may be surprised this year, says Mr. Stewart.

"The later flyers are moving in now. We've seen a number of flights of early geese and the whole migration pattern appears to be about two weeks early," he said.

Another change for hunters this year is the law that says they may not hold or apply for a hunting licence. Any one year after they have been convicted of violating migratory birds regulations.

If a hunter gets nailed opening day, he loses his gun and whatever other gear he has, as well as his licence. Then he's even possible he won't get to court until December. If he's convicted, he's out of hunting for a year from then and misses two seasons," said Mr. Stewart.

The conservation officer also pointed out the fine distinction of a power boat, "it's illegal to hunt from a 'power boat', but a 'motorboat is all right as long as the motor isn't running and the boat is not under way."

Mr. Stewart said conservation officers would be out in full force on opening, with help from RCMP detachments in Belleville, Kingston and Trenton.

First Game in Russia the Key

HELSINKI (CP) — Play that a rough as times, but Gordie Howe predicts there'll be no fisticuffs during the eight-game international hockey series between Team Canada and the Soviet Union.

Howe, a noted pugilist in a non-professional career, said Wednesday in an international use that calls for a 10-minute penalty for the aggressor in a fight discourages fistcuffs.

He told a news conference of reporters at the news conference that fights are not staged in North American Hockey.

"There isn't enough money in the whole WHA to pay me for letting somebody punch me in the nose.

Coach Billy Harris, who appeared at the news conference with Howe and Bobby Hull, said the first game in the Russian leg of the series probably will be the key to the whole series.

There was one win for each team and two ties in the four Canadian games in the series.

Sunday's game against Sweden in Gothenburg, Sweden, will be telecast, but both games will be broadcast on CBC radio.

Soviets Nursing Injuries

MONTREAL (CP) — More than 1,200 fans were on hand Wednesday night for a rare treat-a workout on Canadian ice by the Soviet Union's national hockey team.

Star forward Alexander Yakushev did not participate in the practice which was held at the suburban Pointe Claire Arena.

"It's a knee ligament," Yakushev explained. "My doctor promised me that I'll be able to play before the end of the series."

Sergei Kapunen, who broke a finger in the second game of the Soviet Union's eight-game series against Team Canada, still cannot grip a hockey stick properly and some other players are nursing various bumps and bruises.

Shri Lebedev has a black right eye as a result of an elbow he received from right winger John McKenzie.

"We can play that way, but it's not hockey," said Vladislav Tretiak, the Russians star goal tender.

"McKenzie is not a sports man, not a man to be admired. The saddest part of it from my view is that he wants to be, he's a very good hockey player."

Tretiak called Gordie Howe an amazing hockey player and added that Bobby Hull might be "the most complete hockey player" the Soviet had ever faced.

The Russians leave today for Moscow and, will resume their eight game series against Team Canada, composed of players from the World Hockey Association, Oct. 1 in Moscow.

Canada and the Soviet each won a game in Canada and two games were tied.

Four third-period goals, three of them scored by rookies, sparked the Reds to a 7-4 exhibition victory at Providence.

Marty Geleman and rookies Boyd Anderson, Jerry Holland and Pierre Laganier were third-period scorers for the Reds.

Jeff Hunt, Wayne Chernecki and Ken Campbell were the other Providence scorers. Walt Tkaczuk scored twice and Rick Middleton and Steve Vickers one each for the Rangers, who had won two earlier starts.

In Wednesday other exhibition games, Buffalo Sabres downed Washington Capitals 3-1, New York Islanders shaded California Golden Seals 1-0, Atlanta Flames topped Toronto Maple Leafs 5-3, Kansas City Scouts defeated Pittsburgh Penguins 4-2, St. Louis Blues dumped Detroit Red Wings 5-1 and Philadelphia Flyers stopped Vancouver Canucks 4-2.

Third-period goals by Buffalo Derek Smith and Joe Noris broke a 1-1 tie at London, Ont. Craig Ramsay had the other Buffalo goal. Ron Anderson scored for Washington.

Ralph Stewarts first-period goal and the shutout goaltending of Glenn Resch, who played the first two periods, and Bill Smith gave the Islanders their win at Kingston, Ont.

A crowd of 3,323 at Ottawa saw Atlantas Dean Talafous awarded a goal when the puck was knocked off his stick by the thrown stick of Toronto Borje Salming as he broke in alone on the open net.

Pitcher Ted Sexsmith stands behind pitcher Larry Barnard of the Crookston team of the Sydney-Thurlow Township League. The two strong-armed hurlers, shared the summer's work of keeping the rest of the league teams in line.

Crookston Team Double Winner

Crookston handed Glen Miller a 4-0 defeat in the Sydney-Thurlow Township Softball League championship playoff on at Springbrook recently.

The league consists of Glen Miller, Hadleyay, Crookston, Centenary, Wallbridge (all intermediates), Springbrook juveniles, and Stirling midgets.

Crookston won the regular season league playoffs, and then last weekend the league held a two day championship tournament.

Crookston had a bye since they were the champs, and Larry Barnard of 99 Frankford Rd., Stirling pitched for Crookston against Wallbridge. That game wound up 13-3 for Crookston.

In the last game, Ted Sexsmith of RR 2 Madoc was on the mound for Crookston. There was no score until the fifth inning when Barnard blasted a home run.

In the sixth inning Glen Miller had a runner on third and another man on second but Crookston prevented them from crossing the plate.

Later, Crookston's Jack Oliver hit a homer with two men on base, Ted Dobson walked home after Ken Smith connected with the horsehide.

Th game was rot al roses for Crookston however.

Pitcher Rick Hill of Glen Miller allowed Crookston to lead all the bases in the fourth inning, and then proceeded to strike out three in a row forcing all runner to trudge back to the defensive.

Florida's Unique Everglades Are in Path of 'Progress'

THE EVERGLADES, Fla. (AP) — The strange beauty of the Everglades will survive only if man can preserve it from its most determined destroyer—himself.

The 1.5-million-acre national park, spread across two-thirds of the tip of Florida, is a contrast of ecological systems, ranging from the seagrass panoramas of the true Glades to tangled mangrove swamps.

Authorities think the sawgrass, cypress and estuarine system harbored by the park may disappear unless officials soon in booming Miami and other Gold Coast cities to the northeast changes its definition of progress. For 19 years, Frank Nix has been the hydraulic engineer for Everglades National Park, studying the complexities of the water flow that is life itself to the wilderness.

"If the rest of south Florida is developed like the Gold Coast, we will run out of water," he said. "If that happens, you won't have an Everglades National Park."

The Everglades has always known cycles of flood and drought. But man has done as much draining in the Everglades region north of the park that he has created an artificial drought and made the dry years much more severe.

The Everglades surprises visitors who have been taught by books and hug-killer advertisements to picture them as a thick, tangled jungle.

The true Glades is a horizon-wide sweep of five to 10-foot sawgrass, reminiscent of the monotonous wheatfield vistas of the prairies.

In the summer wet season, countless bass, gar and other fish, reptiles and amphibians live in the 18 inches or so of water that covers the sawgrass plain. In the winter dry period, they retreat to the deeper water of sloughs and the great swampy plain dries up.

In drought years, when rains are late and light, only the skeletons of four-foot-long garfish lying on the parched land give evidence that water was ever within 100 miles of the place.

The fresh-water flow also maintains a low-salt content in the estuarine mangrove swamps on the south and west sides of the park.

The 10,000 Islands area is a fisherman's paradise, abounding in tarpon, snook, channel bass and many other game fish. Biologists think the mangrove swamps are also the spawning or rearing ground for many commercially important food fish.

"It looks as if changing the amount of fresh water that reaches the estuaries may change the salinity and destroy their value as breeding grounds," Nix said.

The greatest threat to the Everglades appears to be from the melaleuca tree, a native of Southeast Asia that was imported to Florida about 25 years ago.

Men planted this tree in the populous areas along the coast, but it spread inland rapidly and has already replaced the sawgrass in some parts of the Glades.

"If it keeps up, 50 years from now we'll be calling it Melaleuca National Park," Nix observed. "They're sitting at the borders right now, waiting to get in. When the melaleuca takes over, you lose even more water. A thick growth of trees obviously is going to require a lot more water than sawgrass."

The hydrologist said the park needs a buffer zone around it to keep melaleuca and other exotics out.

Wayne Hoffman, Dade County's principal environmental planner, said a new master growth plan being prepared for the county includes a low-population density area around the park.

"I'm not convinced the park will be totally protected," Hoffman said. "The problem will become urgent within a generation.

Announcing... a new car designed to give you an efficient use of space, fuel and money.

Granada Ghia 4-Door Sedan. Shown with optional deluxe bumper group.

Ford Granada. The design of the times.

The Design: With an overall length of 197.7", Granada is over one and a half feet shorter (and about a quarter-ton lighter) than most 1974 mid-size cars, so you can expect good gas mileage. It's about the size of a Mercedes 280 and features plenty of family-size room inside.

The Construction: Granada's body parts are welded into a solid unit. And them, to help protect against rust, Granada's body is covered with 13 lbs. of primers and chip-resistant baked enamel.

The Comforts: A close look at Granada shows that it was thoughtfully planned for passenger riding comfort . . . contoured reclining front bucket seats adjust to more than 100 positions, and tuned suspension and a sophisticated use of insulation result in an extremely quiet ride.

The Economics: Every Granada comes with gas saving steel-belted radial ply tires that deliver excellent road life. Granada's standard engine is a 250 CID Six that's economical and easy to maintain. Along with two optional V-8's (302 and 351 CID), it's precisely balanced to resist the vibrations that can cause engine wear. All Granadas feature solid state ignition for less scheduled maintenance than former systems.

The Models and Features: Granada is available in 2-Door and 4-Door Sedans and is offered in two series, Granada and Granada Ghia. The array of Granada standard features includes a 250 CID Six engine with solid state ignition; 3-speed manual transmission; front disc brakes; BSW steel-belted radial ply tires; bright moldings and opera windows (2-Door); contoured individual reclining front bucket seats; deep cut-pile nylon carpeting; buried walnut woodtone applique on instrument panel; sound insulation and ride package; and all Ford Safety Design Features. And Granada Ghia models offer even more standard features and appointments.

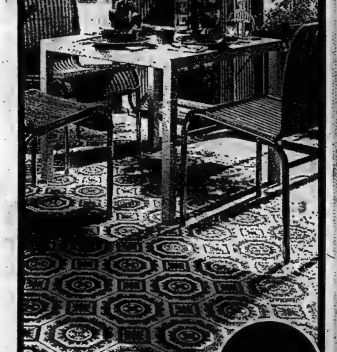
IMPORTANT NEWS FOR NEW CAR BUYERS

Some 1975 cars require the use of more expensive unleaded gasoline which is not readily available.

We want you to know all Ford of Canada 1975 car lines can be refueled with any gasoline, at any pump, at any station, anywhere. This also means you can select the gasoline price that suits you best.

Some 1975 cars will be equipped with catalytic converters. The converter is an emission control device that requires the use of unleaded gasoline because that fuel is not readily available throughout Canada*, all engines (with the exception of one, the optional 2.8 litre V-6) for all 1975 lines of Ford of Canada cars have been designed to meet the new Canadian exhaust emission standards without requiring converters. This means they can be fueled with any gasoline—unleaded, premium, or the lower priced regular. This is of particular importance to those who travel in rural areas where the availability is substantially less than major urban centres.



Economy "Extenders": In addition to convenience of fuel availability and choice, there are a number of features designed into every 1975 Ford of Canada car line that contribute to fuel economy and lower operating costs • Steel-belted radial ply tires • Solid state ignition • Improved engine tuning • Optional rear axle ratios • Extended interval tune-up.

Taiwan Specialists Use Bullfrog Skins

TAIPEI (Reuter) — A group of young agricultural and fishery specialists in Taiwan say hard at work improving ways of raising bullfrogs to use their skins for shoes, belts, bags and gloves.

There are many problems to be solved before bullfrog skin can be mass-produced. But the Joint Commission on Rural Reconstruction (JCRR) says its initial experiments have been successful and the bullfrog breeding business has a bright future.

Most leather processing factories in Taiwan depend on imported raw materials, but because of a marked reduction in cowhide production in foreign countries, the JCRR is actively studying how to help bullfrog farmers use the skins to fill in the gaps.

The JCRR introduced two species of bullfrogs into Taiwan from the United States and Japan 20 years ago for breeding.

A senior JCRR specialist, Li Chien-chwan, said there has been no marked progress in the bullfrog-raising business, because most cultivators limited their business to selling stock. With a pair of frogs for breeding costing more than 60 Taiwan dollars ($15.80 U.S.) not many farmers can afford to raise bullfrogs as a sideline.

Li, who heads a team of young specialists in the project, said that through a series of experiments, he has succeeded in feeding the bullfrogs with snails instead of live earthworms, greatly reducing the cost.

There are some 300 small-scale bullfrog cultivators in Taiwan, but because of lack of scientific knowledge, capital and proper marketing they have failed to expand their business, Li said.

The largest bullfrog weighs only one kilogram (2.2 pounds) while the majority average only half that weight, Li said the JCRR will help the Taiwan Bullfrog Cultivation Association, which was set up recently, and the China Bullfrog Cultivation centre to improve the cultivation of bullfrogs and breeding meat in the local market.

The bullfrog centre has already begun to supply fresh meat to the Taichung area. Each catty (one pound five ounces) is sold for about $2 U.S., the centre said, and is highly welcome in the market.

Sun Penetrates Burial Mound Ten Days at Winter Solstice

By JAMES R. FRIPERT

LONDON (AP) — Archeologists will gather in December in the dark recesses of an ancient burial mound in Ireland to view an annual phenomenon that has occurred with precise regularity for 5,000 years.

With the coming of the winter solstice Dec. 21 a thin shaft of sunlight will pierce the darkness to illuminate an altar stone, carved with three spirals, or spirals — at the back of the burial chamber 62 feet inside the mound.

The alignment of the tomb's stony entrance and the altar stone with the sun's rays at solstice—the sun's lowest point in the heavens—indicates the stone-age people who built the mount around 3,000 BC had a remarkably precise knowledge of the solar cycles.

The mound, near the village of Slane in County Meath, about 30 miles northwest of Dublin, predates England's Stonehenge, a mysterious circle of massive stones, also aligned with the sun's movements, by more than 1,000 years.

That would make the Irish burial mound the oldest known astronomically oriented monument in the world.

The Irish mound supports the theory that various stone-age cultures in the British Isles investigated solar cycles and may have exchanged information that resulted in the construction of Stonehenge on Salisbury Plain about 1900 BC.

"Stonehenge and its astronomically positioned stones might have become an important repository or library of astronomical knowledge known at the time," said Jon Patrick of the Dublin College of Technology.

Patrick, a lecturer in land surveying, surveyed the astronomical alignment of the Irish mound for Michael O'Kelly, professor of archeology at University College in Cork, Ireland.

A report of the survey appeared in Nature, the British science journal.

During the winter solstice in 3000 O'Kelly observed that four minutes after sunrise the sun's rays shone through the "roof box," a yard-wide rectangular opening just above the entrance. They penetrated to the rear of the burial chamber and fully illuminated it 5 for 17 minutes before the sun moved out of alignment.

Patrick wrote that O'Kelly asked him "to make an accurate survey of the roof box to see if this phenomenon would have occurred when the burial chamber was first built."

After a complicated series of measurements, Patrick concluded "that the sun has shone down the passage to the chamber ever since the date of its construction and will probably continue to do so forever."

Patrick noted that Ireland has about 300 similar burial mounds, sometimes called "fairy forts," but "to my knowledge none of them has a roof box."

"As this structure is unique and as the whole monument is so grandiose," Patrick wrote, "it seems likely that its orientation is deliberate."

Little is known about the people who built the County Meath mound, but archeologists speculate they worshipped the sun and thus

LOS ANGELES (Reuter) — A television news cameraman in Los Angeles filed suit Monday against Evel Knievel for 1.1 million damages, alleging that the daredevil roughed him up while he was filming preparations of Knievel's Skycycle jump over Snake Rigger canyon in Idaho three weeks ago.

James Watt, with KNBC-TV, charged that Knievel hit him with his cane and pushed the camera into his face Sept. 6 prior to the ill-fated jump.

In his complaint, alleging assault and battery, Watt said he suffered "severe injuries to his head, face and body."

A 1967 excavation of the tomb's floor revealed the burned bones fragments of about five persons. But "the tomb has been open to visitors since 1699," Patrick wrote, "and an unknown amount of the original burial deposit ... has been removed since then."

A suffered body bruises and pain and injury to his nervous system.

BOZEMAN, Mont. (AP) — Chet Huntley, the former television anchorman who died of cancer in March, left an estate valued at more than $1.3 million, documents filed Friday in state district court showed.

The bulk of the estate consisted of life insurance and deferred salary payments from NBC.

For 1975 Pontiac introduces a whole new travel plan for Canadians

Going across town or across Canada can now be a more rewarding experience.

Pontiac Astre
Economy First Class.
Want better operating economy from now on? Part of Pontiac's new plan makes its little Astre even more economical to operate as well as more fun to drive. Look forward to many pleasant surprises in a new Astre—like High-Energy electronic ignition and radial tires. With the distinctive-looking new Astre SJ, you get an extra measure of luxury.

Pontiac Ventura
The New Economy Route.
The more "European" styling of Pontiac's compact Ventura only suggests the new values. From steel-belted radial tires to double-panel roof, from a fast warm-up system to a more stable ride, Ventura has new ways to look after you. Ask about the new economy route and other travel plans for 1975—including Grand Prix, Grand Am and Firebird—at your Pontiac dealer's.

Pontiac LeMans
Group Travel with an Economy Plan.
Pontiac's intermediates reach out with a new name—Grand LeMans, a great new way to take your family on a grand tour. Or just out to dinner. LeMans, LeMans Sport Coupe, Grand LeMans. This year's sleekly-styled LeMans comes with new features, such as High Energy Ignition, to contribute to overall operating efficiency. Trim size Pontiacs that are built to fit your travel plans perfectly.

Parisienne Brougham
First Class Accommodation with an Economy Package.
Like your travelling companion full-size? Pontiac's plan for you sheds a new light on the pleasures of driving a full-size car—as you can see right off with Parisienne Brougham's all-new rectangular headlamps. You can enjoy first class comfort along with an economy package—get fast, sure starts, especially in cold or wet weather. It's all part of the plan that can make driving more enjoyable than it's been in years. With better overall operating economy. Ask for a test drive. You'll see the difference instantly.

The Pontiac Travel Plan
Helping you to enjoy better driveability is just part of the Pontiac Travel Plan.
- Steel-Belted Radial Tires—drive longer tire life and better operating economy. Every series with Radial Tuned Suspension.
- High-Energy Ignition—helps improve engine performance and economy. Comes with all Canadian replacements.
- Catalytic Converter—The Converter requiring unleaded gasoline, allows calibration of the engine for lower fuel consumption, smoother start-up and smoother overall performance.
- Radial Tuned Suspension—helps improve fuel economy under cold-engine starting conditions.

Pontiac has a reputation for consistently maintaining a high re-sale index. The new intermediates are no exception.

There's a lot of talk going on just now about the new 1975 automobiles. In the excitment of the moment, dealers and manufacturers alike sometimes get carried away. Because we feel that we really can't do verbal justice to the line-up of magnificent new Buicks for 1975, we're going to say very little. Simply this. They are magnificent. Sanctions on Rhodesia Fail to Shut Off Goods

SALISBURY, (REUTER) — Rhodesia "Specialty imported from America—beautiful printed American cotton voile," says a prominent sign in the window of one of Salisbury's biggest department stores.

The notion is a clear indication that United Nations economic sanctions have failed to make any drastic alteration to Rhodesia's pattern of spending, let alone to bring the country to its knees.

Other window displays in the same store tell a similar story. Lengths of cloth imported from Switzerland, are on offer, as well as shoes from Europe, "the latest in fashion for summer '74."

Sanctions were imposed on Rhodesia after the country, ruled by a white minority, declared itself independent of Britain in 1965 but the uninformed visitor might never guess this is supposed to be a beleaguered country.

At the movies there is a choice from some of the biggest international box office successes of 1974—The Sting, The Great Gatsby or The Three Musketeers.

During the country's recent general election the televised results were interspersed with The Tom Jones Show.

Other imported television attractions include Peyton Place and Civilisation, one of Britain's most successful cultural programs.

Go into a Salisbury bookshop and ask for a newly published work, such as Alexander Solzhenytsin's Gulag Archipelago, and an assistant will point to a huge stack of the volume.

The shelves are lined with books on every subject, the great majority of them printed in Britain.

But underneath the surface all is not quite normal. For one thing, consumer durables tend to be expensive.

When buying a radio or record player the choice of make is limited, with most of those on offer bearing Japanese brand names.

Clothes for both men and women tend to be utilitarian, although a few shops cater for the latest fads, including the 1930s "Gatsby look."

Some luxuries are permanently scarce, such as scotch whisky and new cars. If you approach a Salisbury car dealer and ask to buy a new model he will explain that there is a waiting list of between two and three years.

The dealer explains that the government sets fixed annual quotas for new imported cars, while any Rhodesian picking up a new model in neighboring South Africa must pay a 40-per-cent import duty and not resell it for two years.

The root cause of this and other shortages seems not to be sanctions but foreign exchange difficulties produced by world hostility to Rhodesian products.

Companies receive a fixed foreign currency allocation and a sudden run on a product can whittle this away to nothing.

The fact that sanctions have failed to bite is due in no small part to Rhodesia's neighbors, South Africa and the Portuguese East African territory of Mozambique, which have chosen to ignore the UN call.

Many of Rhodesia's exports and imports travel by rail to and from the Mozambique ports of Beira and Lourenco Marques, while others move by road and air from South Africa.

But this may change dramatically in the near future if a black government in Mozambique closes the border with Rhodesia.

This would make the country far more dependent on South Africa and the more expensive routes to the landlocked republic would increase domestic inflation and make the foreign exchange position more difficult.

Introducing the 1975 Skyhawk, Apollo/Skylark, and Century.

There's never before been a Buick like the Skyhawk V6. It's low-slung and poised for effortless cruising and quick response on its standard steel-belted radial ply tires. Skybawk power comes from a highly refined V6 engine with advancements like solid state high-energy ignition for quick, sure starts. Skyhawk seating is 2+2 with high-contoured bucket seats in front. Rear seats fold down to provide load space accessible through Skyhawk's rear hatch. The 1975 Skyhawk V6. A quick, nimble and elegant little car from Buick.

Skyhawk

Are these the ideally sized cars for the times? Many people seem to think so. And this year, these fine Buick compacts have been restyled and re-engineered to be better than ever. Inside, there's plenty of room for five. Outside, they're small enough to be easy to drive and park. The Apollo is quite an elegant four-door sedan. An ideal family car. The Skylark is a two-door coupe with sporty lines. There's also a Hatchback version, with fold-down rear seats and nearly six feet of load space. Because they're Buick compacts, they offer you a lot of big-car features like side guard beams, double-panel roof construction and smooth suspension. Little, big cars. 1975 Apollo and Skylark from Buick.

Apollo/Skylark

With eleven models to choose from, you're likely to find just the intermediate you want within the Century line. If you're looking for an impressive list of standard equipment and distinctive styling, the Century Regal is the place to start. It comes equipped with variable-ratio power steering, Full-Flo ventilation, steel-belted radial ply tires, quick warm-up system and high energy ignition. On the other end of the spectrum is the Century Special. It's designed to be lightweight and economical to operate. It's a rich looking car, but you don't have to be rich to own it. When you put Century's luxury and contemporary styling together with its price tag, you end up with a great value in an intermediate mid-size car.

Conviction Brings $150 Fine

TRENTON — Provincial court Judge R. C. Jackson fined a Trenton man, Brian Evan Mills, 22, of 71 Delaney St., $150 Wednesday after conviction on failure to remain at the scene of an accident charge laid by town police following a three-car collision in July.

Court was told the Mills vehicle struck two other cars at the intersection of Front and Division Sts. after its three vehicles and estimated brakes failed. Damage to the close to $1,000.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL
Friday, September 27

Aries (March 21-April 19) You're very effective at making final decision today. Ideas that come to you out of the blue will have a great deal of substance.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) Sensational lucky breaks come and go in a flash. In order to make something of them you have to act immediately. Vacillation can be costly.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) Don't be surprised if you suddenly hear from one who has been separated from you by distance and who doesn't consume calculs often.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) An unexpected surprise comes to you through a family contact. There is something of material value associated with the incident.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) There are some unusual benefits that will be accorded you through a partnership arrangement, if you don't hock the tide.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Discard old methods if you're being stymied by delays. Try fresh approaches to help you get around roadblocks.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) A spur-of-the-moment, invitation rather exciting. Keep your social calendar open today.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your sense of timing is very acute now. The chances are that you have a chance to make something up quickly in your advantage.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You're better equipped today to handle situations of a mental nature than you are to cope with physical ones. Deal in ideas.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) A critical condition is doing some corrective shifting about. When everything is sorted out, it's going to be to your advantage.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Don't hesitate to get in touch with that person who can now help you with something you need. The opportunity won't exist tomorrow.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) You'll benefit in a unique way through a friend who's involved in an unusual enterprise. He's going to share something with you.

Win at Bridge

By Oswald and Jamesa Jacoby

The probable was the diamond lead with dummy's king and precipitately played the king of spades. East showed out.

The student gasped, "Haven't you finally gone wrong?"

"Not at all," replied the Professor. "The odds are that if trumps break 3-2, East will hold them. I still have a very good chance to make the contract. If I had played trumps the other way and West showed out I would accept it."

Then the Professor proceeded to make his contract.

He led a diamond to his ace. If West had ruffed it would have been too bad but West had to follow. Then the Professor led his jack of hearts. East could do nothing better than win the ace and lead the deuce back. The Professor won with dummy's king, discarding a club from his hand. East ruffed dummy's last heart, leading his ace of trumps; and allowed his hand.

He explained: "I am going to play my last high diamond. East's best play will be to discard. Then I will ruff my high diamond and lead a club. If West will have to lead a club or give me a ruff and discard. So, how way I will only have to lose one club trick."

Bed Wetter, 7½, Trial for Parents

By G. C. THURSTEON, MD

Dear Dr. Thurstenson: Our daughter, 7½, still wets the bed every night. She also has trouble during the day if she is not able to use the bathroom right away. Our family doctor says eventually she will outgrow it. My husband is getting fed up with it and wants to start punishing her.

We have tried everything, from getting her up every two hours to ignoring the whole thing. We have four other children who never had this problem. Can you help us, or is she spoiled?—Mrs. R.C.

Since she has trouble during the day, too, this isn't like the average case of bed-wetting. Whether she is spoiled, and uses this trouble as a means of "getting even with the world" is something I can't say on the basis of sparse information.

Whether you've really tried "everything else" may be open to question—there are so many ways of handling this trouble.

But to this last case, I would most certainly have a urologist examine her. She may be having some physical condition, kidney, urinary tract, which could lead you to the solution both you and she need.

If there is no physical cause, then you'll have to start looking for some emotional involvement that needs attention.

By no, don't start punishing her. It will do no good and very likely will do substantial and lasting harm.

Dear Dr. Thurstenson: I have just ordered from a mineral spring water. After one week of soaking in the mineral springs I find the only changes are that I rected.

any bathing suits are spoily and my pants taste salty.—J.

We have had such wonderful reports of these baths from other people, I am wondering if I did something wrong. Do these waters really have a beneficial effect in cases of arthritis, bursitis and similar ailments? Would soaking in our own pool right here at home be just as beneficial?—Mrs. L.M.

I have no medical evidence of any benefits from such springs, so I would have to say that you are not getting your money's worth in that line.

There are psychological factors involved, though, which are difficult to measure. Some folks get relaxation in traveling to such places and socializing with others while there, and so on. For those people there well could be definite benefits. Otherwise, you are not one of them, so you are probably just as well off at home.

Dear Dr. Thurstenson: I have a minor acne problem. I've had it for about 14 years. My nose is the worst morning or stopped up the year around. Friends have told me that there isn't a thing a doctor can do about it.

Is that true? Or can a doctor help me?—R.L.

You have excellent problem-friends.

There is a great deal a doctor can do for you, either to find the cause of the acne problem or to help you live with it. The year-round drainage and congestion suggest allergy. Pollens, foods and pets are common causes that often can be cor-

Tanaka's Visit Strengthens Ties

VANCOUVER (CP) — Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka of Japan said Wednesday evening that his Canadian visit has helped link the two countries, a message he has delivered over and over again in speeches this week.

Mr. Tanaka was to relax with a game of golf today before returning to Japan.

He completed his formal period of his four-day Canadian visit with a farewell dinner hosted by the federal government and a meeting with British Columbia Premier Dave Barrett, and was to relax with a game of golf today before returning to Japan.

His visit included two meetings with Prime Minister Trudeau.

"The Pacific no longer separates Japan from Canada, he said through an interpreter. "Rather, it is a corridor which connects our two countries.

Mr. Tanaka affirmed Japan's intention "to extend its co-operation to the Lester B. Pearson College of the Pacific, an international school for high school students near Victoria which opened Wednesday.

"The fact that our two countries will work hand to hand in this worthy project is a reflection of our common aspiration to extend the scope of our partnership to the benefit of the Asian and Pacific region, and eventually to the benefit of the whole world, he said.

Minister of National Revenue Ron Basford, who presented Mr. Tanaka with a farewell message from Prime Minister Trudeau, said the support would help the college which already has three students and a teacher from Japan.

Announcements made by government officials from both countries during the visit have concentrated on cultural rather than economic issues.

Premier Barrett said at the dinner that B.C. will take the initiative in promoting an exchange of high school students between the two countries.

"I hope we can continue the trade, continue the commerce, but also expand upon the human exchange," he said.

Mr. Barrett would not comment on what issues he discussed with Mr. Tanaka during a 35-minute closed meeting before the dinner.

A spokesman for Mr. Barrett said, however, that during the meeting a government representative presented a statement to the Japanese government that B.C. favors a 10 year moratorium on whaling.

Placard-carrying demonstrators, protesting continued whaling by Japan, confronted Mr. Tanaka as he arrived at the hotel to meet Mr. Barrett and, earlier, as he unveiled a plaque at a new Asian Centre at the University of B.C.

Turbo Rated Second

OTTAWA (CP) — Industry Minister Alastair Gillespie travelled on the test run of the LRC trains Wednesday, rating the LRC as a better bet to "grab hold" of the North American passenger train market.

"The Canadian-built LRC (light, rapid, comfortable) train is still being tested but Mr. Gillespie said he has been told that Amtrak, the United States federal passenger train agency, is more interested in it than in United Aircraft's Turbo.

Officials of the consortium building the LRC said the American market for high speed passenger trains in the next five or six years amounts to between $500 million and $700 million.

Bob Raven, vice-president of United Aircraft of Canada Ltd., said in an interview that his company remains very much interested in the passenger train business and wants to build more Turbos.

Canadian National Railways operates the speedy cigar-shaped Turbos on its Montreal-Toronto and Montreal-Ottawa routes reporting much more business on them than on the conventional trains. The Turbo has been operating without a hitch since January but it was earlier plagued with a series of breakdowns.

Mr. Gillespie rode the Turbo from Ottawa to Aielleraie, Ont., Wednesday and then transferred to the LRC for the remaining portion of the trip to Montreal.

Representatives of the rival manufacturers mentioned about the same prices for seven-car trains, including locomotives. Mr. Raven said the Turbo price would be about $3 million depending on the number of orders while the LRC price was set at $3.5 million by a representative of the consortium.

Gouzenko Loses Suit

TORONTO (CP) — Soviet defector Igor Gouzenko, who sued the Toronto Star Ltd. for more than $1.3 million, alleging that the newspaper had libelled him in a 1962 editorial, lost his case Wednesday.

In 1945, Mr. Gouzenko disclosed the existence of a Soviet spy ring in Canada which he defected from the embassy in Ottawa with documents revealing a plot to obtain nuclear secrets.

He sued The Star and its president and publisher, Beland H. Hindercit, for punitive damages of $1 million as a deterrent, general damages of $388,833 and his costs, alleging that an editorial published June 7, 1962, during the federal election campaign defamed him.

Admits Shooting Wife

WHITBY, Ont. (CP) — Sandara Singh Kalirai, a 27-year-old immigrant from England, formerly of Toronto, told a Supreme Court jury Wednesday how he shot his wife four times with a .22-calibre rifle he had borrowed.

Kalirai has pleaded not guilty to non-capital murder in the death of his wife, Ravinder, 28, last Dec. 6, six days after she arrived to join him in Canada.

The woman's frozen body was found April 13 in heavily-wooded country at the junction of Highways 115 and 35, between Oshawa and Peterborough.

Kalirai, who arrived in Toronto on Oct. 28 last year from Nottingham, England, said he left his wife on a bus bound for Peterborough, intending to go hunting. They got off at the junction of the two highways and went into the woods.

He said the Star and its president and publisher, Beland H. Hindercit, for punitive damages of $1 million as a deterrent, general damages of $388,833 and his costs, alleging that an editorial published June 7, 1962, during the federal election campaign defamed him.

Aussies Devalue Dollar

SYDNEY, Australia (Reuter) — A political storm developed Wednesday over Prime Minister Gough Whitlams Labor government's announcement that the Australian dollar has been devalued by 12 per cent.

The Liberal opposition, ousted by Labor 11 months ago, attacked Whitlam and his administration in Parliament in Canberra about a leak to the news media, giving away the precise details of devaluation five hours before the prime minister made his official announcement.

Whitlam told a news conference in Canberra the basic purpose of the devaluation was to make it easier to sell Australian goods abroad.

A little more than four hours after the official announcement, New Zealand devalued its dollar by nine per cent. The announcement by Finance Minister Robert Tizard in Wellington said the move had been forced by the Australian action.

32 Nations in Distress

UNITED NATIONS (Reuter) — Thirty-two countries with a total population of almost 800 million face economic disaster because of the soaring prices of oil and other essential imports, the United Nations said Wednesday.

The list includes India, Bangladesh and Pakistan, three of the most populous states in the world, and Honduras, already ravaged by last weeks hurricane Fifi.

"Due to natural disasters, the UN report said, "most of these countries face food shortages and in some cases possible mass starvation.

It said the over-all deficit of the unfortunate countries amounted to $2.3 billion this year and the same sum for 1975, with India, Bangladesh, Pakistan and Tanzania accounting together for 45 per cent of the total.

Students Dislike Security

HAMILTON (CP) — Members of the student council at McMaster University voted unanimously Wednesday to demand the resignation of the head of campus security.

The students voted for the resignation of Ron Peterson, a former member of the RCMP who has headed McMaster security for seven years, after students charged that university police are over-zealous in enforcing laws against liquor and other minor regulations.

The 24 campus policemen have been criticized for being too large, too powerful and too political.

Two campus policemen face charges of assaulting two students after an incident involving a liquor charge in August. The students involved face charges of assaulting and obstructing police and a charge under the Liquor Control Act.

Letter Budget Hint?

Food Output Seems PM's Top Concern

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau has given farmers an advance look at what to expect in the throne speech opening Parliament Monday, renewing government pledges to ease farm credit, stabilize incomes and expand research into meat, machines and crops.

In a letter Thursday to a western premiers' conference which begins in Vancouver today, Mr. Trudeau said the government will introduce legislation to increase credit to farmers under 35 years old and to others interested in making farming a full-time job.

A new bill aimed at levelling swings in Prairie incomes through a joint government-farmer fund will also be introduced, he said.

Idea of such legislation, first introduced and withdrawn by the Trudeau government in 1971, is to protect farmers against short-term swings in the grain economy by drawing on the fund when times are tough.

But unlike earlier stabilization bills, this one is expected to give farmers the option of joining the plan for at least three years.

Mr. Trudeau said the government will also introduce legislation to stabilize incomes for farmers producing a range of other commodities, probably through a system of guaranteed prices.

This bill, like the others, was introduced during the last session of Parliament but not passed.

The prime minister's letter dwelled heavily on government plans for farm research saying [illegible] a research program into meat processing in an effort to improve the quality of meat.

The program is expected to begin by the end of the year.

As well, the government is launching a new organization to co-ordinate farm research by provinces, universities, industry and the federal government, he said.

A research program into supplies and market opportunities for farm goods was underway and the government would continue to finance research into the development of better farm machines.

The programs and policies outlined by the prime minister represent a collection of government farm initiatives began at various times during the last six years of Liberal administration.

Throne Speech

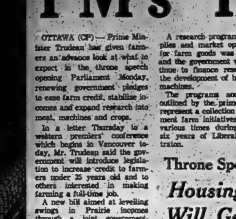
Housing, Transport Will Get Emphasis

OTTAWA (CP) — The government is expected to place a high emphasis on food prices, transportation and housing when the new session of Parliament opens Monday, but sources say basic economic approaches will not be disclosed until a new budget is presented.

Finance Minister John Turner has said he will bring down a new budget by mid-November.

In the meantime, the throne speech outlining the government's peoplehelf legislative program for the new session is expected to concentrate on such issues as transportation — a major promissory plank in the Liberals' successful election campaign—and housing and food prices, which are continuing problems for Canadian buyers.

The finishing touches still were being applied to the throne speech late Thursday, following a cabinet meeting, but sources said it likely would concentrate on the problems faced by consumers—including house buyers—and such everyday issues as transportation and communications.



More federal assistance for urban transportation systems was predicted by some sources, along with legislation to co-ordinate rail services. There also was expected to be a bill to form a new commission which would absorb the existing Canadian Transport Commission and the Canadian Radio-Television Commission.

And other reports said there would be a new approach toward co-ordinating the activities of the various marketing boards, which regulate the prices of many farm products.

Federal farm sources said they represent the "nuts and bolts" of agriculture policy expected to be disclosed during the throne speech Monday.

The thrust of government farm policy during the last two years has been to increase production without undercutting prices to farmers.

Sources said Monday's throne speech will outline plans to "continue along the lines already set forth in the past."

"Tell Jaworski I'm ready to testify!"

Jaworski Is Ready

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — The Watergate prosecutor's office is not counting on silling Richard Nixon as a witness and is ready to proceed without him when the Watergate cover-up trial opens next week.

An informed source in the prosecutor's office said the former president's health—he is in hospital in California suffering from potentially dangerous blood clots—make it increasingly unlikely he will take the stand. But the prosecution is ready to go ahead anyway.

"You've got to remember that when we brought this case, he was still president and the case was brought with the assumption that this man wouldn't be available to us as a witness," the source said. "We're still prepared to handle it this way."

Nixon was subpoenaed as a witness last week by special prosecutor Leon Jaworski. He had already been subpoenaed as a defence witness by his former domestic affairs adviser, John Ehrlichman.

Nixon Responds To Treatment

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Former president Richard Nixon is responding satisfactory to both oral and intravenous drugs used to dissolve the blood clot in his right lung, his doctor says.

Nixon's physician, Dr. John Langvas, said in a brief written statement Thursday: "Coumadin by mouth and heparin by continuous intravenous drip are being administered. This combined medication will be continued for a number of days."

Ford's Economic Target Is Fair Load for All

WASHINGTON (AP) — Opening his much-publicized summit conference on inflation, President Ford said today he will try to make sure no group is "called upon to carry an unfair share of the load" in the battle against rising prices.

"This administration will seek to ensure that burdens are distributed equally," he said in his text for the start of the two-day meeting.

Noting the presence of observers from other nations, Ford also said inflation is an international problem and the United States will "consult with friends abroad as we move to combat an international threat."

The president confirmed what many observers had expected—that he made a significant start in preparing an anti-inflation program even in advance of the summit.

"We are already narrowing some of the options to those which would appear most effective and command widest support," he said.

Ford said the summit, like a dozen preliminary conferences this month, "is wide open." He continued:

"All views and opinions are invited. This administration's commitment to viable and responsive government remains intact. I might not like everything I hear. But it is my solemn duty as president of the United States to give fair consideration to all views and to carefully weigh the possible courses of action."

Resisting a caution against expectation of "quick or easy solutions," Ford said:

"No miracle cure has emerged from the pre-conference meetings. Inflation is a problem which we must deal with patiently and persistently. . . . It will require sacrifice and common effort. It will require discipline, but we will win.

Commonwealth Puts Faith in Money Fund

OTTAWA (CP) — Commonwealth finance ministers have ended their annual meeting with high hopes for results from the International Monetary Fund (IMF) meeting next week but with no recommendations on how to deal with such problems as oil-related debts.

The communique issued Thursday at the end of the two-day meeting said the ministers "emphasized the need for a co-ordinated approach in economic matters." But it also noted that conditions for many countries have become worse despite previous international pledges of help.

Protection Provided For Kennedy Children

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secret Service and police provided increased protection to several Kennedy children earlier this month following a kidnap threat which still is under investigation by the FBI, officials report.

The Secret Service provided protection for six children of the late Senator Robert Kennedy and the son of one of his sisters, police guire gave increased protection to the McLean, Va., home of Senator Edward Kennedy (Dem. Mass.).

The investigation of the threat is reported to be focusing on the Boston area, where six of Robert Kennedy's 11 children either reside or attend school.

Police Kill Bystanders

DETROIT (AP) — Plainclothes police trying to halt three holdup men shot and killed two patrons of a crowded bar Thursday night, police said.

Killed were Harold Jaynes, 29, and Garry Stang, 33.

Police said Jaynes and Stang ignored police warnings to hit the floor and tried to flee through a back door of Keener's Bar.

They got caught in the crossfire between police and the three holdup men and were shot accidentally, police said.

Truckers' Strike Is Averted

TORONTO (CP) — Truck drivers and trucking company officials reached a tentative contract agreement, possibly averting a province-wide strike, federal mediator Bruce McRae said Thursday.

Details of the agreement will not be released until after ratification votes this weekend.

The current contract covering 18,000 Teamster union members in 27 southern Ontario firms expires Monday.

Union negotiators, representing five locals of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, started bargaining seven weeks ago for higher wages, cost-of-living compensation and increased job protection.

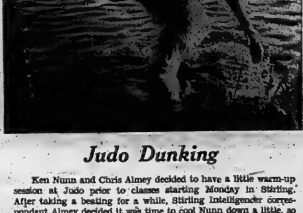
Ontario Hydro Rate Increase Announced

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario Hydro announced electricity rates Thursday, increasing the average wholesale price to municipal utility systems by 12.4 per cent effective Jan. 1.

Rates to customers of Hydro's rural system will be increased by 11.4 per cent while large industrial customers served directly by Hydro will pay an average 15 per cent more.

However, a Hydro spokesman said most utilities should be able to keep increases in retail rates below double figures.



The new rates, outlined by Hydro chairman George Gathercole in a letter to Energy Minister Darcy McKeough, generally follow recommendations made by the Ontario Energy Board following public hearings this year.

Earlier proposals involved increases of 11.6 per cent for rural customers, an average 15.5 per cent for municipal utilities and about 16 per cent for industrial customers.

However, the energy board proposed a rate of 12.7 per cent for municipalities and 14.5 per cent for industries served directly by the utility.

Bees Become Big Business

By CHRISTOPHER ALMEY
Staff Correspondent

STIRLING — There are no bees in Stirling but in Canada and until recently Italian bees were used by apiarists. Now a Turkish bee is going to be doing the job.

Since live bees cannot be brought into North America, Dr. Maurice Smith of University of Guelph travelled to Turkey and brought back a queen breed and drones made a money belt around his waist to keep them warm.

They were placed in an incubator to hatch and later Arthur Raymond Mallory of Stirling was one of five or six people to test the resultant hybrid after they were crossed with the Italian bees.

Mr. Mallory says the Turkish bees are the foundation of the best strain of bees in Canada.

The stock was turned over to Wayne Apiaries in Tweed and now the hybrids are being shipped all over Ontario to western Canada the colonie's killed in the fall must be replaced in the spring.

The problem with the Italian queen bee is that she will keep laying eggs, so that more food is required to keep the colony throughout the winter.

The Turkish strain of queen comes egg production so there is a smaller colony to maintain in winter, but in the spring she becomes as prolific as her Italian counterpart.

Mr. Mallory does not destroy his colonies in winter, but instead buys 500 or 600 queens a year and replaces aging queens. This is a swarm preventing measure. If he did not do so, a virgin queen would fly away with a swarm depleting most of the hives.

Mr. Mallory has other concerns as well. Beans, quite close to Stirling, weather and the alfalfa weevil.

Alfalfa is a major crop in this area, and if there is an infestation of the weevil while white Dutch clover and wild sweet clover blossoms are in short supply and it happened this year, honey production can go down.

Bears have entered beeyards three miles east of Stirling and smashed everything in sight, Mr. Mallory said he plans to put up an electric fence which moves the bear on to another yard. Recently A.R.D.A. planted over 2,000 locust trees north of Napanee as another source of pollen. The trees came from Roumania, Hungary and Yugoslavia. Mr. Mallory works closely with A.R.D.A. and as soon as land can be purchased, trees will be planted in the Stirling area.

Training Fees Unchanged For Student Drivers

Driver training fees for secondary school students in Hastings County will remain at $30 a pupil, despite a recommendation to raise them to $40 in January.

The recommendation came from administrators and school principals, following a study that showed the cost per pupil of driver education is $48.

Trustees turned down the increase after several said the driver education is one of the most important courses in high schools.

Former chairman Don Williams, owner of Stirling Motors, led the opposition. He said driver education should be a compulsory course because teenagers are the ones who cause most of the accidents.

James Clarke said the students who most need the course "are the very ones the fee will turn away."

Mrs. Morian Graham objected to the rate changing in mid-year, as that students taking the course in the spring would have to pay more than those already enrolled this fall. Students who take the course before writing the test for their motor vehicle operator's permit are given an insurance premium reduction that soon pays out the cost of the course.

Superintendent Frank Tate said about 400 16-year-olds a year take driver training.

The number is limited, he said, by the difficulty in getting enough competent instructors. All instructors are high school teachers who take special training to qualify them to instruct driving. Part of the course is given in classroom lectures and demonstrations and part in observation in cars and actual driving experience. The course is given after regular school hours in cars provided by county car dealers.

At $30, Hastings County has one of the lowest driver education fees in Ontario. Only Waterloo, at $20 and Northumberland-Newcastle at $15, are lower.

Provincial and Lennox and Addington (which offers the course only at Napanee) charge $60. York county hires a commercial driving school to teach its students and charges $60.

Sugar, Coffee Lead List Of Rising Food Items

By BRIAN McWATTERS
The Canadian Press

Fears of world sugar shortages and the uncertainty of exports from International Coffee Organization (ICO) producers were reflected in food prices for September.

A survey of 17 basic food items by The Canadian Press showed sugar prices up in six of 13 cities considered and coffee price increases in 10 cities.

Earlier this month, sugar prices increased to a record $800 a ton on the London market and dealers predicted shortages likely would continue well into 1975.

That has prompted the soft drink industry to announce price increases ranging as high as 20 cents. The prices of other sugar-related products, notably bread, preservatives and canned fruit, also rose in many centres.

The 17 items in the market basket are priced in the same supermarkets on the last Thursday of each month.

The items' basket one pound of sirloin-tip roast beef, 4.5-kg wieners, centre-cut loin of pork, 1.5-kg bologna, 500-gram chuck steak, frozen cod fillets, big-grade butter, tomatoes, frozen green peas, drip coffee and apples.

Also included are one dozen medium eggs, one quart of whole milk, a 36-ounce loaf of sliced white bread, 10 pounds of first-grade potatoes, five pounds of white granulated sugar and a 24-ounce can of baked beans.

Some findings, compared with last month's and the total price in September, 1973:

Relief Supplies on Way To Stricken Honduras

By AL ZARAS
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — The first Canadian armed forces Hercules aircraft lifted off here today at 8 a.m. loaded with food, clothing and medical supplies for victims of Hurricane Fifi in Honduras.

CFB Trenton ground crews loaded the 426 Hercules aircraft after midnight Thursday with 17 tons of emergency relief supplies.

The aircraft was expected to arrive in Honduras this afternoon.

Defence Department officials said they do now know nature or origin of the aid. The spokesman said the armed forces were not overly involved in gathering the material.

Part of the relief supplies came from Knights of Columbus chapters both here, and in Belleville. An overnight clothing drive by the Trenton service club produced just over two tons, delivered to the base Thursday afternoon.

Previous reports indicate $61,000 worth of medical supplies from Baxter Laboratories in Halton arrived at CFB Trenton in seven trucks Wednesday. Insulin and other necessary medical aids were obtained through the Help Honduras Foundation of Cobourg.

The defence department spokesman said whether there will be any further relief shipments will depend on government agencies: "At this time, there are no plans for further relief operations."

Marlbank Names Postmaster

MARLBANK — On October 1, this hamlet will have a new postmaster. He is J. Harold Tuepah, who takes over from James Wallis who retired earlier this summer after running the post office since April, 1957.

Mr. Tuepah will be assisted in his duties by his wife, Helen. They will operate out of their own dwelling, a former barber shop. Mr. Tuepah's most recent job was a barber but he drove a school bus for a number of years.

There will be two daily mail rural routes running out of the post office; one route going to the Lime Lake area and the other to the Marlbank-Stoco Road area.

One of the two routes will have 32 mail boxes, the other 44. The post office will operate on a salary basis rather than on the commission basis it was formerly run on.

Industry Opens Doors

PICTON — An open house will be held at ARC Industries Oct. 1 from 2 to 4 p.m. at its new location in Loch Sloy Industrial Park.

The open house is sponsored by the Prince Edward Association for the Mentally Retarded. Employees and volunteers will be present to demonstrate workshop projects and answer questions.

ARC Industries moved from Bridge St. to its new location in mid-August.

Repairing Roof, Man Electrocuted

BATAWA — A man repairing the roof of a house was electrocuted Thursday when the aluminium ladder he and a co-worker were moving fell backwards touching a hydro wire.

Samuel Ostrom, 51, of 54 Kidd Ave., in Trenton died in Trenton Memorial Hospital an hour after the 12.45 p.m. accident.

His co-worker, Ronald Van Luven, 36, of RR 5 in Trenton is reported in good condition in hospital after being admitted with second degree burns to both feet and shock.

Provincial police in Belleville said the accident occurred when the two, who work for a private building contracting firm in Trenton, were attempting to move an aluminium extension ladder against the side of a house on Fresser Dr. in Batawa.

Investigation OPP officer Constable Doug Rosker said the ladder both men were holding somehow became twisted and fell back touching the hydro wire.

New Industry Ahead of Schedule

Construction of Poll-Twine Corp. Ltd. is well ahead of schedule and should be in peak operation employing 33 area residents by late January, a company spokesman said Thursday.

Originally, contractors expected the 32,000-square-foot building to be completed only by the beginning of January.

Brian Holmes of Cornerstone Engineering, said the project was ahead of schedule with early delivery of structural steel. The project includes 30,000 square feet of offices. Total cost of the building is estimated at $400,000.

Gerry Toulouse, general manager for Poll-Twine — a wholly-owned subsidiary of Imperial Oil Ltd., said this early completion is a great boon to his firm ... allowing us to get going that much sooner."

Mr. Toulouse said the months of December and January will be used to install equipment and acquaint new staff with its operation in the production of synthetic twine.

"We should be operating at maximum capacity by the end of January," said Mr. Toulouse.

Packed to the Rafters

Private Don Harrison (in overalls) and CFB Trenton loadmaster, Master Cpl. Gill Nelson worked through the night jamming Honduran emergency relief bundles into every available nook and cranny of a Hercules freight aircraft. The plane left for Honduras in Central America this morning.

Cost-sharing Delays Senior Citizens' Home

By MARG HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Ontario Housing Corp. is prepared to construct 40 senior citizen units in Picton for Prince Edward residents but town and county councils' fear of "emasculating" cost sharing of operating cost deficits.

A brief history of the project was outlined to county council Thursday night by Les Jones, OHC development officer. He said county council, in 1971, requested a senior citizen survey and later that year recommended construction of 25 senior citizen units.

It was decided the survey should be repeated in 1973 and this time 40 units were recommended. Picton was selected as the location.

As the surveys were conducted and meetings held between local officials and OHC representatives it was learned the OHC is not empowered to enter agreements with county governments.

The municipality contributing the 25 per cent deficit for the units must be the one to receive a grant in lieu of taxes under the Housing Development Act.

Picton mayor James Bird, attending Thursday's county council session, said it now appears a project initiated by the county would not be run for by the county.

He suggested a lack of communication "by all parties concerned" and said it had been intimated that county council could no longer accept the financial burden of the units through payment of a share of the operating deficits.

Mayor Bird added he is sure all townships in Prince Edward County recognize the need for the housing units, regardless of where they are situated.

He said the town of Picton has passed bylaws authorizing construction of the units proposed at the site of the corner of Mary and Lae streets has been selected and approved by OHC.

Operating cost of the units would be 7.5 per cent of the total deficit. The deficit is paid by the federal and provincial governments with the local municipality contributing 7.5 per cent. Picton would receive the grant offered in lieu of taxes and in turn would provide police and fire protection and sewerage and water services.

"Many of our older citizens are on fixed incomes and the need for this type of housing is here now," said the mayor.

He said he and members of town council's planning and development committee were to re-inforce the intentions of the OHC.

"If we want the units to proceed, if the county will back it up," said mayor Bird.

Chairman of the planning and development committee, Joe Picton, Jack Evans, told county council he is "surprised" to discover the official records of OHC show a resolution from Picton is under take the project.

"To my understanding, it has always been a county project and the town was involved only because it is the site."

Bloomfield reeve Allan Anderson, chairman of county council's social services committee, said the county wants to be part of the project too.

At a meeting of the social services committee with town council's planning committee it was agreed there is equal opportunity for Picton and Prince Edward residents to occupy the new units.

It was also suggested that the county should pay 50 per cent of 7.5 per cent deficit, with Picton paying the other half.

"I can't really see that much of a problem if 7.5 per cent is at stake and the county is to pay 50 per cent of it," commented reeve MacDonald.

Mayor Bird said that he felt that if county council approves payment of 50 per cent of the deficit, town council would match it.

Discussion of a formal agreement between Picton and Prince Edward was postponed as councillors agreed it should before next month.

Town councillor, Jack Evans, said after the meeting the deficit under discussion would total about $2,000. Picton's share of this amount would be $2,500 if the remaining 50 per cent is met by the county.

Band Coming

Coming to Belleville soon is a musical treat in the shape of the band of Air Transport Command. The band is to perform at Centennial Secondary School on Sunday, Oct. 27. Proceeds are to be aid of crippled children. The Rotary Club, which shares in promoting the needs of crippled children, is sponsoring the concert.

Board Approves Levy For Use of Schools

BLOOMFIELD—After much debate, Prince Edward school trustees have decided to charge some public groups for use of school facilities.

Extra-curricular use of the schools creates added expenditures, including time-and-a-half and double-time paid to janitorial staff for overtime following public use of the schools by organizations.

Boards are not given provincial assistance to foot the bills for public-incurred costs such as damage to a playing field.

Trustees agreed that certain groups should be charged for rental of equipment, classrooms or other facilities and overtime payments for janitorial staff.

The fee would be one per cent of the value of the equipment, a charge of $15 per night for the classroom and fees to be determined for a gymnasium or similar large facility.

Fees charged by the board in the past have been "few and far between" says business administrator E. A. Shortt.

The Prince Edward Board of Education has only about $2,000 in its 1974 budget to meet expenses incurred by after hours use of schools.

Costs for non-payment groups such as boy scouts or girl guides must be paid from this fund. Weekend use of the schools by these organizations is discouraged as the board would be forced to pay double time to janitors.

Trustees expect controversy in lines are drawn between groups that pay and groups that do not.

"You can expect to see a few irate people before the board," said Mr. E. A. Shortt.

It also was decided the schools would remain closed during the Spring and Christmas breaks.

Tomatoes Escape Frost

Terrorville farmer Howard Anderson examines the tomatoes in his 10-acre patch following a heavy frost this week. The Prince Edward County fruit grower says although some sections of the vines were hit, most of the fruit was unhurt and will ripen. He has used Ethrel, a chemical growth regulator, to hasten his harvest.

Bata-Union Talks Stall, Report Awaited

BATAWA — No progress was made Thursday at union-company talks aimed at averting a strike by 880 Bata and Shoe Workers Union members at Bata Industries Ltd. footwear division, said Local 713 president Thomas Middleton.

The Belleville meeting, facilitated by the conciliator, was strictly an informational session, he said. Bata wanted to know the issues and union members rejected the latest company offer Tuesday by a 64 per cent vote.

"We told them where we thought they should make the moves," said Mr. Middleton, but refused to reveal what areas of the proposed two-year contract were discussed.

"It's now in their ball field," said the president, member of the joint negotiating team for Locals 713, 740 and 964 of Batawa, Picton and Campbellford.

"They've pretty well told us that they were going to sit back and wait," he said.

The union expects a conciliation report shortly. Any subsequent strike action will come in late October.

Secretary Recovers

John (Mac) McArthur, former secretary of Duke of Edinburgh Unit 201, ANAF, and now Dominion secretary-treasurer, who was seriously injured in a car accident in Ottawa last month, is on the road to recovery. He was in Belleville over the weekend and expects to discard his crutches shortly.

More on Eggs

With all the talk about eggs being a source of cholesterol and therefore a potential factor in heart trouble, it is clear from fuller information that eggs are far from being the sole culprit, and in fact remain an important part of a healthy diet.

A release from the Canadian Egg marketing Agency points out that cholesterol is found in all animal tissues, with high concentration in the liver, adrenal gland, brain and nerves.

The entire diet is a potential source of cholesterol and the word from the Marketing Agency is that the relationship between heart disease and cholesterol is one of association rather than cause and effect.

Thus all attempts at altering cholesterol levels requires modification of the overall diet and opinion varies as to which modification is most effective.

The Marketing Agency release expresses the opinion that until the role of cholesterol, dietary fat, dietary carbohydrate, and non-dietary factors implicated in heart disease have been clarified, "it would seem sensible for healthy individuals to consume a well-balanced diet of foods from all groups, including eggs, to provide for adequate nutrition."

A Lively Evening

The past remembered and the present enshrined in song and dance, with a little humor and gymnastics in support.

These were the ingredients of a commemorative evening and talent night at Ameliasburg township hall recently and they are a reminder that there is more to life than violence and skin flicks, cars and an evening in the beer parlor.

Living history too, a spanning of generations, merged in Ameliasburg with the presence of Roer Nar veteran John Stevens who in his 94th harvest of talent that included the likes of young Geoffrey Smith of Wellington, a six-year-old vocalist who has been singing since he was about 2½, and 8-year-old Belleville guitarist Virginia Storey.

If these and the other young performers are typical of the talent that can be mustered for an evening entertainment in the rural parts then let's have more of it.

It would be no harm either if there were to be more talent nights right here in the city — opportunities for the young people show off their skills, and quite apart from such well-established initiatives as the Science Fair and Music Festival.

Meanwhile rural talent is alive and well, symbolic of the basic strength of our society, and transcending the somewhat artificial atmosphere of alarm that so often punctuates the affairs of our day.

Old Buildings

Rather in the manner of the Little Red Schoolhouse, there is many an old railroad station or ticket office that has fallen into disuse.

One that comes to mind readily is the old CP building on South Church Street. Pressed into service again as a bus terminal, for a short period a couple of years ago, it now lies abandoned.

The latter years Britain who told us he had been taking a walk around Foster ward, wondered if it might not find some new use.

Certainly there are possibilities enough.

And let's forget there are supposed to be Centennial preparations afoot. Maybe some sort of facelift or fresh endeavor might be contemplated for it in that connection.

It is the history of course and its future naturally is in their hands. Yet if it could be acquired say by the city, then it might find a new lease of life.

Tyendinaga Issue

Things are happening so swiftly in the confrontation about industry on the Tyendinaga Reserve that the situation threatens to become something worse.

However, to repeat, this is an issue that should be resolved by cool dialogue, involving the Mohawk band council, the opposing factions, and government officials.

It should not be permitted, to slide into any semblance of violence or anarchy.

As former Chief Hill noted at one point during the controversy: "We are not that kind of people."

The latest U.S. warning to the Arab oil-producers' cartel may well mark the start of a major economic confrontation.

Both President Gerald Ford and Secretary of State Henry Kissinger used tough talk, with only a thin diplomatic veil, to the Arabs that their price-gouging threatened "the breakdown of world order and peace."

Although no single factor can ever be blamed solely for worldwide inflation, the oil cartel's quadrupling of its prices last year has been particularly harm to consumer economies.

The industrialized nations have been fighting back as well as far they have not suffered nearly as much as the sellers. Their economies have felt those actions with neither the power nor the strength in unity to go on indefinitely paying inflated prices for their essential energy imports.

One by one, these poorer nations in need have had to slam the door on imports from other countries, while simultaneously trying to escalate the prices of their own manufactured exports.

That very, as Monsieur Ford and Kissinger should—and as the history of the 1930s and 1930s shows—is global depression.

President Ford seemed clearly to be warning the Arabs that if we will strong in stand by, wringing his hands and watching the West sink in an economic/Communist world's economic.

The secretary of the Arabs' cartel responded in the distinctly that the Mid-East producers had no intention of reducing prices or returning to a free-market system governed by the law of supply and demand.

In that kind of confrontation, the Arabs' control of almost limitless supplies of oil is a powerful weapon.

But the rest of the world is not powerless.

Three of the nations of the West—Canada, the United States and Australia—have a monopoly on food grains comparable to the Arab monopoly on oil.

Canada might not agree to concerted price action in balance the scales—our external affairs minister would "study" it to death first—but even a modest U.S. price quadrupling could be an effective response to the Arabs' tactics.

Canada might not agree to concerted price action in balance the scales—our external affairs minister would "study" it to death first—but even a modest U.S. price quadrupling could be an effective response to the Arabs' tactics.

And Mr. Rhodes wants to see stricter enforcement.

Among the many facets of the impaired driving question there is one in particular to be commented on.

One is the matter of balance. Driving and driving obviously is a serious problem and this is not to deny the fact.

But equally serious is that we approach it with balance, and that is not to deny the fact of emotions that can be aroused.

The Globe and Mail, for example, has proposed editorially that in a particular case conviction of impaired should be followed by five years.

It does not say that longer penalties may be needed today, the present ones don't appear to be working.

But surely a five-year penalty is too extreme, in view of the hardship, loss of means of work or income, that a licence suspension can create.

Then there is the question of undue emphasis being placed on drinking and driving.

Then the report of the government committee found that in eleven per cent of the fatal accidents in the province were involved in drinking drivers.

So what about the other 81 per cent?

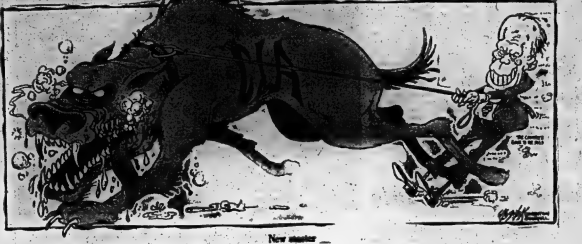
What are we doing about them?

Impaired driving is an easy habit to think that it stands out.

It is a condition inside rapid driving habits. And what's a driver? It means one of life's great social problems.

The whole gamut of the reckless driver, the lane switcher, the road-hog?

We will have to watch it that we don't concentrate so much on driving and drinking that we neglect proper enforcement against the other 81 per cent of dangerous driving practices.



Vandalism Continues To Plague Society

The Trentonian

Vandalism notably in schools and public buildings, is a continuing problem. Some of the vandalism committed on public property costs lives. The contractor destruction of life preservers around the water is a case in point. The one on Dam One has been destroyed so many times count has been lost. Recently a man died who might have been saved had the vandals not thrown away the life preservers.

The difficulty is to catch the vandals. After that, the problem is what to do about it.

Suitable punishment is difficult to assess. Restitution is one sure way to hit the vandals. Make them pay for all damage, no matter how long it takes them. A few times of such punishment and the senseless business might be curbed.

There Is 'Some Fat' Says Turner

Government Promises To Trim Some Of Its Spending

By RICHARD JACKSON
OTTAWA — Be of good cheer. Not all the economic news coming out of Ottawa, home of the big-spending feds, is bad.

Some of it sounds not half bad, if you can bring yourself to believe it.

But that is not going to be easy for the new is that the government, which has been breaking all taxing and spending records, now—in short—is trying a little economy, and that's a switch.

The news comes from both Prime Minister Trudeau and Finance Minister Turner.

Mr. Trudeau, would you believe, promises to try and keep federal spending within the limits of national revenue.

And the cabinet, he says now, won't be going in for any big new fancy programs until the Treasury can "afford" it.

Mr. Turner goes a bit further. He talks the style of holding the spending belt, but even pulling it in a few notches.

"We know there is some fat there," he confesses of federal expenditures already running this year in excess of a record $3 billion.

"We know some programs are ripe old and irrelevant.

"We know that some programs are kept going more to serve the career ambitions of civil servants than to serve the taxpayers."

He does not come right out and say which programs the taxpayers are financing for the sole promotion and profit of the civil service.

Nor does he give the specific hard pledge to chop them.

He merely implies it.

Encouraging for the over-burdened taxpayer is hear this.

Except that these vague promises — oh sure they've been that before — come from the people who gave you the handy dandy postal service, the convenient two-week-to-the-week Unemployment Insurance Commission, the "incredible return egg stink, the great government-to-government computer-to-computer information Canada, double digit inflation and other goodies.

And except that these offhandedly airy half-promises of prudence come from the same people who in the six years since taking power have more than doubled federal spending.

For when Pierre Trudeau took over in the yesteryear of only 1968, the federal budget was just an $18 billion.

Currently, it is approaching $24 billion.

But give John Turner this.

When he talks about trimming the "fat" in federal programs and some of them have gone in obsolescence for the benefit of civil servants instead of taxpayers — he is getting close to the bone.

The public service, unlike private enterprise, does not have to compete for, time a profit to remain in operation.

If the public service, which is to government a operational and administrative apparatus, runs at a deficit — which it routinely does — it taps the taxpayer for the green to turn red ink black.

But if there is no competition in the public service, there is rivalry between cabinet ministers, their deputies and their departmental bureaucrats for a bigger piece of the spending action.

Here in the surreal economic world of the big spenders, a deputy minister whose budget is cut or even held the line is apt to be laughed at as a departmental dunderhead.

The sharpie is the slicker who can raise his department's spending by a bigger percentage than the smoothie in the agency up the street.

Former Prime Minister Pearson, once a deputy of External Affairs, told it like it is.

He went on the public record with the observation that the name of the public service budget game is game ?

And that is where John Turner must know that fat is in the pudding.

Economy Of Israel Is Facing Increasing Pressures

By KEVIN DOYLE
The Canadian Press

Nearly a year after the end of the Middle East war and with international opinion fearful of a further outbreak of hostilities, Israel is facing one of the gravest economic perils in its troubled history.

At the heart of the problem is the Israeli people's deeply-held conviction that another war, at least on the Syrian front if not with Egypt, is inevitable.

This means that out of an already-strained government budget for 1974, a staggering 41 per cent of the total has to be spent on defence.

And this comes at a time when the annual inflation rate is running at an almost-unimaginable level of 40 per cent annually. Still bigger payments deficit for the year is expected to reach $3.5 billion and reserves are running dangerously low.

In the past, Israel's solution to the inflation problem has been indexing or linking wages, pensions, loans and savings to increases in the costs of living. In earlier years, when the inflation pressures were low, the system worked well and, in fact, helped the people nicely learned to live with rising prices.

But the difficulties now have become excruciating. Indexing, which is the skyrocketing rate of price increases recently, now is only applied to part of wages and then only six months in arrears.

Many people now find they have to hold down two jobs or three to make ends meet while statistics show most wives also work.

Trade union leaders, undoubtedly the Israeli government to shore up the economy somehow before any new fighting breaks out, have enjoyed remarkable success in holding down wages but observers now say rank-and-file dissatisfaction is growing at such a rate that executive is in danger of losing control.

This year, official reserves are expected to fall by roughly $800 million, leaving about $500 million in the country to pay for, say, eight weeks imports.

New measures are being introduced to cut public expenditure and raise taxes and there is some evidence that the economy is cooling slightly but not nearly enough to satisfy economists.

The Israeli economy is vitally dependent on capital imports and although funds from official sources are running at about $3 billion, roughly the same level as last year, contributions are falling off.

The striking rift of Wall Street shares prices, for example, means that American Jewry is less able than before to provide an inflow of funds, traditionally in times of crisis or fears.

The Wall Street decline has meant a shortfall on Israel bond Sales and transfers from Jewish organizations of nearly $1.5 billion so far this year.

The Israeli planner is now become essentially dependent on the generosity of world Jewry, economists believe, and the size of their response to the present troubles will be the main determinant of how well the country weathers the present crisis.

Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin recently put the situation in a nutshell when he said: "We have one friend and it is America. In the hours of crisis we have one ally and it is the Jews.

Watergate Cover-up Trial a Tortuous Affair

By BRUCE LEVETT
WASHINGTON (CP) — The Watergate cover-up trial, scheduled to begin here Oct. 1, is showing signs of developing into a long, drawn-out affair.

And contributing to the situation, other considerations aside, is the number—and complexity—of juror-challenge questions being suggested to Judge John Sirica.

Sirica, preparing to screen prospective jurors for bias, took the normal step of asking defence and prosecution for questions he might put to the panel.

He got 230 suggestions from Sen. John Ehrlichman alone. Ehrlichman, former presidential adviser, is one of six defendants.

And now, legal observers are saying, many of the questions themselves may have to be screened because they are difficult to follow and come close to seeking interpretation of evidence before the trial begins.

Some of the questions have a shaky foundation, such as this one from the Special Prosecutor's office, and likely will be rejected:

"Do you have any reason to be prejudiced for or against any of the defendants or the government because the defendants were worked for a president of the United States or for the committee to Re-Elect the President, the political organization in charge of the re-election campaign of Richard M. Nixon to be president in 1972, Daphelgemeier, any legal experts, but at least it can be answered with a simple "yes" or "no."

Some others, however—and

Impaired Driving Penalties At Issue

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau
Thomson News Service

TORONTO — Impaired driving has been getting a burst of attention recently, most of it probably caused by the release of a report by a civil service study group on drinking and driving problems in the province.

In any event both Attorney-General Robert Welch and Transportation Minister John Rhodes have issued statements on the question, and both are in favor of tougher measures.

Mr. Welch is meeting with his own advisers on the question of better penalties (one suggestion is that fines should be tied to income).

Macdonald Reports

No Oil Shortage Seen This Winter

OTTAWA (CP) — Motorists and homeowners can expect a year ago at reports of a threatened winter fuel shortage have little to fear this winter, say energy officials.

The supply outlook for the heating season is generally bright, they say, and no problems are foreseen in the Atlantic provinces currently torn off the oil spigot, as they did last year.

"Compared with a year ago, we are in a good position," said Energy Minister Donald Macdonald in an interview. "A number of roads shows high production, a good supply situation."

These statements are echoed by others in the energy field, both in private industry and government.

Imperial Oil Ltd., the country's largest oil company, says it has enough oil to keep going and it foresees no difficulties in meeting winter fuel demands.

The supply contrasts sharply with a year ago September, when consumers heard government pleas to cut driving and reduce home heat.

The major reason for the about-face is the improved international scene, experts say. However, they still are keeping a wary eye on the volatile Middle East.

It was following outbreak of war between Israel and the Arabs last fall that production was cut in Arab oil fields and shipments were embargoed to some countries.

That put oil in short supply on the world market, with most crude for Eastern Canada is purchased. For a while, federal officials feared the eastern market might be in such much as 300,000 or 400,000 barrels imported daily.

Then a combination of a mild winter, conservation of energy and shipment of some crude to Montreal, Eastern Canada prevented shortages.

This summer, who last year frantically bought all Canadian oil available, have not been pressing as much as is available this fall under National Energy Board licenses.

At times, shipments to the Montreal refining area have been "falling 100,000 barrels a day below authorized export levels of 900,000 barrels a day," said a government. Authorized export for October is 978,575 barrels a day.

And eastern refineries are not taking as much domestic crude as they can be heard has set aside for them, the board says. In October, 47,725 barrels of crude is being earmarked for shipment east through the St. Lawrence seaway and the Panama canal, less than half the 105,700 barrels set aside during September.

With an oversupply on the world market and prices softening, both U.S. and eastern Canadian refineries find it more economical to buy foreign oil.

The only dark spot in the supply outlook for the winter is a shortage of natural gas from northeast British Columbia fields, where technical problems have led to reduced production.

Coal Output Climbs

After several static years coal production in Canada rose dramatically in 1970 and has continued to increase since. Production in the 1960s averaged about 18.3 million short tons a year. In 1970 it rose to 16.6 million short tons and 1971 production is estimated at 23 million short tons. (CP Newsmap)

PCs Back Jerome As Speaker

OTTAWA (CP) — Progressive Conservative MPs say they will support their leader at Prime Minister Trudeau's request to support his nomination of Solicitor Lloyd Jerome, QC, as Commons Speaker.

Conservative House Leader Gerald Baldwin (Peace River) said his party has ruled out any challenge to the Jerome nomination at the opening of the new session of Parliament Monday.

Mr. Baldwin said Prime Minister Trudeau "personally and specifically" is consulting Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield before Parliament early in August that he would propose Mr. Jerome for the $36,000-a-year post.

"We have a strong complaint against the prime minister, but we are not going to take out our resentment on Jerome," Mr. Baldwin said. "He will be judged by his actions as Speaker."

Mr. Baldwin said the Conservatives were upset when Prime Minister Trudeau did not consult them on the nomination because they wanted to discuss a number of related issues.

These included long-term issues for the Speaker; possible increases in his pension benefits and purchase of an official Speaker's residence in Ottawa. The Speaker now has use of Kingsmere, a government-owned summer residence north of Ottawa.

Traditionally, the prime minister and the Opposition leader agree privately on the choice of a prospective Speaker before his name is announced. But last month the announcement of Mr. Jerome's nomination was issued by the prime minister's office within hours of Mr. Jerome telling Mr. Trudeau he would stand for the job.

When Mr. Stanfield protested, officials in Mr. Trudeau's office said an offer to consult was made but not accepted by the Opposition leader.

Mr. Stanfield said he never received such an offer.

One official blamed the incident on bungling in the prime minister's office. He said staff there issued the statement without checking to see if there had been consultation.

Mr. Jerome, a six-year Commons veteran, has lost out of the wrangling, deliberately avoiding Liberal caucus meetings, discussions with party leaders or even casual contacts with groups from any party.

Mr. Baldwin said Mr. Stanfield will likely break with the practice of recent years on Monday and not second Mr. Trudeau's nomination of Mr. Jerome. Instead that job will likely fall to a member of the Trudeau cabinet.

Parliamentary Pay Likely to Increase

OTTAWA (CP) — Salaries and allowances paid to members of Parliament's ten busiest committees will get at least $10 million a year and there are indications the bill might go even higher.

One government source has said that if a salary increase isn't approved in the first year of the new Parliament, which begins Monday, it is almost a certainty in the second.

The last increase, in 1971, raised the annual pay for MPs by 50 per cent to $18,000 from $13,000. The inflation rate since then has been 29 per cent.

A basic $18,000 a year might seem a large sum to someone who gets paid $130 for a 40-hour work week. But members of the 264 MPs work longer hours.

The parliamentary official estimates the average MP works about 60 works a week "and you can add an automatic 20 hours to that for ministers," said one parliamentary source. Most organized workers now work between 32 and 38 hours weekly with provisions for overtime.

Members of Parliament get no overtime for extra hours spent in their Hill offices, in the House during the days and three evenings a week, travelling, working inside and constituency and Saturdays generally spent on work in their ridings.

In addition to basic salary, MPs and senators get tax-free expenses in quarterly cheques. Senators get $4,000 a year while most MPs get $8,000. The exceptions in the latter case are the Yukon and Northwest Territories representatives who get $9,650 to help cover their higher costs of living in the north.

Ministers, as well as getting the basic $8,000, have expense allowances which there is no formal ceiling.

All MPs are entitled to unlimited free rail travel anywhere in the country and 53 round-trip air passes. Six of these may be used by a wife travelling between Ottawa and her husband's riding and 10 others may be used by the member for his secretary in Canada and not necessarily on government business.

There are other fringe benefits: Free parking on Parliament Hill, mailing privileges, printing and copying services and office space here and in the riding. The government pays the rent for the riding office and MPs may spend up to $6,000 a year for a secretary to run the office.

The two Senate and Commons barbershops where haircuts cost $1, the parliamentary restaurant where a decent three-course meal costs as little as $3, attending wine functions and a private dining room and health club.

Quick Decision by Ford Is Expected On Economic Bills He Wants Passed

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford is convening a much-heralded summit conference on inflation, with aides reporting he already is considering economic legislation to ask Congress to enact this year.

Even in advance of the two-day meeting starting today, White House consultant Paul McCracken was busy at work on drafting for Ford a report on economic summitry that proposed a dozen preliminary conferences since sept. 5.

Treasury Secretary William Simon, hinting that key elements of an anti-inflation program were on White House drawing boards, said last week the president will announce his complete economic policy shortly after the last summit session Saturday.

White House press secretary Ronald Nessen added Thursday whether Ford will seek prompt congressional action on economic legislation, said: "There are some things Congress is looking at that he would like Congress to act on this year."

Nessen revealed Ford will personally attend "virtually the entire conference," delivering opening and closing addresses at the meeting.

On the eve of the conference, the government said its economic index, designed to predict the future course of the economy, registered the sharpest monthly drop of the year in August.

Alan Greenspan, chief of the Council of Economic Advisers, was quoted by Nessen as believing inflation cannot be controlled in less than 18 months or two years.

But the press secretary reported that William Seidman, executive director of the summit, is convinced even the preliminary sessions served to "calm the fears that we are going to have a depression."

More than 700 participants were attending the summit. They include government officials, academicians, economists, labor leaders, bankers, businessmen and spokesmen for the poor.

On the first-day conference agenda were banking and currency, labor, food and agriculture, housing and construction, natural resources and recreation, health, education and welfare, and trade protection.

Roy Ash, director of the Office of Management and Budget, said pre-summit meetings produced "a strong consensus on the need for stringent but realistic fiscal restraint in the immediate future."

Saying it is essential that actions be taken this year to curb the growth in federal spending, Ash said:

"Reducing federal spending by $5 billion to a $1-trillion economy may appear to some to be a futile gesture. It is only by slower growth in federal spending reduces the government's grip on private markets and makes those funds available for use elsewhere in the economy. Equally important, reducing the momentum of federal spending now will help keep the budget and the inflationary pressures it can generate from becoming runaway demands upon the financial problems in later years."

Start The Day with a Kiss!

By DORIS CLARK

"Have I told you today that I love you?" He whispers it in her ear as she spreads the breakfast toast.

She turns wordlessly, but with a glowing smile that says more than words. And she kisses him.

Her day is made, right there. So is he.

So much better than sleepy eyes, cross-patch complaints, and a hasty, grumbled departure. What kind of a day would that shape up for either Jack or Jill?

Dear Doris: When is the well-to-be-said time we're supposed to read it? Who makes all the arrangements for funerals?

Trying to Plan

Dear Trying: This is hard to read, after the funeral, while relatives are still gathered together.

If the estate is a large one, a family lawyer may be the one who reads it aloud to all of them. But more often a member of a family (the executor if you know who it is) reads or has copies of the document.

Arranging for the funeral usually falls to the lot of a family member, who is often in a state of shock over the loss of the loved one. So it is seldom indeed to plan a head.

There are memorial societies in a number of our cities who can give you definite directions about how to make arrangements right now and save a good deal of anguish at the time of death.

(If any one would like specific guidance as to the address of a memorial society near where you live, write to me and I will be glad to look up my list).

Dear Doris: I am 39 and met this girl 18. Despite the age difference we get along well and seem to have a lot of things in common. We have backgrounds (raised on a farm), go to same church, etc.

We have talked about marriage, and decided ages don't matter that much difference as long as we have a lot in common. We have been wondering how things would be for her 25 years when I'd be 53 and she 45. We have decided to wait a year or so before really making a decision but believe we could make a go of a marriage.

I'd be pleased to have your advice. Should we forget about it? I know of several such marriages that seem to have worked.

Undecided

Dear Undecided: So much depends on how mature your girl is, how youthful you are physically and mentally, and what you expect from marriage, that I can hardly advise you.

Besides the fact that you are old enough to be her father, your special 18-year-old has many maturing to do. I couldn't agree more that if the union is to have any chance of success at all, you should wait a year or two before making your decision.

Things we see very definite about, at 18 or 17 or 21, here is a way of ruling themselves completely out of the question at age 20 or 22. It's the truth! And, I might say, it is the reason why many teen-age marriages fail.

(Anonymous letters are bad manners and may be ignored. When writing in care of this newspaper, Doris your right name and address. It will be kept confidential).

Dear Doris: About the teenager who could get along with friends, as long as they don't get too interested.

Well, Doris, I am the same way, but far from being a teenager. Much older than that. And I'm middle-aged.

This is why I am writing to you about the names of books which will help me fight the shyness and build my confidence.

No Confidence

Dear No Confidence: As I said to "No Dates" above, shyness is self-conquered. It isn't going to be as easy for you as it was for me, but it is for the teen-ager, because your habits are more set.

But the same people can change all their lives — many of our social workers would be out of a job.

I am sending you the names of books which will help your thinking and which can certainly be found in just about any library or bookstand.

A DREAM COME TRUE — NINETY YEARS AGO

"Our efforts for the erection of this Hospital have been in the name of the Lord." — Mrs. Nathan Jones, President of the W.C.A. in 1884.

In the course of the ceremony of the laying of the corner stone of the hospital on that 25th September day, 1884, in Belleville at the corner of The Bridge and Church, Mayor Dunnet called upon a representative of the W.C.A. (Women's Christian Association, the efforts of which were successful in the building of the hospital) to present to Mrs. Nathan Jones, President of the W.C.A. the trowel for laying the stone.

"In response to this," we are told, "Mrs. Dunnet stepped forward and in a neat little speech presented the trowel to Mrs. Jones on behalf of the W.C.A."

"Mrs. Jones stated in reply that her heart was filled with gratitude to the Lord and kindness that the members of the WCA had always shown toward the work. She also thankfully received this token of the interest that had been there were other ladies in the, WCA more likely to perform the ceremony of laying the cornerstone of their beloved institution but as the report of the reporter who covered this event, whose name is forgot, is not available to us.

"She thought a merciful Providence had directed that the WCA since its formation and all the early efforts that the organization had been in existence five years before they made their relations," he continues. The aim of the society and it always been to comfort and protect. The society knows no creed or nationality — all unfortunates were within reach of the beneficia it sought to bestow.

"Our efforts on the erection of this Hospital have been in the name of the Lord. We thank God for the success our efforts have met with from the clergymen and medical gentlemen for the kind manner in which they have ministered to our afflicted ones. We thank the trustees for the kind interest they have taken in the management of our affairs. We thank the children for their gifts. We thank the County and City Councils for the liberal grants they have granted us. May all who have aided us find their efforts rewarded abundantly.

"Dr. Faulkner of Stirling, Warden of Hastings, also spoke. He had attended the laying of many corner stones, but none with more interest than the present one. He had never seen such a large crowd present at the laying of any corner stone.

He thought the city should come to the aid of the ladies. If need be, with funds, for the institution as planned would add greatly to the fair appearance of the city and the success of the enterprise was guaranteed, for the ladies could not fail in anything in which they had taken so great an interest.

"The Warden escorted Mrs. Jones to where the corner stone was suspended. Under the supervision of Messrs. M. Sheard, Pho. Hanly and John Forth, the stone was duly lowered to its place.

"Mrs. Jones said: 'In the name of the Father, Son and Holy Ghost I lay this corner stone for the foundation of a house to be built and consecrated to the service of Almighty God, as a hospital, for the suffering and a home for the friendless.'

"The band played 'God Save the Queen.'

"In the cavity beneath the corner stone was placed coins of the Province, a copy of the leading newspapers of the Province, a copy of the yearly report of the W.C.A., samples of the most common seeds of the country and a document setting forth the following.

"This corner stone, was laid this 25th day of September A.D. 1884, in the eighteenth year of the existence of the Dominion of Canada, His Excellency the Right Honorable Marquis of Lorne, Governor being Governor-General of the Dominion; Hon. John Beverly Robinson, Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario; Right Hon. Sir John A. Macdonald, Premier of the Dominion; Hon Oliver Mowat, Premier of Ontario; Messrs. W. Dunnet Esq., Mayor of the City of Belleville; J. B. Hime, Esq., Police Magistrate; D.B. Robertson Esq., City Chamberlain; Rev. Canon Bleasdell, Rector; Rev. Canon Lawrence Henderson, Rural Dean; Rector; High McGinnon, Esq., Chief of Police; Messrs. Ponton & Ponton, Esqs., architect; Messrs. Thos. Hanley Esq., architect and superintendent; Mr. Thos. Forth, contractor."

Our reporter concludes by saying:

"There are few living in this city who have not shown an interest in the building of the hospital. Many have not contributed in some manner, to its fund — either by private gift or through their representative, the City Council. Many have seen the need of an institution of this kind in the city, but the ladies of the WCA. are due the thanks of all interested citizens, for their energetic efforts to establish it.

A Riddle From Murray's.

What's a couple of shades of green, yellow, red, brown, white or orange and has seeds, stems, eyes, or holes? Can live on the counter or underground, and they stand alone and are headed by everyone? Now, after working so hard on those questions, do you think I'll tell you the answer? Not this week I won't. But here are some of the foods you'll find at Murray's Food Market on Front St. and just maybe you'll guess what I am talking about. And don't ask Murray either. He's sworn to secrecy. (P.S. the answer is not a new race of human beings.)

Salmon Now Using New N.S. Stream

HALIFAX (CP) — Salmon fishermen on the southern shore of Nova Scotia can be optimistic about future catches, fisheries officials say, because of the number of salmon returning from the sea to the LaHave River to spawn.

The fisheries department for the Atlantic region said a program of salmon development carried out by its resource development branch resulted in a run of 478 salmon this year in a branch of the LaHave River that, historically, has never had a salmon population.

The area in question is a branch of the LaHave which was opened to fish passage in 1969 when fisheries personnel created a fishway at Morgan Falls. The fishway made some 30 miles of previously inaccessible stream available to salmon and other sea-running species.

Once the stream was opened, steps were taken to stock the area above the falls with hatchery-reared salmon, at the juvenile stage. Each young fish had carefully chosen stock characteristics to ensure that a salmon run to the area would develop.

Of the 478 salmon that passed through the fishway this year, five years after the program's inception, 93 per cent were a direct result of the hatchery stocking program.

At least 30 other fish taken on the LaHave by anglers were of hatchery origin. Sport fishermen took 235 salmon from the river this year, compared with 633 in 1972, and fishery officials said commercial salmon fishermen in the area had a better-than-average season.

All grilse and salmon counted at the fishway trap near the falls are released to spawn upstream with the exception of a small number used as broodstock.

The broodstock are taken from the annual runs as the restocking program can be continued until adequate numbers of fish pass upstream to maintain the run through natural reproduction, fishery officials said.

In 1974, a total of 41,000 hatchery-reared juvenile salmon from the nearby Mersimikik hatchery were released in the river above Morgan Falls.

Fish released in the program are marked by removal of the adipose fin, a small fleshy protuberence in front.

The marking enables biologists to determine accurately the number of adult salmon in the run which are a direct result of the hatchery-stocking project.

Biologists also get information from anglers and commercial fishermen in obtaining scales and other information on any tagged fish they take in the LaHave River.

Fisheries spokesmen said data from these sources, together with information collected at the fishway traps, are analysed and used as the basis for forming regulations which will improve the salmon run to the river.

Movie on Wild West Is Made in Alberta

LETHBRIDGE, Alta. (CP) — An American television movie is being filmed in southern Alberta because development in the American West has left few areas untouched by power lines and billboards.

Herb Wright, producer of the American Broadcasting Company's Black Harvest, travelled 1,500 miles to find the right farm for the movie, set in 1943.

Black Harvest concerns a farmer and his son's battle against a horde of grasshoppers in flames.

Besides the farm itself, Mr. Wright liked the co-operative attitude of the owner of the farm, the availability of good actors from local Lights Theatre groups and the general friendliness of the area.

One scene involves burning a wheat field to try and smoke the insects out. ABC paid the owner of the farm another $1,000 for his crop plus more for the the psychological effect of watching good-year buildings go aimlessly up in granaries were out.

The movie, starring character actor Ben Johnson and Rod Steward, who appeared in the American Graffiti, is the sec... has a $500,000 budget.

Few real grasshoppers are used in the film. Several thousand would be expensive and would cost 150 heads of lettuce a day at 75 to 80 cents a head.

Aside from cleanup shots of the hungry insects, rolling wheat blown past the camera looks realistic enough.

In selecting the Lethbridge farm, Mr. Wright not only had to avoid developments of the last 30 years, but had to have the proper architecture. Such buildings as aluminum

Wilson's Election Chances Harmed by Labor Unrest

LONDON (AP) — The coal miners whose strike last winter helped defeat the Conservatives in the February election, now are making trouble for the Labor party with another general election only two weeks away.

Militant pitheadworkers walked out of talks Thursday on a proposal by the National Coal Board to pin a wage increase to an increase in productivity.

The militants, scoffed with moderate union men, and afterward the leaders of the National Union of Mineworkers, said they will seek further talks in office last year, Prime Minister Edward Heath's answer to the problem of inflation-generating wage increases was a compulsory ceiling on pay increases.

The miners went on strike to break the ceiling, and Heath called the February election in an effort to rally the country behind him. But labor won five more seats in the House of Commons than the Conservatives and formed a minority government.

Canadians, Drunks and Lunatics Can All Vote in British Election

By JOHN HAY

LONDON (CP) — Canadians, like drunks and lunatics, may cast votes in the Oct. 10 British election by meeting only slight eligibility standards.

Citizens of Commonwealth countries living here must show that they are on the permanent electoral list on the most recent qualifying date—in this case, Oct. 10, 1973.

The July 5 federal election in Canada was the last one in which British subjects were able to vote on the same basis as Canadian citizens. But the Canada Elections Act passed by Parliament in 1970 provided for an end to this after a five-year period.

Authorities say that drunks, lunatics, "childish persons" and some others must meet the added requirement of convincing the final polling officer that they know why they turned up at the voting booth.

The Canadian high commission guesses that about 50,000 Canadians are living in Britain, or a little more than one-fifth of one per cent of roughly 40 million eligible voters in the country.

Nobody knows how many drunks and lunatics will vote.

Among those over the new minimum age of 18 who cannot vote: peers and peeresses who retain their titles, residents of lunatic asylums, felons in prison and those convicted of election-law violations for five years after their conviction.

Family Shelters In Tents

SMITHS FALLS, Ont. (CP) — A lack of rental accommodation to fit its budget forced a family of eight to seek shelter in tents, just outside this small, mostly 36 miles southwest of Ottawa.

Bernice Martin and her seven children, ages two to 18, have been living in four tents since June.

When the house they had rented was sold, the family first moved to a farm owned by Mrs. Martin's brother-in-law. But it proved overcrowded.

Popular

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A new type of milk, containing one-half-per-cent butterfat, appears to have found favor here.

Frank Warnock, president of Dominion Dairies, said the first 2,000 quarts placed on the market Sept. 16 were purchased within four days.

The product is something between skim and milk with two-per-cent butterfat content. It sells for 42 cents a quart, the same price as homogenized milk.

Heroin Safe

VANCOUVER (CP) — An RCMP officer said Thursday that a 25-million heroin seizure, alleged to be mainly, is safe in a police vault here.

Assistant Commissioner Edwin Willes said the 25 pounds of heroin did not go astray after being stored earlier this year in New Westminster.

The commissioner was commenting on a charge made Wednesday by John Reynolds, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for Burnaby-Richmond-Delta, that the drug had disappeared.

Bonus Granted

ELLIOT LAKE, Ont. (CP) — Hourly-rated workers at Rio Algom Mines here have been granted a cost-of-living allowance of 14 cents an hour, the labatic energy and justment this year, the United Steelworkers of America says.

Stabbed

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — Police are investigating the stabbing death of a 31-year-old Sault Ste. Marie secretary whose body was found Wednesday by two hunters about 20 miles north of here.

A post mortem Thursday revealed that Darlene Heinzman died of stab wounds.

One Wolf Lives

DULUTH, Minn. (AP) — Only one of four eastern timber wolves transplanted from northern Minnesota to Michigan's upper peninsula remains alive, the United States fish and wildlife service reports.

Two of the wolves were trapped and killed and another was hit by a car, the service says. The one animal still alive is a young female.

Three Die

KIRKLAND LAKE, Ont. (CP) — Three people died Thursday in a head-on collision seven miles south of here. Dead are Gordon Larocque and Richard Minosse, both of Dobie, Ont., and Keith Arthur Knott of Kirkland Lake.

Price Rises

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail announced Thursday that the projected price of a single copy of the newspaper will increase to 15 cents from 10 cents, effective Sept. 30.

Present home delivery price of 70 cents a week by carrier will remain unchanged, the newspaper said.

JAMES AULD

Franco-Ontario Education Body Is Named

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government will set up an advisory committee on matters affecting Franco-Ontarians in higher education, cultural affairs and manpower training programs, it was announced Thursday.

The three subjects are within the portfolio of James Auld, minister of colleges and universities.

Last year his ministry appointed a co-ordinator of Franco-Ontario affairs.

The new council will have up to 15 members including Franco-Ontarian members of the newly-established Ontario Universities Affairs (OCUA), which replaces a former committee.

Mr. Auld announced Thursday the OCUA will be headed by Dr. Stefan Dupre, former head of the University of Toronto's political economy department.

Kingston Block Will Be Razed

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — A regional official of the Bank of Nova Scotia said Thursday "all reasonable" steps are being taken in attempts to save Kingston's historic Bagot Street block, slated for demolition.

C. E. Marshall, regional general manager for the bank which owns the royal-cornered limestone building constructed in 1841, said reports from two Kingston architects and the bank's engineering department show that the building must be demolished.

"To preserve the building would not meet the efficient function of our needs," Mr. Marshall said.

PM Expects To Meet Ford

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said Thursday he hopes to meet President Gerald Ford for talks on economic issues before the end of the year.

"I think the world economic situation is serious," Mr. Trudeau replied after a cabinet meeting, when asked to comment on recent statements by Mr. Ford and his secretary of state, Henry Kissinger, that the world appears headed for a recession.

Native People Caravan Criticizes News Media

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — The Native Peoples' Caravan brought its Canada-wide demonstration to Sudbury Thursday and spokesmen criticized the news media and police in that's handling of the Indian protest march.

Dennis Hanson of Vancouver, member of the Indians' 12-man central committee, said that news media have published "misleading statements" and "blatant lies" about the caravan since it left Vancouver, bound for Ottawa where a demonstration is scheduled for Sept. 30.

Mr. Hanson said a statement attributed to Indian leader Louis Cameron who spoke in Hamilton Wednesday was "blown out of proportion."

Mr. Cameron, leader of the Ojibwa Warriors' Society, was reported to have told a rally that Indians with bombs are prepared to their bodies would invade Parliament if the demands of native people are not met. Mr. Hanson added.

But the native peoples participating in the march are planning a "peaceful protest" in Ottawa and no member of the caravan is planning to become a "human bomb," he said.

However, Wayne Stonechild of Regina, another committee member, said a rally later that day in a sintering plant, the cupolas and the calcining operation.

Ontario Newspaper quotes, Dr. R. B. Sutherland, an Ontario government doctor who tested the disease, as saying the nickel plant carcinogens (cancer-producing substances) from freshly-formed nickel oxide is the cause.

Nickel oxide is not the sole cause of the lung cancer, the newspaper notes. Although statistical evidence is lacking to confirm it, medical investigations are going on which suggests smoking is a primary cause.

They are uncertain how smoking and the plant dust work together to form cancer but working conditions are responsible for a marked increase in the disease, the newspaper says.

Respiratory Cancer Danger
High in Nickel Refineries

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says the risk of respiratory cancer is significantly higher among persons who have worked in nickel-refinery plant and among those who have not been exposed to such an atmosphere.

The newspaper says persons affected in Ontario by the disease worked for International Nickel Co. of Canada Ltd. (Inco) plants in Port Colborne and Sudbury. Both plants now are closed.

It says nearly 100 men who have worked in nickel-refinery plants have died of lung cancer, the number might double even though the men no longer work under conditions that might cause the disease.

Among cases from the Port Colborne plant, the rate of rare nasal cancer is 150 times the expected incidence, the newspaper says.

All the victims worked in processes that performed essentially the same nickel-refinery operations, although the mechanics might vary. They converted a nickel sulphide matte into a nickel oxide by burning off the sulphur.

In Sudbury, the outbreak has been among workers in the sintering plant operated between 1948 and 1963, the newspaper says.

Three hazardous areas were identified at Port Colborne, where operations started as early as 1918 and the last of the hazardous areas closed by the late 1950s. The identified areas

Ban Kettles

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States Food and Drug Administration (FDA) said today it is removing from the U.S. market Canadian-made kettles which release unacceptably high levels of lead into water.

The FDA identified the kettles as Everhot and Toastmaster, manufactured by McGraw Edison of Canada Ltd. of Toronto, and said similar stainless-steel kettles may be recalled in future.

Assessors Refuse To Use Own Cars

BRANTFORD, Ont. (CP) — Most of the 39 provincial assessors with the regional assessment office here voted Wednesday not to drive personal cars on the job.

A spokesman for the Civil Service Association of Ontario (CSAO), which represents the assessors, said about five of the 36 indicated they will continue to drive their cars on business.

The provincial revenue ministry has said it will enter into agreement with individual assessors who wish to use their own cars.

The spokesman said most assessors are still not prepared to accept ministry proposals.

The ministry offered to pay the assessors 18 cents a mile for the first 5,000 miles, 13 cents for 5,000 miles and 11 cents for each additional mile.

serves Canada "where things will happen just like that."

Other Indian spokesmen also spoke in strong terms.

"The whole sway of the Indian movement is going to be changed by this caravan," said Larry Joseph, one of the original participants when the caravan left Vancouver. "We're experiencing a new awakening and this caravan is only the beginning."

"Our determination to fight for what is ours goes far beyond today. We're not going to Ottawa just for today; we're going to fight for another 100 or 200 years or until we get what we want."

Mr. Stonechild added he objected to the identified complained of "harassment" by police in several provinces.

Indian caravan members were "beaten quite badly by police" in Vancouver, he said. An arrest in North Battleford, Sask., and another in Ontario were cited as further examples of police harassment.

Railways Given 'One More Chance'

OTTAWA (CP) — Transport Minister John Marchand said Thursday that the railways will get one more chance to show what they can do before the government sets up national passenger transport and freight car corporations.

Mr. Marchand told reporters rail officials recently have shown keen interest in improving passenger service.

He indicated the government would find it necessary to take direct control of rail passenger transport if the railways did a good job in improving service.

Big Spread In Prices

TORONTO (CP) — A three-bedroom brick bungalow, five to eight years old with a full basement and garage, cost $42,400 more in Toronto on Aug. 1 than it did in Trois-Rivieres, Que., the same month.

That is part of the data included in a Royal Trust survey of house prices in 55 Canadian cities, released Thursday.

The survey of twos tandard homes, typical of those bought by employees transferred from one city to another, indicates a general slowing of the market since late May. But the market remained strong for both types of homes.

The first type, the brick bungalow, has 1½ bathrooms, but no recreation room, fireplace or sunroom. That area — excluding the garage is 1,200 square feet. The second, a 1,400 foot, fully serviced lot.

Representative prices for Aug. 1 in the following cities were: Toronto $70,000; North Vancouver $56,600; Victoria $52,000; Ottawa $49,000; Winnipeg $44,000; Edmonton $43,000; Beaconsfield (Montreal) $42,000; Saint John N.B. $38,000; Quebec City $36,000; and Trois-Rivieres $28,000.

The Intelligencer

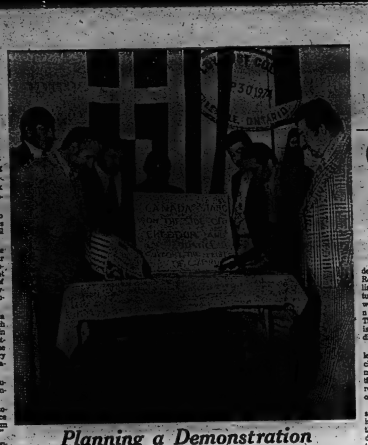
BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 27, 1974

Ellis Opposes Sale

The federal government should consider stockpiling uranium to avoid future domestic energy shortages, Jack Ellis, MP Hastings said today.

"If the government was to go ahead with overseas sales of their uranium, it might create future problems, he said.

Proposals for re-opening the Faraday uranium mine near Bancroft have been brightened with an announcement that an agreement for the sale of uranium to the Italian government agency is under study.



Federal Resources Corp., a United States company which holds 51-per-cent interest in the Faraday property, recently said it anticipates that the agreement calls for delivery of about 875 million Canadian consumers by Italy.

"The agreement is being studied by the federal government.

Mr. Ellis, however, said today there is "no better place to start stockpiling uranium now than in north Hastings."

Nova Scotia already is considering introducing nuclear energy, he said.

Uranium sold abroad right now might be needed in Canada in a very few years time," he said.

Planning a Demonstration

Belleville's Greek community is gearing for a demonstration Sunday on Parliament Hill to call for a Canadian government stand on freedom for Cyprus. Lettering posters at Holy Trinity Greek Orthodox Church last night were Ted Christopher, Nick Stalinos, John Zikopoulos, A. Saltas, Chris Theokalas, secretary of the PanCanadian Hellenic Solidarity Committee for Cyprus and a Cypriot, A. Thouroulis and Peter Zegouras, president of the Belleville Greek community.

Realtors Return

Eight Belleville and area realtors — representing the Quinte Real Estate Board — returned this week from the Canadian Real Estate Association of Canada convention in Halifax. Gerry Joyce, president of the association, said material offered at the convention showed home prices and inflation is here to stay along with shortages of mortgage money for at least the next 12 to 18 months. Others attending the convention were Mac Barrett, Anne Fields, Trudy Sands, Margaret Lesage, Ken Foster, Stan Albert and Ted Calma.

Co-ordinators Named

Two co-ordinators have been appointed to arrange the teen program at Queen Victoria School, part of the Community School Program. Miss Trudy Hodgson of Bayside secondary school student, will run the weekly program every Wednesday night from 7 to 9 p.m. About 10 adults have volunteered to act as supervisors for the program.

Telegram Planned

Prince Edward County council will send a telegram to Team Canada, in care of former county resident Bobby Hull, as hockey players continue their games with the Soviet Union.

The hockey players, now in Europe, will receive good wishes from Prince Edward plus a request for a Canadian victory in the series.

Command to Change

A three day reunion of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment in Peterborough Oct. 11 through 13 will feature a change of command parade from Lt.-Col. Jack Richardson, Peterborough to Lt.-Col. John Inrig, Picton. The change of command will take place in the Peterborough Armory Sunday, Oct. 13 at 3 p.m.

Greeks Plan March On Parliament Hill

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

A group of Belleville Greeks, forced to aid Cyprus during the Turkish invasion, has mushroomed into a national movement whose members and demonstrate on Parliament Hill in Ottawa Sunday.

Representatives of the Pan-Canadian Hellenic Solidarity Committee for Cyprus will converge on Ottawa at 1 p.m. Sunday to ask the Canadian government to recognize the territorial sovereignty of Cyprus and to demand the removal of all foreign troops from the island.

"Just because the guns are silent doesn't mean the problem is solved," said John Zikopoulos, Bayside secondary school teacher, and the group's public relations officer.

The problem won't be solved, said Mr. Zikopoulos, until Cyprus regains its status as an independent, republic and all foreign troops are removed.

The Canadian government's concurrence with the PanCanadian Hellenic committee's stand would carry weight on the international scene, he said. Canada's voice is heeded in NATO and at the United Nations and she is a fellow member with Cyprus in the British Commonwealth, he said.

The demonstration on Sunday will draw representatives from the estimated 250,000 Canadians of Greek origin. Canada has 29 established Greek communities from Vancouver to Halifax, each with its own church and organized cultural and educational programs.

Sixty of Belleville's 350 Greek-Canadians will attend the demonstration.

Secretary of the newly formed PanCanadian Hellenic Solidarity Committee for Cyprus is a Belleville accountant, Chris Theokalas while the chairman is a Montreal lawyer, Evangelos Hadzi.

The committee began with a meeting held by Belleville Greeks at Holy Trinity Greek Orthodox Church Aug. 25. Its aim was to offer immediate financial aid to Cyprus after Turkish troops landed on the island. Its second aim was to help Cyprus on the diplomatic front by pressuring for re-instatement of its independent, self-governing status.

The Belleville initiative grew, and representatives of Greeks across Canada met in Kingston Sept. 15 to hammer out a constitution and a policy. The name, PanCanadian Hellenic Solidarity Committee for Cyprus was adopted and a resolution drawn up.

The resolution calls for the Canadian government to "actively intervene and demand from the Turkish government withdrawal of its troops" from Cyprus and to demand "from every state respect for the sovereignty, independence ... and constitutional government of Cyprus."

Jack Ellis, MP Hastings and George Hees, MP Prince Edward-Hastings, will accompany the Belleville delegation.

Way Now Clear For Taxi Meters

The final bugs in equipping the city's taxis with meters were ironed out Thursday during a meeting of the Police Commission and the owners of the city's two cab companies.

A bylaw was passed setting the new fare, which will take effect at 11:01 a.m. Oct. 1, at 70 cents for the first one-fifth of a mile and 10 cents for each additional one-fifth of a mile.

There is to be a flat waiting time charge of $8 an hour and, unlike other Ontario communities which have such provision, there will be no extra charge for services such as helping the passengers with groceries or luggage.

A lengthy discussion took place Thursday between the two cab owners, Grant Devolin of Central Taxi and Arnold Duffy of Checker Taxi and the commissioners — chairman Jim Driscoll, Police Chief Douglas Crosbie and Mayor Robin Jeffrey over whether the meters should operate on straight mileage or time and mileage.

Citing that operating costs have increased drastically over the last few years, the taxi owners argued successfully that some form of time and mileage is needed instead of straight mileage if they are to make without a loss.

Mr. Devolin told the meeting that in the last four years his costs have increased 39 per cent for gas and 295 per cent for anti-freeze. Taxi license alone have increased 150 per cent he said while hydro costs have gone up 257 per cent since 1970. Mr. Duffy of Checker said similar increased hold true he has been told.

Ottawa Ready to Mediate In Tyendinaga Dispute

From The Ottawa Bureau
Of The Intelligencer

OTTAWA — Eight dissidents from the Tyendinaga Reserve who oppose establishment of a shoe manufacturing facility of the reserve, were told by Indian and northern affairs officials Thursday that the department is willing to mediate in the dispute.

The members of the band, led by councillor Cecil Maracle, were asking for department intervention to prevent the firm from locating on the reserve and the removal from office of the band council.

The group met with representatives of the department, including special assistant to the minister, Tom Goodleaf, during the afternoon and were told that Indian and Northern Affairs Minister Judd Buchanan cannot remove the council unless its members have committed an indictable offence.

The department's representatives also promised to prepare a reply to a letter from their lawyer requesting departmental interpretation of sections of the act related to the dispute and consideration of a petition from the reserve which requests the department's loan division to refrain from co-operating in the industry proposal.

A spokesman for the department said later that both sides in the dispute have valid points "but, it's a question of misunderstanding."

The group from the reserve had tried to enlist an appointment with the minister, but Mr. Buchanan, who had a cabinet meeting Thursday morning, referred the request to Mr. Goodleaf.

Electoral Officer Resigns Over Industry Controversy

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

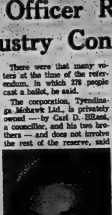
TYENDINAGA — Donald R. Brant, electoral officer for the Quinte Mohawks for the last five years, said today he is resigning.

He said he is quitting his position because of the current conflict on the reserve which, he said, has even divided families.

He appealed to his fellow Mohawks to end the dispute and said Chief William Brant has failed to explain the situation surrounding a controversial business corporation on reserve.

Because of his electoral post he has remained neutral in the controversy, said Mr. Brant.

But he now is resigning "rather than sit back and see our reserve torn apart in the newspapers every day."



"There are families divided and people are speaking to one another within their own families," he said.

"I cannot believe that anyone would want to get on the council in order to split our reserve in this way — unless he had in mind to gain personally that they aren't getting from the present council."

The dispute has also seen the number of the number of eligible voters on the reserve fluctuate calling for the elected council's resignation. See 215 signatures. Opposing the council are 274 voters were listed for a referendum which indicated opposition to a shoe plant now in operation. Chief Brant has said the electoral officer lists 495 voters.

Mr. Brant said today statements that no one knows the number of eligible voters are false.

"Regardless what some people think and guess at there are at least 495 eligible voters on our reserve."

DONALD R. BRANT
the electoral officer.

He said his office is one of about 26 Mohawk women now being employed at the corporation's factory to produce shoe uppers for Eaton Footwear.

He said the women (receiving $2.30 an hour), are in a training wage standard to any factory.

"It is quite different when her pay cheque comes in see no income tax taken out," said Mr. Brant.

Taxation is one of the issues raised by opponents of the corporation, who also have demanded that council resign.

The electoral officer said Chief Brant has "tried to explain to the people ... that there were that many voters at the time of the referendum, in which 378 people cast a ballot, he said.

The corporation, Tyendinaga Mohawk Ltd., is privately owned — by Carl D. Hillest, councillor, and his two brothers — and does not involve the rest of the reserve, said during his tenure in office there will be no taxes of any kind levied on the Indian people ...

He said the chief who operates a "sizeable dairy farm", would have as much to lose through taxes as any Mohawk on the reserve.

According to the Indian Act there is no way this present council can be removed, especially from a minority of people who have signed a petition under misleading information," he said.

Rally Planned

The Salvation Army will hold a cold Ontario Divisional Congress Oct. 4 at 8 p.m. at Memorial Secondary School.

Conducting the event will be Lt.-Col. and Mrs. Norman S. Marshall, field secretary from New York.

The open air meetings will take place at Centennial at 10.15 a.m. Oct. 6, the family service at 11.15 a.m. A gospel rally is planned at 8.30 p.m.

Saturday, at 7:30 p.m., also at Centennial School the Canadian Folk will perform with Mal and Mrs. Brown and a Toronto cast. Tickets are $2 for adults and $1.50 for children and are available from Corps officers.

Teachers Told Role Changing

People of all ages and walks of life now are demanding a voice in decision making, the Trenton Rotarians were told teachers Thursday.

"Soon, elementary school principals will be all," Glenn Watson told them, adding that the desire to get involved will be passed down from high school students to their juniors.

The occasion was the first luncheon meeting of the combined membership of the Trenton and Bayside Federation of Women Teachers' Associations of Ontario (FWTAO) and the Ontario Public School

About 120 members of the two groups were in Trenton's Legion Hall during the first of two professional activities days, held Thursday and Friday.

In the past, Mr. Watson said, the principal made the decisions for a school. Now parents are consulted in decision making, the results of the decisions is higher because "two heads are better than one and different skills and abilities are utilized."

There is also a higher rate of acceptance when more people are involved, he said.

Administrators with Hastings County Board of Education make their decisions by consensus, Mr. Watson said.

"A slow, hard process," consensus decisions are arrived at after everyone involved has had a chance to say how he feels about the issues.

"Everyone has a chance to influence the group and the dissatisfied are prepared to go along with the group because they haven't better suggestions."

Most people omit the last important step in decision making said Mr. Watson. That is evaluation of the quality and effectiveness of the decision after it has been in operation for a reasonable period of time.

Chairman for the inaugural combined meeting of the two federations was Carol Brooks, president of the Trenton branch of FWTAO.

Agency Entered

City police are investigating a break-in at the Budget Rent-A-Car Belleville at 510 Dundas St. East sometime overnight.

Police Chief Douglas Crosbie said the lock on the front door had been punched out and taken was $78 in cash and a watch worth about $8.

Safety Program Expanded

Summer activities of the Belleville Branch of the Red Cross included two blood donor clinics and an expanded water safety instruction program.

The clinics, organized by Merritt Hackett, collected 323 units of blood in June and 187 in August.

Reporting to the September meeting of the local branch, Lesley Ingram said increased pool facilities in the city should permit more instruction and result in fewer water accidents.

Alarm Box

Belleville firefighters responded to the following call for assistance in the 24-hour period ending at 8 a.m. Friday.

Thursday, Sept. 26, 7:14 p.m. — Dundas St. Journal box on CN spur line, extinguished with five-gallon extercan.

Bundles of Help

Helping grief-stricken Hondurans, ravaged in recent days by floods, became a family affair for the Lindsay home in Northport, near Picton. Jennifer, Jimmy and Mrs. Wayne Lindsay bundled up all the clothing that now is too small for the children, and donated ¾ to the relief supplies being sent to Honduras on Canadian Armed Forces aircraft this week.

Good Old Horse and Bicycle Day

Shamrock, a nine-year-old Shetland pony, spent Thursday working for his keep through the enterprise of his owners Pauline (right with camera around her neck) and Lori Waite of 37 King George Square. In gentle fashion Shamrock ferried neighborhood children up and down the street at 25 cents a ride. Total collection for the day topped $4.37 cents. Discounts were available for children short of ready cash. School children across the city had a holiday Thursday while teachers participated in professional development seminars. While waiting for their turns, children provided Shamrock with an honorary escort.

Bucs Pound Way To First Place Tie

NEW YORK (AP) — Al Oliver drove in four runs with a two-run single and his 19th and 11th home runs of the year, each a two-run shot, and Willie Stargell drove in four runs with a single and a three-run homer, his 25th of the season, leading Pittsburgh Pirates to an 11-3 triumph over New York Mets in National League baseball play.

With veteran Juan Pizarro turning in eight solid innings of pitching, the Pirates rounded their way into a share of first place in the East with idle St. Louis Cardinals. Each team has six games remaining.

In the first inning, the Pirates scored four runs. Singles by Rennie Stennett, Manny Sanguillen and Oliver scored one run, then Stargell belted his homer into the right-field seats.

The winning runs came one inning later when Stennett singled again and Oliver homered for a 6-0 lead. Three more runs in the fifth, one on Stargell's single, and Oliver's second homer in the sixth, sealed the victory.

Meanwhile, in the National League West, Los Angeles Dodgers reduced their pennant deficit to two beating Padres 8-2 in 10 innings. The second-place Cincinnati Reds kept their faint hopes alive, rippling Houston Astros 10-4.

Dodgers' Ron Cey broke a 2-2 tie in the 10th with a two-run double off the left field wall, scoring Dave Lopes who had singled. San Diego's Dave Winfield had sent the game into extra innings with a homer, his 19th, with one out in the ninth off Dodgers' relief ace Mike Marshall, 13-12.

Despite the Reds' victory, Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson said, "I can't feel very optimistic. We have to win every game and then it would still be very tough."

The Reds overcame a 6-3 Houston lead with five runs in the fifth inning. Ken Griffey scored the tying run on a sacrifice fly, scoring double, his fourth hit of the game, and pinch-hitter Merv Rettenmund put the Reds ahead with a two-run double. Cesar Cedeno smashed a three-run homer, his 26th, for the Astros.

Casper Grabs Lead In Kaiser Open

WAPA, Calif. (AP) — Billy Casper, in a slump for the last year, fired a seven-under-par 65 Thursday and grabbed the first-round lead in the $150,000 Kaiser International Open golf tournament.

Casper, now 43-year-old senior citizen who may be looking for "eight to 10 more years on the tour," made the comment Thursday after he'd taken the first-round lead in the $108,000 Kaiser International Open with a seven-under-par 65.

With 26 years behind him on the pro golf tour and a record that includes two U.S. Open crowns, a Masters green jacket, 56 tour titles, and almost $1.5 million in career earnings, Casper finished play Thursday with a one-stroke advantage over Bunky Henry and Larry Ziegler, tied at 66.

Curtis Sifford and a pair of unheralded rookies, Bobby Walzel and Wally Armstrong, followed at 67. Defending champion Eri Dusina had a 68 and Lee Trevino a 70.

Bob Panasiuk of Windsor, Ont., was only four strokes off the pace. He shot a 69, including a 33 on the first nine holes. George Knudson of Toronto was also well back at 71.

Johnny Miller, the outstanding player on the tour this year, had a career first.

"I four-putted," said Miller who birdied the last three holes for a solid 69.

Casper got came on the 13th hole and resulted in a double bogey. He missed from 25 feet, running it about three feet beyond the cup. He missed the return and sent it 8 inches beyond. He marked his ball, took his time, lined it up—and missed that one.

St. Louis Country Wins

TORONTO (CP) — St. Louis Country broke last from the starting gate Thursday, but moved up on the stretch for a victory in the featured $6,500 seventh race at Woodbine race-track.

A strong stretch run gave St. Louis Country a neck victory over Island Fling. He covered the mile on the marshall-turf course in 1:35 4-5 and paid $10.20, $4.20 and $3.30.

Top Canadians Lose In Rothman's Tourney

OTTAWA (CP) — Two members of Canada's four-man Davis Cup tennis team lost their quarter-final singles and doubles matches at the Rothmans Grand Prix tournament Thursday.

Pierre Lamarche of Montreal dropped his single matches 6-2, 7-6 to Jim Boyce of Toronto and Rejean Genois of Quebec City lost his matches 6-3, 5-7, 7-6 to Toronto's Chris Burr.

Don Fontana, non-playing captain of the Davis Cup entry, said Lamarche's loss did not necessarily mean he would not be selected to play against the Mexicans in Quebec City Oct. 4-6. Only two of the four players earned to the team compete in the Davis Cup.

Don McCormick and Tony Bardsley, both of Vancouver, also are named to the team.

In the other two mens singles matches, Tony Bardsley outclassed Peter Burwash of Toronto 7-6, 3-6 and 6-4, and McCormick defeated Bob Bardsley—Tony's brother—6-3, 7-6.

In doubles matches, Boyce and Burwash won 7-6, 2-6 and 6-1 against Lamarche and Genois.

In today's semi-final matches, Toronto's Jane O'Hara meets Andree Martin of Montreal and Susan Stone and Stephanie Bardsley, both of, Vancouver, compete in the ladies singles.

In the mens singles semi-finals, Burr will meet McCormick and Boyce plays Tony Bardsley.

In the mens doubles semi-finals, Tony Bardsley and McCormick face Bob Bardsley and Burr.

Pennant Only Pop Away for A's

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Oakland Athletics moved to within the pop of a champagne bottle cork of their fourth consecutive division title Thursday night with a 2-1 victory over Minnesota Twins. And they hope to pop it tonight.

"I'm not even going to talk about the playoffs until we win," said A's Manager Alvin Dark. "Ken Holtzman will pitch tomorrow night (against Chicago) and then after that, if we win, we'll worry about the play offs."

The A's haven't won, but they have clinched at least a tie for the American League West Division title. Thursday's victory coupled with Chicago's 5-1, 7-2 doubleheader triumph over Texas took care of that. Oakland now leads the Rangers by six games. The A's would have to lose their last five games and Texas win their last seven to force a playoff for the division championship.

Elsewhere, Boston Red Sox beat Detroit Tigers 5-3 in 10 innings and Kansas City Royals swamped California Angels 19-1.

Catfish Hunter hurled a seven-hitter for Oakland to notch his 25th victory, the most for an American League pitcher since Mickey Lolich won 25 for Detroit in 1971. Hunter, who has lost 12, struck out seven batters and didn't walk a man.

Jim Kaat posted his 20th victory with a five-hitter in the opener against Texas and Jorge Orta drove in three runs. Kaat, who became the 11th 20-game winner in the American League this season, has allowed just two earned runs while winning six games in September.

Jim Bibby, 19-19, rallied in his bid to join the 20-win circle in the nightcap as Bill Reds and Bill Sharp drove in two runs apiece for the White Sox.

Bob Montgomery sent the game into extra innings with a two-run homer in the ninth and then ended it with a two-run single in the 10th. Both of Montgomery's hits came off Tiger relief ace John Hiller.

The victory kept Boston's fade for East Division title hopes alive, but barely. The third-place Red Sox trail Baltimore by four games with just six to play.

Hal McRae clubbed a grand slam home run and Steve Busby notched his 22nd victory for Kansas City. Busby, who has lost 14, struck out eight batters and walked two.

George Brett added four hits and two runs batted-in for the Royals.

Saints Open With Win

Pascoe Pulls Down Another

By MARK BRETT
Staff Sportswriter

Quinte Secondary School Junior Saints led by first year student Ken Revoy took their opening game of the season.

The Saints defeated the Bayside Secondary School Juniors for a score of 26-6.

Revoy scored three touchdowns for the winners along with gaining valuable yardage for the home team.

Second star would have to collectively go to the Quinte defensive unit led by the bone crunching tackles of Dale Vos. Dale is the third member of the Vos family to play with the Quinte defence and as any quarterback will tell you he plays "tough".

The defence constantly broke up the offensive attacks by Bayside forcing them to make many mistakes.

This is the second game for Bayside. They lost their first one to Centennial.

The first Quinte touchdown came on an off-tackle play with Ken Revoy running 20 yards for the major.

Mike Burke added the single point as he did quite accurately throughout the game.

Quinte was not without their problems as costly fumbles often put Bayside within scoring range. Only a tough defence kept the visitors off the score sheet.

Bayside received good effort from several players on the offensive team but a lack of drive by the defence accounted for the high score.

Offensive coach Berry Turpin, of the Quinte team, felt mistakes are part of the first game. This will give us something to work from."

The second TD for the Saints was a short 5 yard run top pass to Revoy who bulldozed his way in for the score.

Another bright spot in the Quinte offence was the receiving capability of number 21, Terry Pascoe, who rescued several bad passes to turn them into good gainage. Pascoe also caught the games second pass to score one of the final QSS touchdowns of the game.

The final TD came with minutes remaining as Revoy got his third score on a 30-yd. run which started up the middle and turned into a sweep play.

The next Quinte junior game will be October 1.

Quinte Saints wide receiver, Terry Pascoe, fights his way down field after hauling in one of his passes. Pascoe was a standout against the Bayside juniors in the Saints first regular game of the season. Quinte won the contest by a wide 26-6 margin.

Get Four in Third

Pickering Plays Mouse Game with Cats

By MIKE BRADSHAW
Staff Sportswriter

Pickering Panthers put the screws to a slumbering Belleville Bobcat hockey team Thursday night at the Memorial Arena.

The Panthers took advantage of the Cats mistakes and slowly effort to score four unanswered goals in third period and dump the locals 7-3.

These guys were skating better than we were, said Bellevue coach, Tim Williams, "we were skating like we had snow shoes on."

Belleville walked their way through the first period and came out with a 1-1 tie. They had to get a come-from-behind goal to do that.

Bob Kurey opened the game's scoring with a goal late after the two minute mark of the first period.

From there the two clubs wavered back and forth for control of the contest. Pickering, put up an excellent battle against the more talented Belleville crew who appeared to take control only when the need arose.

The Bobcats evened the score near the end of the period when Mike Watt combined with Grant Goegan and Jim Richardson. Goegan was the most impressive Cat on the ice all night. He skated strongly both ways and did some real digging in corners — a commodity that seemed to elude the rest of his teammates.

Belleville proved they had the offensive talent in the second period when they scored their other two goals.

Each of the locals' markers followed a Panther goal by less than a minute. The two times that Pickering scored Belleville simply put together a good offensive drive, skated up the ice and scored.

Rocci Fagnello scored for the Panthers at 5:04 and at 5:47 Denny Lapenestre and Rob Foster combined on an excellent passing play the long way up the ice to even the score again. Lapenestre got that one.

Chuck Durocher put Pickering back in front, 3-2, at 9:27 of the third period. At 8:32 Scott Gaudet skated from his own end, to the Pickering end, put a good move on the Panther goalie and slipped the puck into the net to tie the score again.

Those were the only time tuations to arise continuously.

As a result, Pickering scored four times in the final 20 minutes and the Bobcats did not score once. Kevin Owen got three of the Panther goals in the third and Bill Glover got the other. Glover, a Trenton native, also got an assist.

Two other Trenton products showed their worth as well. Young Tom Manley picked up three assists and brother Tim got one. Tim was much more impressive in the face off circle however. He won nearly every face off he was involved in and he was out on power plays and penalty killing units as well as his regular shift.

The Cats open their regular season on Saturday with a game against Whitby in Toronto.

Morden Loses Touch, H & R Even Series

Whatever magic Trenton Augor's Mike Morden were powered Howard and Robert Printing with Tuesday night's win can be save be no longer possessed.

Morden blanked the Printers 3-0 on Tuesday, but was pulled in favor of Howard Thursday as Howard and Robert touched him for five runs in the first two frames and then went on to win 5-3.

The win evens the Quinte Fastball League best-of-seven final at 3-3.

Howard and Robert got two runs in the first inning on two walks, a pair of singles, a sacrifice and a fielder's choice. Jack Hughes and Rusty Garvin scored those.

Then, in the second they added three more counters on a hit, pitch, a walk, a single and two doubles. Terry Pope, Hughes and Garvin scored those runs.

Bob Howe came on in the third to relieve Morden. All together the pair fanned three Printers, walked seven and gave up 10 hits.

The winning pitcher, Bob Ethier, fanned 14 and gave up just six hits. He did not walk a man.

Garvin was top hitter of the night with three singles. Ethier, Howe rest with a double and a single and Ken Genereaux had two singles. Larry Potter tripled. Hughes doubled and Wayne Woods added a single.

For Auger's Roger Drake had a pair of singles, Jack Jury doubled and Jim Clements, Tony Theriault and Swan each collected a single.

The seventh and deciding game in the series will be played Monday night at 7 at the Alemite.

Tillman, a three-time North American laser champion, had a low score of 27½ points after five races in different class boats on Narragansett Bay.

Local Expert Manages Judo Youth Medalists

By CHRIS ALMEY
Staff Correspondent

Canada's Youth Judo Team has won two bronze medals in world competition in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil.

Belleville's police commission chairman, Jim Driscoll, who is a 3rd Dan Black Belt, recently returned with the team of five ranging in age from 12 to 20.

There were 25 countries in the World Judo Championship, and this is the first time Canada has also entered in the youth category.

This is only the second time that Canada has returned with medals from the event. The last time was a silver 18 years ago.

Gary Hirose of Richmond, British Columbia, and Alain Cyr of Rosemount, Quebec, won the two bronze medals.

Hirose was in the 176 to 205 pound class, and Cyr in the 139 to 154 weight grouping.

Mr. Driscoll will be taking the National Team to Munich for the German International Open on Nov. 14, and to Panama for the Pan-American Judo Union Championship on Nov. 24.

Next Team Canada will be NHL and WHA

HELSINKI (CP) — Team Canada, the NHL-WHA team that will represent Canada, chairman Douglas Fisher said Thursday night that the next Canadian hockey team to meet the Soviet Union in an international series will include players from both the National Hockey League and the World Hockey Association.

He said fans and officials of both countries would welcome a series between the best of Canada and the best of the Soviet Union.

Two years ago, Team Canada, comprised of NHL players, defeated the Soviets 4-2-2 in a series with one tie. The current series with World Hockey Association players representing Canada, is tied 1-1 with two ties.

The current series resumes Oct. 1 in Moscow following exhibition appearances by the Canadians here tonight and in Gothenburg, Sweden, on Sunday.

"We could have had a combined NHL-WHA team this time but a lot of blood would have been spilled," said Fisher.

retire receipts from the Canada-Russia games last week in Toronto, which had been released by Maple Leaf Gardens on instructions of Gardens president Harold Ballard.

Fisher and Lefaive said Ballard had created a similar situation two years ago by holding up Hockey Canada's share of a gate at Maple Leaf Gardens.

"That was when he was so busy trying to tell everybody how staunch a Canadian he was," said Fisher.

This year, said Fisher, the demands of Maple Leaf Gardens were so high that Hockey Canada considered moving the second game of the Canada-Russia series to a different site.

"We would have done it except that John Bassett (owner of Toronto Toros of the WHA) made an extremely strong commitment to Team Canada '74 and it would have been difficult both for Johnny and the Toros fans."

Bowman Takes Notes on Russians

MONTREAL (CP) — The Soviet Union's national hockey team held its final practice on Canadian ice Thursday before leaving for Moscow where they will resume their eight-game series against Team Canada on Oct. 1.

Mor, than 1,000 people were on hand for the workout at the suburban Pointe Claire Arena, including Scotty Bowman, coach of Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League.

"What I really want to do is take some notes on how they do their basic drills," Bowman said.

Chances are the Russians are making notes of their own in the current series with Team Canada — but they don't talk about it much.

"Coach Boris Kulagin made quite a point about face-offs in one of the team meetings yesterday around Canada," said a Russian reporter covering the team.

When asked about it Thursday Kulagin said, "you people have been playing hockey in Canada for 100 years and we've only been playing for less than 50. When we've had 100 years' practice maybe we'll start winning faceoffs."

"Besides, when we had to win one to tie game (the draw that closed the gap to 4-3 late in the game) we won it. Maybe the most important thing is knowing what face-offs you have to win."

"We will not be satisfied to come out of the series with the same final result as we had in 1972," Kulagin said.

"The win and three losses in Moscow will not be good enough.

"Our objective now is to win this series. I'm not making any predictions about the margin, but we want to go home and win it."

KINGS CUT FOUR

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Four players were cut Thursday by Los Angeles Kings and assigned to the National Hockey League team's farm club.

Aeros Minus Howes, But Still Dump Blues

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Houston Aeros of the World Hockey Association scarcely missed Gordie Howes and his sons, Mark and Marty, Thursday night.

While the Howe family hockey compact is in Europe with Team Canada, a rookie from Swift Current Broncos of the Western Canada Hockey League, led the Aeros to a 5-4 victory over St. Louis Blues of the National Hockey League in the first ever game played between the rival leagues.

Don Lever scored two goals to pace the winners and missed another late in the third period when a close-range shot was de-flected by goalie John Davidson before 7,643 fans.

In other games, Boston Bruins defeated Montreal Canadiens 6-3, Kansas City Scouts tied Minnesota North Stars 3-3, and Philadelphia Flyers defeated Vancouver Canucks 6-1.

In the only World Hockey Association game, Vancouver Blazers rallied for three goals in the third period to defeat Edmonton Oilers 5-4.

Ken Hodge scored three consecutive power-play goals to lead the Bruins over the Canadiens. Glenn Goldup and Guy Lapointe scored for Montreal.

Dennis Hextall, Bill Goldsworthy and Doug Hicks scored for the North Stars who held a 3-1 lead before Randy Rota and Simon Nolet replied for the Scouts.

Goldsworthy's goal was scored on an experimental free shot, awarded when the opposing team deliberately holds the puck against the boards.

Bobby Clarke, Bob Sirois, Don Saleski and Ross Lonsberry scored for the Flyers who dominated play throughout. Dennis Ververgaert got the only Vancouver goal.

The Flyers outshot the Canucks 46-17.

Ray DeLorenzi, Rob Walton, Murray Myers, Ron Chipperfield and Bryan Campbell scored for the Blazers. Jack Gibson, Ron Climie, Tom Gilmore and Barry Long were the Oilers' marksmen.

Petes Down Wolves

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP) — Peterborough Petes scored three goals in the first seven minutes Thursday and went on to defeat Sudbury Wolves 5-2 in the opening game of the Ontario Hockey Association Major Junior A series.

It was the only games scheduled.

John Walker and Tim Stortini replied for the Wolves.

Laurence put Peterborough ahead 1-0 at the 2:46 mark of the first period on a power-play goal. The Petes went ahead 2-0 at 4:40 when Cassolato scored and McKenzie made it 3-0 28 seconds later.

Peterborough increased it to 5-0 in the second period with goals by Schamerra and Fry,a, 37 seconds apart.

Sudbury spoiled Peterborough goaltender Frank Saliva's shutout bid with two early third-period goals.

Sudbury outshot Peterborough 36-26, including a 21-3 margin in the final 20 minutes.

New TV Show 'Unhappy Days'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Scott Jacoby says it was fun being a teen-aged daughters might be called eager in the 1950s.

Unhappy Days".

"It's the flip side of Happy Days," said executive producer David Levinson. "That show

"I was 16 years old then and it wasn't fun. We're trying to reflect that."

The new Wednesday show on CBS, starring Gary Frank and Glynnis O'Connor, is a continuing melodrama on the perils of being a teen-ager.

Like a soap opera, the story carries over from one episode to another. What is only an incident in one show may be blown up into a full episode a few weeks later.

Levinson, 35, the Emmy-winning producer of The Senator, producer of the doctor's segment of The Bold Ones in its final year and of the highly-rated TV movie "A Case of Rape," becomes angry when asked how a man with his reputation became involved with a teen-age Peyton Place.

"What I'm trying to do, what interested me, was the chance to do a drama that wasn't life and death. We're trying to do simple emotional drama.

"People keep asking me what I'm doing on a show like this. I may fall on my butt. But I'd sure as hell rather be doing this than another cop show."

Levinson said he is becoming offended by constant comparisons with American Graffiti.

"After I was asked to produce the pilot I sat down with the writer, M. Charles Cohen, and we looked at Summer of '42 and Red Sky at Morning," he said. "American Graffiti hadn't seen the light of day at that time.

Although the show is set in the 1950s, Levinson said he does not dwell on nostalgia.

"Nostalgia doesn't wear well. It's good for about five minutes. First of all, as far as I'm concerned, the songs all sound alike.

"The only value for me is to re-create a time so that the stories can play against it with some validity."

Doctors Break Law On VD Case Reports

TORONTO (CP) — Doctors in Ontario continually break the law by refusing to report cases of venereal disease to the medical officer of health, the social services and housing committee of Metropolitan Toronto was told Thursday.

Dr. R. L. Persad, senior consultant in venereal disease to the Ontario government, said he stated that fewer than half the cases of the disease doctors handle are ever reported to the local health units.

However, in the seven years he has been with the government, Dr. Persad said he has yet to see a doctor disciplined for failing to report his findings.

About 80 per cent of women with gonorrhea do not know they have it and 15 per cent of infected males show no symptoms, he said.

Some doctors do not make reports because they think it does no good—that the report is never followed up by the province, Dr. Persad said. Others want to protect their patients who may not want their spouses to know about an extra marital encounter.

Under the Venereal Disease Prevention Act, a doctor must report every case he sees or treats, or be liable to a fine of between $25 and $100.

Dr. G. W. Moss, Toronto medical officer of health, said more than two-thirds of all cases of syphilis reported in Ontario in 1973 occurred in Toronto and more than a third of the 13,806 cases of gonorrhea were in Toronto.

Dr. Persad told the committee that the disease will never disappear until the "root of male at a time" ethic replaces the multi-partner approach to sex.

"The number of cases is purely an index of the sexual activity in the community," he added.

Dr. Persad said no amount of advertising, no matter how slick or expensive, will cut down the incidence of disease.

"Putting placards and signs in the subways doesn't do anything to reduce the incidence of disease. But it does raise the consciousness of people to it and is getting treatment."

The committee agreed to ask the Ontario ministry of health to enforce the law and forces doctors to report any cases of the disease they see.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Saturday, September 28

Aries (March 21-April 19) Be alert. Don't be put-upon by another's contrived story. Before you dig down in your purse, get an accurate line on all the facts.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) If one you know only casually begins more than a reasonable amount of pressure on you, it would be wise to suspect an ulterior motive.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) You're likely to find yourself in a position you cannot feel a little whistle lie would get by unnoticed. Don't try—it won't.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) Someone will be coming to you for instructions on how to perform a task. If you don't know, don't pretend that you do.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 23) Make it a point today to steer as far as possible from the complex financial or business problems of a friend.

Virgo (Aug. 24-Sept. 22) It would be a mistake at this time to let another make your decisions for you just because it's the easiest course.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) This is one of those days when your effective productivity is at a low ebb. It's better to yet work aside temporarily than to do it halfway.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Those you'll be with socially today will find it offensive if you try to put on airs to impress them.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) If you're planning a gathering at home this evening, double-check to be sure all those you asked can make it so you won't overstock.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your judgment is not as sharp today as it normally is. Be careful if you have to come up with a decision on a major issue.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You're apt to spend a great deal more money than you should on frivolous things that you'll later have little use for.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) It's important that you clarify your goals; you'll get off on tangents that won't advance your self-interest.

CARNEY — In loving memory of our dear husband, father and grandfather, Fred Carney, who passed away Sept. 15, 1969.

Memories kept forever near.

CHAPMAN — In loving memory of our dear husband, who passed away Sept. 15, 1969.

Your memory is cherished by us all,
And always will be.

MACDONALD — In loving memory of my dear grandmother Olive Macdonald, who passed away Sept. 15, 1969.

But in the end,
He took you home.

White Artifaker

Man Behind Haida Art Calls Self Artifaker

By RON SUDLOW
NORTH VANCOUVER, B.C (CP) — Bill Reid, the man in the vanguard of the renascence of the new Haida Indian art, smiled wryly as he confided his secret.

"I'm a white artifaker," said the former CBC radio announcer. "That's a respected profession these days.

"I was looking for some kind of identity so I decided to play Indian for awhile."

Then, seriously:

"Look, I have a hard job assessing what I do. I've made legitimate use of design in some new ways.

"I'm making baubles for the pretty people but I've made some very pretty things. They have given me great pleasure and I think I'm an honest tradesman. I don't put it down."

Mr. Reid, the 54-year-old silver-haired son of a Haida mother and a German-born father, is proud of what he does. He's also rediscovering his West Coast Indian background while making a living at it.

"I hadn't known anything about the Haida side of my ancestry when I was a kid. My mother was brainwashed at school that being Indian was not the best thing in the world."

Mr. Reid has taken the impact-laden lines of the art of his ancestors and displayed the designs on vehicles other than the traditional totem pole, mask or dugout canoe decoration.

The designs represent animals in Haida legends—the grizzly bear, raven, dogfish, killer whale.

Mr. Reid's forte is jewelry and his favorite medium is gold. But when his one-man exhibition opens Nov. 6 at the Vancouver Art Gallery, wood carvings and totem poles will also be represented.

Silk-screens are the trend and not better for Mr. Reid than the queen or so younger artists of Haida and other West Coast bands who have been discovered by the public.

Mr. Reid, whose prints sell for $35, is "priced out of everything but the millionaire's market" in his jewelry. A gold bracelet with a three-dimensional design will command $4,000.

The pieces are produced in a ground-floor workshop in an architect-designed house of red and yellow cedar, sequestered among the dense hemlock, cedar and poplar of Vancouver's north shore mountains. Mr. Reid is working there as the guest of sculptor Frank Perry.

Mr. Reid doesn't see himself reviving the Haida culture or peddling my ancestral bones to the tourists."

What he is doing is discovering the underlying design principles of his ancestors to identify their style.

"What we have done is determine what dictated that style and apply it to our own way."

Mr. Reid said that since the death in 1924 of Charles Edenshaw, his great-grandfather and a talented silversmith, the Haida people have forgotten what formed the underlying structure of the art form.

"It was losing its central characteristics. The art was dying, so I went back to the museums and books and tried to plug into this art form when it was at its height."

The Victoria-born artist began his career as an announcer at a boatstown station at 19 years of age. "Then I became a radio reporter working my way across country."

When he got to Toronto he found he was "not a great commercial success and radio was a dull way to make a living."

He found himself living on Jarvis Street, two blocks from the CBC and two blocks from Ryerson Institute of Technology as he was "undergoing the long process of becoming conscious of my Haida background."

He worked nights, while learning the technical side of making jewelry at Ryerson, went to work for a jewelry shop and was eventually laid off during a depression in the trade.

By 1951 he was in Vancouver working for CBC radio and set up his own jewelry shop in a friend's studio. His gold and silver bracelets started to sell and "it became part of my income, so I kept it up."

It was also during this period that Mr. Reid became associated with the anthropology department at University of British Columbia which was planning to recreate a Haida village on campus.

One morning, Mr. Reid was doing a newscast when he came across an item about a $15,000 Canada Council grant to UBC for the reconstruction of the village. After reading the newscast, he promptly quit.

After some basic instruction in carving techniques from the late Mungo Martin, Mr. Reid began the three-year project that involved seven poles and two houses.

"It is a form that is decorative and yet has impact beyond the purely decorative. A totem is a decorated column but the form of the column is still retained."

Today, Mr. Reid is convinced about the revision that form will take in the hands of younger Haida artists.

Money Collection To Be Displayed

Written For CP
By DENNIS BUECKERT

OTTAWA (CP) — The country's largest collection of old, rare, and unusual money is being prepared for permanent public display here.

The National Numismatic Collection, as it is officially known, has been assembled by the Bank of Canada over 15 years.

Next year, work will begin on a permanent numismatic museum which is scheduled to open in 1977. It will be a part of the bank's new offices.

Maj. Sheldon Carroll, curator of the collection, said it consists mainly of Canadian money. However, there are also 1,500 ancient Greek and Roman coins, 10,000 foreign coins, and 25,000 pieces of foreign paper money.

He said the money from around the world will provide a context within which the history of Canadian money can be better understood.

Many unusual forms of currency are represented in the collection.

There is a piece of Haida Indian copper plate money valued at 7,500 blankets. Polar bear teeth, sea shells, carved bone buttons, and wooden nickels are other examples.

At one time even playing cards were legal tender. In the late 1600s there was a shortage of coins in New France and the intendant issued notes which were handwritten on the backs of playing cards. This was the first paper money in the Western Hemisphere.

Maj. Carroll and his staff have gathered a vast assortment of more conventional currency.

"I don't want every Canadian coin and bank note in existence," he said in an interview "just one of each."

The National Numismatic Collection is expected to rival with the National Art Gallery and the National War Museum as an Ottawa tourist attractions.

"It's a part of Canadian culture," said Maj. Carroll. "Our notes and coins are a part of the national heritage.

"Some of our greatest artists have worked entirely in this field. Their works cannot be seen anywhere else.

"There's no event of significance that isn't reflected in our money. Whether it be political, economic, or social, our history is interwoven with the development of our coins, tokens, and paper money."

Lard Used As Butter

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — An inspector with the Ontario ministry of agriculture and food says that a highly-sophisticated organization, which sells bogus butter as unsuspecting consumers, has moved into this area in recent months.

Harold Pecling said in an interview from Toronto that the butter being sold actually is colored lard.

He said that sales generally take place in beverage rooms after the talk is turned to the high cost of food.

Mr. Peeling said the men trying to sell the bogus butter claims to have cases of inferior meat impounded somplus butter selling at 40 cents a pound. He said the colored lard comes in 25-pound cases with no markings on the individual parchment wrappings.

He said the lard is machine-wrapped and packaged indicating the operation is a highly-mechanized and sophisticated one. It is believed in the province of Quebec, he said.

Mr. Peeling said he has been investigating the organization for two years, and found it has generally just large industrial centres.

POPULATION ON RISE

From mid-1967 to the mid-1968, the world's population increased daily by an average of 180,000 persons.

Luftwaffe Pilots Conspired To Oust Hermann Goering

BONN (Reuter) — Gen. Johannes Steinhoff, the German air ace who shot down 176 Allied planes in the Second World War, has revealed details of a near rebellion by a group of Luftwaffe fighter pilots in the final stages of Nazi Germany's defeat 30 years ago.

The scar-faced veteran flyer, who retired from a top NATO post earlier this year, has written a book which is about to be published called In the Final Hour—the Plot of the Fighter Pilots.

It relates how he and four other highly-decorated Luftwaffe colonels conspired to have Field Marshal Hermann Goering removed from command of the German air force for incompetence.

Their attempt failed and they were lucky to escape court-martial for mutiny. Goering finally poisoned himself in an Allied prison after being condemned to the gallows for war crimes.

If the plots had succeeded in removing him, German cities might have been spared a lot of the appalling destruction they suffered from British and American aerial bombing.

As the war lengthened and the Allied air armadas grew in size and power, Hamburg, Cologne, Dresden and other large cities were subjected to marathon day and night "carpet" bombing.

The Luftwaffe seemed powerless to protect the homeland. Hitler blamed Goering and the field marshal put the blame on his fighter squadron commanders, accusing them of cowardice.

For months the pilots had been pleading with Goering to re-equip the fighter defence squadrons with the Messerschmitt 262, the world's first jet combat aircraft to go into active service. Without these they were helpless against the formations of American Flying Fortresses with their massive firepower.

But Hitler, obsessed with the doctrine of the offensive, refused to allow the revolutionary new high-speed jet planes to be used for defence. And Goering acquiesced.

On Jan. 19, 1945, after several backdoor attempts to remove Goering, the five colonels had a personal showdown with him. Shaking with fury he accused them of treachery and mutiny and threatened to have them shot.

Shortly before this, Steinhoff had been summoned to the "Wolf's Lair." Hitler's headquarters in East Prussia, to receive from the Fuehrer's own hands one of the highest awards for bravery. At a secret meeting, the colonels described him to try to persuade Hitler to let them have the Messerschmitt jet.

"I had heard of Hitler's famous carpet-biting tantrums and on this occasion I actually witnessed one," Steinhoff recalls.

The Fuehrer raved and foamed at the mouth. Defensive thinking was defeatist thinking, he screamed. The war must be carried to the enemy. The bomber arm was the only one that mattered. The new jets which could elude all air defences were being saved for a new mass attack on Britain.

Steinhoff was not allowed to get a word in. Hitler ended his tirade by telling him that the jets, because of their high speed, could only be operated in straight and level flight.

His personal physician had assured him, said Hitler, that the human body could not stand the strain of being twisted and turned in a plane travelling at speeds approaching 435 m.p.h. So that was that.

However, one result of the showdown with Goering was that a few of the jets were secretly appropriated for the defence of the Bavarian cities of Munich and Augsburg.

A group of hand-picked pilots, including Steinhoff, were chosen to fly them. In their first encounter with Flying Fortresses, the Messerschmitt jets approached at such speed that the Americans did not know what had hit them.

But it was a case of "too little and too late." Steinhoff himself crashed and his face was burned beyond recognition.

CARE FOR YOUR CAR

CARE FOR YOUR CAR

Fall-Winter 1974

Car care is especially important this winter.

- To help you enjoy a winter of trouble-free driving.
- Fast, easy starts.
- Reduced exhaust emissions.
- Maximum gasoline economy.

Winter Muffler's Enemy

The combination of slush and road salt on winter streets is hard on all parts of a car's underbody, particularly the muffler and tailpipe. Here Midas Muffler mechanic Bob Anderson, of Amelisburgh gets a car ready for the tough upcoming season.

Loyalist Offers Course To Assist Female Drivers

Loyalist College's Ladies, Know Your Car course will be offered for the third year this fall, beginning next month.

Instructor Derek Payne describes the course as "familiarization" course.

"We try to make women familiar with the working parts of their car so that they can recognize symptoms of trouble when they occur and describe them accurately to the mechanic who is going to do the work," he said.

"We don't try to make mechanics out of our students. After all, an auto mechanic is a certified tradesman. But when they finish this course and look under the hood of their car, they'll know what they're looking at," said Mr. Payne.

Registration for the 15-week course begins the week of Sept. 30 at Loyalist College, but the course itself is taught at the college's auto mechanics shop on Wallbridge Cres.

While there is some classroom instruction, most of the work is done in the auto shop. Weekly classes are two hours long.

In past years the number of students has usually been around 15, said to Mr. Payne, "and we limit the classes to 20."

There is no typical students, the instructor added. "We have them all ages. This is an 'interest course', so there is no restriction on who can take it."

In past year there has been a course in the fall and one in the winter and this practice will likely be followed this year, if registration warrants it, said Mr. Payne.

Fee for the course is $15 and further information may be obtained by calling the auto shop during business hours at 967-111.

Avoid Heated Garages During Winter Months

The best way to preserve a car's body, paintwork and chrome through the winter is stay clear of heated garages.

That's the word of a man whose business is preserving car bodies.

Gerry Leonard, general manager of Ziebart Envirogarde Belleville, says the daily freezing and nightly thawing of the car underbody's coating of a mixture of ice and salt is deadly.

"Water itself is bad enough, but when you mix it with salt off the roads, it becomes a real mean corroder. But if the mixture stays as ice, it just sits on the surface and doesn't bother anything."

Other advice Gerry has for owners who want to preserve their vehicles' bodies is to regularly touch up stone chips with matching paint and a small, watercolor brush and to give them a thorough waxing each spring and fall with the best ...

...t recommendation is to have a new, or fairly new car thoroughly undercoated by an establishment that has a good reputation and will stand behind its work.

On the subject of washing, drivers are cautioned not to overdo it in winter and to drive the car until it is thoroughly dry before parking it.

"Spraying the underside of the car doesn't really help much. In fact it can cause some harm. It will wash off some of the salt, but it will drive the rest into crevices where it can do is worse" he said.

AMC Reports Record Sales

American Motors (Canada) Ltd. has announced that sales of AMC cars and jeeps during the month of August were the highest in the company's history, establishing new model-year sales records.

AMC passenger car sales for the final ten days of August totalled 1,200 units, compared to 368 units for the comparable period last year.

Total retail sales for the month were 3,534 units, — a 148.9 per cent increase over the 1,420 units sold in August of last year.

Controls Improve Mileage

If you were thinking about removing emission control equipment in your new car to boost gasoline economy, you may be doing more than polluting the air. According to a study by the Environmental Protection Agency, chances are you'll be getting even poorer gas mileage.

The EPA in its survey took 16 cars to private garages and service stations, instructing mechanics to "do what's necessary to improve gasoline mileage."

Changes made by the repair shops resulted in an average loss of 2.5 per cent in fuel economy and a drastic increase in hydro-carbon, carbon monoxide and oxides of nitrogen emissions.

Cost of the work done by the garages ranged from $12.50 to $37.50. In addition to disconnecting emission control equipment, garages generally enriched the carburetor idle setting and advanced timing with individual losses in fuel economy of up to MIT per cent.

Police Offer Tips

If you have a motorcycle and don't want it stolen, there are certain safeguards you can take, advises city police chief Douglas Crosbie.

For one thing, he says, park it in a place where it can be readily seen. A lot of people the chief says, park it and leave the keys in, offering a sure temptation to any thief.

In the first eight months of this year, there were four motorcycles stolen in Belleville. Two of them have been recovered. In the first eight months of last year, two motorcycles were stolen and two recovered.

George Olson, of the Motor Licence Bureau in Belleville said that he issued 900 permits for motorcycles from the time they went on sale Dec. 1, 1973 to the expiry date, Feb. 28 of this year.

Since that time, he said, he had to order about another 100 permits. He said that of the total number of about 700 permits up to now some come from out of town in places where there is no bureau.

Chances of recovering a stolen motorcycle are reasonably high, said Chief Crosbie. And, while the problem isn't as serious as something such as auto theft, motorcyclists can do their bit to help police foil thieves.

Besides the above mentioned precautions, Chief Crosbie suggests motorcyclists do something to prevent what he calls 'cannibalization' or stripping of motorcycles for parts.

"In a lot of cases the vehicles' serial number has been taken off so we can't identify it properly later," he said.

"We're suggesting that even if they etch their own social insurance number someplace on the bike, this would help recover the vehicle," said Chief Crosbie.

When we hire a salesman, sure he has to be a good salesman, but more than that, he has to be a regular guy. Nobody likes a "hot-shot". People like to deal with salesmen who are down to earth, and honest. Elliott Motors is fortunate to have a sales staff with men like this. They're the kind of men who look you in the eye when they tell you something. They don't make promises they can't keep.

They realize that if you're not pleased with the answers you get at Elliott's you'll probably buy your car elsewhere . . . that's why an "Elliott Salesman" will take the time to answer all your questions and doubts. He'll make suggestions as to what car will suit your needs and your finances.

You see our men are career salesmen; they have been in the automotive retailing most of their lives and furthermore most of them have been with Elliott's for years. They are professional in their aproach. Many of them have won sales awards and want to sell you "right" the first time . . . because when you get a fair deal you usually like to come back again . . . and again. Elliott salesmen know and believe in their product . . . GM cars. If they didn't they probably would be working for someone else . . . and that says a lot.

It is awfully hard to sell something you don't believe in, as a matter of fact it is almost impossible . . . and when you sell more cars than anyone else in Belleville that only means two things.

You have a good product and you also have good salesmen who believe in what they sell . . . that is why we are Belleville's Number One Dealership.

Park It

Motorcycle mechanic George Reed, himself an active biker, recommends storing your bike in winter unless you're an expert driver. Winter's added hazards are too much for the average driver to cope with, he says. George also has some good advice for storing bikes through the winter.

Proper Care Prevents Problems Next Spring

If your motorcycle doesn't fire up in the spring, it will probably be because you didn't do the right things when you put it away in the fall.

George Reed, proprietor of City Cycle says says next spring's problems can be solved this fall by preparing the bike for storage before putting it.

A basic fall checklist provided by Mr. Reed includes: Take the battery right out of the machine and keep it indoors to prevent freezing and cracking; leave the bike on its centre stand to keep weight off the tires that could otherwise be damaged by extreme temperatures; completely drain the carburetor — a gas and oil mixture left in the fuel injection system can turn to a varnish-like substance by spring.

A good tip for preventing corrosion buildup in the heads and cylinders is to remove spark plugs and pour about an ounce of oil into each plug port, then replace the plugs.

"It's also a good idea to kick the engine over every now and then to change the position of the pistons in the cylinders," said Mr. Reed.

The greatest condensation buildup in gas open tanks that could lead to rusting in fuel lines or rust, Mr. Reed suggests the tank be topped right up with gas.

A bike left outside — the least desirable place — should be protected with a plastic sheet or tarpaulin and, ideally, with a commercial silicone spray compound that will protect against chrome pitting and paint damage from harsh weather.

Experience is the important factor in deciding whether or not to drive your bike through the winter.

"Only a really experienced rider should consider winter driving in this area, where snow buildup on roadway is common," said Mr. Reed.

Driving in winter isn't any harder on a bike than driving in summer, though a lighter oil should be used. "The main thing is to protect the rider," said Mr. Reed.

Wipers Need Maintenance To Give Top Performance

As with so many other vital components on your car, your windshield wipers are most likely to fail just when you need them the most — during the next rainstorm.

During the winter, windshield wipers have to fight freezing snow, ice, slush and road salt.

In the summer, heat, smog, and even your service station attendant's windshield washer spray work together to reduce the efficiency of your wiper system. It's no wonder, after sitting quietly on your windshield deteriorating day-in and day-out, that they often fail to do their job.

The best time to check your windshield wiper system is during a rainstorm. Or you can check it the next time you go through a car wash. You can also perform a good check while someone sprays your windshield with a garden hose. However you choose to check your wipers, you should check them on both the fast and slow speeds.

If any trouble symptoms are present, you should replace as much of your wiper system as is necessary to eliminate the problem. In many cases, all that is needed is new squeegees (the rubber part that contacts the windshield).

When you do replace all or part of your wiper blades, make sure you replace both sides at the same time. If one wiper is shot, it's a good bet the other one is about to go, too. Safe vision during hazardous road conditions is too important to risk a few dollars.

One final tip. If you are replacing your wiper blades, consider the new, molded polycarbonate blades. They perform more efficiently than the metal type and they cut down on glare and rattle as well.

Tune-up Vital

Spark plug misfiring may result in a significant increase in fuel consumption. In laboratory tests at speeds of 30 and 50 miles per hour, for example, spark plugs misfiring 10 per cent of the time resulted in an eight per cent increase in fuel consumption. In addition, ignition timing deviating from the manufacturer's setting results in a significant decrease in fuel economy. For example, a 10 degree retard in basic spark timing may result in an average loss of 1.5 miles per gallon at speeds of 30, 50, and 70 miles per hour. Drivers should be reminded that these and other obstacles to efficient engine performance can be eliminated with a complete tune-up.

GENERAL TIRE

Proper Heat Depends On Good Thermostat

If you have been putting up with a not-so-hot heater in your car, it may be an indication of damage to more than your disposition.

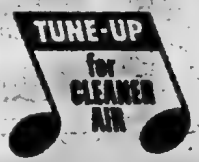
Your car's heater derives its heat from the water that circulates through the cooling system. When that water is too cool to warm your feet, it probably means your engine is cold, too!

The usual cause of overcooling is an incorrect or defective thermostat. The net effect will be felt in your pocketbook as well as in the car on cold days.

Most immediately, you will find your gasoline bills rising over and above the normal cold weather increase when your choke is working overtime. The longer your choke is on, the greater your gas consumption.

If the engine is running even colder than you expect it to in the winter, the over-worked choke really inflates your gasoline bills. And all because of a defective thermostat.

Then there is oil dilution, leading to sludge formation. Sound ominous? It is to an engine.



In a cold engine, fuel doesn't vaporize well, tends to seep in liquid form down into the engine oil, instead of burning in the cylinder. This, plus water formed by condensation in the cold engine, reduces the lubricating qualities of the oil.

In freezing weather conditions, lubrication can be a particularly critical factor. An engine is designed to run quite hot, and all metal parts are designed with this heat in mind.

As we all remember from junior high school science class, metal expands with heat and contracts with cold. So a cold engine has a lot of slightly loose parts that need the best lubrication possible to prevent rapid wear.

The final horror of the cold engine is the fouling of spark plugs, which may ensue. Plugs fire poorly, foul rapidly and compound the problem.

Fouled plugs, rapid wear of engine parts and inefficient engine operation result in a condition that has become more critical than cold feet or tight budgets. It's air pollution, because this kind of engine kicks a lot of unwanted smoke out of the exhaust pipe.

Good Starts Save Gas

AVOID "JACK RABBIT" STARTS. Gradual acceleration in city driving can save as much as two miles per gallon compared to rapid acceleration. That's because it takes a lot of extra energy to increase an automobile's acceleration rate. A power valve, located in the carburetor, lets more fuel into the cylinders under full acceleration. In addition an accelerator pump provides extra fuel to avoid hesitation when the gas pedal is jabbed.

Have Checkups Early

Early fall checkups and changeovers are recommended this year if drivers are to make it through the winter.

Some Know-how Needed For Cold Winter Starts

Car tab - Starting tips

Like people, car engines are reluctant to get going on cold mornings. It's a small wonder when near-zero temperatures thicken various lubricating oils and greases which makes it tougher for parts of the engine to move.

Also, the colder the temperature, the less efficient the battery becomes. At zero degrees, for instance, the battery is only about half as efficient as on a normal summer morning.

Herewith is a list of tips. These will keep voltage demands on your car's battery down during the vulnerable period when the battery loses much of its [illegible]

[illegible]mission:

To lessen the load on the starter, release manual shift transmissions by depressing the clutch pedal; place automatic transmission in "neutral" before attempting to start the engine.

Shut off lights, windshield wipers, defrosters, heater, radio, etc., before attempting to start the engine. This will assure maximum voltage available for both the starter motor and the [illegible]

While [illegible]ing of hand choke is obvious, some drivers don't realize that most automatic chokes must be set "on" by depressing the accelerator before starting. (Many cold weather starting failures are due entirely to this oversight.)

4. Pamping the Accelerator:

An additional one or two pumps on the accelerator pedal will dump raw gasoline into the intake manifold and help get enough vaporized fuel into the cylinders during very cold weather.

5. Throttle Setting:

When the starter is energized, the accelerator should be about half way down to get enough air rushing through the manifold to pick up the fuel and carry it into the cylinders.

6. Starter Motor:

Energize the starter at relatively short intervals. Avoid grinding away or you may overheat the starter motor and cause excessive drain on the battery.

7. Shut-off:

Place transmission in "neutral" and run engine at fast idle. When switch is off, depress accelerator to "flood" the engine. This will insure a supply of gasoline in the cylinders for the next start.

A complete check of the ignition system and spark plugs before the first cold snap hits is advied. A weak ignition coil, defective distributor points or worn spark plugs can kick starting voltage requirements way up. And, of course, if battery voltage is too low to meet these increased demands, the engine won't start.

Trudeau Motors Limited presently operates from its modern premises on Station Street in Belleville, along with its original location in Tweed. Chevrolet Heavy Trucks and complete lines of Recreational Vehicle Sales including Campers, Trailers and Motor Homes are handled from their North Front Street location across from the Quinte Mall.

Weak Battery Seldom Cause of Engine Failure

Servicing or replacing the car battery may not be the answer to a car's winter starting woes.

That's what a high percentage of motorists learned when they experienced starting failure and sought to correct it solely through attention to the battery.

According to a hardstarting survey conducted last winter, repeated failure was experienced by 38.9 per cent of car owners who had their batteries charged after initial "can't starts."

Of those motorists installing a new battery after not starting 25.5 per cent had at least one other failure.

When car owners treated starting woes with engine tune-up they had better success in forestalling future problems, the survey showed Rate of repeat can't starts was 14.6 per cent after a tune-up. Installation of new spark plugs alone was a better answer to starting trouble than battery service since 14.7 per cent had additional problem with new plugs.

The survey also revealed hard starting continues to be the leading problems confronting motorists. In the U.S., 29 per cent of owners reported at least one failure last winter. In Canada, 30 per cent had trouble.

Cold weather was not solely to blame for starting trouble. Warm weather regions in the U.S. were only slightly below the national average in reported "can't starts."

Number One Test

Everyone, without exception, must face this machine when they take their driving licence examination in Ontario. Here examiner Garry Wood checks out the vision of David Andrews, of Foxboro in the Belleville Driver Examination Centre.

Faults Revealed

If you take your driving test in Belleville, the odds are seven-to-three you'll pass. Based on ministry of transportation and communications statistics, 29.54 per cent of those who try their driver examination in Belleville fail.

And the reason people fail, says Grant Wheeler, the ministry's regional manager in Kingston, is that they simply break the law.

There are, says Mr. Wheeler, no trick questions or gimmicks in a driving test. If the person being tested adheres to the law as outlined in the guidebook provided, he'll pass.

Failure rate in the Quinte area on the written test is well below the provincial average at less than 10 per cent.

The Belleville driver examination centre, headed by supervisor Frank Seymour, has two outside and one inside examiners and is responsible for conducting tests in Picton, as well. The Trenton office has a supervisor and one examiner and looks after Brighton and Stirling.

For most drivers, once the test is passed and their licence obtained, that is all they have to worry about. However, drivers over 80 must take a yearly examination; drivers who have been involved in three collisions in a two-year period must be re-examined and drivers who have nine penalty points against them must have an interview with a driver improvement counsellor, and this usually involves another test.

Shortages May Boost Prices

Canadian drivers can look forward to an expensive winter this year — if they can find the things they need to get through it.

It's obvious that gasoline is more expensive, so is oil, but antifreeze and tires are both in short supply and substantially more expensive. And these are things you must have to get through the winter.

Snow tires are particularly scarce following long labor disputes at major manufacturers. One city distributor ordered 450 tires, received 80 and one dealer bought 60 of those.

"When they're gone, that's it," he said. And his cost was $11 a tire more than last year.

Early shopping for antifreeze is recommended, too. "I ordered 400 gallons this year," a service station operator said, "I got 100 and when that's gone, I don't know where I'll get any more."

All He Could Get

Service station operator Cliff Broadbridge bought all the snow tires he could get, anticipating a winter shortage. "When they're gone, that's it," he says. Tire company strikes have cut the supply this year. Antifreeze, too, is in short supply and Cliff recommends early preparation for winter before stocks run out.

Plugs Need Change Every 10,000 Miles

A spark plug may look good to the casual observer after 15,000, 20,000 or [illegible] miles.

So why change plugs after 10,000 miles of use in your family car?

There's a good reason according to experts. The 10,000 miles change recommendation is not actually based on the fact that spark plugs are "worn out" in the strictest sense after 10,000 miles of service.

This figure — selected after extensive spark plug life tests — merely represents a safety factor beyond which plugs may misfire under the sudden demands of peak acceleration or extremely heavy load.

It also represents the point at which gas economy begins to drop. In addition the car is harder to start, power is lost in passing.

A spark plug is considered worn out when it reaches the point where it is likely to misfire — regardless of its appearance. And contrary to popular opinion, misfiring doesn't necessarily mean the plug didn't create a spark. It means simply that the plug failed to ignite the gasoline properly — whether a spark was produced or not.

A new spark plug with the correct gap setting needs about 5,000 volts to fire. However, as the plug remains in service, constant heat and chemical attack plus electrical erosion cause the gap to become wider, thus increasing the amount of voltage to fire the plug.

Spark plug gap growth occurs at a rate of about .001 inch for each 1,000 miles of driving. Consequently a set of plugs that has been in service for 10,000 miles generally will have gaps that are about .010 inch wider than the original settings and higher voltage is needed to make them spark.

And, this is only for normal driving. Operating the engine at very high speed can decrease the amount of coil voltage available to fire the spark plugs by 30 to 40 per cent! Accelerating to pass on a highway may practically double the voltage burden on the spark plug.

That's why misfiring is first noticed while accelerating because it's here that the plug actually can require more voltage to produce a spark than the ignition system is capable of producing — especially if the plugs are badly worn.

Remember, as plugs remain in service more voltage is needed to make them spark. As the ignition system ages, its ability to produce high voltage lessens. If the point is reached where the spark plugs require more voltage to spark than the system can produce, the spark plugs misfire.

Safety Requires Check Of Power Steering

If your car is equipped with power steering you may think that this system is very complicated and must be serviced by highly skilled technicians using costly special tools.

This is not the case.

Granted, a power steering system is considerably more complex than a nonpower system. But, most power steering maintenance can be accomplished by the motorist or his service station operator. Special tools are not usually required.

At the heart of your car's power steering system is the power steering pump. This hydraulic pump merely supplies the pressure to turn your car's wheels when you turn the steering wheel. This pump rarely breaks down as long as you make sure its supply of power steering fluid does not get too low. Periodic checking of the fluid level is all that is necessary for regular maintenance of the power steering pump.

The other item that should be checked periodically is the belt that connects the pump to the engine. If this belt should break, your entire power steering system will cease to function immediately. This could be extremely dangerous if you are travelling at high speed on the freeway.

While you are checking the fluid level and the drive belts, check the hoses that connect the pump to the other components in the system. Hose connections should be tight and leak-free. Hoses should be firm and free of cracks. Leakage in the hoses of the system is the main cause of fluid loss, which in turn is the main cause of power steering troubles.

How can you tell if your power steering system needs attention? Usually the first sign is either an unusual noise (squealing, chattering or knocking sound) or a change in the "feel" of your steering (sluggishness, jerkiness, a tendency to pull to one side).

If any of these symptoms occur, you should waste no time in getting your system checked; early attention can prevent big problems later.

New Models To Have Better Gas Economy

Spokesmen for Canada's major automobile manufacturers said Monday that most 1975 automobiles will show improved gasoline economy, partly because of anti-pollution devices, but also because of general engine modifications.

Spokesmen for Ford Motor Co. of Canada Ltd., General Motors of Canada Ltd., and Chrysler Canada Ltd. were reacting to a report of the United States Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), last week that 1975 American autos will get about 13.5 per cent better gasoline mileage on the average, than 1974 models.

The improvement in the U.S. cars was attributed by the EPA generally to a range of engine modifications adopted in connection with the required anti-pollution systems.

Ted Elliot, chief engineer at the Chrysler plant in Windsor, Ont., said Canadian owners of 1975 models will reap the same economic benefits as their U.S. counterparts, but comparative, average mileage figures were not available because of different measurement factor

The EPA said Chrysler's new models averaged 13.6 miles a U.S. gallon compared with 1974's 11.9 miles, taking into account the expected sales of large, medium and small models.

The primary difference, Mr. Elliot said, was the difference in proportions of large, medium and small cars between Canada and the U.S., but the difference must also be measured for Imperial rather than U.S. gallons.

A six-cylinder 1975 U.S.-model Valiant would average 18 miles a U.S. gallon in city driving and 22 mile on the highway. Mr. Elliot said the Canadian equivalent for a 1975 model would be 21.6 miles an Imperial gallon in the city and about 26.4 miles on the highway.

A General Motors spokesman said Monday the EPA figures, which show GM recording the highest improvement rate, would be proportional in Canada.

The EPA results showed 1975 models averaged 13.5 miles a U.S. gallon compared with 16.5 miles in 1974. The spokesman said test figures for the Canadian average were not readily available.

Ford spokesmen said engineering changes, modifications at their assembly plants and a special program to certify 1975 model engines have permitted them to meet Canadian anti-pollution standards without installing the catalytic converter.

EPA tests showed Ford models registered 11.5 miles a U.S. gallon for 1975 models compared with 12.4 miles in 1974.

A company spokesman in Oakville, Ont., said the EPA results were valid, but the mix of small, medium and large cars in Canada is so drastically different they would not be directly applicable.

EPA results showed American Motors improved its mileage average to 16.9 miles a U.S. gallon this year from 14.5 miles in 1974, but plant officials in Brampton were not available for comment.

The EPA results showed the best fuel mileage performance of all cars tested was the Datsun B-210, which recorded 27 miles a U.S. gallon in simulated city driving and 29 miles in simulated highway driving.

Volkswagen averaged 22.9 miles a U.S. gallon on all 1975 models compared with 22.2 miles in 1974; BMW dropped to 14.8 from 17.5; Toyota dropped to 18.8 from 19.2; Volvo decreased to 15.6 from 16.6.

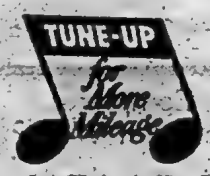
provincial highways, currently 60 miles an hour on regular highways and 70 miles an hour on controlled-access freeways, be lowered to reduce traffic deaths.

Advocates of lower speed limits quoted preliminary United States figures that seem to indicate a drop in highway deaths during the recent energy shortage when speed limits were reduced to 50 miles an hour.

Opponents of the idea say the reduced number of deaths is [illegible] a reduction in traffic volume than to lower speed limits, a conclusion the transport ministry report seems to support.

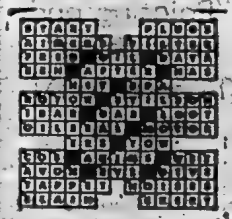
Speed Limit Stays Same

TORONTO (CP) — An Ontario government report released Monday says it is doubtful that reducing highway speed limits would reduce the highway death toll.



The report, prepared for Transport Minister John Rhodes by his department's safety section, says that speed is not necessarily an important factor in causing accidents. Road conditions, traffic volume and speed variance "may be more important," the report says.

However, speed was an important factor in the severity of road accidents.



The report follows widespread demands that speed limits va

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League Eastern Ontario Club

QUESTION: What is the best way of reaching Charlottesville, Va., and what are the main points of interest there?

ANSWER: The best route is by I-81 from the Thousand Islands Bridge to Staunton, Va., and I-64 east from there.

Historic Charlottesville, in the foothills of the Blue Ridge Mountains, was the home of Thomas Jefferson and James Monroe. Here is the University of Virginia, founded and designed by Jefferson and first governed by a board whose membership included Jefferson, Monroe and Madison, three of the first five men to become president of the United States.

In the town and surrounding countryside are numerous old homes and estates, many of which reveal Jefferson's architectural influence. Albemarle County is known for its horses, dogs and fox hunting and for its peach and apple orchards. Especially famous is the Albemarle Pippin apple.

In 1781 the British Colonel Tarleton raided Charlottesville in an attempt to capture Thomas Jefferson, then governor of Virginia, and the legislature, which had taken refuge there after being forced to leave Richmond. Capt. Jack Jouett was in a tavern in Cuckoo, 39 miles east, when Tarleton passed with a detachment of British cavalry. Suspecting the purpose of the raid, he rode to Charlottesville to give warning, arriving only a short time before Tarleton. Jefferson and most of the legislators escaped to Staunton, but seven who delayed their departure were captured.

Monticello, on SR53, three miles southeast, is one of the most imposing estates in Virginia. This was Jefferson's home from 1772 until his death in 1826. He began the mansion in 1769, and moved into the completed portion when his father's home, "Shadwell," burned that year. Two years later he brought his bride, Martha Wayles Skelton there. The mansion did not reach its present form until 1809. Jeffersons wine and beer cellars are restored and open.

Michie Tavern is 2¼ miles southeast on SR53, the road to Monticello. Legend has it that the main portion of the building was built by Patrick Henry's father, Major John Henry, in 1735. It was sold a short time later to his friend, John Michie who enlarged the dwelling and converted it into a hostelry. The Michie family moved the building to its present location and established the tavern which included among its guests Jefferson, Madison, Monroe and Lafayette. Of interest are the household inventions, among which are machines to peel and core apples and one of the two existing devices used to separate curds and whey in making cottage cheese. The ballroom, keeping hall, ladies' parlor bedroom and tap bar contain original furnishings of the period.

Plumptre Downcast

Poor Harvests Push up Prices

OTTAWA (CP) — The food prices review board said Friday that food prices will continue to climb this year because of poor harvests and the increasing cost of labor, packaging and fuel.

Chairman Beryl Plumptre said the board has had to revise earlier optimistic forecasts suggesting a possible cut in grocery costs.

By the end of the year, food bills would be roughly 15 per cent higher than they were in 1973.

She told a news conference following the release of the board's fifth quarterly report that consumers, corporations, unions and governments must exercise more restraint, spending within their means and buying only in proportion to increases in production.

Mrs. Plumptre said she had no pat answers to the increasing problem of rising prices.

But she urged consumers to cut down consumption of convenience foods, spend more time shopping and, if possible, to "go back to the old-fashioned way of food preparation."

At the same time, she again urged the government to reconsider putting an end to a five-cents-a-quart subsidy on fluid milk and to watch closely any increase in the cost of bread.

Mrs. Plumptre said she realized the government would be increasing family allowances and other social security payments made to provinces in line with increases in living costs. However, she said such indexing will not likely be enough to offset increases in the cost of basic foods such as bread and milk.

While the board made no recommendations in its report, Mrs. Plumptre said members of her organization had been looking into the practice of providing poor people with food stamps and of supplying free milk to school children.

The report itself said increases in the retail price of a number of raw materials have yet to be fully reflected in selling prices to consumers.

But such increases, together with substantial rises in wages and salaries, were putting pressure on production costs and would soon be felt in retail costs.

The rate of increase in food prices dropped to 13.2 per cent in August from 18.6 per cent in June. The board said it had expected the general drop in the rate of increase to continue.

Poor weather and unrelenting inflation had caused it to change its mind.

Weary... But Home Alive

"We'll never get out of this alive," Nicolas Ioannides, an Edmonton high school teacher, told his wife Ephi during the Canadian family's detention in war-torn Cyprus. When the family arrived at CFB Trenton Friday night, the father was rushed to Trenton Memorial Hospital — suffering from a brain tumor — while Mrs. Ioannides, Zenon, 6, and her three other children answered newsmen's questions surrounding the family's three-week ordeal in the hands of invading Turks. The Ioannides family was on a Cyprus vacation when war broke out between Turkish and Greek Cypriots. For story see front page, second section.

Fire Follows Arrest

HAMILTON (CP) — One of eight fires set in an east-end apartment building during the last week was ignited Friday, several hours after police had taken a man into custody and charged him with setting earlier fires in the same building. Robert Joseph Manion, 22, a tenant in the building, was charged with two fires set Thursday.

Reno Thugs Get Million

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Three men armed with revolvers and wearing Halloween masks robbed a downtown bank stocked with cash from gambling casinos of more than $1 million, authorities said.

Police said the men disappeared after leaving their getaway van across the street from the sheriff's office.

Food Production Curbs Said Crime

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP) — David Archer, president of the Ontario Federation of Labor, said today controls over food production are a "crime against humanity."

"We find it difficult to understand why in a period of extremely high prices, when people all over the world are crying for food it should be necessary to destroy any farm produce," he told the provincial council of the Hotel and Club Employees Union.

Mr. Archer said he favored orderly marketing procedures, but was particularly critical of reports the Ontario Egg Marketing Board is considering a law to restrict the number of hens as a means to avoid the embarrassing situation where 26 million eggs recently rotted in storage.

He suggested marketing boards examine their selling practices to see if consumers are getting an undue share of profits.

The Canadian government should also devise a plan to give fair returns to farmers for fairly-priced market produce.

"We were appalled at the destruction of 26 million eggs," he said. "We are not satisfied that destruction of the hens that laid those eggs is the answer to the problem."

Eight Hostages Held

Dominican Terrorists Threaten Executions

SANTO DOMINGO (AP) — Terrorists holding 8 United States embassy officials and seven others captive in the Venezuelan Consulate in this Dominican Republic capital said they will kill one hostage every two hours beginning today unless they get $1 million and freedom for all Dominican political prisoners.

U.S. Ambassador Robert Hurwich met outside the consulate with a priest and a television commentator, selected by the terrorists to negotiate their demands.

The terrorists threatened to blow up the consulate if their demands were not met.

Neither Hurwich nor the two negotiators would discuss their talks, but diplomatic sources said earlier that Venezuela has agreed to pay the ransom if the Dominican Republic releases the prisoners.

The terrorists demanded the ransom be paid by the U.S. government, which would require a departure from previous U.S. policy of rejecting all kidnap ransom demands.

The U.S. hostage was Barbara Hutchison, 47-year-old chief of the U.S. Information Service (USIS) in the Dominican Republic. She was seized by five armed men at about 11:30 a.m. Friday outside her office and driven the eight blocks to the Venezuelan consulate.

There, in an apparently co-ordinated operation, terrorists seized Consul Jesus Gregorio de Corral, a vice-consul, a priest, two secretaries, a woman, a nine-year-old girl and possibly others.

Nodule Is Cancerous

Betty Ford Has Right Breast Removed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The results of the biopsy on Betty Ford were unfavorable and an operation will remove her right breast, a White House spokesman said today.

President Ford was informed by the White House physician, Dr. William Lukash, about 8:30 a.m. and was expected to come to the hospital this morning, the spokesman said.

The surgery began shortly after 9 a.m. Navy Capt. William Fouty, chief of surgery at Bethesda Medical Center, headed the operating team.

The schedule called first for removal of a small nodule in the breast to determine whether or not it was cancerous.

An examination of a section of tissue was made immediately.

Shortly after 9 a.m., assistant press secretary William Roberts from the White House issued the following brief statement to reporters:

"The results of the biopsy performed on Mrs. Ford were unfavorable. An operation to remove her right breast is now under way."

Praise Hard to Come By

Ford Finds Economic Summit Spawns Criticism and Pleas

WASHINGTON (AP) — Presidential economic conferees appear to be wrapping up their meeting with Ford having heard much criticism but little praise, and more special pleading than disinterested advice.

At Friday's opening session Ford heard blunt advice that he come up with new policies and a fresh economic team. Easing some of the sting of criticism from Democrats, labor, young people, women, the poor, and consumer representatives were occasional expressions of thanks that the president had taken the trouble to hold the summit and participate personally.

By and large, Ford sat through presentations by representatives of special interest groups who tended to view America's grave economic problems in terms of the plight of their own constituencies.

Representative Sam Devine (Rep., Ohio) said at one point: "Everyone wants to exercise economy in every program except his own."

Carol Foreman, executive director of the Consumer Federation of America, told the president she went to a pre-summit conference on natural resources and found the objective was to find ways to lower prices, but discovered, as she saw it, that fellow conferees wanted to increase prices for natural gas, oil or whatever interest they happened to represent.

Ford, who displayed marathon endurance as more than half the crowd straggled away during Friday's day-long session, said: "This is a welcome breath of fresh air to have this frankness and candor."

Federal Reserve Board Chairman Arthur Burns said the easy money policies he heard recommended would fuel inflation and lead to even higher interest rates.

At the same time, Burns said there will be no credit crunch in our country."

Ford seemed receptive to appeals that some way be found to ease inflation's heavy pressures on the poor.

While no clear consensus emerged, there was wide agreement on the need for tax cuts in the lower income brackets and a federal job program for the unemployed.

Senator Edward Kennedy (Dem., Mass.) was among those urging tax breaks for the poor, telling Ford that "economics without justice is sheer nonsense."

Solomon Barge, a black representative of consumers, said: "The working poor have suffered enough. It is time for somebody else to bite the bullet."

While many industry representatives voiced agreement with aid to the poor and the jobless, most of them urged policies that would increase their profits by giving them relief from federal taxes or regulations. Time and again, they argued such moves would increase their productivity and thus lessen inflationary pressures.

More Political Clout Urged in Money Issues

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadian delegates are expected to push for a more powerful political body to deal with international economic issues at the International Monetary Fund (IMF) meeting next week in Washington.

Finance Minister John Turner, in statements at home and abroad, has consistently mentioned the IMF in urging more international co-operation to deal with such issues as massive oil debts of oil-gaining countries and the economic plight of the poor nations.

The IMF has had temporary committees of political leaders to tackle specific problems. The committees of 10 and later 20 members—dominated by the giant industrial countries—have worked on issues of monetary reform.

Work on technical details of international economic issues are directed by a permanent board of 200 senior civil servants from various countries.

A proposal on the agenda of this year's annual meeting is for establishment of the permanent group to provide political leadership on a regular, active basis.

Harvest Hampered by Lack Of Experienced Farm Help

By BRUCE RAMSON
The Canadian Press

Canadian agriculture is hampered by a chronic shortage of farm labor, particularly experienced workers, and the apparent solution—better wages and better working conditions—may mean increased food prices.

"The greatest shortage of farm labor is the second-most critical problem of the industry, after the level of income of farmers themselves," says Dr. Maxi Fraser, chief economist of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture (CFA).

Farmers offer a low level of wages for comparison with other industries and in most provinces they cannot afford to pay more, she said in an interview.

Long hours and absence of overtime and holiday pay or compensation are other serious obstacles to attracting workers.

A Cross-Canada Survey by The Canadian Press indicates the shortage of permanent workers is endemic on larger farms and in many areas there is an urgent need for seasonal workers.

Although mechanization of farms continues to advance, seasonal workers are needed for such things as tobacco, tomatoes, flowers and tobacco, particularly after students return to school in late August.

The survey indicates certain regions of Quebec, Ontario, Manitoba and Alberta face possible shortages of harvesters.

The federal government established farm labor pools in every province except Newfoundland in the spring. It also arranged for migrant workers to come from such areas as the Caribbean countries and Mexico to assist with tobacco, vegetable and cultivating—as well as harvesting.

In Alberta, where the labor shortage is compounded by high industrial wages and full employment, arrangements were made to bring farm workers from Japan and Europe as well.

Despite the seriousness, the problem affects only a minority of Canadian farms. Most are family operations, employing no outside help.

The 1971 census reported that of the country's 366,128 farms, only 35 per cent hired any paid workers that year and only five per cent had permanent employees.

The total number of paid farm workers in 1971 ranged from a low of 16,000 in January to a high of 161,000 in August and of these only 35,561 were permanent employees.

It is the larger operators—livestock producers, dairy farmers and fruit and grain growers—who are desperate for workers. Generally, they need experienced, skilled people, able to handle complex and costly equipment.

David Frunchak of Andrew, Alta., who raises hogs, said he has to get his hay in soon or lose a critical feed shortage this winter.

"I've got 6,000 bales, maximum—and $20,000 worth of equipment with no one to run it."

Dr. Barss of the CFA which made a detailed study of the farm labor situation in each province, said another problem is providing adequate accommodation, especially for temporary harvest workers.

"I don't see how we can hope to justify the cost of constructing buildings for such short use," she said. "But if a farmer hasn't adequate accommodation, he can't hire help."

Bill Bond, manager of the Canada Farm Labor Pool in Prince Edward Island, said accommodation for migrant workers is a problem, particularly in tobacco farms.

"I would say that two out of every three of these places are unfit for human living by ordinary standards," he said. Bunkhouses usually are herpes sheds with limited sanitary facilities.

But Mr. Bond said farmers usually are able to find transients to fill the unskilled jobs and the food generally is good on the farms.

Only Newfoundland requires its most common of farmers to pay the provincial minimum wage, $1.25 an hour. Farmers in other provinces are exempt from legislation regulating minimum wages, hours of work, overtime rates, weekly time off and vacations.

The hourly rate for unskilled, casual labor is between $1.75 and $2.17, depending on the size of individual farms, the region and the crop.

In New Brunswick, where potatoes are the main crop requiring workers, the usual rate is 75 cents an hour with a good harvester filling 80 to 100 barrels a day.

For a permanent farm worker who is married, the going rate in Saskatchewan may be up to $600 a month plus a house and such extras as free meat and potatoes. He is expected to work up to 70 hours a week.

Workers brought from other countries by the federal government are guaranteed a minimum weekly wage of $80 and part of their transportation and accommodation cost is paid.

Last year 1,018 foreign workers came to this country under such an arrangement and Canada Manpower officials estimated this year's total might reach 6,000.

However, many farmers interviewed for the CFA study said the crux of their labor problem is low wages which they cannot improve until they receive higher prices for their products.

Comments by Ontario farmers reported by the CFA study included:

—My biggest worry is the fact that the cattle is not prepared to pay for its food.

—Don't grow late crops that cannot be combined.

—Let the stuff rot and we'll get more for the little that is left.

In the Canadian Press survey, some farmers and officials thought high unemployment however, has been partially to blame for the difficulty in recruiting workers.

Richard Stocks, president of the British Columbia Federation of Agriculture, said some young people prefer to stay on welfare or unemployment benefits.

"Money is too darn easy to get," he said.

Geoff Wainwright, a farmer in the Victoria area, said unemployment benefits should not be paid to able-bodied workers during the seasons when they could be employed as farm laborers.

The lack of farm help was not expected to cause widespread crop losses, although some individual farmers might suffer, the survey indicated.

Tour in Progress

Junior Farmers Examine Quinte-area Operations

By CASH MAHAFFY
Staff Reporter

Twenty-six junior farmers from all parts of the province were treated to an efficient operation of Campbell Soup's mushroom growing operation near Wellington. Here plant manager Jos Karas explains technique to touring group. Group was on a week-long tour of farming and related operations that spent a busy 10 days in Hasting and Prince Edward Counties.

Tour organizers have crammed every day with a concentrated diet of practical information. For instance, the Wednesday timetable was:

— Up at seven and from their Belleville motel to the farm of Lyle Vanclief in Ameliasburgh, where techniques of hog and beef cattle raising were outlined.

— Next to the nearby farm of Alfred Calrns to hear about his drainage system and experience in the growing of white beans.

— Next to the Campbell Soup mushroom growing operation near Wellington, where techniques were fully outlined.

— Then to hear all about Picton farmer Bob Williams' swine operation, partnership arrangement and cropping program.

— It's 12.30 and the group gets 45 minutes to eat and drive to Hexler's cannery at Bloomfield for a plant tour and opportunity to see vegetable processing operations.

— On to Leavitt Brothers in Bloomfield to see more crop processing and discuss irrigation.

— Next to the Belleville Cheese Exchange to learn about its operation, the Dutch Clock Auction and storage facilities.

— Up Front St. to Alton Hadley Farm Equipment to hear about the current farm machinery situation.

— Forty-five minutes later they're at the farm of Alan and Grant Ketcheson, near Madoc to learn about their cropping program, free-stall dairy barn and farm business arrangement.

— Stomachs rumbling at 6 p.m., the 26 young farmers tour the Marmoraton Mining Company operation at Marmora.

— Back aboard the bus for the trip to Peterborough and, finally, a segregated dinner at Trent Motel.

But its not over yet. The final event of the day is a description of what the Ontario Conservation Authority does, particularly in relation to agriculture.

Shipping Delays Cut Grain Stocks

EDMONTON (CP) — Live grain stocks in elevators along stock feed manufacturers in the eastern Canada face a double-edged sword of possible misfortune, Robert Gamble of Montreal, president of the Canadian Feed Manufacturers Association, said Friday.

Mr. Gamelin, president of Ralston Purina of Canada, said the shipping remaining before freeze-up.

The western manufacturers are worried that a settlement of the grain handlers dispute at the West Coast will result in a huge movement of grain to Vancouver which may deprive eastern feed manufacturers of grain even when the Great Lakes problem is settled.

But Mr. Gamelin said farmers usually are able to find transients to fill the unskilled jobs and the food generally is good on the farms.

Only Newfoundland requires its most common of farmers to pay the provincial minimum wage, $1.25 an hour. Farmers in other provinces are exempt from legislation regulating minimum wages, hours of work, overtime rates, weekly time off and vacations.

Canadians Outline Scope Of Interest

VATICAN CITY, (CP-AFP) — Canada's delegates to the fourth world synod of Roman Catholic bishops, which opened here Friday, say they intend to concentrate on the position of the Roman Catholic Church's work in developing countries, and the roles of the laity and of women in the church, a spokesman for the group said.

Rev. Guy Poisson, one of seven consultants to the four Canadian delegates attending the synod, the group was most interested in assessing the role today, compared to the picture of the church presented 10 years ago after a similar meeting.

REPUTATION!
ELECTRIC MOTORS SALES & SERVICE (BELLEVILLE) LTD.
A name with a reputation. A good reputation for 29 years. However, a name which is long, cumbersome, and certainly not properly descriptive of our total operation. We have been in the industrial supply field for 13 years and yet, from our name, some people believe we are just in the electric motor business.
For these reasons we have made a name change effective October 1, 1974 to EMSCO LIMITED. Short, easily remembered and taken from our logo—E.M.S. & Co. Our name will change but our reputation will carry on.

Need for Restraint

Those beer ads are getting to Health Minister Lalonde. He would like to see them include people turning down a drink, or saying they have had enough and have to drive home.

It is a reasonable request, and one the beer companies would do well to heed if they are not to invite more specific advice on the subject.

The figures relating to impaired driving, as we did in this space recently, are not encouraging. There is a need too for stronger enforcement of the law where impaired driving is concerned. Drinking on the job, we are told, is becoming so prevalent that it will be "an uncontrollable monster in ten years."

For this reason alone there is a need for restraint where the image presented of the social aspects of drinking is concerned.

But even if beer commercials were to be banned, and there is no evidence of this, would it reduce the incidence of drinking?

If the banning of cigaret advertising is any criterion, the answer is no? Smoking is one category at least — among the young, and especially among young girls — has increased markedly. What is worse, a long-term effect this will have on the young people, and on their offspring. But studies by doctors in Ottawa say it will show up ultimately in increased incidence of lung cancer among women.

It is not a happy prospect. In fact it is downright dangerous. It seems to be part of the pattern of drift that is part of the freedom that young people have these days.

An Australian exchange student said in Peterborough recently that she preferred the discipline — based on the British system — of school to her own country.

Certainly there is not the same tight rein here, and it manifests itself in the academic failures and social ills of the contemporary scene: drugs, alienation, sloppy appearance and all the rest of it.

The tragedy is that there can be no turning back, no sudden opting for the "cracking of the whip" which the Australian girl said seems to have always come out of line. It has gone too far in the other direction for that.

Something for Everyone

When it comes to pop and rock music, the biggest reactionary of all is Soviet officialdom.

Pop music, according to the Soviet publication Literary Gazette, "is ready to bury the ancient culture of mankind — all its aspirations, all its moral experience and fruits of its spiritual creation."

Maybe they have a point. Pop, rock or whatever, has enveloped the young with its pulsating, raw thrust, casting aside the intricacies and refinements of the classics, supplanting the polish of the great symphonic orchestras by the harsh cannonades of the electronically-fired drums and guitars.

Well, not entirely. Now and again some newly-honed genius emerges among callow youths, to set his place on the concert stages of the world, at the piano or with silken bow drawn across the myriad tonal depths of the violin. In the schools, too, many a youngster does his thing with the classics: from Bach to Beethoven.

But there is a great deal though going for the pop crowd — and no more so than in the Russia that manages to escape the clutches of the Soviet censor. Or observe that much of the offerings of the innumerable groups around today — bearded, wild-eyed and gyrating though they may be — is great listening, request of genius.

When all is said and done, there is room for all tastes, amid the multi-faceted cultural streams of the seventies. There is something for everyone.

Rough Times for Investors

Raising of Capital Should Be Concern of Government

VINCENT EGAN
Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst
Thomson News Service

The boat rocked on Wall Street and Bay Street has gone up and down, while the political leaders of this country and the United States try to ignore it. We've taken a swat at it two ago. It appeared that the freezing point had come and that a recovery was under way.

The optimism originated at a news conference in a long, narrow room in the basement at the Chateau Champlain in Montreal.

From the back, a U.S. wire-service reporter asked David Rockefeller (chairman of Chase Manhattan Bank and probably the most influential businessman alive) if he thought that U.S. interest rates (prime rate might be cut to 10 per cent this year, from the present 11½ per cent).

Mr. Rockefeller said, in effect, that he hoped so. That was enough to send stock prices soaring on the Toronto and Canadian exchanges when a reporter in his hurry to get to a telephone to hasting news would pay promptly stimulate business spending.

But 12 per cent has continued to be the lowest business lending rate in the United States, hopes for a cut have dissipated, and stock prices have lost most of their gains.

What does government have to do with stock-market trends? The conventional wisdom is that the market anticipates the fiscal and monetary actions of investors and speculators. Politicians like to endorse what is in that view, and wish their hands of the responsibility for the ups and downs.

But the fact is that the stock market is a means of transferring capital for industrial expansion, and as such is important to the health of the economy.

And another fact is that wrong-headed, punitive attitudes toward the market, in this country, have been a virtually significant factor in the present lethargy of the stock market.

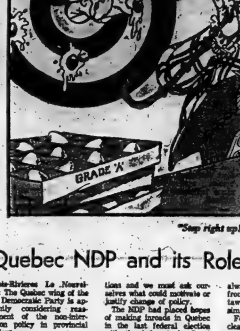
In 1970 the United States suddenly increased the rate of its capital-gains tax, under the Tax Reform Act of 1969. The following year, Canada made capital gains subject to personal income tax.

Both changes were largely politically inspired. In the U.S. it turned many investors away from the market and largely choked off the flow of capital to achieving capital gains.

And both lessened the relationship of risk and reward. For tax purposes, any gain that you might make when you risk hard-earned savings in an equity investment is taxed in much the same way as income earned from idle, steady employment.

It's time that government realized that investors have been punished enough.

There are plenty of reasons why the government should encourage the accumulation of capital that is necessary in productive enterprise. Here are two:



—Self-interest. Directly, the government collects nearly half of the net earnings of business, through the corporation tax. Indirectly, its share goes much higher when taxes on dividends, salaries and so on are included. A manufacturing industries, and jobs — we have the industrialized nation. It's a growing labor force. Local initiative Programs cost almost all the new entrants. Not a new business operation provides worthwhile, long-term work.

It's true that the Trudeau government has extended incentives to the processing and manufacturing industries, and announced the long-awaited use of natural resources in Canada.

But the treatment of investment profits discourages Canadians from putting up the risk capital without which many businesses cannot grow.

If it is to be useful to expect an end to the taxation of capital gains as income, then the government should at least offer tax incentives to encourage investors to re-invest the proceeds of the sale of stock.

That might at least slow down the current attrition of investment capital.

Quebec NDP and its Role in the Province

Trois-Rivieres Le Nouvelliste: The Quebec wing of the New Democratic Party is apparently considering reassessment of the non-intervention policy in provincial elections.

Henri-Francois Gautrin, president of the NDP-Quebec executive, said after a closed-door meeting in Montreal recently that the question could be on the agenda of the party's next provincial meeting.

NDP-Quebec had decided by a majority vote at its last convention that it would not participate in provincial elections and we must ask ourselves what could motivate or justify changes of policy.

The NDP had played hopes of making inroads in Quebec in the last three elections with the help of the Parti Quebecois. Unfortunately for the NDP, the PQ directive to followers to abstain from voting or to spoil ballots dashed all such hopes.

One does not have to be a magician to see that the NDP-Quebec is preparing a new revirement. Perhaps it would not appear to be an altogether logical move.

The Quebec socialists have always kept their distance from their big brothers in Ottawa in advocating policies similar to those of the PQ.

For this reason we do not clearly see what would be accomplished by the advent of this party onto the provincial battlefield when the area is already covered by the PQ.

If we eliminate the idea of vengeance, the only a avenue of action left to the NDP is a return to the federal orientation advocated by national party leader David Lewis.

But even here it is not certain that the NDP could harvest votes from the provincial electorate because Quebec socialists are loyal before all to the PQ.

The NDP-is an ideological rather than an electoral party. We have even seen last power-sharing finally harassed it. Mr. Lewis, who played an important role in Mr. Trudeau's minority government, threw it away on the altar of ideology.

NDP-Quebec is no different. What it is looking for is a place to ayoid its ideologies. By returning to the Quebec political scene, it simply risks sinking in the quicksand more, and nothing else.

Gardening and the Economics of the Seventies

Cornwall Standard-Freeholder

We notice an Ontario Hydro photo of gardens on portions of Hydro property in Metro Toronto. They appear quite attractive.

Hydro comes in for a lot of criticism, especially in this area. But this time the idea seems to be excellent. If it works out, that is.

The last important experience most Canadian towns and cities had with gardening was during the war, when there was an impressive drive to organize what were then called victory gardens. Individuals were encouraged by municipalities, manufacturing and various government bodies to take up pieces of land and grow vegetables.

When all the unpleasantness of the war was over, there does not seem to have been any special attempt to retain the contribution of the victory garden. Obviously they were not fully considered of victory, but they must have helped.

At present there is no war, so far as Canada is concerned anyway. But all the other aspects of crisis which generated interest in victory gardens then are present, and except the stimulus of wartime patriotism, in that special respect.

Food prices are certainly high, and spreading shortages suggest they will become higher still. There is a widespread interest in gardens and gardening, and there is the natural movement which some people, at least, are beginning to take seriously.

All the same time, there are large areas of land, some of it publicly owned and some of it in private industry, which is either entirely unused or used in some way which would not affect gardening enterprises—such as for power lines for example, or merely the accumulating of manufacturing units in industrial areas.

It looks like what is really needed is for the right people to get together and look at this before next spring generates a sudden wave of interest. A volunteer garden program needs to be organized well in advance if it is to succeed.

The Communist World as Seen in Perspective

The Christian Science Monitor

It is wise for the West to recognize the apparent strengths of China and the Soviet Union but reckless to cite them as good examples without a mammoth grain of salt.

For the achievements of totalitarian states cannot be separated from their antidemocratic purposes and practices.

Thus China's repression of religious freedom and efforts at thought control must not be minimized though members of a recent theological conference in Belgium looked to China for possible lessons for Christianity.

The need for a wary perspective had previously been emphasized by President Ford's simplistic reference to China's economic progress and disciplined youth as a challenging model for Americans. It would be tragic if such comments were to be failed into forgetting the human and political evils imposed by totalitarianism's methods in achieving such goals.

The riskiness of looking to the East for instructions is vividly illustrated when not the achievements but the misdeeds of totalitarianism are used to justify similar misdeeds. President Ford appeared to lapse into this attitude at his press conference when he cited the activities of Communist nations as he condoned the present military dictatorship administration's covert efforts to "destabilize" the elected Allende government in Chile. The United States should not find its examples in totalitarian nations but in the history of its own best efforts a practice its freedom-based principles.

Entertainment's Role In Educational Television

By DON O'HEARN
Queen's Park Bureau
Thomson News Service

TORONTO — When the government first went into educational television in the late sixties there were cynics who had their doubts.

Their main doubt was that the government would be able to keep to education.

The feeling was that there would be no irresistible temptation to get into entertainment programming and possibly from there into indirect political usage.

To date we haven't seen the second fear so we assume the first.

The Ontario Educational Communications Authority, with Channel 19 in Toronto and soon to become a network, now dips into its fall schedule.

And it is very much stressing entertainment.

There's a nightly current affairs show, a nightly rock program, a daily show of selected other television programs, various old movie programs, including one for Thomas (It was OECA that televised a live strip show last New Year's Eve) and a roster of other programs which are decidedly entertainment, though with some gimmick to make them "educational."

This trend to entertainment is quite intentional and is demanded by OECA.

Jim Hanley, a young former teacher who is in charge of programming and who has had some notable success as a television producer, says he is determined to make learning fun.

"I'm a firm believer in education being a pleasurable experience. Education to me has to be agreeable," he says.

But where does education stop and entertainment begin?

Everything that is on television, of course, is in some context educational.

But is it the job of a government television organization charged with the responsibility of providing educational programming to provide old movies and rock shows?

Or should it be providing more pure education?

Certainly it was the intent of the legislature that the latter would be the objective.

And despite the defiance of OECA one has to suspect that its shift to emphasis on entertainment has been fostered more by desire for higher audience ratings than a zeal for better education.

Language Hassle in Quebec

Sherbrooke La Tribune: Those who think that the government of Premier Robert Bourassa plans to abolish or curb its language legislation in the light of promises made by certain groups or mass protests had better take heed.

The legislation making French the province's official language was passed July 31 in an ambience of democracy that listens and responds.

Education Minister Francois Cloutier has already set the wheels of the new law in motion before it was even passed. Shortly we will all know the names of the new language commissioners, the members of the language boards.

The government decided against wind and tide to pass the legislation. It deliberately proceed to a trial-and-error situation rather than a rear past position. Bill 22 has already produced results.

This intransigent attitude is probably more shocking than the contents of the new legislation itself but those who feel themselves injured by the new law will not remain silent.

The legislation is far from perfect. It has been opposed in almost all briefs submitted to the Quebec national assembly committee studying the legislation.

It could be foolish to believe in the magic or new legislation and this law will not be the exception. It will begin with a wave of assaults and "amendments."

More amendments, still, sooner and more radical be required to get French installed in all sectors of public life in the province.

We must go from intuitive appreciation of threats to the French language and culture to an intellectual comprehension of all factors involved in the situation.

From comprehension and apprehension there is room for intelligent trade, shows of power, rhetoric and unbalanced positions.

The problem will not be solved in a mood of negligence.

Those who want a French province had better not abandon a superficial comedy which brings to mind last year's St. Jean Baptiste Day parades.

Theme Fit for Comic Opera

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

Mr. Beeson's letter in your issue of the 20th makes interesting reading.

To give him full credit, he admits that in a world where millions are starving, and housewives are getting more and more difficult time to feed their families amid skyrocketing prices, it is fairly unfortunate that millions of dollars should be spent, and millions more should be destroyed, just to keep the price high for the few.

In fact he suggests that it would not be unwise for Gilbert and Sullivan.

In his final line he uses the expression, "Ripoff."

To compare eggs to shiny, pricewise, is hardly a helpful gesture, we do not feed our children on whisky, Mr. Beeson.

Now, the price of eggs is up another five cents, is this another "Ripoff?"

It has been suggested that we don't understand the finer workings of these things, but we're learning Mr. Beeson. Yes; we're learning that we do not like what we're learning. We're learning fast and we do not find it comic.

While we're learning how egg marketing and similar boards, set up under the Government that we must elect to govern us, a comfortable majority, really work to protect consumers?

What we are being taught, every week we are shown, may, or may not, ensure another comfortable majority, next time around.

If the surplus eggs had been processed, and distributed to starving kids somewhere, I for one would not have complained, we can find the money to fight a war in Korea, we can't we?

Let's make us mad enough, and then we'll see how many people find the result "comic." Yet Mr. Just made me mad enough!

Today in History

Canada announced she would go it alone, if necessary, on construction of the St. Lawrence Seaway 22 years ago, in 1951. After years of indecision on the giant project, the United States was spurred into action and agreed to join in building the seaway which allows ocean ships to sail into the heart of the continent. The seaway was opened in 1959.

Italian scientist Louis Pasteur died

Christian Philosopher Lecturing at Kingston

By Dr. GORDON C. SMITH

If people do not live as they believe, they will eventually believe as they live, suggested in this the phenomenon of the drug-culture and the increase in complete sexual promiscuousness. To explain the number of "turned-on" young people drifting, dropping out, moving on, existentially only for kicks, and who can be squeezed out at today, cool-heads, non-producers, untrusted.

What a person believes certainly does matter. It has social consequences. If my belief is of one kind, it may lead me to forsake the materialism of society for the contemplative life of a commune. If my belief is of another kind, I may go to Egypt to prepare for war against the State of Israel, for the glory of Allah and his prophet Mohammed.

However, my belief is actually of another kind, in succession from one who birthed to write, "That which was from the beginning, which we have heard, which we have seen with our eyes, which we have looked upon and handled with our hands, concerning the word of life — the precious also to you, so that you may have fellowship with us; and our fellowship is with the Father and with his Son Jesus Christ. And we are writing this that our joy may be complete." (I John 1:1-4).

What has happened to the quick obvious from that definition?

"Part of the weakness of the Christian movement in our generation", says Dr. Elton T. Trueblood, distinguished American philosopher, "has been the relative lack of emphasis upon belief. There are three areas that must be cultivated if any faith is to be a living reality: faith; the inner life of devotion; the intellectual life of reflection, thought; and the outer life of human service."

Trueblood continues, "There is no doubt as to which of these has been most neglected in our time. Christian books, packed with prayer and worship have been plentiful; books urging men and women to tasks of mercy have been abundant; but good books helping people to arrive at sound conclusions have been scarce."

However, some preachers and authors are tough-minded in matters of belief. The response has been impressive. Indeed, the tide is turning. It is important for that what is, on the whole, the best working crowd in his search for identity of meaning. It is vitally important to determine what current books are the great irrefutable arguments of love and death.

I suggest that, if possible, you plan to attend at least some of Elton T. Trueblood's four public lectures at Queen's Theological College, Kingston, October 15 through 17. And why not place an order for his book, "A Place To Stand", Harper and Row, Publishers?

If you have more than a notion that you would find the difficulties of unbelief greater than the difficulties of belief, after all.

Churches Keep Tab On Thieves

VICTORIA (CP) — Your church may have come under electronic surveillance.

It may range from a relatively simple closed circuit television camera to a highly expensive and sophisticated timelapse camera, capable of taking pictures in the dark.

Western Nova Guard Patrol Ltd. specializes in such equipment and manager Barry Lehna said more churches are becoming interested in surveillance to guard against theft and vandalism.

"People are going back to the basic arts now," he said, "and anything not nailed down in a church is likely to be taken."

Thieves also hit poor boxes and collection baskets, but Mr. Lehna said vandalism is probably a greater theft, since people seem to take delight in breaking into churches, overturning pews, throwing cans around and generally creating mayhem.

Other companies using the electronic facilities include banks, department stores, restaurants and shops.

Mr. Lehna and his staff of 42 handle electronic and physical checks for about 300 businesses in Greater Victoria.

Included in the electronic equipment available are burglar alarm systems and in-the-store anti-theft devices.

However, Mr. Lehna confessed that the biggest dollar loss to merchants is theft by employees.

Renegade's "Silent" Auction

The "selling out" sale at The Renegade is now in nothing any other sale ever held on Front Street.

The three-day auction which began Thursday has been established by Jim Carr, who is vacating the premises with Judy.

The items for auction come primarily from the Johnny Goodwin Lyman estate in Barbados. Rather than sell them individually or at separate auction, Mr. Carr decided to hold a silent auction.

Posted on a large board is the bidding system, which keeps track of the latest bid on each item. Buyers, who each have a number, place their bids on slips of paper, and submit them to Mr. Carr, who changes figures on the board as bids are raised, over the three days.

Not your everyday auction — and not your everyday pieces for sale. Included in the Lyman estate are paintings and drawings by Lyman himself, and by his friend Sir Mathew Smith, whose painting "Boston Baby!" is expected to go for a large sum.

On most items Mr. Carr has placed a ticket estimating their value. A sapphire ring, for example is worth approximately $4000. A string of orginated pearls has a certified value of $1,500 and is expected to sell for near that price.

The room is lined with rare and beautiful things, ranging from ebroidered silk shawls to coins, crystal, and furniture. Particularly attractive are a collection of old Persian plates thought to be over 700 years old, and a shawl inlaid with silver.

Mr. Carr came by this collection by chance, when one of his buyers heard about the Lyman estate being for sale in the Barbados, bought what he could, and brought it back to Belleville.

"If this auction is the success I think it will be, we'll try to hold this type of sale more often," says Mr. Carr.

Today at 12.30 p.m. he began to close the bidding, working across the board column, until the 350 items are sold to the highest bidders by 5.30 p.m. On Sunday, he'll open to let successful bidders pick up their prizes, and by Monday, the Belleville Renegade will be closed, after a year of operation.

The immediate response has been excellent, according to Mr. Carr, who thinks that Friday night and Saturday morning will be the busiest time.

Although he is closing this shop, he'll continue to run The Renegade on Highway 2 west of Trenton. At the moment he's building a home on top of the store for himself and his wife Joyce, and their two sons Chris and Mark.

Women's Study Guild Learns About Leisure

"Leisure - the subtle revolution," and "Retirement" were the two topics covered at the Women's Study Guild's September meeting at the home of Sadie Reynolds.

As leisure has expanded and moved into the area of shorter work week, automation, affluence and the lengthening life span, we have more "free time" than ever before in human history.

One estimate predicts that by the year 2000 15 per cent of the population will be employed and providing for the other 85 percent. While work is a productive activity, leisure becomes a consumer activity.

Many North Americans, brought up to believe in the work ethic, are emotionally unprepared for today's leisure hours said Lorne Ellis, one of the program convenors.

Charlotte Lockyer, the other convenor, spoke of three types of retirement compulsory, by choice and for health reasons. Counselling is extremely necessary as many face the psychological impact of retirement.

Good planning in preretirement years is essential said Mrs Lockyer, so that people can approach retirement with a positive attitude.

Georgina Meikle presented a short devotional during the meeting. Hostesses were Mildred Armstrong and Enna Maybee.

The Consumer, Sharon Airhart, Smokestacks, Human Variety

A riddle: what substance does every person rich or poor, consume daily in a great quantity asleep and awake?

The easy answer: air.

As consumers of air - even though it's one of the few things for which we don't need to pay - we all have some rights over its quality.

You remember: three years ago, in the heyday of "involvement" (that was before the world's establishment created inflation to get our minds off war and starvation) we called it "pollution".

Everybody talked about it and a lot of people did something about it. You didn't dare run your car in the morning to warm it up and defrost the windows the easy way: the neighbourhood vigilante committee would have been on your back instantly. And offending smokestacks were regularly reported to the proper government agency.

Lately, though, our pockets have been of more concern to us and we almost forgotten about the eco-system and all those new words we flashed around at cocktail parties.

Almost forgotten, that is. We may be ignoring industrial smokestacks, but we're beginning to be aware of a different kind of smokestack: the human kind.

Non-smokers know already that airtoxic, railroads and some highway buses have areas designated for smokers and areas for non-smokers. You can't smoke in most doctor's offices these days and Belleville General Hospital takes a positive approach with its signs: "Thank you for not smoking in patients' rooms".

The Consumers' Association of Canada reports that an increasing number of restaurants are designating areas for smokers and areas for non-smokers. Personally, I think smokers ought to be banned from restaurants, period). They can't taste the food anyway.

I once was honored to attend a dinner prepared by Canada's most famous chef - his name escapes my memory, his face never has - who demanded that the female guests wear no perfume and no lipstick and that smoking be banned before and during dinner.

That chef's reasons for banning smoking were based on taste, not health - more often, recently, smoking bans or limitations are based on the rights of the non-smoker.

The CSA reports that experiments have shown that 30 minutes in a room with smokers increases the non-smokers heart rate, blood pressure and the amount of carbon dioxide in its blood.

It's really a matter of health, then, for non-smokers to speak for their right - perhaps the most essential of rights - clean air.

Feminist Joins French Cabinet

PARIS (Reuter) — A striking 57-year-old woman who made her name as a crusading journalist has become France's first secretary of state for women's affairs. Her task is to get a better deal for women.

She is Francoise Giroud, a writer in the left-leaning magazine L'Express, who has joined a conservative government to pursue her long fight for women's rights.

Her aim is to integrate women into French life so completely that there will be no need for a women's liberation movement.

"Women represent one-third of France's work force and most of the country's economic activity depends on them," she said.

Mrs. Giroud said many problems need to be settled in a country where women have been held back and treated as members of a lower caste.

French women were only given the right to vote after the Second World War.

Despite the adoption of a law in 1972, women still do not get equal pay in jobs they share with men and 50 per cent get only the minimum basic salary for French workers, she said.

President Valery Giscard-D'Estaing believed Mrs. Giroud was the right person for the post he was creating but male pressure within the government was so strong that he first appointed to it a request by Prime Minister Jacques Chirac that her rank should be reduced.

Mrs. Giroud refused the offer and wrote an account of what happened in L'Express, suggesting that had she accepted the lesser post she might have been expected to make coffee for the ministers.

Giscard backed down in the face of Mrs. Giroud's determination. For she is a real fighter. She left school at 14 to become a salesgirl in a bookstore. At 16 she was a film script-girl and at 21, France's first female assistant film director.

At the beginning of the Second World War, she became a reporter and joined the French resistance. She was imprisoned by the Nazis and when France was liberated she was awarded the Resistance Medal for her courage.

After the war, she helped found the successful women's weekly Elle, which she later left to start L'Express with the gifted and ebullient Jean-Jacques Servan-Schreiber.

Mrs. Giroud does not like to be described as a women's liberationist, but she sees herself as a feminist.

She said she is not a women's libber because she likes men, loves cooking and fashion and accepts her role as a woman, on condition that she does not suffer discrimination. Help for women will in turn be beneficial to men, she said.

"We want to be fully ourselves and impose our values on society but we have no intention of waging war on men.

Underlining her lack of political ambition she said, "If I accomplish what I set out to do there won't be any need in feminism my ministry."

Mrs. Giroud has no intention of remaining a minister.

She recently stated that according to law she must renounce her job at L'Express.

"From now I will be on leave and it's a special way of taking holidays."

Christmas Will Cost More

Robert Weill, new president of the Canadian Toy Manufacturers' Association, checks Christmas line decorations at Double-Gie of Canada Ltd. in Toronto. Mr. Weill says Christmas toys and decorations will cost up to 25 per cent more than last year because of higher costs of raw materials, new government regulations and the high cost of money. (CP Photo)

'Toys More Expensive'

TORONTO (CP) — Christmas toys and decorations will cost 20 to 25 per cent more than last year, says Robert Weill, president of the Canadian Toy Manufacturers Association.

Mr. Weill, vice-president and general manager of Double-Gie of Canada Ltd., blamed scarcity and higher costs of raw materials, new government regulations and the high cost of money.

He said bilingual packaging regulations have added to costs and caused some export problems. "Paint costing 70 cents a pound is up to $1 a pound. The regulations, originally intended only for the food and drug industry, have been extended to all packaged goods."

One Toronto company has eliminated writing on such toys as dump trucks, thus also avoiding the difference of terminology between Canada and Britain.

Mr. Weill said the industry has also been hurt by a temporary lowering of tariffs by the federal government and what he terms an unfair application of federal sales tax.

Although it is a popular way to fight inflation, Mr. Weill said lower duties force manufacturers to re-examine import policies and perhaps sacrifice Canadian production to cheaper foreign toys.

The said the 12-per-cent federal sales tax is applied to imported toys when they enter the country before importers' profit and overhead are added to the cost.

But Canadian manufacturers have to pay the sales tax on a price which includes their overhead and profit, thus adding to the final price paid by the consumer.

Although toy-related accidents have never been serious, he said, manufacturers have established a safety code to eliminate such dangers as flammable materials, sharpness, and toxicity in paints and lead.

But when a manufacturer buys expensive non-flammable materials, the consumer pays for it, he said.

While advertising is necessary to permit sufficient volume to make cheaper toys possible, Mr. Weill said, "it is never our intention to influence the children."

The parents must be the contact for any purchases."

About 12,000 people are employed in the toy and decorating industry which has sales of about $180 million annually.

'School Plays Are Garbage' —Kids Need Creative Drama

CALGARY (CP) — The school day, normally the climax of a year - long drama class, is usually "garbage," says the president of the Canadian Child and Youth Drama Association.

"Too much emphasis is usually put on the school production and not enough on developing the children," said Peter McWair in an interview. "We're interested in child development, not in making little actors."

"Even when a production comes off well, it's not necessarily the best thing for the kids involved. I've seen some fantastic Grade 1 performances but you could almost see the teacher back there, pulling the strings. The kids' onstage were being manipulated just like puppets, with very little room for self-expression."

Traditional drama education can do a great deal of harm to children, he said.

"A child can have his ideas crushed by an insensitive leader who superimposes his ideas as being better than those of the child. The potential for damage here is great, because we're dealing very much with the emotional side of children."

The CCYDA is promoting techniques such as improvisation and "free movement" to emphasize the individual imagination.

"A creative drama class will probably be the first situation a child ever experiences where he cannot do anything wrong. At the end of the class, he will be pleased to think he's done everything 'right' and in the meantime he has been encouraged to think independently and creatively."

An example is the traditional classroom exercise of imitating an elephant.

If you give children this exercise, almost everyone will clasp his hands together, dangle them in front of him like a trunk and lumber around the classroom.

"This is because the teacher has shown them—Let's be an elephant like this'—instead of just suggesting the idea of being an elephant.

"As far as I'm concerned, if there are 30 kids in the classroom, there are 30 'right' ways of being an elephant. One could be an angry elephant, another an elephant with a lopsided head, another a pink elephant, another a sexy elephant—sure why not?

"What's needed is a bit more flexibility. Why, for example, do you have only three little piggies in that particular play? I'd make it three or four or five little piggies, and give each one cousins, so that no little piggies get left out."

Part of Mr. McWair's job as CCYDA president is to tour classrooms, demonstrating techniques that teachers can use.

The CCYDA offers a library of articles to teachers with particular needs or problems in creative drama. It publishes a newsletter and sponsors an annual summer school at the University of Calgary.

Successful Living

You Can Profit From Stress

By JOSEF CLARK

"Stress Without Distress".

Did you think all stress was harmful? It is not. In Dr. Hans Selye's new book, which he considers his swan song, he undertakes to sum up all the findings about the meaning of stress, to which he has devoted a lifetime of research and interpretation.

I met this remarkable and unassuming man, Hans Selye, a year ago, when he addressed the McGill Society in Montreal on "The Stress of life". That day he won our hearts with his close-knocker, his cigarettes to share with us a secret of successful living, and the twinkling humor which had a way of popping out from between the suppression of some very serious ideas. How he has put those ideas into the kind of language which even person like me can understand and apply.

Having discovered that our bodies produce similar basic reactions to a great host of events — physical, mental or emotional — he proceeds to discuss ways in which we can mend the events with best advantage to ourselves.

We don't want life to be completely calm; we want the good things to happen — even if they do produce stress — which Dr. Selye calls "the spice of life". Without stress we would be a vegetable or dead. We like and profit by the good stresses; but even they can give us a heart attack if we don't cope with them properly.

Coping may call for a challenging adjustment, or open rebellion.

The body is so engineered that we are able to make remarkable adjustments to life's situations such as learning to live with someone whose ideas or mannerisms get on our nerves. Also, the body can build up remarkable defence against physical disease.

Dr. Selye makes the point, however that the individual ability to live with such adjustments does have its limits. If the strain and stress becomes too great or is extended over too long a period of time, the body gives up or the emotions are exceeded. The worm has turned!

Dr. Selye tells you what to do if you are stymied by a problem, why procrastination is dangerous how to enjoy leisure, why aimlessness causes distress, the relationship between stress and aging, a sense of security and self-esteem, to cushion you against the hurts and frustrations no human being an avoid. Dr. Selye's motto is: "earn the neighbor's love."

What I enjoy most about the book is the philosophy he works out, which he calls "altruistic egotism." This means deliberately helping others in order to gain their good will and trust for your good. This board of good will gives you full life.

And he supplies us with a prescription for enjoying a

Ann Landers

Dinner Table Rules Cut Down Bickering

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: The letter from Boxing Brenda prompted me to write. I had the same problem until I finally got smart four years ago. Our dinners were a horror. Every night there was a fight all the table and somebody cried. My husband was constantly carping at the children, correcting their manners. But worse yet, the children used discretion as a table sensation. The quarreling and sometimes punching could not. Someone always managed to spill something and when I say mealtime was a nightmare, you can believe it.

Then I decided I'd had it. I set the family down and made a new set of rules. Discretions would be family-talk time and there would be no tattling of any kind. Also, if my husband felt the need to correct a child's table manners he would do so in an objective manner and not attack the child, but merely suggest. He also reached across the table but ask that the potatoes be passed, or that Susie not talk with a mouth full of food. I made it clear that anyone who broke the rules would have to leave the table. (Which, I noticed cost him dearly.)

From that day on, dinnertime has been a pleasure. We are not only a happier but a healthier family. I'm sorry I didn't think of the new system sooner.—Mrs. It's a Beautiful Day

Dear Peace: Beautiful is right. I hope thousands of parents will take a page from your book. It's an excellent solution to a common problem.

Dear Ann Landers: The old virginity bit—to lose or not to lose, that is the question. Here's a word to those jilted, heartsick dames who are sorry they gave in because afterwards all the magic was gone. What about the dames who waited for marriage, and then all the magic was gone? You don't think magic is real, do you?

Look at the millions of married couples who never loved each with each other. I'll bet some of them were virgins. I'll be boneyroom—both of 'em! The real reason most guys drop the girl after the Preview of Coming Attractions is that some men might think how nice it is arrange sex—given that he has or, heaven forbid, know what it's all about. In self-defence, he looks for a shrinking violet, someone he can "teach" and "be in charge of." Such a female is less threatening. In the meantime, the "why did I do it" daily is agonizing over her guilt because that's how society says she is supposed to repent for her "sins."—A Witness

Dear Witness: You make some valid points, but insofar as the central issue is concerned, the real evidence is on the other side.

And where do I get it? From hundreds of girls who have also been "witnesses." I've had a tremendous number of letters from deflowered teen-agers who wish they had said no—and who would give anything if they could turn the clock back.

'Wall-to-wall Cops' Predicted When Indians Reach Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP) — Tight security has been ordered for the headquarters of the Indian affairs department during next week's demonstration by native people.

"It'll be wall-to-wall cops," said one spokesman for the department.

The department says it has no reason to believe that the native people, seeking among other things better housing, education, economic development and prison and law reform, will become violent.

"But if any building is to be occupied then we are a natural target," said one official.

A little more than a year ago young Indian militants occupied the headquarters for 24 hours protesting conditions on reserves.

There have been conflicting statements made by leaders of the Native People's Caravan since it started out from Vancouver en route to Ottawa. Some say it will be a peaceful gathering on Parliament Hill Monday; others say it could be a violent one.

Caravan leaders are blaming the government for the confusion and insisted Friday that the demonstration would be peaceful.

But reports that Louis Cameron, a leader of the Ojibwa Indians, threatened violence if demands were not met has prompted city police and the RCMP to prepare for the worst.

The RCMP will be on Parliament Hill Monday for the opening of Parliament and ready to deal with any emergency. The Mounties also have volunteered their services elsewhere, including Indian affairs headquarters.

The confusion surrounding the caravan also has put Indian Affairs Minister Judd Buchanan on an uncomfortable spot.

Shortly after he took office, Mr. Buchanan said he would not negotiate with any native group that was armed. He also insisted he would negotiate only with elected Indian officials.

It is not clear whether the Native People's Caravan has the backing of any national or provincial native group.

There are a number of Indians taking part in the caravan who hold elected positions, including Mr. Cameron.

But the Native Council of Canada has said it is not officially connected with the caravan. Nor has any national or provincial Indian brotherhood given the demonstrators their blessing.

Indian Leader Denies Threat to Carry Bombs

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Louis Cameron, Ojibwa Warrior Society leader, Friday denied threatening the members of an Ottawa-bound native caravan would invade Parliament with bombs strapped to their legs if their demands were not met.

He accused the press in Canada of a conspiracy to destroy the Indians' aims.

Mr. Cameron said the Thursday news story which referred to caravan members as a "suicide squad" was an attempt to discourage would-be Indian supporters.

The press "is trying to say that if you join the struggles of the native peoples, if you recognize native peoples as brothers and sisters, you are committing suicide," he told about 150 persons at the London Public Library.

He compared the Indians' struggle to that of Quebec separatists.

"The history books have been wrong," he said. "Their (the Quebecois) struggle is not on language or churches, but on lives, families, homes and land. They are poor people who want to be treated like human beings."

Sharp Says He Favors TV Coverage of House

OTTAWA (CP) — It won't happen quickly, but Parliament may be opened to television cameras.

Mitchell Sharp, the new government House leader, says he will revive the issue of parliamentary reform during the throne speech debate which follows the formal opening of Parliament Monday.

And better communications to brighten the image of the Commons will be one of his main goals.

"Personally, I favor the idea (of televised proceedings) in principle," he said in an interview.

"But the question is: What limits you put on it? Do you stop at Question Period, limit debates to major events like the budget, or just throw it wide open to everything?"

At present, television cameras are admitted only for the formal opening when MPs Senators and invited guests gather for the speech from the throne.

Mr. Sharp said MPs seem to agree reform is needed to make the Commons work more effectively and this could lead to a concensus on what to do about television cameras.

Initially, he will simply raise the reform issue for members to think about, partly because the waiting backlog of urgent leftover and housekeeping business will keep the Commons busy at least until Christmas.

Consultations with opposition House leaders will come later and the issue may be referred to a House committee for action when "some chance for progress" is established, Mr. Sharp said. "We want to proceed by concensus."

Ex-ministers' Reactions Vary Widely

OTTAWA (CP) — The adjustment from cabinet minister to ordinary backbencher apparently may prove too frustrating for Robert Stanbury.

One of four MPs banished in August from Prime Minister Trudeau's cabinet, he said in an interview he is concerned about functioning effectively in his new position.

Unlike two of his colleagues in the same position, Mr. Stanbury does not rule out the possibility of resigning his Commons seat if he finds himself trapped into back-bench ineffectiveness.

In contrast, Stanley Haidasz says he will participate fully in parliamentary activities, despite his demotion.

Herb Gray, meanwhile, bows to work on a variety of topics, but won't "necessarily" toe the party line at all times.

Dr. Robert McClure, 73-year-old former moderator of the United Church in Canada, stands outside a hospital in Malaysia where he worked with the Sea Dayak people. Dr. McClure says Canadians can learn much from the Sea Dayaks who were, until only 20 years ago, among the fiercest and most primitive headhunters in the world. (CP Photo)

One-time Headhunters Example Of How to Live in Friendship

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — Dr. Robert McClure, the 73-year-old former United Church of Canada moderator, has slowed little since retiring from 24½ years in the North Borneo jungles.

He still startles a news conference.

At the recent 48th general Mennonite Church conference here where Dr. McClure was a guest speaker, he burst into an interview room, shook hands, collected names and launched into a half-hour monologue on his recent adventures.

After 40 years in China, more than a dozen in India and assorted world trips, Dr. McClure, thought of by many as Canada's foremost medical missionary, describes himself as a "front chaser of adventure."

"I've never looked on my medical education as anything other than to help me be useful in other parts of the world."

Since completing his term as moderator, Dr. McClure has worked in a 77-bed Malaysian jungle hospital among the Sea Dayak peoples, until only two decades ago among the most fierce and primitive headhunters in the world.

For centuries the Sea Dayaks took heads because of tradition, but a brush with civilization and a few courageous missionaries taught them a new life-style, said Dr. McClure. Canadians can learn much from them — peace, honesty and how to cope with high-density living. He was surprised on his return to Canada to see children quarrel on a bus.

"For 1½ years I had never seen kids squabble. You never hear it. It isn't done. These are the most peaceable people in the world.

The 24-inch machetes carried by everyone over the age of eight, once used for cutting heads, now are used for whittling and carving dugout canoes.

The people of Sarawak are experts in high-density living, said Dr. McClure. Their longhouses, "sort of Mish-ears yet on edge," average 36 families, the largest dwelling a quarter-mile long housing 80 families.

"They've been living this way for 400 years. They actually have peacefulness in high density and, let's face it, our high density is not that hot."

Dr. McClure's work in Sarawak included male and female sterilization as the tribal peoples were eager to hold down their population.

He also was involved in agricultural projects, including the planting of a strain of rice which can multiply yields tenfold.

But Dr. McClure's biggest concern remains the disparity between rich and poor nations.

"There's a chance 85 per cent of the world will not survive be happy with 30 per cent of the world's goods—or contented. The 'have' is shrinking too much for us to continue the way we're going. The people won't tolerate oppression by white people of the world and they can make A bombs too."

Christian missionaries are constantly challenged by people overseas wanting to know if they have anything to do with the making of atomic bombs, where they are dropped, placement of nuclear submarines or the multinational corporations that swamp these little countries, he said.

When Travelling in Africa, Never Let Campfire Go Out

SALISBURY, Rhodesia (CP) — With the approach of summer here an ancient African travel custom is going to be the cause of numerous grass fires in the open country.

The tradition says that a camp fire must never be totally extinguished. The reason being that there are other travellers on the road who could put the fire to good use.

Unfortunately the unattended fires often spread to the tinder-dry grass causing fires that can spread for miles.

Insurance companies benefit little from the travelling African who takes as many, if not more, precautions as his European counterpart before embarking on the trip.

Instead the traveller heads for the nearest white settler to seek protection from the perils of the bush during a journey.

The first requirement is for a charm, often the hoky claw from some migratory bird. The traveller might also obtain some fat from a lion's tail, for this will strengthen his "throwing and hitting" arm in case he meets some unfriendly animal. These precautions are usually taken for a practical reason because axe or spear are useless unless one is sure and certain of aim.

Snakes are an ever-present threat. They wait beside the footpath which proverbially winds from the Cape to Cairo but there is a special precaution which is said to be deadly to the snake that bites a traveller.

One must find a doctor who deals in such prescriptions. For a moderate fee he will provide a powder which is wrapped in a bark sachet and tied around the leg just below the right knee.

Now if a snake dares to bite a traveller it will be the snake that dies a horrible death and not its victim.

Porcupine quills are also said to be useful to the traveller on a difficult journey. Africans say the animal is slow, steady and pretty well immune from attack and one of its quills can ensure similar protection.

Many Africans on the road will look out for "chilambakwe," a conical pile of stones built by countless travellers who have passed that way before.

A stone must be added to the pile to ensure safety on the path ahead until he is overtaken because "it is always better for two to travel through the bush than one."

If a traveller's wife is pregnant Africans believe it is unwise to take long journeys when the crops are ripening. If the trip must be taken then under no circumstances must the traveller break a ground nut (peanut) open en route, because his wife might have a premature birth. He should also not attempt short cuts through fields because he might accidentally break open a ground nut under the soil.

The African traveller can always expect food on the road. Even the poorest kraal will give him food. This custom is based on an old proverb—the elephant is not pressed down by its trunk.

It means that one extra mouth to feed won't break a family any more than the weight of the elephant's trunk overburdens the beast.

African superstition? Maybe not only African.

In the old days South African sailships changed their sailing days to Southampton from 3 Friday to a Thursday. This because the sailors preferred it that way—Friday was never a good day to sail, particularly when it coincided with the 13th of the month.

Bill Davis is a cheapskate.

He pays us, Ontario's public servants, far less than others doing comparable work.

And he's passed a law that makes it virtually impossible for us to catch up. And to cope with inflation.

A law that denies us basic rights of collective bargaining.

Secretaries at Queen's Park, for instance, make $40 less a week than those at City Hall.

Labourers get a dollar less an hour than those employed by Metro Toronto.

Our hands are tied by a very unfair law called CECBA (Crown Employees Collective Bargaining Act).

It denies us the right, enjoyed by other workers, to negotiate freely with our employers.

It forces us to abide by arbitration boards loaded in the government's favour.

So, as our government, the Davis administration has ensured that the odds are in their favour as employers.

We perform a wide range of essential public services. From maintaining roads to staffing community colleges.

Do we deserve to be paid 37% less than the average unionized Canadian worker (the government's own statistic)?

And to be unable to cope with inflation because of unfair bargaining laws?

We want CECBA changed.

We just want the same rights as others.

Is that too much to ask, Mr. Davis?

Free the servants!

Plane Remains To Help

TRENTON — A Canadian Armed Forces Hercules aircraft which left Friday for Honduras with emergency supplies will return Monday, two days later than originally planned a department of national defence spokesman said today.

The aircraft — loaded with about 11 tons of food, clothing and medical supplies — was originally scheduled to return to Trenton today.

The aircraft was ordered to stay two additional days through an arrangement between the department of national defence and the ministry of external affairs.

The only way to distribute the supplies in Honduras is by air, Capt. Bob Burke, information officer at CFB Trenton, said.

The Cobourg-based Help Honduras Foundation, primarily responsible for the gathering of emergency supplies, says it still has a thousand pounds of supplies waiting to be delivered.

A foundation spokesman said $25,000 in medical supplies donated by Burdick Laboratories of Toronto and 20,000 pound of baby food donated by Island Schools Canada, in Brockville is still waiting to be shipped.

Family Reveals Terror Of Cyprus Confinement

By PETER LECZENIZ
Intelligencer City Editor

TRENTON — A Canadian family trapped behind Turkish lines on the besieged island of Cyprus for more than six week,s are resting at CFB Trenton today after arriving here Friday night following a brief stop in Ottawa.

A Canadian Forces Boeing 707 carrying Mr. and Mrs. Nicolas Ioannides and their four children — John 13, Andriana 11, Evangelos, 9, and Zenon , touched down at 9:12 p.m.

Mr. Ioannides, 41, a high school teacher in Edmonton, had taken his family for a six-week vacation to their home-town at Strokarpasa in the north-eastern part of the island.

They were in the village of Kaimli on July 20 when fighting broke out between Greek and Turkish forces and were declared trapped in the area by Turkish troops overran the town Aug. 15.

Mrs. Ioannides said in an interview, her husband, who is suffering from a brain tumor, was refused medical attention by Turkish troops.

After Landing at CFB Trenton Friday night, Mr. Ioannides was removed by stretcher and rushed to Trenton Memorial Hospital in an armed forces ambulance. Hospital officials returned to comment on his condition.

Mrs. Ioannides described her husband as "a very sick man, in need 'of intensive care."

She told reporters that the family received help from Turkish authorities they were Canadian citizens but that they were told you are Greek even though you live in another country and therefore have to suffer accordingly."

She said they contacted the British Consulate after being told there were no Canadian consulate offices on the island, but were given little help.

Mrs. Ioannides said the Turkish authorities arrested all the men in the town and refused to allow the remaining women to leave the village.

"They forced all the women and children and sick to march to the church courtyard everyday to be counted. When I told them how sick my husband was they pointed a gun at us and forced us to bring him to the courtyard."

She said many of the men arrested were executed by Nicosia while others were taken by boat to Turkey.

Mrs. Ioannides, weary from the flight and her ordeal, told reporters she isn't sure how Canadian authorities learned of their plight.

"It might have been from a Canadian soldier,I waved my passport at, or through notes I gave to the Red Cross".

She said UN and Red Cross officials arrived in the village family, five Australians, four British citizens and three residents of South Africa in Nicosia but that they were again detained by Turkish forces.

Finally, she said the Turks turned us over to Canadian officials.

From Nicosia, the family was taken to Akrotiri, on the coast of the island and then by air to the Canadian base at Lahr, West Germany. From there the family boarded the Boeing 707 for the flight to Canada.

With them on the flight home was a three-man medical team stationed at CFB Trenton.

The family spent the night on the air base and were to leave for Edmonton on a regularly-scheduled military flight at noon today.

A Canadian forces spokesman said Mr. Ioannides will also be on the flight, accompanied by another medical team.

The spokesman said he understood the family will be met at Edmonton by their person physician.

Mother Thanks Canada For 'Saving our Lives'

TRENTON — The mother of a Canadian family held by Turkish authorities on the troubled island of Cyprus for more than six weeks said Friday night she "thanks the external affairs department for saving their lives."

Mrs. Ephi Ioannides made the statement after she and her family arrived here aboard a Canadian forces Boeing 707.

Mrs. Ioannides from Edmonton, had been on a holiday on the island when fighting broke out between Greek and Turkish forces.

Mrs. Ioannides told reporters her husband, who is suffering from a brain tumor, once said during the ordeal: "We will never get out of this alive."

Mrs. Ioannides said Turkish forces confiscated their car and other personal possessions when they captured Hindkaman, the town in which the family was staying.

When asked how her family was treated by the Turks, she replied "I would not, wish anyone to be in the position we were in."

Mrs. Ioannides said she had heard reports of Greek-Cypriot women being raped by Turkish troops, but added she was not physically harmed.

She said the town was bombed once by Turkish airplanes during the confusion, but that there were no casualties.

She said her family was not harassed constantly by Turkish troops and forced to parade to the local churchyard daily to be counted along with other prisoners.

When asked by reporters if she felt any resentment against the Turkish authorities replied:

"I don't hate the Turkish-Cypriots, they are just as ar-rested by the Greeks who live on the island. Nobody who lives on Cyprus wanted this war."

Hospital Introduces Plan For Employee Treatment

Belleville General Hospital is introducing a program to assist any employees with alcoholic problems.

Hopefully, it will also prevent other district employers to imitate initiative, Philip Rickard, BGH executive director said Friday.

The plan already has drawn the attention of the Alcohol and Drug addiction Research Foundation which is using BGH's approach to other such programs.

It's part of an increasing emphasis on health education among hospital staff. The hospital has run seminars on various habit-forming personal problems which can deteriorate into behavioral disease. The staff association has also runs yoga and keep-fit programs.

"Obesity, alcohol, smoking all account for unnecessary effects on health in the community," said Mr. Rickard. "The only way we're going to improve health standards is by changing lifestyles."

The new BGH policy on alcoholism works this way:

Department heads will document dizziness signs among employees-personality and morale changes, lateness and other poor-work habits.

If alcoholism is revealed, the hospital employee health service will then conduct an interview and the worker will be told to get treatment, arranged by a family doctor on the research foundation. The treatment has a branch in the city.

Treatment can involve various services—the doctors, a counselling service Canadian Alcoholics Anonymous.

The hospital is forecasting success in 65 per cent of the cases. The staff association has also runs yoga and keep-fit programs.

Education Beat

Student Opinion Valuable Tool

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

The 1970's dawned the cult of the consumer.

From Ralph Nuimptre to poor peoples' organizational, the emphasis is on the buyer instead of the seller.

It's even spread to education.

After a couple of generations of being fooled by university calendars, written by profs to justify their hobbies, students have revolted and have begun publishing their own evaluation.

Since high schools now are turning out calendars in imitation of the university model, we suggest high school students get with it and publish their own undercover calendars modelled after the university opt.

As a model, take the Carleton University Course Guide, published, between plain brown wrappers by the Carleton University Student Association. It covers all* first-years, and some second-year courses, offered at the university, and looks at them under three categories — description, data analysis and comments on the instructor.

Right at the start, the Carleton underground calendar states its position: "this hand book was not prepared for the financially independent professional student. It is a concession to the hard truth that however much the students might like to learn a little about everything, most of them are limited in their studies by time and economics. For those who ask what right students have to compile assessments of their intellectural elders, this is our answer: in the same way, then, as the university calendar is a catalogue of the wares of the merchants of knowledge, this handbook is a collection of consumer reports on education values."

The Course Guide's comments are merciless: "The lectures were neither valuable in understanding the course or in getting a good mark" the year seemed unorganized and the second term was worse than the first — the instructor had a poor lecture style— the second half of the course was based on the instructor's article which was African — the students though she seemed to have little knowledge of the subject."

An English prof, says the Course Guide: "makes the literature come alive — enthusiasm for the material and concern for the students are much appreciated qualities — she was well-prepared and organized and communicated ideas in a smooth intelligent manner— her encouragement of class discussion and a good sense of humor are other traits worth mentioning."

And so on, for 60 pages.

Students evaluation of teachers has always been shot down at the high school level on the grounds that it's just a popularity contest. — the teacher who offers the most lollipops and the least intellectual food will get the best score.

Since the Carleton Course Guide was compiled by students just one year removed from high school, how do its ratings score?

The question was put to a panel of grads and their reaction was unanimous: the Course Guide is too easy on some profs and not emphatic enough on the value of the real stars.

In other worlds, the kids leaned over backwards to be fair.

And that, in our experience, is the case with high school students. They love tough but knowledgeable teachers, who known how to pass on their knowledge. Like all human beings, they recognize competence and ability. They eat by the lollipops and come back for more, when no more substantial food is offered but they don't respect the giver.

It's time high school students were listened to: Their comments will be cruel but revealing. They know the score and they ask no quarter. They have the biggest stake in education — it's their future.

How about a Hastings County course guide? We offer to correct the spelling and grammar mistakes and make the results known in this column.

Campaign Underway

Fourteen Agencies Depend On United Way Funds

A new symbol and plans for reviving door-to-door canvassing mark this year's United Way campaign which got underway in Belleville today with a parade and opening ceremony.

The annual fund drive hopes to raise $140,000 here.

The new symbol, known as the "helping hand", shows a stylized figure supported by a helping hand. The figure's arms are outstretched to a rainbow, symbolized with "hope and promise which is possible because there is a United Way" local United Community Services director Gordon Mullen says.

The United Way campaign, which is conducted in Belleville by UCS raises funds for 14 local agencies by soliciting donations through the employer's payroll deduction and corporate gift.

This year is newly-organized group of residential canvassers will seek donations door-to-door in many areas of the city.

"We hope this will give women a chance to participate in the campaign by donating to community services," Mr. Mullen says.

Her husband may give through payroll deduction but this way she can feel part of things by giving, say, a few dollars of her household money.

Local agencies receive allocations from the drive based on budgets they submit availability of funds and assessment of their need by a committee of the UCS.

Participating agencies which vary from community to community in Belleville are the Belleville and District Association for Retarded Children; Belleville Family Y.M.C.A ; Belleville Minor Sports Association; Canadian Arthritis and Rheumatism Society, Quinte Committee; Canadian National Institute for the blind; Canadian Red Cross, Belleville Branch; Central Volunteer Bureau; Civic Action Committee; Navy League of Canada United Community Services and the Victorian Order of Nurses This year the Quinte Easy Riders and the Citizens' Bureau have joined the United Way.

UCS president Virginia O'Rourke says the fund-raising campaign seeks to "take up the deficit" for these local organizations. While the agencies are free to accept donations from other sources they seek funding both from government and corporations, their United Way remuneration precludes any other public appeal for funds.

To become a United Way agency a charitable service organization must be prepared to submit an annual report to the public as well as report its other financial arrangements to the UCS. The agencies do not sit on the UCS board, which includes 13 voting and eight non-voting members elected at an annual meeting.

Funds from the United Way can only be used for programs which service Belleville and its rural routes.

Culvert Policy Queried

FICTON — The question of entrances provided for country homes at Prince Edward County's expense again has been raised by Wellington reeve Robert Boyce.

Reeve Boyce, who protested this practice at council's August session, this week objected second time after reading a road report confirming that seven new entrances were installed this month.

"It's paid for by the county. Its hean' county policy over the years," Hillier deputy-reeve and chairman of the road committee Allan Pettingill told reeve Boyce.

Reeve Boyce who last month requested a report of the costs for these culverts and cattle passes in the county in the past two years, said it does not supply complete information.

He remarked the report states only cost of materials. Equipment and labor expenses are not included.

Reeve Boyce suggested with labor and equipment costs added the total expenditure in the two year period could be as high as $54,000.

He suggested if this money had been spent for road purposes the county would have received a subsidy for it.

Deputy-reeve Donald Clark noted the entrances are subsidized.

"The auditor have been very kind to this item on our budget," the engineer remarked.

"We are taking money we levy lord road purposes and using it for privanie enterprise We are the locally municipality in the area doing it," said reeve Boyce.

Board Requests Funds

A Belleville physician said Friday provincial government budget restrictions next year could adversley affect hospital services.

Dr. B.E. Morgan voiced his comments to Belleville General Hospital's board of governors.

The ministry's caution on 1975 spending was received last month by hospital boards.

Norman Ben Cooke, finance chairman said the ministry proposes spending cuts equal to about two per cent of this year's budgets.

But the financial results could be more serious. The hospital's budget has increased over original estimates.

The 1974 BGH budget was approved by the ministry at $16.5 million. Additional costs midway through the year-caused mostly by new wage settlements saw the province's hospitals granting more funds.

BGH has requested an additional $1.2 million. The new 1975 budget now totals $17,656,936.

Upswing Noted In Hospital Use

Pressure continues to mount on emergency services at the Belleville General Hospital.

To the end of August 31,221 people were treated in the emergency department compared with 29,128 on the corresponding period last in year statistics given the hospital board showed Friday.

Five years ago 21,157 patients were treated during the entire year. By 1973, the figure had climbed to 43,874.

The ever-swelling workload ... continues to be handled by the same physical facilities and the same number of staff," said Mr. R.M. Anderson, BGH medical director.

He said steps now are being taken to relieve the pressure.

The statistics showed an increase in almost every sight of hospital activity in the first eight months of the year.

Admissions were up slightly to 7,238 from 7,364. But the number of days spent by patients in the hospital increased to 67,239 from 64,405. The occupancy rate averaged 81.22 per cent compared to 80.85 per cent in 1973.

Target : $140,000

Ed-Buckley, right, United Way chairman, gives Stu Meeks a helping hand as the acting mayor runs the fund drive's flag up the pole. The pair helped kick off this year's campaign which hopes to raise $140,000 for 14 local agencies.

Torrez Sets Expo Record

MONTREAL (CP) — Mike Torrez, 13-8, limited the Montreal Expos to four singles, walked one and struck out four.

Someone told me after the game I had set a record," Torrez said. "Now I'll just have to go out and try for No. 18 next week. If I win that one, it will give me my best season in my career."

Torrez was in a tight spot in the first inning when he gave up back-to-back singles to Dave Cash and Larry Bowa. But the Montreal right-hander got Mike Schmidt and Clyde Mashore to fly out and fanned Willie Montanez to snuff out the rally.

Montreal scored single runs in the third and fourth innings of losing pitcher Jim Lonborg, 16-13.

In the third, rookie third baseman Pat Scanlon and Torrez reached base on infield hits and after Torrez was forced at second, rookie outfielder Jerry White worked his first major league double to score Scanlon.

Singles by Willie Davis, Ken Singleton and Barry Foote produced Montreal's run in the fourth inning.

The Expos have won 15 of their last 19 starts and have taken nine of 15 games from the Phillies this year.

Today left-hander Steve Carlton of the Phillies will face Montreal's Steve Renko, while on Sunday afternoon, Dennis Blair of the Expos is scheduled to pitch against Philadelphia's Ron Schueler.

Pitchers Get Target Practice During Game

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

First, Chicago Cub pitcher Tom Dettore hit Bake McBride of St. Louis Cardinals with a pitch in the top of the fourth inning.

"I didn't throw at McBride," said Dettore. "He crowds the plate and the pitch was only a couple of inches inside."

Then, Bob Gibson of the Cardinals hit Pete LaCock leading off the Chicago fourth.

"It was a half-speed slider," said St. Louis Manager Red Schoendienst. "If he was throwing at him it would have been a fast ball."

Then, Dettore clipped Lou Brock leading off the Cards' fifth.

"Brock? I just tried to move him back," said Dettore.

"Dettore was just wild," added Cubs' Manager Jim Marshall. "He was all over the place warming up."

After that, the Cardinals did most of the hitting with their bats. Joe Torre's two-run homer and Ted Simmons' two-run single gave them an 8-1 lead in the fifth and they cruised to a 10-4 victory.

Thus the Cards kept pace with Pittsburgh Pirates, 2-1 winners over New York Mets, in the National League East race. St. Louis and Pittsburgh remain tied for the division lead with 84-73 records. Each club has five games to play.

Elsewhere, San Diego Padres edged Los Angeles Dodgers 3-2, Cincinnati Reds shaded San Francisco Giants 4-3.

Jerry Reuss of the Pirates subdued Jon Matlack of the Mets with a seven-hitter for his 16th victory against 11 losers.

Both Pirates runs came in the sixth. Reuss Stennett led off with a single and took third on Manny Sanguillen's single. Stennett scored on Willie Stargell's double and Sanguillen came home on a sacrifice fly by Bob Robertson.

Pitcher-runner John Scott scored the winning run for the Padres on shortstop Bill Russell's error with two out in the ninth. Rookie Dan Spillner, 9-11, scattered six hits in going the distance. Dave Roberts scored for San Diego and Bill Buckner hit one for Los Angeles.

The loss cut the Dodgers' lead over Cincinnati to three games in the West Division. Each club has four games left.

Dave Concepcion of the Reds scored from first base with the winning run on a throwing error by San Francisco pitcher Gary Lavelle. Concepcion and Tony Perez added home runs for the Reds. Bobby Bonds accounted for all the Giant runs with a homer in the first.

Cleveland Manager Gets Walking Papers

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland Indian manager Ken Aspromonte announced Friday night that his contract with the American League team is not being renewed.

He told the players he would stay for the rest of the season and "leave here with my head high."

After the Cleveland-New York Yankees game was postponed because of rain, Aspromonte read a statement to the players at a special meeting.

"I will not be with Cleveland next year," the statement read. "I was officially informed of this yesterday (Thursday).

"I second that this decision was made many months ago.

"I was given the choice of remaining or leaving the team at this time, but decided to remain on, in order that I may follow during these last six games."

Aspromonte said he was only unhappy that he didn't lead the club to a championship.

Aspromonte said general manager Phil Seghi did not give him any specific reason for not renewing his three-year contract.

"I think I deserved the job. Because my record speaks for itself," the former major league shortstop said. "But it's Seghi's decision to make."

Judo School Opens Monday in Stirling

By CHRIS ALMEY
Staff Correspondent

STIRLING — When it comes to the rough stuff, the so-called weaker sex in Stirling outnumber the males three to one.

It Ayu (Chat's Brown Belt Grade)- KeKe Nunn who instructs Judo here says that last year 75 per cent of his class were girls aged 16 and 17.

But his wife, Barbara, is around to keep an eye on him. She is a San Ayu (Green Belt) and will soon be a Ni Kyu (Blue Belt), one grade below her husband.

Classes will commence Monday, Sept. 30, and will be held every Monday and Thursday thereafter in the former high school from 7.30 to 9.30 in the evening. Anyone is welcome to come and practice the sport of Judo, but must be over age 13, and if a minor, must have parental consent.

The Stirling Club is well known at Hlachi's in Tweedsmuir which is to Judo as Bobby Hull is to hockey. The club has come back with many trophies.

Mr. Nunn can grade for belts, but to make certain the Judo student has really earned it, he normally sends them down to 3rd Dan Jim Driscoll at the YMCA in Belleville.

Mr. Driscoll offers Judo at the Y for boys on Mondays and Fridays starting at 4.30 p.m. Adults, male and female, can enjoy the sport Mondays and Wednesdays starting at 8 p.m.

Judo is a discipline. It is the way to the most effective use of physical and spiritual strength according to Jigoro Kano, the founder of Kodokan Judo.

If the gals in Stirling can take it, it can't be all that rough — maybe.

Wanderers Win Again

BCI Wanderers racked up another win Wednesday night at the Quinte Athletic Field in a game against Nicholson Catholic College. The defending Bay of Quinte senior soccer champions defeated the fighting Irish of NCC 4-2.

It was a closely matched game from the opening whistle, but Eugene Mutewaire proved to be enough of a margin for the winners. Mutewaire booted three goals to lead BCI's offensive attack and Gary Adamis got the fourth.

The two teams battled through the first half with the Wanderers acquiring only a 1-0 lead. Nicholson came back in the second half with two goals from Jim McSherry, but Mutewaire then went to work and put the game out of reach.

In the junior contest, Nicholson defeated BCI in an older Bay of Quinte junior soccer games this week Medoc edged Napanee 3-1. Trenton shutout Bayside 3-0. Nicholson and Moira battled to a 2-2 tie and PECI downed QSD.

In senior games this week, Trenton and Bayside finished in a 2-2 tie, Brighton and Consolidated finished in a 3-2 tie, Moira blanked Nicholson 4-0 and QSD defeated PECI 2. (Scores from the QSD-PECI senior and junior games were unavailable).

Argos Looking at Next Year, Ottawa Looking at Sunday

OTTAWA (CP) — Ottawa Rough Riders hope to sew up an Eastern Football Conference playoff position Sunday with a win over Toronto Argonauts, a team more concerned with next season.

"What we are doing is looking at talent for next year," says Argo general manager John Barrow.

In the meantime, however, he says the league cellar-dwellers are "not going to panic and make wholesale changes."

"I met with the coaches and we agree we have the makings of a fine football team. We're just caught up in circumstances that have taken their toll on the players' ostinct."

Barrow says the Argos already have signed four players for the 1975 season and "we'll be bringing in more on this basis."

His interim coach, Joe Moss, is on the other hand, says the Argos will make alterations on the offensive line "where over the years."

"Beyond that, I don't think we have the time to start remaking the entire team."

Both Moss and Ottawa coach George Brancato expect to make few changes going into Sunday's game. Brancato will start Walter Hartfield, a new running back to replace injured Wayne Giardino, one of the few bright lights on the Riders' lackluster offensive squad.

Giardino and defensive lineman Rudy Sims both were injured in last Sunday's victory over Saskatchewan Rough Riders.

For the Argos, Moss says he probably will activate quarterback Bart Buetow, using the former New York Giant to shore up his offensive line.

Ons Argo that won't see action is newly-acquired quarterback Rick Arrington, a player Moss appears to be holding for action later in the week.

One of the major worries plaguing the Ottawa club is the evident lack of interest by fans. The team is offering cut-rate prices for some tickets and has ordered a blackout of all Sunday Canadian Football League games in an effort to boost attendance at the 27,000-seat park.

During the eight games played this year, attendance since seldom has risen about 18,000. Often it's been much less.

QB a Question for Cats

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hamilton Tiger-Cats arrived in Vancouver Friday, not saying who will be quarterback for their interlocking Canadian Football League game Saturday against British Columbia Lions.

General manager Ralph Sazio said he did not know whether Don Jonas, recently acquired in a trade with the Winnipeg Blue Bombers, or Bill Elder would get the call.

"Jonas has really helped us," said Sazio. "But that's up to the trying Sunday on running coach (Jerry Williams). Elder has made it tough for him (Jonas) to break in."

In other games, the Montreal Alouettes host the first place team in the Eastern Football Conference play Winnipeg Blue Bombers of the western conference today, while Calgary Stampeders host the Saskatchewan Roughriders tangle Sunday in Regina.

The Hamilton defence will be trying Sunday on running backs Lou Harris and Monroe Eley who led the Lions to 36-10 over Winnipeg last weekend.

"They will also have to watch for Jim Young, recovered from a back injury and starting at halfback for the Lions.

The Alouettes will be going into Winnipeg coming off a surprising 20-13 defeat Tuesday at the hands of Calgary, it was only the third win of the season for the Stampeders.

Montreal coach Marv Levy returned to Ikama his club's defence on over confidence.

"Frankly, I never have believed in teams being set to win, down, complacent or over-confident," he said. "We just got whipped because the other team played better football."

The Alouettes will be shuffling both lines to compensate for the loss of defensive tackle Dan Judges and offensive tackle Dave Vochum who are on the 21-day injured list.

The Blue Bombers will be using Dave Buchanan at fullback with newcomer Jim Washington starting at halfback. Canadian halfback Tom Walker, who has carried 18 times for 101 yards and a 7.8-yard average, will continue in his role as a reliever.

Saskatchewan will be trying to gain ground in the race for first place in the west when they host the last-place Stampeders.

The Roughriders now are four points behind league-leading Edmonton and two behind the Lions, although they have played one more game than the two front-runners.

The Stampeders are hoping that the momentum from Monday's drubbing of Montreal will carry them to a second consecutive win and brighten their hopes of a playoff berth.

SABRES CUT EIGHT

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (CP) — Buffalo Sabres of the National Hockey League cut eight players from their roster Friday. Coach Floyd Smith said he expects to reduce the roster to 19 or 20 players next week. The players cut were Micel Dejordy, the Sabres' third-round draft choice; centre Tim Regan; defencemen John Lehoux and forwards Bob Stuliders, Neil Korsack, Billy Inglis, Derek Smith and Jack Sabey.

Casper Increases Lead to Two Strokes

NAPA, Calif. (AP — Billy Casper, with 50 par golf tour titles behind him, had just been asked what one more victory would mean.

"Every one needs to win once in a while, if it's just to keep up your confidence," said the 43-year-old veteran. "And, if you've got nine kids, you'd better win more than once in a while."

Casper, in a slump the last year, expanded his lead to two strokes Friday with a two-under-par 70 in the second round of the $150,000 Kaiser International open. His 135 total is nine under par.

Bobby Nalley, 25, a rookie, was alone in second after taking a 71 for a 137 total through the chase for the $30,000 first prize.

Johnny Miller was well-placed at 138 after another 69. He was tied for third with Don Iles and John Mahaffey, Mahaffey had a 71 and Iles a 67.

PGA champion Lee Trevino dropped back with a 73 and was eight shots away from the lead at 142.

Jack Nicklaus, Arnold Palmer, Gary Player and U.S. Open champion Hale Irwin are not competing.

Bob Panasiuk of Windsor, Ont., had a 70 for 139. George Knudson of Toronto fired his second successive 71 for 154, missing the cut of 145.

Carner One Stroke Up

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP — Long-hitting Jo-Anne Carner knocked in a 25-foot birdie putt on the next to last hole for a one-stroke lead Friday after the first round of the $35,000 Portland golf tournament.

Mrs. Carner had a three-under-par 70 on the 6,343-yard Colonials Edgewater Country Club course.

Tied for second at 71 were Jan Ferraros and Louise Bruce, a 20-year-old second-year pro.

Defending champion Kathy Whitworth, shooting for her third straight victory in the three-year-old tournament, finished four over par at 77.

Three players were tied for fourth at one-under-par 72. They were Shelley Hamlin, Cathy Duggan and rookie Patty Bradley.

Mrs. Carner, all-time leading money winner on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour, has $70,000 in winnings so far this year and may become the first woman pro to break the $100,000 mark. First-place money in this tournament is $5,000.

New Ark?

Iris Pascan, 30, (front row, centre) gathers with friends at the opening of the Ark coffeehouse in Montreal. The Ark caters to youths who have dedicated their lives to Christ. (CP Photo)

Montrealer Operates Ark As Haven from Today's Evil

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal has its own Noah: smiling from his vessel while a time-bomb ticks away outside marking the seconds before the inevitable holocaust.

Peter Aikens may be only 22 years old but he is not unlike the Biblical character who heeded his family cries the Ark to be the true survivors of God's watery wrath as a world gone mad.

Mr. Aikens, along with two friends, operates a combination coffee house-leather boutique called The Ark in west-end Montreal, offering a haven to youth who have dedicated their lives to Christ.

Beyond The Ark, he sees much evil afoot and anticipates the tragedies of famine and war as forecast in the Bible. He does not think the earth can go on forever in its present state.

For Mr. Aikens, the forces of good and evil are not just theological abstractions.

"The devil is the greatest force of evil in the world . . . the devil just screams at you everywhere."

He sees the devil at work in the lives of young people, even in rock music. Peter Aikens used to be a great fan of rock music but now only listens to it occasionally.

"In so many songs you hear on the radio it is just people preaching to you to take drugs or have sex with your chick."

Peter and his friends are not out to separate themselves from the rest of the world and are critical of some religious youth groups that are so way-out society cannot relate to them.

While The Ark was an escape, it was not intended to create isolation.

He does not describe himself as a "Jesus Freak," and does not identify with the fiery youths who spend the pavement with Bibles scooping up drug addicts and lonely, impressionable runaways.

But Mr. Aikens is a young church-going man who would not pass up an opportunity to witness.

In referring to the Jesus People Army, a youth movement that captured the imagination of many troubled hearts, he chastised such people for "rejecting the church."

He said "Jesus is the foundation of the church and we are the stones. You can't separate yourself from the church."

Mr. Aikens says he has been a Christian for a year.

"One night I prayed to God and the next morning I woke up and knew there was a God."

He does not think many people put him down for being a devout Christian although his father thinks he is too zealous and attached to his involvement with The Ark.

For Iris Pascan, 30, it has taken four years after her conversion to regain rapport with some members of her family.

"You see, I was Jewish," she said. "For a long time my mother treated me like dirt, but now she sees the beautiful things that have happened in my life and she benefits from that beauty."

Mrs. Pascan, who also works at The Ark a strong faith that God will show her how to solve her problems and tends to answer personal questions with a well-memorized Bible passage.

She hesitates to state her opinions on many subjects. "I have no right to opinions. God tells me what to do. I am just a person."

Mrs. Pascan says she has the ability to "speak in tongues—unconsciously-controlled words of a language "either earthly or heavenly" which are a prayer to God.

She says "speaking in tongues is spiritually edifying."

During such experiences, "I am crying out to God in an unknown language . . . and sometimes I am rejoicing."

"I am not seeking a religious experience, but a personal relationship with God."

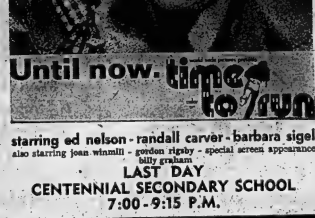
OAC Shows Canadian Art



GUELPH, Ont. (CP) — The Ontario Agriculture College (OAC), University of Guelph, is exhibiting about 500 pieces of art, some dating back to the 18th century, to mark its centenary.

OAC acquired its first works by Canadian artists in the 1920s and the collection has grown through contributions from students, faculty, alumni and friends.

Individual works from the collection are frequently selected for exhibits at Canadian galleries, museums and other institutions.

Proceeds from concerts and special lectures at the university made possible one of the early acquisitions, The Drive by Canadian artist Tom Thomson.

Other purchases and donations include The Old Willow by Aurele de Foy Suzor-Cote; six watercolor and ink drawings of Guelph completed in the mid-19th century by David Johnston Kennedy and an early tempera painting by Alex Colville entitled Two Riverers.

MacArthur Biographers Suffer Generation Gap

LOS ANGELES (AP) — When Hal Barwood and Matthew Robbins were assigned to write the script for a movie biography of Douglas MacArthur, about all they could remember about the general was "I shall return."

Their lack of recall of the general's Second World War feats is understandable when you realize that Barwood was born a year and a half before the Pearl Harbor bombing and Robbins two years afterward.

"They wanted someone who hadn't lived through the period," explained Barwood. "It might be easier to relate the story to today's generation that way."

They are producer Frank McCarthy and executive producer Richard Zanuck, who performed in similar capacities in the making of the big moneymaker Patton at 20th Century-Fox. Now both are at Universal, where MacArthur is scheduled to be made, probably in 1979.

Robbins noted that the original period of Patton was written by Francis Ford Coppola, who was also too young to remember the war.

Other writers turned out screenplays about Hitler, but it was the Coppola version that convinced George C. Scott to do the film. The result: 1970 Oscars for best picture and best actor, the latter award declined by Scott.

Barwood and Robbins are not exactly household names, even in Hollywood.

So far they have only one major writing credit—Sugarland Express. But they have already formed their own company, wryly called Hal-Mat, and have written a movie about the world in 2111 A.D. Clearwater, which Barwood and Robbins will produce and direct for Universal.

They met at the University of Southern California film school in the mid-1960s.

Hopeful film-makers a decade ago figured they had to start on the bottom, and Robbins and Barwood found themselves cutting television commercials.

They also collaborated on screenplays. Three years and their scripts later, they finally hit with Sugarland Express.

The two young writers blustered themselves in MacArthur lore to cure their concerns of the famed general.

"We're overwhelming," Barwood said. "Douglas MacArthur had the longest career in the history of the American military, counting West Point. It extended 52 years. We faced an enormous task in condensing his life to the confines of a feature film."

"We finally decided to open the film when MacArthur leaves Corregidor under the gun and end it when he is dismissed by President Truman.

That covers the major events including his greatest years, when he was the virtual ruler of Japan."

Robbins and Barwood are frequently asked who should play MacArthur.

They said casting is a problem. The choice must be a commanding actor whose appears capable of commanding armies. Laurence Olivier, John Wayne and Hal Holbrook are among those who have been mentioned.

Will MacArthur be a symbol of Vietnam? No, Will show the fight and the dark in MacArthur's life," said Robbins.

"His decisions were frequently brilliant but the way he carried them out was not always brilliant. He had a great capacity for self-delusion."

"After having soaked up the history of Douglas Japan, he felt he should be making the decision instead of a former artillery captain who happened to be president.

Folies Bergere Keeps 50-year Character

PARIS (Reuter) — The Folies Bergere has changed hands after more than 50 years but the audience will never know the difference.

That is the boast of the new management which, to prove the point, is keeping on the man who has been directing the world-famous revue for 30 years.

The bridge between the old and the new is Folies' artistic director, Michel Gyamarthy, who came penniless from Budapest to Paris in the 1930s and now lives in a house peopled with Louis XV furniture, sinking candelabras and sweeping staircases.

The change at the top comes when Paris Revue, whose husband Paul ran the Folies from 1919 till his death in 1964, handed over the helm to Helene Martini, nicknamed the Empress of Pigalle for the cluster of nightclubs she owns in Paris's seamiest district.

But the retired Gyamarthy hiding like an inscrutable Buddha behind his dark glasses, said: "I don't worry. Why won't change that much. Madame Martini is a kind, sweet, intelligent person. She wanted to keep me so to see things won't change."

So he will continue with the basic formula that has been packing them in for decades—lavish costumes, breathtaking scenery changes and troupes of statuesque women with wings of feathers on their thighs.

Gyamarthy is very firm on this: "A naked woman is infinitely less exciting than one slightly covered. I cannot stand nudity. I will have women in couples flapping about in Oh Calcutta!"

His selection process for the dozens of girls to be young, pretty and capable dancers, I don't ask if they are good in bed.

Explaining the personal attraction of the show, now seen by 300,000 people a year, he said: "Perhaps the things to be monotonous. They are looking for dreams. It's like a fairy-tale book for them."

Statistics about how the Folies think big—the cloth used in all the costumes would stretch 300 miles, sequins are ordered in batches of 20 million and the girls climb the equivalent of the Eiffel Tower every night during their numbers on the grand central staircase.

But perhaps the most striking point about the Folies today is that teamwork, not stars, makes for full houses. The revue, which once had Josephine Baker and Maurice Chevalier as two of the hit, now relies on a tightly knit cast that polishes each show to perfection.

TORONTO (CP) — Former Bonnie John Lennon lived with possible deportation from the United States, said in an interview Thursday he will "try and settle in Toronto."

In an interview on radio station CHUM-FM, the singer said he will continue to fight U.S. immigration authorities, but Toronto is his first choice if he loses.

Two years ago Mr. Lennon and his estranged wife Yoko Ono bought a farmhouse in the Caledon Hills north of the city.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Shirley Temple Black, the retired movie actress, was sworn in Friday as the United States ambassador to Ghana, the first African black nation to win independence. State Secretary Henry Kissinger, who presided at the ceremony, kissed her on the cheek twice and quipped: "For years I've been trying to figure out how to get movie stars to come to you when you want them. Now that I know how, I'm married."

BOLOGNA, Italy (AFP) — Film stars Marisa Brando and Maria Schneider received suspended two-month prison sentences and a fine today after the local appeal court found them guilty of obscenity in the film Last Tango in Paris.

The same prison sentence and fine were handed down against director Bernardo Bertolucci, producer Alberto Grimaldi and distributor Umberto Mastroci. Fines of 250 each also were suspended.

The film was seized after its first showing at nearby Porretta Terme in December, 1972, and charges of obscenity were lodged.

The Doctor Who Saw A Ghost

By ALLEN SPRAGGETT

Skeptics want the best of witnesses before they'll believe a ghost story. Here's one.

Well, how about the world's greatest psychiatrist?

That's what Dr. Carl Jung was when he died a memorable, eerie, encounter with a particularly terrible ghost.

Originally a protege of the legendary Sigmund Freud, Jung split with him over what he regarded as Freud's undue emphasis on sex as a factor in mental illness. Jung believed that man's spiritual needs were deeper and more important to mental health than his sex drives.

"Perhaps in part because he was open to spiritual beliefs, Dr. Jung all his life seemed to attract unusual psychic experiences. He had prophetic dreams, left his body and returned, saw visions and once had a face-to-face confrontation with an unbidden guest.

It happened in 1920 when he was in England on a vacation. He visited a country home from a friend. The house, Jung was told, had a reputation of being haunted, but Jung scoffed.

However, during his first few nights there he had a procession of unsettling experiences. There were loud rappings inside the walls. Unusual and unpleasant smells permeated the house. And Jung was splattered by drops of some liquid which appeared to fall out of thin air.

As each night went by, the phenomena increased in strength and number. Then, the ultimate happened.

Jung awakened suddenly. The room was in darkness and deathly still. But he was aware that something — or someone — was there. He sat up on his pillow beside him. The vague shape loomed forward. It also was not more than 16 inches from Jung's face.

As his eyes grew accustomed to the darkness, he realized, with astounding horror, that what lay there before him was a head. A woman's head.

Just one heart and one club. A further review of the bidding shows that West will probably have exactly one king and maybe a jack here and so the finesse is unaccounted for and South certainly holds that heart ace.

Then East asks himself the $64,000 question: "How can I beat this hand?"

He finally finds the answer. If West's king is the king of clubs and he will cooperate, a fancy play will set declarer. So East plays his eight of hearts.

South can do no better than win the trick with the jack and lead a club. West hops up with the king and leads a second heart, that gets his partner's ace and the defence winds up with three hearts, two clubs and a clear profit of 100 points.

The code word ARCH can work for defenders as well as declarer. Analyze lead: Review the bidding. Count your winners and losers. And finally, "How can I beat this contract?"

East analyzed the opening lead as either a singleton or the top of a doubleton. In either event he is glad that he stuck in his miserable heart overcall. His review of the bidding tells him that South has two heart stoppers.

A first count of his winners tells him that he can be sure of

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL
Sunday, September 29

Aries (March 21-April 19) Something you'll be learning a lot about is yourself, so be optimistic. If you tell others about it, you'll build a friendship instead.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) This is a good day to spend with old friends, the type you can let your hair down with and be yourself.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) The strength you'll show in handling a delicate situation will raise your stature in the eyes of others.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) Today you'll back up your words with deeds. You will please others and will make you rather proud of yourself, too.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) Now would be an appropriate time to refresh a certain party's memory regarding an old obligation that's long past due.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Don't give up, no matter how hard you've tried to put them to a test. They'll work if given half a chance.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) This is a good time to catch up on any work you've neglected recently. You're quite impulsive now. You won't be easily deterred from your goal.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your associates may be in the mood to do favors for you today. Be sincere and forthright.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your interests are best served if you talk over what's distressing you with an older and wiser head. The answer will be found in someone of the opposite sex.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You're far more prosaic today than you were yesterday. Find the middle ground. Stay there.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Something will pop up today in a social situation that could serve you to lose your poise if you're not on guard at all times.

Pisces (Feb. 19 - March 20) Someone that you can always count on will do something nice for you today to show you she's still in your corner.

Monday, September 30

Aries (March 21-April 19) Be careful what you say at this time. This person will be very disappointed. If you've forgotten.

Taurus (April 20-May 20) Something will pop up today in a social situation that could serve you to lose your poise if you're not on guard at all times.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) It won't work to wait if you are a shallow fakery in order to gain your ends. Be sincere and forthright.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) You tend to procrastinate about something you know should be attending to. You treat the situation lightly, but it's one that needs your attention.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) You will be rewarded for rather sensitive company today. Be sure there's an understanding about how the checks or bills are to be divided.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You'll get out of your way to be extra nice to one who will show very unappreciative of your kindness. There's a lesson here. Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You'll have an opportunity today to be of service to one who is previously helpful to you. You won't take advantage of it.

Scorpio (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Something of a social nature that you've been looking for want to eagerly may not turn out to be as pleasant as you anticipated.

Sagittarius (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Don't invite those to your home you feel you have to put on the dog in order to impress.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You are not at your best today if you're involved in a mental pursuit that calls for lots of imagination and creativity.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Make do with what you have rather than borrowing from a friend that you could break.

Pisces (Feb. 19-March 20) Look for the same perfection in yourself you expect to find in a close companion. If you don't possess it, why expect it from her?

Helping Drinkers Valuable Service

By C. C. THOTESEON, MD

No doubt everybody who reads this column is aware of what AA (Alcoholics Anonymous) is, as well as its companion group, Al-Anon, which is made up of relatives of slaves to alcohol.

Seldom have I had such an interesting letter as the following, and you, too, may find it very much worth reading. It is from an Al-Anon member who goes by the pen-name (or phony name) of "Joyce."

Dear Dr. Thoteson: My mail reaction to me with my "anonymous name." We are not supposed to make personal credit and in this way the recipient of this information (when I send it direct) doesn't know whom to thank—nor whom to blame, nor do I know how the other person does.

Fourteen years ago I found Al-Anon and I learned "cruel kindness"—to allow others to make decisions without my interference. Nearly three years ago I realized that I, too, had an allergy to alcohol, so I attend both meetings—AA and Al-Anon.

I learned that an alcoholic stops drinking in one of three ways: gets help, becomes institutionalized, or dies.

Many phone calls come to use (we have a private line) and we never mind the caller; just dial and put the person in touch with various places to contact if he (or she) chooses. (There are some cases we do visit person-ally if in this area.)

Our income is so small now and because of age we do not have to file a tax (gasp, but some of AA and Al-Anon incomes were deductible the last time I filed.

I have learned to think instead of having "hidden fears" and although I am 63 I am learning more now than did in school. False pride prevented my advancement before. Now I can think and reply either "yes" or "no." —JAYCE.

Joyce lives in a California city, but it takes the same kind of people in Maine, Texas or Hawaii to make AA and Al-Anon tick, and Joyce's letter may perhaps be the final necessary assurance to people who have been wondering whether to go ahead and contact either Al-Anon or AA.

Neither one is going to try to make you do anything. That's up to you. But if you do want to do something about an alcohol problem, they are ready to help.

The two groups are for people who come to grips with one of the facts of life: "I'm a victim of alcohol," or "My husband (or wife) is an alcoholic."

To get in touch with either group: look in your telephone book. If your phone book doesn't have a listing, you can write to the national headquarters and ask where the nearest group is.

For AA, it is Box 459, Grand Central Station, New York, N.Y. 10017. For Al-Anon: P.O. Box 182, Madison Square Station, New York, N.Y. 10010.

Dear Dr. Thoteson: I am 36 and have had ulcers since I was 18. I have been told by friends that if I have surgery for removal of two-thirds of my stomach, I couldn't have children.

Is this true in all cases? — W.C.

No, it is not true. Removal of the stomach is done if the ulcer does not respond to medical treatment, or for other claims such as hemorrhaging or objection.

There is no effect on child-bearing.

Use Sterile Jars

Store pickles in sterilized glass jars or quarts in a cool place. Seal-rite are more airtight and should be used when recommended.

Has Other Uses

A sturdy well-designed egg slicer will do other chores besides slicing hard-boiled eggs. It is, for example, for sliced boiled potatoes and beets.

A million times I've needed you,
A million times I've cried,
If love could have kept you dear Dad,
You never would have died.
In life we loved you dearly,
In death we love you still,
In our hearts you hold a place,
Which no one can fill.

Some days are harder than others,
Some days are filled with sorrow,
But today is the hardest,
Since you've been gone.
But time has only proved us far,
That's how we know,
Your love for us was true.
And someday we'll meet once more,
It's easy to think of you dear Daddy,
For memory and you,
Are inseparable companions and so lovingly

Those we shared together,
The fun we had through life,

McLEAN — In loving memory of a dear father William McLean, who passed away September 28, 1973.

Dear daddy you left us so suddenly,
A link gone from our chain,

To live with you in God's eternal home.

CP News Roundup

Stolen Car Ring Bared

TORONTO (CP) — About 30 Cadillac cars have been laid or are pending in connection with the discovery of a car-ring following a year-long investigation by provincial police, a police spokesman said Friday.

About 125 cars were traced through the ring, which operated throughout Eastern and Western Canada, and about 30 item ranging from compact to luxury sedans were recovered in 15 areas, some as far away as Edmonton and Vancouver.

Police said a similarity was found last fall between separate incidents in Quebec, Vancouver and several Ontario cities. The thefts in province of Quebec vehicle documents had been stolen and were used in the cars, the spokesman said.

Last May, a joint operation was set up involving the provincial police in Ontario and Quebec as well as police departments in Montreal and Ottawa.

The spokesman said their investigation is continuing and is expected to produce more charges before it is completed.

3 Die in Fire

CHATHAM, Ont. (CP) — Three persons died in an early-morning fire which destroyed the Diamond Apartments here today.

Police said three bodies were removed from one of three apartments on the second floor of the three-storey building. They have not been identified.

Big Award

TORONTO (CP) — A Windsor, Ont., girl who will be disabled for the rest of her life after suffering extensive brain damage in a 1969 automobile accident, was awarded $859,000 in damages Friday.

New Service

PETERBOROUGH (CP) — Donaher Airways Ltd. of Peterborough has announced that a new air service from Toronto's Lester B. Pearson International via Peterborough will be in by mid-November.

A company spokesman said Friday that the service will cost $36. for a one-way trip on a Saunders ST27 aircraft taking one hour and 35 minutes.

Parts Short

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Chrysler of Canada will temporarily close its passenger-car assembly plant next week, laying off 4,000 hourly employees, because of a parts shortage, a company spokesman said Friday.

Oppose Boost

TORONTO (CP) — Lawyers representing the cities of Ottawa and Toronto asked the Ontario Energy Board (OEB) Friday to reject an application by Consumers' Gas Co. for interim rate increases worth at least $2.7 million.

Exports Up

OTTAWA (CP) — Export sales were up in August but there was a slight deterioration in the over-all trade balance as more was spent on foreign purchases, Statistics Canada reported Friday.

Given Life

WHITBY, Ont. (CP) — Sandara Singh Kalirai, 27, was sentenced to life imprisonment Friday after being found guilty of the murder of his wife.

RCMP Documents Will Remain Secret

OTTAWA (CP) — The Federal Court of Appeal ruled Friday that top secret RCMP documents dealing with dismissal of two former officers shall be returned to RCMP files and not made public.

Reasons for the judgment were not released.

The documents were furnished by the RCMP as evidence in the appeal by former security-branch officers Gilles Brunet and Don McCleery of their dismissal from the force.

Both after the documents were presented in support of the RCMP case, the former policemen applied in withdraw their appeal last Wednesday.

The court granted their application.

The men also applied in the court to order the return of the documents to the RCMP constable, but the appeal court decision Friday granted this request as well.

But the application by Arthur Campeau, lawyer for the former officers, came as a surprise. It had been expected that if anybody would want to hide the contents of the documents, which deal at least in part with security operations of the RCMP, it would be the government.

The case already has aroused a storm of controversy about the propriety of keeping documents which might embarrass the government.

The Canadian Civil Liberties Union has said it will seek changes in the law enabling the government to arbitrarily refuse to produce documents for use in court.

Gordon Fairweather, MP for Fundy Royal and Progressive Conservative justice critic, and Alan Borovoy, general counsel of the Civil Liberties Union in Toronto, have said in separate interviews that section 41 (2) of The four-year-old Federal Courts Act is too broad and open to possible abuse.

In the Brunet-McCleery case, however, the Federal Court has saved the government the embarrassment of acting to keep the documents from public view.

A court official said Friday night that reasons for the decision probably will be made public next week.

Supermarkets Hope Survey Won't Expand

TORONTO (CP) — Edward Mosmop, sales director for A and P Food Stores, hopes a weekly survey of food prices taken by the food prices review board in 26 supermarkets will confine itself to its present Ottawa-Hull area.

The survey, run by board chairman Beryl Plumptre, put one Ottawa-area A and P store at the top of the most expensive supermarket list for four weeks running.

"We haven't had any publicity down here (in Toronto) on it, and we'd just as soon not," Mr. Mosmop said in an interview.

Spokesmen for Steinberg's and Dominion, which generally compared favorably in the survey, were reluctant to discuss the matter.

"I don't think anybody in the industry agrees with it," Mr. Mosmop said. "Any one of them could get hurt on it because of the manner in which it is being done."

The highest prices among the 26 supermarkets were charged by an IGA Canada Ltd. store in Bell, the survey shows, and Norman Lash, vice-president for merchandising of M. Loeb Ltd., supplier for Ottawa-area IGA, said he wants to find out more about how the board did the study.

But Anthony Campbell, secretary to the food prices review board, said the board would not disclose what items make up their shopping baskets because he said the supermarket "would probably distort the kind of results we'll get in the future."

A larger study is being made in seven other Canadian cities, with unpublished results, and is concerned with how consumers are affected and their buying habits by information about the quality of the food, quality of the service, location and other factors in addition to price.

People Cut Off Welfare Said Moving to Get Aid

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — A local social services director says it is likely that persons recently cut from the welfare rolls in Windsor are simply moving to other parts of the province and going back on relief.

A number of Windsor welfare recipients were dropped from the rolls for refusing to take agricultural jobs.

Maurice Fraser, director of social services for the Niagara region, said in an interview the blanket cut-offs of welfare recipients was "a stupid move that looked good only on paper."

"I'm sure we're picking them up here in St. Catharines and in London and Oshawa."

Mr. Fraser said widespread removals are wrong, and each case must be examined in detail.

Some Lake Ships Back in Service

MONTREAL (CP) — Seven Canadian lake carriers were moving on the St.-Lawrence Seaway-Great Lakes system today for the first time since Aug. 7, ending the first stage of a labor dispute that has severely affected the distribution of major Canadian natural resources.

Although only 23 of the estimated 140 ships tied up by strike involving deck officers and mechanics resumed operations, trade commissioners said serious delays in the movement of grain and iron ore might be slightly reduced.

The 425 deck officers of the Canadian Merchant Service Guild ratified a new contract agreement Thursday, but only Upper Lakes Shipping Ltd., whose mechanics are not members of the Canadian Merchant Officers Union that is still negotiating an end to its strike, was able to get its vessels moving.

The new agreement provides for a wage increase of between 40 and 75 per cent under a two-year contract, Robert Cook, guild vice-president said.

Mr. Cook said Friday in a telephone interview from Ottawa that the settlement gives the officers an average raise of $1.19 an hour or about $1,000 a month" by the time the contract expires June 1, 1976.

The deck officers earned between $3.16 and $4.13 an hour under the contract which has expired May 31.

Improved operations conditions also are included in the agreement which Mr. Cook said provides "pretty much what we asked for."

In Toronto, a spokesman for Upper Lakes said increases he would average $6.5 per cent but could be as high as 68 or 70 per cent plus fringe benefits for officers on smaller ships because of a change in classifications.

Negotiations were continuing with the 400 ship mechanics, who now earn $3.44 after a five-per-cent increase, and are also seeking a $1-an-hour increase in each year of a two-year contract.

A spokesman for the Canadian Lake Carriers Association, which represents 15 of the distributed shipping companies, said Friday that grain deliveries from Great Lakes terminals to St. Lawrence River elevators and iron ore movements from Quebec railroads to Canadian and U.S. steel mills at lake ports have been the most important victims of the walkouts.

Most of the vessels affected are bulk carriers, he said, and transportation of general cargo such as manufactured goods has not been delayed.

Ian Bennett, a spokesman for the Canadian Wheat Board said the strikes began barging an effect on grain exports last week as stocks for elevators in Montreal and several other St. Lawrence River ports became exhausted.

The spokesman said deep sea vessels would now have to wait for the 11 million bushels of grain on ships paralysed below the Welland Canal en route to export terminals. Many of the laborers are only hours from their destinations.

Large quantities of grain still must be moved east before the lake freeze-up in mid-December, he said, adding that deliveries are behind by at least 60 to 70 million bushels.

An Upper Lakes spokesman said some of its 23 vessels are carrying components of grain but he could not provide exact tonnage figures.

Community Colleges Declared Best Place to Train Teachers

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The training of high school teachers should be taken away from Ontario universities and transferred to community colleges, a conference of the Association of Colleges of Applied Arts and Technology of Ontario was told Friday.

David Mesmer, an instructor at Althouse College of Education, University of Western Ontario, said if the decision is made in the next 10 years "there'll be no one around who knows how to teach."

He said the training of teachers is being "butchered" by universities.

Mr. Mesmer, who teaches practice teaching and educational theories, urged a conference panelist, D. O. Davis, vice-chairman of the Ontario Council of Regents for colleges, to bring the matter up at the council's next meeting.

In an interview, Mr. Mesmer said universities have no feeling for the job of training teachers, adding they tend to dehumanize the teachers they are training to the detriment of the high school students.

"Teacher candidates have had four years of the most liberal university environment while earning their degree, said Mr. Mesmer.

They need a "decompression chamber," such as a college, before facing the classroom, he added.

Colleges have a more human, relaxed atmosphere and they are not staffed by professors who are part teacher and part researcher, he said.

Mr. Mesmer said college teachers have only one job—to teach.

He said the training of teachers in colleges puts them in closer contact with the type of student they'll be facing.

"A teacher shouldn't go into a high school and play university," Mr. Mesmer said.

Macksey Seeks End To Low Postal Morale

OTTAWA (CP) — Postmaster-General Bryce Mackasey Friday asked post office administrators to treat their employees fairly and with dignity and said he wants to end low morale in the department within two years.

Speaking at the opening of the new federal training institute, Mr. Mackasey said in a departure from a prepared text that people come first in the post office.

"As long as I am here people will be more important than machinery and automation," he said.

The new $3 million administration program in the post office has provoked widespread discontent in the department and led to recent postal strikes.

Pulp and Paper Firms Told to Clean Up Act

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario and Stream Improvement conference of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Association that the days of lenient enforcement of environmental laws for the industry are over.

One-day Walkouts Planne

Loyalist Staff Off Jobs Oct. 8

BY LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Loyalist College students will have a holiday Oct. 8 as their teachers hold a study session to protest breakdown in contract negotiations.

Negotiations for Ontario's 5,500 community college teachers reached a final contract offer by the administration Sunday and recommended a series of one-day walkouts beginning Oct. 8.

"I feel most optimistic," said Fred Wall, president of the Loyalist academic branch of the Civil Service Association of Ontario. "The Loyalist branch intends to follow the guidelines laid down by the central co-ordinating committee to hold a study session Oct. 8. Management by its own admission broke off negotiations Sunday at 4 p.m. After 28 hours at the table there was no choice."

The bargaining team, representing the Civil Service Association of Ontario, said it will also ask the teachers Oct. 14 to confirm the rejection.

The Ontario Council of Regional Arts and Technology said its final offer consisted of a general salary increase of 12 per cent Sept. 1, 1974, and an eight-per-cent increase retroactive to Sept. 1, 1973.

The council said the agreement would run for one year to Aug. 31, 1975.

According to the proposal, the maximum salary for a teaching master would have increased to $26,552 from $18,999 by Sept. 1, 1974, and a person earning $14,000 would have received an increase of $2,996.

In addition, council said it proposed substantial decreases in the number of teaching hours a year for more than 35 per cent of the college teachers.

However, a spokesman for the teachers said that despite the adjustment in teaching hours was a major reason for the breakdown in talks.

"The offer to achieve that decrease is (council) must increase the workload of the majority of teachers."

"It would be robbing Peter to pay Paul," he said.

The teachers, forbidden by law to go on strike, have asked for a 15-per-cent immediate increase and a 19-per-cent retroactive increase.

The negotiations, which broke off last June, resumed on the weekend.

Mr. Wall said: only two per cent of teachers in Ontario's community colleges are sharing in the maximum salary. The present minimum for the lowest of the five classifications is $4,500. This would have increased to $7,700 if the teachers had accepted the administration's offer.

"Negotiations have been going on since May 8, 1973," said Mr. Wall. "The eight per cent retroactive increase covers a period when teachers worked without a contract. We are still working on 1972 wage levels."

He said the teachers want to bring retraining, nursing and apprentice teachers' workload more in line with that of the post-secondary teachers.

"In order to achieve this, management insists on a significant increase in the post-secondary teachers' workload," he said.

"The teachers will take the proposed action (the study session) with regret, but we feel that after 18 months of negotiations and the 19 per cent raise the provincial government's got after, the situation has gone beyond the realm of reason and logic," Mr. Wall said.

Eggsactly What Happened?

A Sussex rooster at the Madoc fair seems to be haranguing Eugene Whelan, federal minister of agriculture, over recent reports of 23 million eggs rotting in Canadian Egg Marketing Agency storage facilities. Mr. Whelan, speaking to the opening day fair audience, disclaimed reports which quoted him as describing market board errors as "horrendous." They were honest mistakes, the cabinet minister said. McNamara Issues Warning

Unless We Sacrifice Millions Will Starve

WASHINGTON (CP) — The president of the World Bank said today people in affluent countries may have to face a reduction in their "immensely high standard of living" to help curtail "the risk of death" facing millions in the poorer countries.

Robert McNamara told delegates to the opening sessions of the Joint World Bank-International Monetary Fund annual meeting that aid to poorer countries must not be slanted solely as developed countries concentrated on controlling their own inflation and on searching for structural solutions "to their liquidity imbalance."

His remarks were released to reporters in advance of delivery.

"The situation is desperate" for the poorest of the countries served by the World bank — "countries that represent fully half of the total population of the nations we serve, countries containing one billion human beings."

"Almost every element in the current economic situation" has worked to the disadvantage of the poorest countries, McNamara said, "and has been compounded . . . by the natural disasters of flood, drought and crop failure."

Such countries, he said, "need additional assistance on concessionary terms . . . $1 billion to $4 billion more a year in the remaining years of the decade."

Such assistance, he said, must be mobilized despite the current economic environment and in the face of "severe inflation, unacceptable unemployment and uncertain growth prospects" within the donor countries.

"The world has not suddenly lost its wealth," he said. "The oil producing and exporting countries (OPEC) have gained huge amounts.

"And the traditionally-wealthy nations continue to be wealthy. They are less wealthy than they hoped to be at this time. But they are more wealthy than they were as recently as 24 months ago."

Session Starts Today

New Parliament Faces Heavy Backlog of Work

OTTAWA (CP) — Familiar dishes spiced with a smattering of new policies form the bulk of the government's throne speech menus today at the opening of the 30th Parliament.

Laden with a backlog of unpassed bills from the last Parliament and faced with mounting economic problems, the Liberal government hopes to, that out its proposed legislation at top speed, sources say.

Between 40 and 50 bills, more than twice the usual number are expected to be introduced during the next two weeks.

"About 40 per cent of these are in the category of sending a quick passage," one source said. Approximately one-half of the items expected to be introduced in the first 19 sitting days will be over from the previous session.

The afternoon's throne speech, outlining general government plans for the new session, was drafted in touch on many of the priorities, but critical economic policies will be revealed only in a new budget, promised by Nov. 15, is presented.

Chief Justice Bora Laskin, administrator of Canada during Gen. Gibson's recuperation from a stroke he suffered at home, was expected to read the speech.

As final touches were spliced in the speech during the last few days, sources were saying it would concentrate on food prices, housing, transportation and other issues troubling consumers during the current, period of inflation.

Transport was a major plank in the July 8 Liberal election platform, and the government was expected to press ahead with move assistance for urban transit. However, a pledge to form a national passenger transport authority will not be acted on until the two major railways show what they can do to improve passenger service.

Terrorists' Demands Ignored

SANTO DOMINGO (TP) — Terrorists holding a United States diplomat and five other persons in the Venezuelan Embassy demanded today that police and troops pull out of the area within two hours. The Dominican Republic government did not comply, and the deadline passed without any evidence of hostile action by the terrorists.

The demand was made after a large dump truck unloaded piles of sandbags on the street about two houses away from each side of the embassy.

Fifteen minutes later, a man shouted from a window of the embassy: "Attention! Attention!" We have not taken any action against the hostages thus far. We are sick. If you don't abandon the area in two hours, we will not be responsible for the consequences."

Dominican reporters who heard the announcement said the speaker was Manuel Vargas, the leader of the terrorists.

Oil Prices Discussed

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — Finance ministers of the United States and four other major industrial countries ended discussions here Sunday with no indications that they had reached agreement on how to deal with problems caused by the sharp rise in oil prices. The meeting of the five — Britain, Japan, West Germany, Britain, France and the U.S. — was called by U.S. Treasury Secretary Henry Kissinger.

Betty Ford Awaits Report

Agreement Ratified

TORONTO (CP) — Teamster union members in five southern Ontario trucking terals ratified a settlement Sunday night providing wage increases of $1.38 an hour over three years plus a cost-of-living adjustment. The former wage rate of $3.62 an hour for city drivers goes immediately to $5.02. There will be a 38-cents-an-hour increase Oct. 1, 1975, and 30 cents in October, 1976.

NEW YORK (AP)—More than 40 burglary suspects went to a party thrown by their favorite dealers Saturday night — only to discover that their favorite dealers were police detectives. In fact, they discovered that the storefront in Queens, where they had been getting such good prices for stolen television sets, stereos and other loot since last April, was a police setup. And even the cab drivers who took them to the party turned out to be cops.

Spinola Resigns, Leftists Triumph

LISBON (AP) — Gen. Antonio de Spinola resigned as president of Portugal today saying he was powerless to prevent the country's slide into chaos and anarchy.

The Junta of National Salvation, comprising the military rulers who overthrew the heirs of the Salazar dictatorship last April, quickly appointed as Spinola's successor Gen. Francisco Costa Gomes, long considered the president's top assistant in the junta.

Spinola resigned after leftists forced his rightist supporters to cancel a weekend rally in the general's honor. But the underlying cause of Spinola's departure were basic disagreements with the left over the pace with which reforms were being introduced in post-revolutionary Portuguese society.

His departure removed the last prominent conservative from the government.

Railways Balk at Reforms

West Premiers Praise Marchand

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canada's four western premiers ended their two-day conference Saturday with the usual complaints, but they also had mild praise for federal Transport Minister Jean Marchand.

The premiers said in their communique they want more federal action in the areas of agriculture, transportation, industrial and economic development.

But they also said Mr. Marchand has made some small strides in easing western transportation problems since the Western Economic Opportunities Conference (WEOC) 14 months ago.

"The minister was commended "for his co-operation and support for a new transportation policy." But the Canadian transport commission and the railways "have exhibited a reluctance and inability to follow the expressed wishes of the minister of transport and this reticence is a continuing stumbling block."

The premiers withheld further criticism pending federal reaction to studies on western transportation now nearing completion.

They also decided to hold off on a full discussion of what they consider transportation inequities in the West because Mr. Marchand is scheduled to meet western transportation ministers Oct. 20-21.

Premiers Ed Schreyer of Manitoba, Dave Barrett of British Columbia, Allan Blakeney of Saskatchewan and Peter Lougheed of Alberta reaffirmed their stand against federal Finance Minister John Turner's proposal not to allow corporations to deduct for income tax purposes resource royalties paid to the provinces.

In a reference to inflation, the premiers said they wanted to meet with Prime Minister Trudeau and other premiers prior to the federal budget expected in mid-November. They saw an "obvious need for close fiscal and economic policy coordination among senior governments at the present time."

Kiwanis Restore Graves

A local service club has undertaken a unique community project. The Quinte Kiwanis Club is helping restore one county's heritage by renovating an old cemetery.

The cemetery, over 100 years old, is located in Huntingdon Township near Roslin about 12 miles north of Belleville.

Over the years a stone church stood near the burial ground but through the years the area has fallen into disrepair with heavy brush and trees left completely obscuring the tombstones.

The church and cemetery are believed to have been October 31, 1838.

Only two walls of the church still stand and even these are crumbling rapidly.

Past president of Quinte Kiwanis Club, Clair Yeiter, said he hopes the church can be restored and the whole area — taking in an acre and a half — made into a historic site.

The plight of the cemetery came to the attention of Quinte Kiwanis Club member, Doug Delaney, who heard about it while on a trip to England. He said he thought it would be worthwhile if club members got together and cleared the area.

About a half dozen club members armed with gasdriven "brushcut" cut the shrub, clippers and a chain saw set about on a district Saturday morning to clear the area.

As work progressed the stones became evident, many of them in good condition with dates reading back to 1864.

Whelan Claims Reporters Scrambled Egg Story

By COLIN BEDCE
Staff Reporter

MADOC — Eugene Whelan, federal minister of agriculture and champion of the Canadian farmer, chastised Canadian coverage surrounding the recent rotting of 36 million eggs while in storage.

Mr. Whelan was described as "not a bad egg" by Hastings MP Jack Ellis before he officially opened the Madoc Fair Saturday.

"We're living in an age of extremism," said the minister. They (new media) didn't say it was one carload they said it was thousands of eggs".

"There's a feeling today that extremism is the thing to do," said Mr. Whelan.

The minister defended Canada's egg marketing agency (CEMA) and denied earlier reports that quoted him as calling CEMA's errors "horrendous".

"They were honest errors about this thing," said Mr. Whelan.

When asked by reporters how the integrity of CEMA had suffered in the eyes of the Canadian consumer, the minister said "They've (CEMA) taken quite a beating."

He referred to CEMA as the "salvation" of the egg producer and that: "I feel the farmers are behind CEMA more strongly than ever."

A public inquiry is being established to look into the matter of egg marketing and more precisely, the recent rotting of 36 million eggs held off the market by the quota. Ivor Isard, CEMA prescribes quotas for egg farm production and sets prices. "The board prevents fluctuating prices," said Mr. Whelan.

No date has been set for the inquiry. Mr. Whelan speculated that one result of the inquiry would be "stricter regulations concerning how, and how long eggs may be stored."

Mr. Whelan said this fall he will re-introduce farm legislation that was left standing in last spring's vote of non-confidence that toppled the Liberal government.

Included in this anticipated legislation is a farm milk policy statement "that takes the politics out of the industry," Mr. Whelan said.

He said policy for increased stabilization of farm economy, credit for young farmers and "one or two other areas" would be considered this fall.

In the meantime, Mr. Whelan says prices will be going up.

Poor growing conditions throughout the world this season will push up retail prices, said the minister. He refused to speculate what increase the consumer might expect.

"If we controlled the weather, the Canadian farmer could increase his crop by 25 per cent," said Mr. Whelan, "but, don't expect them to give it (crop) away."

"We must give the farmer a decent return," he said, "if the Canadian consumer gives them return, then the farmer will produce like he's never produced before," said Mr. Whelan. With the right people, "we'll serve the world when the price is fair."

Local Greeks Demand Ottawa Act on Cyprus Situation

From The Ottawa Bureau of The Intelligencer

OTTAWA — Several thousand Greek-Canadians converged on the Parliament Hill Sunday to ask the federal government to take action on the Cyprus situation.

The orderly crowd of men, women and children milled quietly on the lawns and walkways in front of the Centre Block, waving flags and banners protesting the presence of Turkish troops on the Mediterranean island.

John Zlatopolsky of Belleville urged the canadian government to take a firm and clear position on the Cyprus situation.

We believe Canada is well qualified to do that because of their outstanding record of peacekeeping in Cyprus, Mr. Zlatopolsky stated.

From the steps leading up to the peace tower, he told the assembled Greek-Canadian that Canada is a member of NATO and can help restore the territorial integrity of Cyprus) and to press for immediate withdrawal of all foreign troops from Cyprus.

Greek-Canadian from across Canada, including one from the Yukon, participated in the demonstration organized by the Pan-Cretan Nationalistic Solidarity Committee for Cyprus of which Chris Theodoros of Belleville is secretary.

A few members of parliament including Jack Ellis (NDP-Hastings), also attended the demonstration and addressed the crowd expressing support for their resolution.

After the two-hour demonstration, a wreath was placed at the war memorial to honour those who have died in the Cyprus conflict.

Forthcoming meeting is being held to present and discuss Mr. Sparling's information maps of the other alignments will be available.

On Curbing Crime

Strong security and preventive action are meeting with some success in containing hijackings and attacks on innocent people in transit through airports. At least that would appear to be the case, to judge from the lack of any such outbreak of late.

Be that as it may, it is questionable whether even the stronger security is full-proof. At Toronto International Airport, for instance, Monday with walkie-talkies patrol the terminal areas. However, they can not be everywhere and if a group of fanatical terrorists wanted to do something there is little doubt they could do it.

So the fateful means of curbing terrorism there are many who believe there is good reason for a return of the death penalty.

The Globe and Mail came up with another suggestion recently — one which also will have occurred to many people, but which may no longer be feasible. The newspaper was commenting on the horrible at the Tower of London resulting in death and injury to a number of tourists, and rather than capital punishment, which it believes is degrading to the community as a whole. The Globe made a case for "... exile.

"... banishment to a remote and isolated territory, perhaps an island, from which escape routes can be policed, and in which life would be on the level of subsistence..."

It is an interesting plan, but one we have concluded went out with the era of gunboats and gunpowder diplomacy. Tasmania and Bermuda, being very much in the mainstream of civilised society, and tourist havens as well, could no longer be considered for a life they could fill. So what's left? Nowhere of any substance that we can think of; remote or substantial enough, or bereft enough of population that the locals would mind much one or another.

Banishment then, exile, call it what you will, is a somewhat unrealistic idea. Besides, who would be willing to staff and oversee such remote establishments?

Meanwhile police in Kenya, faced with a rising crime rate, are said to be hitting the hoods in a way that would be the envy of police in other troubled spots. The things keep coming but they are getting caught in the act, and sometimes killed in the process. There is also a mandatory death penalty for armed robbery which, during the commission of a crime, injure their victims.

All over the world crime and terrorism are cancerous growths upon society that must deal with them remain masters of the prime responsibilities of governments and law enforcement agencies.

It Gets Around

We recollect an item in The Intelligencer's Looking Backward column, a copy of the newspaper which fetched up with a group of servicemen in Italy during the 1939-45 war.As we recall the men came upon the issue purely by chance and it got without much fuss created something of a stir and thoughts about home.

Now Rotary club president Bob Graham has passed on to us a letter from the Middle East news office in Bahrain of the Toronto-based firm of Comstock International Ltd.

The letter is from Khalil Al Hasan, who describes himself as a graduate of the Bahrain secondary school system, and he is interested in the local Rotary, club's exchange program which he read about in a recent copy of The Intelligencer.

All of which goes to show that The Intelligencer is around and is read with interest in many a corner of the world.

White Settlers Bitter

Bloodshed Mars Mozambique Drive for Independence

By KEVIN DOYLE

The Canadian Press

Violence, bloodshed and death have marred the drive for independence in the beautiful African land of Mozambique and the future Portuguese province now faces its most political crisis in a generation.

Fighting continues in the southeast of Africa's country, eager and bitter at the imminent hand-over of government to black nationalists, are posing a grave threat to Portugal's belated attempt at a peaceful transition of power.

A once-thriving economy has begun to recover, inflation is dropping at the encouraging rate of 39 per cent a year and industrial unrest is marginal as uncertainty about the future grows.

The recent seizure of the main radio station in the capital of Lourenco Marques by a small, radical group calling itself the Dragons of Death and its subsequent surrender along with other violent outbreaks are widely viewed as just the opening move in a campaign of intimidation.

At the moment, the white militants appear to be a fairly small minority of the full white community which numbers about 250,000 out of a total population of roughly 12 million.

But during recent events it has become clear they have the silent support of a much larger number of whites and it is for this which holds the most danger for the peaceful future of Mozambique.

TEAM PICTURE

The Dragons of Death, as far as can be determined, are mainly Portuguese ex-servicemen and fairly recent settlers in Mozambique. Their political allies are members of a right-wing group known as Pica, which is also strongly anti-African.

But when within this political hard core there are deep divisions, with one group calling for a unilateral declaration of independence similar to Rhodesia's while others object to what they consider an unwarranted interference in Mozambique's affairs by the Frelimo liberation front by Portugal.

Still others favor a constitutional conference of representatives of Portugal, Frelimo and the present government. The growth of various splinter groups within the white community has complicated the picture.

The sudden turn-around in Portuguese policy towards Mozambique has added to the insecurity and confusion among the whites. Only a few months ago, Lisbon was denouncing Frelimo as propaganda bumpf, labelling Frelimo as the instrument of terror of communism and the rest of the world.

Then Gen. Antonio de Spinola took over the Portuguese government last spring in a coup against the previous regime of Marcello Caetano, he gave the impression he was going to make a more lenient policy towards the colonies and stopped far short of independence.

It was not until late July that Spinola admitted for the first time the only way to end the war with Frelimo was to negotiate on its terms and the result has been a vacuum in Mozambique's political leadership which has been filled by extremists.

What happens next, now that Spinola has granted freedom to Guinea-Bissau, an independent government in Mozambique, depends largely on whether the remaining Portuguese troops in the region can keep the lid on the white rebellions which are widely expected.

Ironically, the army may find itself acting as a buffer between blacks and whites. Having the already-demoralized troops will be prepared to accept this role is highly questionable.

The most generally shared hope among the white appears to be that they will be allowed to keep most of their property and the blacks but this cannot imply happen in view of the hostile international reaction it could invoke against the South Africans.

In addition, South Africa hopes to maintain good relations with the new black government of Mozambique in order to continue important trade and other economic connections.

In any event, Portugal's hopes for a speedy disentanglement from its costly wars in Mozambique seem likely to be thwarted for some time to come.

Alberta Economic Haven

By DON O'HEARN

TORONTO — Recession.

Some opinion in Canada, notably that of Finance Minister John Turner and the president of the Royal Bank, is that we won't have one.

However, Statistics Canada and its overwhelming number of economists believe that we are heading for a recession.

The balance of this opinion is so strong that realistically the only important issue is how it will hit the nation, and most importantly our province.

The slogan "Go west young man" may be revived, or more realistically "Go to Alberta."

For the provinces of Prairie Canada will be an area that in season can comfortably go through any recession.

Most of all it has its oil and gas to sell, and recession or not they will be in demand.

Then it has huge capital projects on the planning boards and it has anticipating labor shortages. It should do all right.

But it is the one bright spot in the country.

B.C. is in a lesser crisis. Saskatchewan anticipates a poor grain crop. Quebec's industrial economy will be hit and the other eastern provinces are always more at less marginal.

Here in Ontario we should do better than some other provinces but still we could be hit by recession.

We have some very large capital projects either underway or planned, such as Pickering in Ontario and the Mattawin area complex.

These should mean considerable employment and consumption of steel, concrete and other construction materials.

But manufacturing is the heart of the Ontario economy today and here the prospect is not nearly so bright.

Our two major markets are the U.S. and the rest of Canada. The U.S., it is keenly realized, is headed for recession. Its capacity to purchase from us should be reduced.

Then the rest of Canada won't have the money to buy we are in real trouble.

As one example, housing starts are already strongly down across the country.

This has been one of the main causes of the B.C. lumber crisis. And it is bound to hit our manufacture of stoves, refrigerators, plumbing, TV's, electrical components and the many other materials that go into housing.

If there is a recession we certainly should be hit by it. The only real unknown being one of degree.

Convening Bankers Boast About Vital Business Role

By VINCENT EGAN

Business and Consumer Affairs Analyst

Toronto News Service

What do bankers do at an annual convention?

Pretty much the same as they do the rest of the year—boast a little about their vital role in the country, hear the validity of controllers' officials, and generally play their cards close to the vest.

At the recent conference of the Canadian Bankers Association, the chief executive officers of the Bank of Montreal and the Bank of Nova Scotia, for instance, took the platform to explain how perfectly Canada is served by a free flig dog eat dog system and how a network of 8,000 branches.

The chairman of the Royal Bank of Canada outlined the safeguards which protect our banks from the multi-million-dollar losses on foreign-exchange trading that several European banks have suffered this year.

That banker's banker—the governor of the Bank of Canada—conducted a lengthy review of the question of whether Canadian monetary policy would be affected when the central bank's controls over chartered banks were extended to "near-banks" — that is, trust and loan companies and similar deposit-taking institutions.

Gerald Bouey's conclusion seemed to be that it has been effective up until now—but that with the number of shiny new money merchants glad here come upon the near-banking scene in recent years, the Bank of Canada might need greater clout in that area in the future.

Mr. Bouey's boss; Finance Minister John Turner, was in some ways even less enlightening than the bankers themselves.

Asked whether individual savers will be allowed to write off up to $1,000 of interest income from 1974 Canada Savings Bonds, he gave a reply worthy of the oracle at Delphi.

"We are committed to the whole aspects of (the May 8) budget. So that the retroactive will depend upon what I say in the future."

At another point, Mr. Turner was asked for his reaction to the warning by Arthur Smith, former head of the Economic Council of Canada, that we face a severe energy crisis in the early 1980s, if the federal and provincial governments can't work out their differences on taxation of natural resources "with a realistic appreciation of the lead times required."

The finance minister's response was largely a discussion of the distinction between a tax (a "reflection of profit") and a royalty ("a payment against a fixed unit of production," but which has become "a disguised provincial tax, and provincial taxes have never been deductible").

Fascinating—if you are a student of tax law.

Frightening, however, if you believe Arthur Smith and others who forecast a shortage of developed energy sources in the 1980s unless exploration and development efforts are pushed ahead vigorously.

Quick and urgent action is essential to prevent a further slowdown in the pace of those efforts.

Dr. Smith reminded the bankers that Canada has one of the world's fastest-growing labor forces; and that to create one new job today requires a capital investment of well over $100,000.

During the next 10 years, he predicted, $500-billion in new capital will be needed to develop our energy, mineral and manufacturing system. At least a quarter of that will probably have to come from country like Canada.

Bankers are experts at assembling capital for big projects. But the federal-provincial impasse on natural-resource taxation, which pushes the combined levy to over 100 per cent of earnings in some circumstances, threatens to kill any hope of attracting capital on the scale that our future needs demands.

Young Smokers Strive For Instant Maturity

Letter to The Globe and Mail

I am appalled at the apparent epidemic of smoking addiction among Toronto school children, especially the girls.

Travelling to and from my mid-town office, I see many girls from what I have always presumed to be one of the city's better girls' schools. The pupils are almost invariably well turned-out, neatly because they have a neat, sober uniform, rather than the blue-jean mediocrity of most schools today.

It is quite pathetic, therefore, to see these fresh, young girls chain-puffing themselves by smoking as they walk along the streets. Presumably they think that by following the adult example, they achieve instant maturity and sophistication. Somebody should tell them that looking like a fifth-rate hippie silly children, aping their immature elders.

Perhaps it's only part of the women's liberation movement, though I recall that some of my high-school contemporaries (all boys) occasionally took a few very daring drags behind the bike sheds. One wonders when the young ladies will start swearing and spitting - or have I missed something?

Policies to Benefit Underprivileged

Oshawa Times

M. J. Coldwell, as a politician, kept one idea predominant in his mind to benefit the country in the federal arena; he wanted to promote ideas and policies which would improve the lot of the underprivileged and oppressed.

He never wavered in his pursuit of that goal. He believed fruitfully in his party and principles, also in its destiny to eventually form the government of Canada. These qualities alone didn't make him unique when he was leader of the Cooperative Commonwealth Federation, CCF. It was the fact that Mr. Coldwell — a leader with a commanding presence in Parliament and public life — stood on both sides of the political fence — steadfastly refusing to compromise with his ideals, regardless how attractive the bait was for him personally.

He bluntly refused a seat in the Senate after stepping down as CCF leader in 1958. William Lyon Mackenzie King was among Mr. coldwell's staunch admirers. This kind credence to the rumour that Coldwell had been approached by a high official and asked to join the Liberal Party. The first incentive was that he would be rewarded the promise of a Cabinet post. When this offer was rejected by Coldwell was told Mr. King had him in mind for succession to a high Senate position. In effect handing him the title of Prime Minister on the silver platter. Mr. Coldwell, as the story goes, again refused. It all remains academic.

Mr. Coldwell abhorred anything that smacked of compromising his principles or ideals. His deep-rooted opinion was that if the country needed him as the Prime Minister's chair, then it would be at the head of a CCF government and not as a lone member of a party with views and political journeys in direction with which, he believed. He felt these were the only groundrules he must observe.

He had a rare sense of integrity and honesty. He would often pass up a chance to make political capital out of a situation because it could not be verified or it could not be to the country's good.

His greatest honor as a humanist came in 1945. That was when he was included in the Canadian delegation to the United Nations conference in San Francisco. He was later appointed Canadian delegate to the UN General Assembly in 1947, 48,52 and 54.

He was a great and humble politician who added character and dignity to the federal arena for many years.

Victoria Harbour Has Dock Problem

Editor,
The Intelligencer:

Victoria harbour is quite a pleasant place, outside of the polluted waters. The trees and green areas compliment it, but one boats bobbing at anchor. It is hard to imagine having such an idyllic scene at the heart of a location among many of the boat owners who rent docks there.

It is my understanding that the Belleville Yacht Club association is the ultimate authority concerning the overall responsibility of the docks.

The much needed and very welcome docks that have been vitalized as a result of Ald. Meeks efforts come under his jurisdiction, I understand.

Then there are many degenerate looking docks which are "privately" owned. How can anyone "own" their own personal dock in a public place that is paid for and kept up by public money?These docks "owners" seem to have established squatters rights over the docks. Common decency association has been very negligent in putting a stop the the practice. So, what if they do have money involved? It is time the committee cleaned them all out and replaced them with proper docks under the control of the Commission that genuine regulations can be enforced.

The innovation of the 16 new docks is a big step in the right direction. However, it has come to my attention that there are problems here. Apparently, there are people docked there who have not paid the required fee, keeping out those who are legitimately entitled to be there.The Commission does not seem to know who has paid and who has not. Are the mysterious owners who have paid, are being charged up to $2.50 per day for docking at the visitors' dock because somebody else is in their place?

Surely the Commission should know who has paid and who has not, and surely they have the authority to remove or impound those who are still illegally docked.

I raise this mess up. It does not require much organization to account for 16 boats.

Warden Reviews Year in Office

PICTON — Prince Edward County warden Keith MacDonald Saturday night outlined highlights of his term of office during the warden's banquet held at the Prince Edward Darling Club.

He told approximately 200 guests it has been "a very educational, busy and rewarding" to serve as warden.

In 1974, construction of the new county home for the aged was begun and hopefully will be completed this fall, he said.

Prince Edward County council also granted $154,000 toward construction of a new arena in Wellington after fire destroyed the building in December, 1973.

Councillors watched progress at the Prince Edward County museum as attendance doubled this summer from the 1973 season.

Loch Sloy Industrial Park had come into its own and industry has started to move into the county.

Warden MacDonald commended a "working co-operative and very knowledgeable council has backed him during his year here in office.

Warden MacDonald paid also special tribute to Picton's late mayor Harvey J. McFarland as guests stood for a minute's silence in his memory.

"His leadership and drive were unbelievable. This man will be remembered in Prince Edward County by a great many of us," he remarked.

Leak Sealed

TRENTON — Trenton firefighters dealt successfully with a dangerous situation here yesterday.

Summoned to the created site of where a house formerly stood on College St. fire fighters were called upon to plug a broken natural gas pipeline and maintain a watch over it until gas company workmen arrived.

Earlier, a half-ton truck driven by Robert Lackmanzie ran over the buried pipe that connected to the gas meter inside from unloading on the property, a spokesman for the fire department reported.

Cruiser Damaged

PICTON — An Ontario Provincial Police cruiser was forced off Highway 33 near Rednersmit headquarters Saturday night by a motorist who left the scene.

A police spokesman said damage to the cruiser is estimated at $300. Constable Arthur Warnock, driver of the vehicle, was unhurt.

Police still are seeking the other driver.

Nixon Visits

Ontario Liberal Party Leader Robert Nixon addressed the annual dinner sponsored by Warden Keith MacDonald in Picton Saturday night. Mr. Nixon stressed the need for more public participation in government affairs.

Nixon Urges Greater Public Participation

PICTON — Participatory democracy should be fostered by municipal officials sensitive to community needs Ontario Liberal leader Robert Nixon told Saturday at a banquet given here by Prince Edward Warden Keith MacDonald.

Action at grassroots this public participation is just as important as was the move to responsible government in 1841 stressed Mr. Nixon.

He said as government today grows, people feel the only way to cope is through pressure groups. It is the responsibility of elected, elected and other elected representatives to reverse this trend.

"We have a healthy respect for the institutions of government that we must not undermine in any way. Our responsibility is to assist their growth," he remarked.

Mr. Nixon briefly reviewed highlights of Canada's political history observing some persons consider it dull.

"I don't think there is enough juice put into teaching the history of our country and our province," said the former teacher.

Ruthann Seymour-Iloras to cook, and has developed many original recipes, such as this one for date turnovers. She manages a coffee shop and gas station on Highway 37, and has just begun a political science course at Loyalist College now that her six children are all in school and she has more time to study.

Date Turnovers

one cup shortening
one cup butter or margarine
two eggs
two cups brown sugar
two tsp. baking soda eight tbsp. hot water four cups rolled oats
four cups flour

Cream the shortening and butter, add the eggs and sugar and mix well. Add the baking soda and hot water.

To this mixture add the oats and flour and blend well. Work the dough with your hands. Dip your hands in flour and shape the dough into round flat disk "cookies", and let them sit while you prepare the filling.

one pound dates
three-quarters cup hot water one-quarter cup sugar pinch salt
one tsp. vanilla

Place these ingredients in a saucepan and cook on medium heat until it thickens to a workable consistency for filling a turnover.

Put a spoonful of filling on ½ half of each cookie. Fold the cookie over, and press down around the edges.

Bake on a greased pan in a 350 degree oven for about ten minutes, or until nicely browned.

This recipe makes 36 good-sized turnovers.

Pension Plan Equality 'Top Priority': Lalonde

OTTAWA (CP) — Legislation to provide equal treatment of males and females under the Canada Pension Plan (CPP) will be a top priority of the new Welfare Minister Marc Lalonde said Friday.

Mr. Lalonde said consideration to equality would be one of the very first things to come before the House of Commons. "It is one of the most glaring pieces of legislation."

A bill providing equal treatment of the sexes, had received approval in principle, and committee consideration, but spring had arrived before the party of Liberal election promises was ready to introduce it.

Under the defunct bill, widowers and widowers-in-law would receive the same benefits as widows and their children, when CPP contributors died, and the new bill would have been retroactive to 1968 to permit such benefits.

Under current law widowers receive only survivor benefits if he had been dependent upon his wife's earnings.

The bill also would have changed the law to give free child-rearing drop-out periods to beneficiaries between the ages of 25 and 60. At present, persons out of that age range pose a problem.

In the cabinet shuffle in early August, Mr. Lalonde took over responsibility for welfare matters from Labor Minister John Munro.

Dear Doris: A few years ago I wrote to you then. Gentle, yet revealing, help in arranging my thoughts. It was a lot of help. I also enjoyed your letter at St. Andrew's Church, Niagara Falls, many years ago.

Now I am writing to tell you of a blessing of not-so-young Lady of mine plans in Georgia. For you call I asked, each member to name her favorite fairy tale and tell why she liked it. Then as a game I cited one member start a nursery rhyme but stopped before the end. Each one for next day must recite the line and start another nursery rhyme. If one is unable to finish the line she drops out.

This continues around the circle until only one is left who receives a prize which is a large lollypop. Then in case the magic had hurt became they did not get a prize they are given smaller lollypops.

For lunch one of the sandwiches served was peanut butter and jelly. I was agreeably surprised how well the party was received.

Fun and Games.

Dear F. and G. : Lollypops! Peanut butter and jelly! Shades of our childhood.

It seems the not-so-young folk have come to the spot where they can enjoy the sociability of a good laugh at themselves. I'd love to drop in on one of your busy times.

I'm sure some of our Canadian senior citizens will take a tip from you, next time they want some entertainment. We are always glad to hear from our friends south of the boarder.

Dear Doris: Through your column, and through your kindness had found a little note to that heart-broken mother who lost her daughter, we got in touch with each other.

This mother wrote me and I was so thrilled to hear from her. Just as I would, even though I did not know her girl back, but human caring can contact the heart and help to wipe out bitterness.

(Is it better to put up with misunderstandings, or to be the talking thing as I've got Doris help you see the light, send your letter in care of this newspaper.)

Dear Doris: I have to write to my aunt after the tragic drowning of her 11-year-old daughter. The body was not found for some time. It had to be buried right away. We did not have time to send flowers.

I don't think a card is enough, but I do not express myself very well and I thought you might be able to help me. Poor Writer.

Dear Poor: Letters of sympathy are very best, but a handwritten letter is preferable to a printed card.

Something like this should fit in with your feelings: Tell her you are shocked and sorry to hear of her tragic loss that she must be very much in your thoughts — which she doubtless has — and that you add your husband send all your love and sympathy. You realize how very much her little daughter meant to her and you hope knowing that you care, as well as many others, will bring her some comfort.

Get your letter off as soon as you can. And it is still not too late to send flowers to her; hence I'm rushing (splashy mind!

(Putting it down on paper helps — in a letter to Doris, a Canadian journalist, with a master's degree in social work — in care of this dear paper.)

Consumers 'Taken for a Ride'

Dear Ann Landers: The average citizen is being taken for a sucker because he can't help himself. I refer to being ripped off by automobile repair shops. The Progressive magazine (out of Madison, Wis.) printed a very good article with suggestions on how the public can protect themselves. I hope you will think it is worth reprinting. Here it is— Midwest reader:

"At a rundown gas station far from a major thoroughfare, sleazy, a greasy-faced mechanic leans his head on a hood. He looks sad and grim: That will be $75, mister, plus parts.

"Fifty, out-of-area plates on a downed car, you're—at the mercy of the closest repair station. But this time, you think, you've got a better deal nearer your own home. It's all a part of 'The Great American Automobile Repair Rip-off.'

"If 25 million crisp dollar bills were stacked, in the Astrodome and the manager were withdrawing cash to pay for auto repairs, every buck would be gone in a year—a lot of them wasted.

"The best defense is to inform your automobile and how to use it. Considering how much money people tie up in their automobiles, it's baffling course services could certainly be considered an investment. In the meantime, play defensively. Here are some rules:

"Read warranties and guarantees carefully. Look for the loopholes that will cost you later. Do they include labor?

"Get an estimate before signing.

"Ask to see the flat-rate book and ask what the shop's hourly rate is. Don't let a dealer show you a commercial flat-rate book for repairs. Commercial books allow more time than factory books.

"Get the work order filled out in full before signing. Cross out all blank lines.

"Don't take verbal promises from anyone. Get it in writing.

"Don't let any shop take your transmission or engine apart until you're sure it needs it. Get another opinion from another shop.

"Avoid places that advertise heavily. The odds are against you. Good shops don't need to buy ads.

"Paint or scratch an identifying mark on major parts to prevent being sold your own gear.

"Don't be afraid to back out if the price sounds too high.

"If the work isn't done properly, tell the hombre you intend to blow the whistle to the PTC, the DA's office, your state's Office of consumer affairs, the Better Business Bureau, and anybody else you can think of. Then do it—Battery Tenders In Soldier's Magazine" (Reprinted in The Progressive)

Ugly Ducklings Lack Self-worth

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Even at age 3 or 4, children can tell whether other people think they are beautiful or ugly, says a child development specialist.

And most people respond with a "beauty contest" attitude, said Dr. James Dobson, giving warmth and praise to the good-looking child and ridiculing or neglecting the fat, skinny, buck-toothed or puny.

The result, he believes, has been lifelong self-doubt and feelings of worthlessness in many persons.

Dobson teaches pediatrics at the University of Southern California school of medicine and is director of behavioral sciences at the Children's Hospital in Los Angeles. He wrote a recent book on child self-esteem, Hide or Seek.

In an interview he said he became interested from counseling experiences on how self-worth is fostered or destroyed.

One of his patients was a 36-year-old man who told him, "I was five years old when I realized I was ugly and I've never been the same since."

Nicknames like Rocky Raccoon, Bones, Flo Wee or Birdlegs can cause wounds that destroy self-confidence for life, said Dobson.

Dobson thinks the sexual revolution is also to blame.

"A society that goes overboard on sex, sex and more sex where everybody has sex on his mind 24 hours a day is going to place a lot of value on human attractiveness.

"He said there has been research showing that praise given to school-children often are influenced by their looks.

He also cited a study in which adults were given pictures of children and asked to decide which ones were responsible for a hypothetical act of mischief. The uglier children were usually blamed.

Unfortunately, Dobson said, parents themselves are influenced by society's attitudes and are disappointed if their offspring are not "super-children."

"Furthermore, I have observed in working with parents that their own feelings of inferiority make it difficult for them to accept gross imperfections in their children."

In his book and in lectures to parents' groups, Dobson tells parents they can make or break a child's sense of self-worth.

His "strategies for self-esteem" incorporate admittedly "old-fashioned" views on raising children: encourage independence, self-discipline and humility.

Instead of exalting beauty, brains or accomplishment, he urges adults to teach the children to respect themselves for what they are regardless of glimpses, patience and honesty.

Another important bulwark of confidence, said Dobson, is to help the child learn a skill, music, for instance—which will help him compensate for rudeness in handedness or intelligence. In later life banks are another standard by which children measure and fail in society's eyes.

Ultimately, Dobson's prescription is religion.

Scotland Yard's Newest Commander

LONDON (CP) — Daphne Skillern spends her spare time studying poetry, drama and European country and walking silent spots. On duty she is Scotland Yard's newest commander with nearly 25 years' police service, more than half of it served as a detective in some of the toughest areas in London.

"I am a policewoman by choice," she said. "As a young girl, I wanted a worthwhile career and considered teaching, nursing and the police service, with some family pressure for nursing, but the police service seemed to me to offer the most satisfaction—and it has."

Commander Skillern, 46, is the most policewoman at Scotland Yard, headquarters of London's Metropolitan Police Force, and the highest-ranking woman officer in Britain. The metropolitan force, considered the country's senior police force, is the only one with officers holding the commander rank, roughly equivalent to an assistant chief constable.

Miss Skillern's duties are confined to the metropolitan area, which covers 620 square miles of the British capital and its suburbs. There are some 750 policewomen in the force — about 5 per cent of the strength of 21,000. It is wrong to describe Miss Skillern as the head of London's women police.

"The force now is completely integrated. Women and men sharing the same responsibilities and duties," she said. "In the past women joined mainly to work with children and women offenders. They still undertake these responsibilities, but as part of the general pattern of police work."

Miss Skillern has been appointed to the Yard's D department, which is responsible for training and recruitment. D9 with what she describes as "grandiose" title of Personnel Management and Training.

She also commands other sections which deal with information, promotion, examinations, married quarters and medical matters, which provide accommodation for unmarried officers.

She joined the Metropolitan Police in September, 1949, transferring to the Criminal Investigation Department (CID), after completing her two years as a uniformed police officer. One of her early postings as a detective was to the Chelsea area of London, where she worked with a team of half a dozen male colleagues. She considers this one of the important milestones in her career.

"I was too young to have served in the armed forces and when I became a detective constable I was still a rather shy person," she said. "Working with the CID helped to smooth the rough edges."

Earlier in her career she served in East and West London, where some of the toughest policing problems exist.

She also has served in London's fashionable West End.

As she advanced she had responsibility small in number, mainly dealing with a variety of subjects including criminal-protection cases, juveniles, missing persons and, occasionally and rarely rape.

Miss Skillern is one of the few women to take the police service command course at Bramshill Police College in Hampshire, southern England. As a commander in D department she took over from a male officer.

She agrees with the policy of women taking part in all types of police work and she also accept that they still will play a major role in dealing with children and women.

"But this will be as part of general duties and not as their sole responsibility under the old system of specialization. Women already are doing the same work as the men."

Typical Low-wage Earner Is Young Married Woman

TORONTO (CP) — The typical low-wage earner in Ontario is a married woman under the age of 25, with no dependents and with a Grade 10 to Grade 12 education, says a survey released Friday by the Ontario labor ministry.

The survey said that among the male low-wage earners, 72.3 per cent were single, 19.7 per cent 20 to 24 per cent of the women in the same wage level were married.

Only ninety female benefits he had been dependent upon his wife's earnings.

High Winds Do Damage

TORONTO (CP) — Winds, with gusts to 93 miles an hour, felled scores of hydro wires, trees and blew construction material loose in the downtown area Sunday, hydro officials said.

Toronto Hydro reported many hydro lines and television aerials down and there was damage to traffic lights. Several families also reported rain blocking off their sewers.

Ioannides In Edmonton

EDMONTON (CP) — A seriously ill Edmonton man who was hospitalized by war in earth-shaken Cyprus arrived home safely on Saturday and was immediately taken to hospital.

Nicolas Ioannides, his wife Kalogeria, and their four children arrived on a military transport aircraft after being rescued from the Cyprus village of Zirakpasteni, where they were vacationing when war broke out.

The family arrived at Trenton, Ont., Friday after a brief stopover in Ottawa. They flew from the Canadian Forces base in Lahr, Germany, after being hauled over to United Nations and Red Cross officials in Nicosia.

Hid 30 Years

MOSCOW (Reuter) — A Second World War deserter from the Soviet Red Army has emerged from hiding after 30 years spent in the attic of his family's Ukraine cottage.

The newspaper Komsomolskaya Pravda says Vasily Ehvyl—now in his 50s—left the attic in August for the first time since 1944, after his brother inadvertly revealed his secret.

He was offered a full pardon, the newspaper says, and now is working happily on a local collective farm.

OUT OUR WAY — by Neg Cochran

Nixon Made Offer To Return Pardon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former President Richard Nixon offered to return his pardon to President Ford, but the offer wasn't regarded seriously, a White House source said Saturday night.

The source said Nixon began a telephone conversation with Ford Sept. 29 by saying he was sorry about the trouble the pardon had caused and would send it back if it would help.

But the offer was "not a formal, legal offer to turn back the pardon because I don't think there's any legal way to do that," the source said.

Rather, he said, Nixon's statement was "a sort of casual, off-handed, figurative statement mentioned out of politeness."

He said Ford didn't take it as a serious offer.

Reporters asked Ford about the matter Sunday night when he visited his wife at Bethesda Naval Medical Center, but the president didn't answer.

Ford pardoned Nixon Sept. 8 for any crimes the former president may have committed against the United States while in the White House.

Hugh Sidey, Time magazine's Washington bureau chief, reports that the conversation went as follows:

"Nixon said that he was sorry for all the trouble the pardon had caused. Then he offered to send the pardon back if it would help. He said Ford, he did not want that. He told the ex-president to stand firm. It would blow over."

Milk Diet For Ulcers Said Bad

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The use of cream and milk in treating ulcer patients for a so-called gastric diet has no scientific basis, a McMaster University medical centre nutritionist said Saturday.

Kathryn Field, a speaker at a workshop sponsored by the Ontario Dietetic Association, said in an interview that in treatment during the post-acute phase, the diet should not be over-emphasized.

In the past, a milk diet was used to coat the pain of ulcers and facilitate the healing, she said. This approach was based on the belief in milk's antacid effect.

Studies have shown the acid neutralizing effect of milk is relatively low and that acid secretion is stimulated by milk, she added.

She said patients should be kept on their normal diets as long as the system can tolerate it. She included both fried and spicy foods.

Why $500 worth of stripes in front of your eyes beats $500 worth of spots.

The next time you turn on your color TV, go up to the screen with the magnifying glass, and take a close look at what's really making up that colour picture you're looking at. Dots. Red, blue and green dots.

If the dots are kind of blurry, they're coming at you through a white matrix.

And we can tell you right now that your set is at least 5 years old. Because the black matrix improvement has been around about that long. Colours against a black background will always stand out much better than colours against a white background.

So maybe it's time for a new colour TV.

When you do decide to go shopping take the magnifying glass with you.

When the salesman turns a set on, go through the same procedure.

Examine the screen up close with the glass. The dots look much clearer now, because they're coming through a black matrix. Now stand back and look at the picture. You may be so impressed with the brilliance (as compared with what you've been seeing at home), that you'll start getting out your chequebook right then and there.

Don't do it.

Drop in to any Toshiba dealer.

And don't forget the magnifying glass. Go right up to the screen with the glass, as soon as the salesman turns on the 14" screen C-335. While he's talking about 100% solid state dependability, plug-in modules for easy servicing, Automatic Fine Tuning and Automatic Balance Control, you study what's happened inside the colour. Black background for definition, you've seen that already. But, the dots aren't dots any longer. They're stripes of colour. And it doesn't take a lot of thought to realize there's more colour area in a stripe than in a dot.

It's these colour stripes against the black background that give you the most brilliant colour picture in the industry.

Now stand back and look. That's called Toshiba Blackstripe™ colour television. It's $500 worth of colour if ever you saw it. And for only $479.95 (suggested retail).

Indians Get Welcomed In Building Takeover

OTTAWA (CP) — About 200 Indians took over a National Capital Commission building near Parliament Hill Sunday and were told about two hours later they were welcome to stay there as long as they wanted.

The 120-year-old stone building, which is to be restored or perhaps set aside for small-cultural groups, was empty at the time, its heating and telephone service.

The Indians, members of the Native People's Caravan, have travelled from British Columbia to present Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien with a list of demands. They are in Ottawa to demonstrate on Parliament Hill today during the opening of Parliament.

"We are not leaving here until we demands are all met," spokesman Ken Deeble told reporters.

The Sunday protest recognition of land rights, improved medical facilities, housing and education, including boarding schools treaty promises and a thorough investigation of the Indian affairs department.

"We have come in sight of my across among the group.

Added to the list of demands later was the resignation of Mr. Chretien and the appointment of George Manuel, president of the National Indian Brotherhood, to the post.

Mr. Buchanan said he would gladly lead the group to Ottawa but added that he would tell the NCC headquarters of the invasion at "whatever words" so for them to work through channels. Otherwise, he said, the councils and Indian brotherhoods.

He said he would not turn his back on a group which has travelled so far to see him.

But the minister said his talks with Indian leaders across the country made him wonder just how much support the group had.

Neither the Native Council of Canada nor the National Indian Brotherhood has pledged support for the caravan and its demands.

However, the Canadian Union of Indians, a militant group, said it supports the group.

Britain's Economy Seems Improving

LONDON (Reuter) — British monthly economic assessment by the information department has suggested the country's economy is showing definite signs of improvement, a report released Sunday shows.

The assessment is expected to give a boost to Prime Minister Harold Wilson's ruling Labor party in the campaign for the second election this year on Oct. 10—an election precipitated by the strained economy which has seen prices rising.

The report comes from the civil service department which is normally regarded as independent of the political parties now embroiled in the battle for votes.

It says there has been significant progress in reducing the overseas trade deficit, including the higher price paid for oil which is now more expensive throughout the world.

The volume of exports rose strongly while import volume fell slightly, the report says.

DES Unlikely Cause Of Cancer in Humans

NEW YORK (AP) — DES, a growth hormone for cattle that has caused cancer in laboratory animals, is unlikely to cause daily for a significant cancer-causing agent in humans, Dr. Thomas Jukes of the University of California says.

A discussion of the use of the hormone diethylstilbestrol in beef cattle appears in the current Journal of the American Medical Association (AMA). It is by Jukes, a biochemist and nutritionist at Berkeley, conclusion:

"We hardly need a carcinogen."

Jukes says the AMA article is a narrative evaluation of the effects of various environmental carcinogens. It seems unlikely that the DES in beef makes a significant contribution to this list f agents."

Canada has banned all imports of DES beef.

Calculating the average daily intake from beef liver and muscle meat—a very small amount, he indicates—Jukes said that the risk is "one case of cancer per 1,200 years in the U.S. population if there is no threshold."

Pirating Of Workers Is Alleged

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Large industries were accused during the weekend of dodging their responsibility in the apprenticeship field and of "pirating" skilled help from smaller companies that provide training.

Dominic DeAngelis, Toronto-based international representative of the United Automobile Workers union, told a panel discussion that many large companies refuse to contribute to the training of apprentices.

"They will not participate—they choose to steal from the smaller employer who is left holding the bag," F. DeAngelis said.

Ford Wants Tax On Gas Increased

WASHINGTON (AP) — The president administration is considering asking the United States Congress to raise the federal tax on gasoline by anywhere from 10 to 50 cents a gallon, a White House source says.

But this same source said the administration fears a public outcry if such a tax plan is announced and is unsure whether Congress would approve it.

The purpose of the higher gasoline tax would be twofold: to discourage gasoline consumption and to raise new tax revenue to finance federal programs.

Senator Hubert Humphrey (Dem. Minn.) said after Ford's economic summit conference Saturday he expects the administration will propose the tax which he predicted would be "highly controversial."

The federal tax on gasoline now is about four cents a gallon. States also impose a tax on gasoline averaging about eight cents.

Ford said Saturday his economic program would go to Congress within 10 days, which means by Oct. 1.

It is expected to include help for the housing industry in the form of mortgage interest subsidies, budget cuts, a public service employment program and some tax relief for groups hard hit by inflation.

At the summit conference, Ford announced three steps he has taken:

—Consolidation of the government's domestic and foreign economy and energy policy.

—Establishment of a White House labor-management committee to advise him on major economic policy.

—Appointment of Princeton University economist Alan Blinder to head the Council on Wage and Price Stability recently authorized by Congress.

Ford urged all Americans "to join me in a great effort—and to become inflation-fighters and energy-savers."

PCs Won't Agree to Socreds Having Official Party Status

OTTAWA (CP) — Conservative Leader Gerald Baldwin says his party will not agree to the 11-member Social Credit group having official party status in the new Parliament which opens today.

Under the Senate and House of Commons Act, 12 members are required to form an official party.

"We are certainly not going to agree to amending the statute," Mr. Baldwin said in an interview Saturday.

"There are far too many serious problems in the country for us to get involved in one of those political debates.

"But if the government wants to make funds available to them, as with other parties, I don't think we would have any objections," he said.

Funds to official parties pay for research and support staff not available to independent MPs. They also give official party leaders $4,000 on top of the $12,500 annual salary and $8,000 expense money paid to ordinary MPs.

But it is up to the Commons group, Leader Real Caouette would worry on in the same way as an official party leader.

But Mr. Baldwin said this would be far different than amending the statute.

"The funds would be available on a year-to-year basis and the government could cut them off at any time," he said.

The government thinks that by propose to Social Credit, it will hurt us. And we're certainly not going out of our way to see that they get special privileges.

"As far as we're concerned we are not recognizing them as an official party. But if the government wants to do them a favor I don't think we'll provoke a row."

NDP Leadership Meet in March

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal New Democratic Party probably will hold a leadership convention next March in Winnipeg, it was announced Sunday.

A recommendation to this effect will be made at a meeting of the party's national council scheduled next week in Halifax.

Belleville Club's Official Opening

Two Squash Experts in Action

By MARK BERRY
Staff Sportswriter

Local squash enthusiasts were treated to a rare privilege at the Belleville Squash Club's official opening Saturday night.

A group of about 30 people were on hand to witness the big, marked hard ball battle between Sheriff Kahn, play against the number 2 ranked doubles player in Canada, David Hetherington.

Kahn who has been undefeated in tournament squash play for the past seven years played Hetherington in an exhibition demonstration match.

Squash has been a part of Kahn's life for as long as he can remember. His father, from whom he learned the game, has won every major squash tournament in the world, including the challenging British Open for seven years in a row.

His father, Hasid, who is here on vacation from Montreal, is a top ranked junior in the United States.

Sheriff started the game at the age of eight and has since gone on to become the world's best. Kahn for the time being is living in Toronto and working as a squash coach.

Other dignitaries on hand for the occasion included M.P. for the riding of Hastings, Bill Ellis, and the president of Ontario Squash Racquet's Association, Tom McCarthy.

Mr. McCarthy, in opening ceremonies, commended the local people who got together and organized the project.

"Squash being a relatively new sport has about 12,000 participants in Ontario alone. It's often hard to get backing," he explained, "but these ventures such as this."

McCarthy stressed the need for competition outside the area to get on the right level of play in other areas. "The only way to achieve a certain level of ability is to play better opponents."

McCarthy is also Hetherington's doubles partner in tournament play.

Kahn and Hetherington had been seen at parties shaking their heads at the amazing reflexes of both players.

A.g.h.'s most powerful weapon, as Hetherington later described it, "is his ability to stay in his opponent's footsteps. Before you can turn around he's already returned the ball," conceded Hetherington.

How long Hetherington can keep up with Kahn remains a mystery. It takes plenty of practice, both with an opponent, preferably one who is a slightly better player and also by yourself, which can be of great importance in attaining control," said Wade, who at one time in his career used to play for four hours at a time against the world's finest. Another important factor is that if you are able you should seek instruction at least once a week from a pro. He also echoed McCarthy's feelings about internal competition in that the only way for real improvement is in outside competition.

Is competing a sticker sport, tennis, Kahn felt that more control was needed to play that game as you very often have two or three chances to hit the ball in squash.

As official invitation was extended to a Belleville team to compete in the up-coming tournament, Mr. McCarthy.

Kahn was also available after his match with Hetherington to play some of the local squash players.

Sheriff Kahn right smashes a return volley from David Hetherington at the Belleville Squash Club courts. The two men were on hand for the official opening ceremonies of the Club Saturday night and demonstrated their talents freely. Kahn is the top seeded hard ball squash player and third seeded soft ball squash player in the world. Hetherington, his guest opponent, is the second seeded doubles player in Canada.

Bill Haines digs the ball out of the dirt in plenty of time to put the tag on sliding Tim Soule. Haines, the Grantham third baseman, pulled the low throw from his catcher off the ground and touched Soule, Belleville SACO peewee's pitcher, to cut off the developing scoring threat. The SACOs did score five runs however and won the Ontario Amateur Softball Association semi-final contest 5-4 at Alemite Park on Saturday. The best of three series now stands even at 1-1.

SACO Peewees Battle Back To Earn Extra Inning Victory

Tie Whitby 5-5

Belleville SACO peewees kept their playoff hopes alive on Saturday when they defeated Grantham 5-4. The victory seemed their best of three Ontario Amateur Softball Association semi-final series at 1-1.

It took two extra innings for the locals to win the game, but they scored a run in the bottom of the ninth to take it.

Pinch hitter Darrell Colman was the hero of the contest as he propelled a two out single in the final inning to drive in the winning run. Ron Bogler had started out the ninth with a single and stole second. With two runs out Bob Hedge walked and was followed by Colman who singled.

Bogler not only scored the winning run, but scored two other besides and drove in a pair. He went three for five for the afternoon with a home run, and two singles. He was also a standout at third base.

SACO's Chevron Bobbers scored a pair of runs and did some excellent base running stealing three! He scored the tieing run in the bottom of the seventh losing after singling and stealing second and third. He also had a double.

Bobby Hedge came up with a couple of clutch hits, a single and a double to drive in two runs.

Pitcher Tim Soule, had the ninth hit of game for the Belleville crew, a single.

The Belleville team is down 9-8 and 4-3 deficits to win.

Burt Risman was tops for Grantham, he had a home run and two singles, drove in two runs and scored two. John Jarvis was good with a double and a single Soule gave up 10 hits in earning the victory. He fanned four Grantham batters and issued only two walks.

Don Nichols went the distance on the losers mound losing five free hoses, striking out six and giving up nine Belleville hits.

The third and deciding game in the series will be played Saturday in Grantham.

Cats Pull Up Socks For Season Opener

Belleville Bobcat's coach Tim Williams, most have been something to inspire his Metro Junior B crew after their exhibition loss to Pickering Dukes 28 Bruins 13.

Saturday the Cats travelled to Whitby for their first Yeong Bruins in the opening contest of the Metro season and came out with a 5-5 tie. The Bruins had beaten Pickering but one week ago.

Belleville played it rough and tough scoring two with 12 minutes in penalties comparted to 16 for the Bruins.

Rob Foster and Jim Richardson were the key figure in the victory, Richardson fired two of his Cats five goals and Foster counted a goal and an assist.

The two clubs battled their wipes through the first period with no score until the 16:12 mark. At that time Whitby's Paul Ramsey tallied.

Then the Cats moved, but over a minute later to re-enter both the tie. Foster got that one front defenceman, Al Jeffery.

The locals outscored the home team 3-2 in the second period to hold down a 4-3 lead at the end of 40 minutes.

All goals were again came late in the period. Dave Taylor put Belleville out in front 5-1 on an unassisted effort with just 5:58 remaining.

Whitby took the lead on quick scores from Andy Pur-mals and Steve Sandford.

With a little over two and a half minutes to go Richardson counted the first of his two goal performance with Foster drawing the assist.

Jim Mainse later the Cats were back in front as the rookie line connected, Curt McLean scored on passes from Wayne Clapp and Scott Eamon.

Belleville jumped into a 2-0 lead after five minutes of the third period on Richardson's second marker. Danny Lee made and Grant Coogan drew assists.

John Mainby was the difference between a loss and one point for Whitby as he scored twice in the third period to even things up at 5-5.

Bob Moore was in goal for the Cats.

Friday the Cats open their home schedule when they take on the Oshawa Legionaires at 8 p.m. at the Memorial Arena. A week from this Sunday Belleville travels to Oshawa and then a week from Friday they're back at the Memorial Arena against the Peterborough Lions.

Blues Whip Gaels

The win secured the Blues hold on first place in the league's eastern conference. It was their third in a row.

Brent Barry and Steve Kilowski got the other Toronto touchdowns, Don Wright added four converts and Queen's conceded two safety touches.

The Golden Gaels got their only points of the game when Ronald Serebrin ran short yardage for a major early in the first quarter and placekicker, Will Kennedy booted the third-successful field goal.

The loss was Queen's second in three starts and left them in a four way tie for fourth spot in the eastern conference.

Spartacus, Whitley's In Charity Cup Final

TRENTON (Special) — Two Trenton teams have advanced to the Bay of Quinte Soccer Association Belleville Charity Cup final.

Playing at Centennial Park here, Spartacus whipped Cobourg 3-1 while Wark Tuney's 3-2 while Wark-worth, Spartacus topped the home side 4-4. The Charity Cup final will be scheduled at a later date.

Bobby Arsenault was the hero at Trenton. He is making a habit of collecting for deciding goals in Whitley cup wins over Cobourg.

It was Arsenault who knocked Tuney's out of Trenton Challenge Cup action with a goal from the penalty spot in extra time. Sydney, he did it again, finding the mark from about 18 yards out with only 30 seconds remaining in regulation time.

Whitley's opened up a 3-0 lead on goals by John Theis and Henry Somerwil but the visitors came back to get one themselves. Eric Golob made it a 3-1 score and an "own goal" made it a brand new game.

Cobourg relaxed in the last minute and that was the opportunity Arsenault was waiting for.

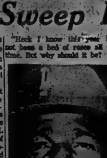
At Warkworth, Spartacus got three goals from Chris Yiakoris, two by Ted Adams and one by Chalaski. Replying for Whitley's were Bruno Rivas, Gilberto Morales, Bruno Krnac and Luc Marcocchia.

Loyalist Wins 2-0

BROCKVILLE (Special) — Loyalist College of Belleville made it two wins in as many Eastern Colleges Athletic Association eastern division soccer league starts here, Saturday, as they blanked St. Lawrence College of Brockville 2-0.

Ernie Brown and Rob Crowsley looked after the scoring as the visitors clicked for one goal in each half.

Loyalist makes its next game Sat. Sept. 28 at St. James Whitney School in Belleville, playing host to St. Lawrence of Kingston in a 12.30 p.m. match.



Expos Sweep Phillies

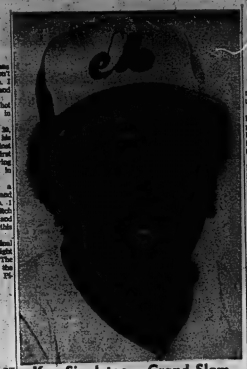
MONTREAL (CP) — Willie Davis summed everybody's humor that he was happy with Montreal Expos, so he called a news conference Sunday to tell them.

Despite Ken Singleton's first inning-base grandslam home run off Flicks' starter Ken Brett—all the Expos needed on Day scored into a third-place tie with Philadelphia in the NL East—Davis was the centre of attention in the Montreal clubhouse after the Expos defeated Philadelphia Phillies 8-5 Sunday for a sweep of their three-game weekend series.

"When I came over here from Los Angeles last winter, I came here with one goal in mind—to help the Expos win the pennant," said Davis, acquired on Oct. 7 after a record season.

"I don't want to go anywhere else. I want to stay here. Maybe they can trade a contract—not me.

WILLIE DAVIS



"Look, there were some days there today talking me down. I don't want to hear it. I intend to come back here and help this team win."

The Expos made Sun on a hot streak of late with 13 wins in their last 15 games.

Right-hander Dandie Bisby, 38, a rookie, pitched credit for the fifth win of the year against seven losses, raising the first 18 men he faced before giving up a single to Larry Bowa in the fourth inning.

Bisby hit the game for a pinch hitter in the fifth and Barry Murray, the Expos' No. 11 roller man, came on to pitch. Both scoreless innings and record his 18th save of the month and of the season.

The Expos begin their final homestand of the season tonight against St. Louis Cardinals. The Cards are tied for first in the NL East with Pittsburgh 15 rates.

Aaron Undecided About Retirement

ATLANTA (AP) — Hank Aaron, baseball's all-time home run king, said Sunday he has not decided whether he will retire from baseball this year.

The 41-year-old Atlanta Braves star made the statement during a pre-game conference in which a wood carving of Aaron and Babe Ruth was unveiled.

"I haven't decided whether I'll play another year or whether, I'll retire," Aaron said as a sparse gathering estimated at fewer than 2,500 cheered the man who surpassed Ruth's home run record of 714 in the Braves' home opener April 8.

"I regret that I wasn't able to help bring a championship to Atlanta," he said. "I have really enjoyed playing here and I hope the people here have enjoyed seeing me play."

Aaron tied Ruth's record in the season opener at Cincinnati, then hit No. 715 off Al Downing of Los Angeles Dodgers here April 8.

Orioles Are So Near, Yet So Far From Yanks

New York Yankees keep winning, but they just can't catch up with Baltimore Orioles.

Craig Nettles belted two home runs and Ruby May pitched a four-hitter Sunday to help the Yankees post their fourth consecutive victory, a 10-2 romp over Cleveland Indians.

But Baltimore remained baseball game ahead of the Yankees in the East for the American League East flag by slipping Milwaukee Brewers 4-3, the winning run scoring on four walks in the sixth inning.

Baltimore has three games left in the regular season, at Detroit tonight, Tuesday and Wednesday. The Yankees have two games left, at Milwaukee Tuesday and Wednesday.

Elsewhere Sunday, Detroit Tigers defeated Boston Red Sox 7-4, Texas Rangers blanked Kansas City Royals 5-0, California Angels beat Minnesota Twins 4-2, and Oakland A's edged Chicago White Sox 2-1.

In Saturday's games, New York beat Cleveland 8-3 and 5-7, Boston beat Detroit 7-2, Texas blanked Kansas City 11-0, Oakland edged Chicago 4-3, Baltimore beat Milwaukee 7-1, and California blanked Minnesota 4-0.

May struck out 13 in pitching his first complete game since joining the Yankees from Atlanta Angels June 15.

Nettles hit his first home run of the game in the fourth inning, Lou Piniella and Thurman Munson followed with singles in the fifth, and Nettles hit his third home run of the season in the sixth, making it 10-0.

Ross Grimsley's home-loaded walk in the ninth gave the Orioles their sixth victory in a row and kept the Yankees from the stretch.

After Milwaukee starter Jim Slaton, 13-16, struck out Mark Belanger—his 10th strikeout of the game—and fanned off Orlando Gomez, he issued consecutive walks to Rich Coggins, Paul Blair and Bobby Grich, loading the bases.

Tom Murphy then relieved Slaton, and got pinch hitter Dave Duncan to fly out to Milwaukee's Gorman Thomas in left field, scoring Coggins with the winning run.

GRAIG NETTLES

Al Kaline, honored in pre-game ceremonies for having collected his 2,000th career hit last week, drove a run-scoring single to highlight a four-run sixth inning for the Tigers.

Kaline, who also singled in the second inning, now has 3,005 hits for his career. He plans to face against Baltimore Oct. 4, ending a 22-year career.

A crowd of 21,178 turned out at Tiger Stadium—mostly because of the Kaline ceremonies. The 39-year-old outfielder and designated hitter received several plaques and other gifts.

Reserve pinch batsman Manny Trillo hit a pair of run-scoring singles to lead Oakland over Chicago.

The A's, the defending world champions and first-place finishers in the West for the fourth year in a row, finished their home schedule before a crowd of 4,021 in their 79th home date. That brought their total home attendance for 1975 to 836,712, the second-lowest figure in the league.

Last year, playing 79 home dates, the A's drew 1,000,761.

Pirates and Cards Still Tied for First

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A loss to New York Mets might shake up the National League East race, but Pittsburgh Pirates manager Danny Murtaugh isn't worried.

"I don't think there's any reason for it," said Murtaugh Sunday, after a 5-3 loss to the Mets dropped the Pirates back a half game into a first-place tie with St. Louis Cardinals.

"We had the seven-game road trip against two pretty good clubs (St. Louis and Montreal) and came out of it with five victories," said the Pirate manager. "The way we play on the road, you'd safely say almost anything. Now when we had to, we came out with five out of seven.

Each team has three games left in the regular season.

In the other National League games, the Cardinals defeated Chicago Cubs 7-3; Cincinnati Reds trimmed San Francisco Giants 7-3; Houston Astros defeated Atlanta Braves 9-8 and Montreal Expos whipped Philadelphia Phillies 8-5. Los Angeles Dodgers, who have already clinched a tie for the National League West pennant, were idle Sunday.

In Saturday's games, Pittsburgh defeated New York 7-3, Chicago beat St. Louis 8-3, Cincinnati downed San Francisco 13-4, Montreal beat Philadelphia 8-5, Los Angeles topped San Diego 5-3 and Houston and Atlanta split a twi-night doubleheader, the Astros winning the first 5-3 but losing the second game 6-2.

Bob Apodaca fired a three-hitter to lead the Mets over the Pirates. Pittsburgh was blanked until the sixth when Gene Clines hit a pinch single to right field.

The Mets stalled Apodaca, 6-5, in an early lead, chasing him in the fourth in a three-run second inning.

Teddy Martinez opened the fourth with a bounding triple and trotted home on Duffy Dyer's fly ball for the game's first run. Then Wayne Garrett, who singled into the right field corner and Apodaca walked, scoring the Mets' second.

Dave Hahn's single gave the Mets two more runs and finished Brett, 3-6. Larry Demery relieved and Ayala's sacrifice fly scored the Mets' fourth New York run.

Jon Cour pinch three-run homer capped a four-run sixth inning victory over Chicago.

All four of the Cardinal runs in the sixth were unearned as pitcher Steve Stone committed a throwing error and shortstop Don Kessinger dropped the apparent inning-end pop fly before Cruz batting for ailing Reggie Smith, hit his fifth homer of the season.

The Cubs scored an unearned run in the first on a pair of side-to-under, she collected six singles, three birdies and two bogeys.

Mrs. Young, 39, won $3,750 for second with a 74-hole total of 214, five under par. Her final round was a 71.

Third was Sandra Haynie, 35, who has also won six tournaments this year. Miss Haynie shot a 71-214.

Carole Jo Skala was fourth at 71-217 followed by rookie Pat Bradley, 20, 71-218.

Jocelyne Bourassa of Shawinigan Que., was 69 to equal a fi-round 73 for 277. She had earlier scores of 79 and 76.

Carner Wins Sixth Tourney this Year

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Jocelyne Carner, helped by an eagle on the seventh hole, won her sixth tournament this year with a three-stroke victory Sunday over Donna Young in the $35,000 Portland golf tournament.

Mrs. Carner finished with a 71-211, eight-under-par on the 6,400-yard Columbia Edgewater Country Club course.

The first-place finish moved Mrs. Carner past $50,000 and breaking the $100,000 mark for the first time in Ladies' Professional Golf Association history. She has $94,919 this year, a single-season record.

Mrs. Carner led throughout the tournament, carding three-under-par 70s on the first two days. Starting the final round at

Team Canada Coasts To Another Victory

GOTEBORG, Sweden (CP) — Team Canada 74 pulled off its second Belleek exhibition victory in three days Sunday then left shortly after noon aboard an Air Canada charter for the last leg of an international hockey series with Russia.

The Canadians downed the Swedish national team 4-1 on a late goal by Frank Mahovlich after frittering away a three-goal lead in a game characterized by lusty contact. One ex-Sweden was a third-period penalty to Gordie Howe of Canada. He retaliated against Ilja Sjoeberstrom, whom the Canadians believed had been kicking.

Although coach Harry Harris said he is content with the Canadians' state of readiness, starting goaltender Jerry Cheevers is on the limp.

Cheevers received himself from the game halfway through the second period with Canada leading 3-1. He stopped out shortly after streaking to make a tough stop, one of many he produced in his 30-minute display.

His replacement, Don McLeod, was steadier than in some recent outings but gave up two third-period goals.

Cheevers probably will start the fifth game of the series in Tuesday night in Moscow, but there is a question how long the veteran will be able to play.

Canada opened a 3-0 first-period lead on goals by Bobby Hull, Mike Walton and Howe, then coasted until Sweden had tied the score. Then Mahovlich took a precise pass from Rejean Houle and drilled a low 30-foot shot past Swedish goalie Per Leif Holmqvist.

Bjorn Johansson pumped a loose puck past Cheevers in the second period and Tord Lundstrom and Mats Ahlberg beat McLeod at seconds apart in the third period.

Johansson's goal came after Canada's erratic defence gave the puck away several times in succession. A few moments later that, Cheevers retired giving 13,372 partisan fans cause for cheer.

Cheevers and McLeod combined for 30 saves, the same as McIntyre, Lundstrom deflected a goal-mouth pass for the second Swedish tally then set Ahlberg in the clear with a perfect breakaway pass. Cheevers and McLeod, no chance from close range.

The Swedish national team has been together only about a week and is no match for the game with Team Canada. Twelve members of the last two national teams have been replaced this year.

The Canadians dominated the first-period scoring but the play was fairly even in the second. Swedish goalie Holmqvist was pulled in favor of Tedea, Cheevers made outstanding stops before Canada swept down the ice to score.

The goaltender was perfect early in the third period when a penalty to Brad Selwood, one of the three teams called by ref. Ove Tom Brown of Toronto.

Hull thistered a shot past Holmqvist's shoulder for the first goal, then Mahovelich's low screamer had to be rebound by Walton for the centre's first goal in six international games played.

Late in the period, during a scramble on Dan Labraaten of the Swedes, Hull's wicked drive was deflected by Gordie Howe after Marty Howe dug the puck free along the boards.

Howe, 46 and all his regulars except Bruce MacGregor, who stayed in his hotel in Helsinki because of a sore throat and an upset stomach.

Team manager Bill Hunter said the assistant whips would be allowed to play in Tuesday's game.

Sweden, which had six clubs this season—Toronto, Montreal, Maryland, Minnesota and Philadelphia—is expected to expand to eight clubs in 1975. Possible cities are Cincinnati, Buffalo, and Boston.

The Toronto franchise has been switched to Long Island, N.Y., meaning because of poor attendance at Maple Leaf Gardens.

Rejects Offer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Owner Charles Finley of Oakland A's recently offered Horace G. Stoneham, president of San Francisco Giants, $1 million to move his baseball team to another city, the San Francisco Examiner reported Sunday.

The report said Stoneham rejected Finley's offer, and when Finley asked how much Stoneham would pay him to leave the area, the Giants' owner replied: "Not one cent."

Griffins Win NLL Championship

ROCHESTER (CP) — Rochester Griffins won the National Lacrosse League playoff title by dominating their Saturday night, defeating Philadelphia Wings 14-12 to take the best-of-seven final 4-0 before 2,338 fans.

Philadelphia, the regular-season champion, led 6-4 after the first period and the teams were deadlocked 11-11 going into the final period.

Brilliant goaltending by Wayne Hart kept the Wings in the game. Rochester cohost Philadelphia 12-6.

Kevin Parsons scored three goals to pace the Griffins, who used his two-man power play to the victory. Rick Bisson and Bob Bowman each chipped in twice with single goals going to Stan Hudson, Joe Magee, Al Gordeneer, Graeme Gait, Charlie Henderson, Bill Foote and Tom Prasel.

Terry Sveeland had three goals for Philadelphia, Terry Lloyd and John Grant had two each while Jim Hinkens, Larry Ferguson, Joey Krzeczj, Jim Wasson and Bob Goulding each scored once.

The league, which had six clubs this season—Toronto, Montreal, Maryland, Minnesota and Philadelphia—is expected to expand to eight clubs in 1975. Possible cities are Cincinnati, Buffalo, and Boston.

The Toronto franchise has been switched to Long Island, N.Y., meaning because of poor attendance at Maple Leaf Gardens.

Interception Turns Argonaut Tide

OTTAWA (CP) — An interception by defensive halfback Wayne Allison in the third quarter was the key to Toronto Argonauts' 19-7 win Saturday over Ottawa Rough Riders in the Eastern Football Conference.

The game attracted 30,000 fans to Lansdowne Park. Allison's interception by Tim Adcox put the Argonauts into the Ottawa 38 and he galloped to the Ottawa 25 before he was tackled.

Two plays later quarterback Mike Rae threw the first of two touchdown passes — a seven-yard endzone toss to Larry Simpson—and the Argos were on their way to their first win in five games.

The victory left them only two points behind Ottawa, although still last in the EFC.

An interception by Tim Adcox puts in the fourth quarter led to Toronto's other touchdown. Rae lifted off all Ottawa hopes for a win with a 25-yard throw to Chuck Herd.

Zenon Andruszczyw added a convert in the Argo total.

Two plays later quarterback Condo sailed the Allison interception around the goal posts to record Ottawa's only TD.

Ottawa quarterback Jerry Keeley was good on 19 of 34 attempts for 232 yards in the air.

Double rain earlier in the day and threats of more to come, the attendance was 18,-000, the best in the east three Ottawa home games.

The Argos managed only 97 yards rushing but kept the Riders to the same ground gain.

Argo coach Joe Moon said the win could mean a victory ride for Toronto, whose playoff hopes were dim going into the game.

Moon praised Rae's passing—he completed nine of 20 throws for 170 yards.

Brock and McBride Get Murder Threat

CHICAGO (AP) — Outfielder Lou Brock of St. Louis Cardinals revealed Sunday she detailed in a letter received last week threatening his life and that of team-mate Bake McBride.

"I've been asked a lot of questions and have avoided answering them," Brock said at a news conference prior to the baseball game against Chicago Cubs. "I thought a press conference would take some of the pressure off me."

The letter, dated Sept. 18, said it was postmark and was received and opened by the Cardinals Sept. 20. It contained numerous racial slurs and obscene language.

It said in part:

"By beating out the (Pittsburgh) Pirates this year you're costing me a couple winnings. I've been on the phone to my bookie and he says I would have had as the result of a bet at large odds if I placed games to win back in April when they were already counted out by the oddsmakers.

"This is no idle threat: If I think as I can assure you that neither of you . . . will live past the third, fourth or fifth playoff game, whether it be in L.A. or Chicago.

"I have only a month or two to live. I have a brain tumor—incurable—and the pain will get you both and save the last shot for myself as since suicide is my only way out — according to my doctor's advised me, because of the last month in the intolerable stage, I do not intend to go through that agony. I had hoped to be able to leave my wife and children that $20,000, therefore since you damn Cardinals are making it away from me, I've decided to take two—possibly three—with me. I'll have a revolver loaded with six shots and be in the stands close enough to get you both and save the last shot for myself as since suicide is my only way out — according to my doctor's advised me, because of the last month in the intolerable stage, I do not intend to go through that agony. I had hoped to be able to leave my wife and children that $20,000, therefore since you damn Cardinals are making it away from me, I've decided to take two—possibly three—with me. I'll have a revolver loaded with six shots and be in the stands close enough to

"I am going to follow you to Louis, Chicago, Montreal and L.A. and Clacy if I decide to wait until the end meanwhile any two . . . can event it out wondering whether I'm going to make my move in St. Louis—wait till Chicago—wait till Montreal or wait till L.A. or Cle. I'm going to let you sweat it out but I cannot. yes I'm going to kill you both so every time you go out to the outfield you can look anxiously towards the stands for I'll be there and be sure to say goodbye to your family each morning for between now and the next two weeks or so you will have said goodbye for the last time."

Put Your Dukes Back Up, OHA Rescinds Ejection Rule

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Hockey Association voted overwhelmingly Sunday at a semi-annual meeting to rescind the rule calling for automatic ejection of a player from the game following suspension of a fighting major penalty.

The rule was initiated as a result of recommendations made by a provincial inquiry into violence in amateur hockey, headed by Toronto lawyer Wilfrid (Sam) McSwiney and held earlier this year.

It was rescinded by a vote of 97 to 85.5-6 majority.

Under the OHA constitution, 19 teams must agree to the calling of a special meeting and 26 official delegates are required for a vote on any motion.

Delegates voted by a show of hands to revert to the previous rule, for the time being at least, which calls for a game misconduct and a two-game suspension for any player receiving two major penalties in one game.

Each league in the OHA will hold separate meetings in the next few weeks to consider the new rule' proposals and will each send a delegate to a joint meeting with the association's Oct. 25 for general discussion.

The delegates agreed that the automatic expulsion rule will remain in effect until Friday and OHA President Clifford Fillips said any suggestions incurred in the interim will be studied. He said it would take this long to inform all teams, referees and linesmen of the Sunday decision.

During discussion preceding the vote, Hap Emms, owner of the St. Catharines Black Hawks franchise in the OHA Major Junior A series, said the elimination of fighting was "unrealistically wrong."

"You're going to increase injury, not lessen it," he said.

Several club representatives said that by eliminating fighting, instances of highsticking, spearing and butt-ending are increased.

Dave Dingman, representing Hamilton-Wentworth Flamingos of the Major series, said the figures were not representative of actual game conditions and that many infractions were not being called.

Dr. Charles McIlveen, Progressive Conservative member of the Ontario legislature for Oshawa and representing the Generals of the Major series, said he had put in more attempts from highsticking so far this year "than probably up until Christmas last year."

Walter (Punch) Schiever, Kingston Canadians of the Major series, said the cry for solo-minded sentiment "from people who just don't understand hockey."

He said three of his players already have suffered serious injuries, and a team of high sticks, more than all of last season.

"There is nothing worse than having a player have to resort to a high stick."

Roger Neilson, owner and coach of the Major series Peterborough Petes, said that during a junior tournament in the Soviet Union last year, he noticed a distinct difference in the reactions of Canadian and Russian players when...abscrue tions arose.

"When things get really tough, the Russian starts spearing and the Canadian drops his stick, he said. "Personally, I prefer the Canadian way."

Emms said he also objected to the rule because a fringe player could be sent out to take a top player off the ice, simply by making sure a fight ensued.

He said Dave Sabrina, one of the top players, was lost to the club early in a recent game in which a number...

Wally Scott, a member of the league executive, warned delegates later in the vote that they had "to consider the very real government pressure being exerted."

"You throw out this rule and you can bet your life Mr. Davis (Ontario premier) will introduce legislation to take hockey out of our hands," he said.

"Give it a chance. Give it a year."

Among the 168 persons who voted to reject the executive motion calling for the formal rejection of the rule were three of the 18 executive members in attendance—Frank Doherty of Thorold, former OHA president, Ted Walton of Kingston and Larry Pollock of Pene-

Miller Captures Kaiser

NAPA, Calif. (AP) — Johnny Miller wouldn't trade his performance on the U.S. professional golf tour like season for any major championship.

"I'd never trade this season for one major championship, no matter what Jack Nicklaus says or anybody else," Miller said after his overwhelming eight-stroke victory Sunday in the Kaiser International Open.

It gave him eight titles for the year—the most anyone has won on the American tour since Arnold Palmer had the same number in 1960—and put the season money-winnings at $346,921, breaking the single season mark of $320,542 set by Nicklaus in 1972.

His eight strokes win matched the biggest victory margin on the tour this season, with a six-under-par 66 in the final round and a 271 total, a distinct 17 under par on the Kaiser course.

He moved into a share of the lead with a hole-in-one on the second hole of Saturday's third round and put it out of reach with some fine putting in Sunday's final round. He one-putted seven times on the front nine, once holing from 60 feet; on his way to a 31.

PGA champ Lee Trevino finished with a final 67 and tied 15-year-old Billy Casper for second at 279. Casper, the leader through the first two rounds, had a final 72. Leonard Thompson took fourth alone at 68-280.

Bob Panasiuk of Windsor, Ont., shot 73 Saturday and 74 Sunday for a total of 280, good for $664.

Only two men have ever won every American tour title they've played in—Billy Casper with 16 in 1965 and Byron Nelson with his record 18 in 1945.

And his season will precede Miller to re-examine his values as golf.

"I think maybe I've played too much emphasis on the tour or tournaments. I think playing any tournament is important. Look at our undefeated Ryder Cup team. They got a better feel than the majors.

"Sure, I'd like to win another major. But I'm sure gonna have to look at my values, at my goals. Those are things I'm gonna have to think about."

Rangers Win Fourth

Canadiens and Bruins Brawl

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

New York Rangers rolled to their fourth consecutive victory in a National Hockey League pre-season game Sunday, but the most excited action took place in Boston where the Bruins battled in a brawl with Montreal Canadiens.

Scoring champion Phil Esposito was among those ejected from the Boston game, won by the Rangers 4-1.

The Rangers won 5-1 victory over Stanley Cup champion Flyers in Philadelphia, the Buffalo Sabres defeated Toronto Maple Leafs 5-1 at Chicago, Vancouver Canucks topped Pittsburgh Penguins 9-6 at Victoria, Kansas City Scouts beat Minnesota North Stars 6-1 at Port Huron, Mich., and Atlanta Flames downed the Jets of the World Hockey Association 5-1 in Winnipeg.

In Saturday's action, the North Stars defeated Los Angeles Kings 4-2, the Flyers defeated New England of the WHA 4-2, the Leafs edged Buffalo Sabres 5-4, St. Louis Blues beat Detroit Red Wings 5-3, the Penguins topped the Canucks 9-4, and Atlanta beat New York Islanders 4-2. Phoenix Roadrunners defeated Vancouver Blazers 7-3 in a WHA game at Regina.

Greg Polis paced the Rangers with two goals, Derek Sanderson, Dale Rolfe, and Ron Harris got one apiece. Rick Martin got the Flyers' only goal on a power play.

Pit Martin opened the second period with a goal for Chicago, assisted by Stan Mikita in the third period to beat Buffalo. Jo Lemi Darryl Sittler scored on a power play. Darcy Rota got an insurance goal for the Black Hawks with three seconds remaining.

Four goals in less than seven minutes in the second period carried the Canucks to victory. Andre Boudrias, Chris Oddleifson and Dennis Ververgaert each scored twice for the winners. Paulin Bordeleau, Jim Wiley and Jim Mair added the others.

Reed Hughes, Wilf Paiement, Dave Hudson, Lynn Powis and Ed Gilbert scored for the Scouts, an expansion team. Team captain Bill Goldsworthy accounted for Minnesota's only goal.

The Flames were sparked by Bob Leiter's two first-period goals. Tom Lysiak scored Atlanta's other goal in the third period, while Ron Ashton scored for Winnipeg's WHA entry midway through the final period.

It was the second win by NHL teams in three exhibitions against WHA clubs.

Argentina's Fabled Horses Disappearing into Sukiyaki

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — Argentina's fabled horse herds have been disappearing into Japanese sukiyaki and Belgian bouillon, but the government has moved to impose some conservation.

The country's horse population has been officially estimated at about two million, a drop from 34 million in 1922. At that rate, horses would be extinct here in a decade, some authorities say.

Most partners contest those figures and argue that unnecessarily harsh controls deprive the government of a rich source of income. They say new measures will cut the trade in horsemeat by 75 per cent.

In 1973, Argentina was the world's major exporter of horsemeat, selling it abroad for $45 million. This year the commodities are much lower but the price is almost double—up to $1,000 a ton.

The Japanese bought almost half of the export last year, mainly for a delicacy called sata and grilling it into sandwiches. Belgium specialty stores sold 14,000 tons in 1973, largely in heart patients and gourmets.

An oddsmaker in the meat industry says the taste for horsemeat comes from Napoleon's disastrous Russian campaign. Starving troops had to choose between their mounts or their saddles.

People have eaten horsemeat ever since in France and Belgium.

A healthy demand is growing for horsemeat in other countries, and that is a good second to beefsteak but also because many like its lean texture and especially its taste.

In Argentina, where steaks stank in the staple, there is virtually no market.

Since there is no local supply problem, authorities say, meat records are kept on slaughter, export and government grew suddenly alarmed.

New regulations say no horse may be killed if it is less than 12—or 18, in some cases—years old or unless it is sick or lame. Mares may be killed only under permission to bind slaughter further.

"Somewhere down the line the government has to realize that horses are a valuable commercial crutch," said one major importer.

Since there is no local supply problem, authorities say, meat records are kept on slaughter, export and government grew suddenly alarmed.

New regulations say no horse may be killed if it is less than 12—or 18, in some cases—years old or unless it is sick or lame. Mares may be killed only under permission to bind slaughter further.

"Somewhere down the line the government has to realize that horses are a valuable commercial crutch," said one major importer.

As the system works, horse buyers in Jesus survey fattening ranches and round up animals at about $250 each. Which animals are chosen and they are trucked to slaughterhouses, inspected, killed and then dispatched, one at a time, with small packets of drug capsules.

The hair is sold separately. Bones and hoofs are ground into tallow. Blood is dried for fertilizer. And edible meat, wrapped meat is shipped off to market.

Some knowledgeable stockmen challenge the government's premise. Said one: "No one has good figures on the number of horses in Argentina, not even the government. We are declining naturally, because more tractors are used. But working horses are still worth twice as much alive as dead."

For many, it's an emotional question. Horses carried conquistadores across the pampas and meant freedom for the untamed gauchos who make up the basic folklore of Argentina.

Most Argentines love horses, whether watching Sunday-afternoon races, annual stock shows or rural fiestas. One spirited gaucho told a friend recently as a national redeo:

"Lots of people are selling horses to packing plants for 2,500 pesos ($260). I would sell my wife before my horse."

Japan and Canada Trading Partners

TOKYO (CP) — Japan and Canada have become major trading partners over the last 20 years and there is every indication the trend will grow despite miserable world economic conditions, Japan says.

While beset by serious domestic economic problems and record trade deficits, Japanese government and business officials are steadily increasing trade with Canada.

"We'd like to build a close and, I hesitate, relationship," Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka told visiting Canadian reporters before leaving for Canada to hold talks with Prime Minister Trudeau.

"Canada may be able to live without Japan. But it is not the case with us. Japan needs Canada."

Since 1953, when Canadian-Japanese trade volume totalled only $122 million, growth has been dramatic. The volume reached $1.8 billion in 1973 and may top 3 billion this year.

Japan became Canada's second-most important trading partner in 1972 — behind the United States — ahead of Britain. Canada is Japan's fourth-most important trading partner.

Canada has a whopping balance-of-trade advantage with Japan. Canadian exports to Japan last year totalled $1.3 billion, compared with about $1 billion in Japanese sales to Canada. The trade of nearly two to one.

But Canadian officials say the figures give a distorted picture. More than 90 per cent of 1973 exports to Japan were raw or semi-processed materials which Japan needs, chiefly Canadian lobe. Japanese exports were more than 70 per cent finished products.

Canada is anxious to process more resources before exporting — a goal emphasized heavily in official Japanese-Canadian talks.

The flow of trade goods between Japan and Canada demonstrates the countries' heavy dependence on raw materials from abroad.

Copper ore and concentrates made up the largest single trade item in 1973. Japanese purchases totalled $43 million. Coal, iron ore, lumber and pulpseed were next, followed by zinc, nickel, molybdenum and potash.

Automobiles topped the list of Japanese exports to Canada — $186 million. Sheet metal, machinery, television sets, stereo players, electronic products and business machines were the next most important items.

Japan complains little about the trade imbalance with Canada, despite economic woes including the biggest inflation rate of any industrialized country, record trade deficits and sore economic growth.

"The gap is not too large in five, six," said Kunihiko Saito, a North American affairs specialist with the Japanese foreign ministry. "It would have to widen substantially for Japan to worry."

The attitude reflects Japan's critical dependence on outside resources. It also underlines Japanese hopes that domestic belt-tightening and economic austerity will turn the economy around and restore the unparalleled vitality that brought Japan world envy in the years after the Second World War.

Film Screened

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada's newest leap into the world of big-business film-making got off its ground Thursday night at the world premiere of Why Rock the Boat?

The film about ego-eyed romance and high-class rock music cynicism, produced by the National Film Board with Columbia Pictures as distributor, has been touted as the biggest moneyer to the record line of Canada's commercial hits.

Harry Barnes, a reporter who comes to Montreal's The Daily Witness, learns quickly about the high life and the hypocritical managing editor.

Barnes, played by Stuart Gilard, fails to love with a reporter for a rival newspaper, Juliette Mercier, played by the vivacious Toronto actress Tiin Lee. She coyly rejects his advances for fear of endangering her own dedication to forming a new-paper guild.

In order to secure his love's affection, Harry stages a ridiculous drunken recruiting campaign in the newsroom of The Daily Witness that succeeds not only in winning the support of his fellow workers but in endearing himself to Miss Lee.

The performances are authentic and heavy-accented will get a special kick at reliving some of the fun and temperament, not having been there before it all lost some of its magic.

The film opens in Calgary Oct. 10, in Toronto, Ottawa, Hamilton, Winnipeg, Edmonton and Vancouver Oct. 11, and in Halifax Nov. 11.

Ton of Meat Seized Each Month at Airport

TORONTO (CP) — Customs officials at Toronto International Airport say 2,500 pounds of meat a month is seized from travellers' hand-luggage and hauled away to the incinerator.

The man-'eat women working on the customs floor are finding surprises there any more. Only two pounds out of 10 piled they are bringing meat in. The rest will try any trick to fool customs.

Recently a grey-haired woman was searched and several pounds of rotting sausages were found wrapped around her waist.

Another woman brought an extra couple of dollars of goods, he's not really heavily-endowed. But if someone brings in several ounces of heroin he's having a lot of people."

Under the Customs Act, a customs officer has the right to inspect your package and if someone is suspected, an officer of the same sex may make a personal search.

The odds of getting caught smuggling are low even having baggage checked are slight. Only about one in a thousand are made bags checked and fewer then one in a thousand are searched.

Customs officers said there is no absolute way of choosing whom to examine and even if they were, they wouldn't give their trade secrets away.

Top Award

OUISTERHAM, France (AFP) — A Canadian film, produced by the National Film Board and entitled The Sea, won the top film award Thursday at the International Festival of Documentary Films on the Environment.

The film first won the gold medal for the marine environment category before continuing on to win the over-all gold medal.

Your Horoscope

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL

Tuesday, October 1

Aries (March 21-April 19) Tread cautiously over the next few days in situations where you are dependent on partners or associates.

Taurus (April 20 - May 20) Don't try to sidestep responsibilities at this time. It will only make matters more complicated and frustrating.

Gemini (May 21-June 20) Harmony is absent in your present relationship with two friends. The problem stems from one thing: that's either owed or loaned.

Cancer (June 21-July 22) Be careful today and tomorrow. Don't go out on a limb thinking you have the support of allies when the chips are down. You don't.

Leo (July 23-Aug. 22) Don't try to impose your ideas upon others—the results will be far from what you hope for. Let everyone think for themselves.

Virgo (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be very careful in business dealings the next few days, particularly if a friend is involved. A disagreement over money could cause a real problem.

Libra (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) If you intend to further yourself interests you'll have to be careful who you associate with—and carry his own weight.

Scorpio (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) You're apt to feel a bit pressured now. You'll try to do far more than you should. Try to effect matters, concentrate on priority matters.

Sagittarius (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) Before you get too involved with a new acquaintance it's needed to learn more about the person. See if you really share common interests.

Capricorn (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) It wouldn't hurt to be a bit more cautious than usual regarding your possessions. Don't leave the house unlocked.

Aquarius (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) A few wrong words from an arrogant individual will be all that's needed to spark your temper. Stay away from bossy types.

Pisces (Feb. 20-March 20) Only to whom you are indebted may lean on you's bit at this time if you've let far behind in your obligations. Stay abreast.

Distorted Picture

The growth of trade between Canada and Japan in the last 20 years has been dramatic, and Japan became Canada's second most important trading partner in 1973. Graph shows Canada's exports to and imports from Japan from 1970 to 1974, including the first six months of 1974. While Canada has a large balance-of-trade advantage, officials say the figures give a distorted picture. More than 90 per cent of the 1973 exports were raw or semi-processed materials, which do not create jobs for Canadians. (CP Newsmap)

Canada Trying to Change Trade Pattern with Japan

TOKYO (CP) — The biggest trade pull in growing trade with Japan has been to boost sales of Canadian manufactured goods.

Japan has snapped up Canadian raw resources to help feed its hungry industrial network but has ignored finished products turned out by Canadian factories.

The trend, not surprising considering Japanese exporters' dependence on imported raw materials, has caused increasing concern in Ottawa.

The Japanese bought $1.8 billion in Canadian trade goods last year; all but 1.7 per cent in raw or semi-processed materials. More than 70 per cent of the $1 billion in Canadian purchases from Japan were in finished products, direct from assembly lines employing Japanese workers.

"We want to change this disproportionate trend," said a Canadian trade department official. "You don't employ many people by accepting resources out of the ground and shipping them off raw."

Japanese spokesmen, including Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka, are sympathetic but have a stock reply: Canadian manufactured goods must fit Japanese circumstances in cost and performance.

"If not, the sales won't be there," a Japanese foreign ministry spokesman told a delegation of visiting Canadian reporters recently.

He said many trade restrictions have been removed in recent years by liberalized Japanese trade laws.

"The doors are open. Basically, it's up to you to come to us."

Canada has made a dismal showing in attempts to sell finished wares in Japan.

Trade Minister Alastair Gillespie launched one offensive last year by visiting Tokyo and expounding the virtues of Canadian furs, nuclear reactors, aircraft and anti-pollution equipment. Canadian trade fairs also have been held, but the efforts have made scarcely a dent in the Japanese market.

"Frankly speaking, Canadian products have lagged behind Europe and the United States in quality," said Yoshitaro Iwasa, vice-president of the powerful Keidanren, largest businessmen's organization in Japan.

Canada is trying to attract Japanese investment that will build some of the plants necessary to increase the level of manufactured exports.

Japan does not object but officials, including Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka, say it will take time to change established trade patterns.

"We want to co-operate in some good trade relations with Canada, are vital," said one Japanese official. "But the initiative has to come from the

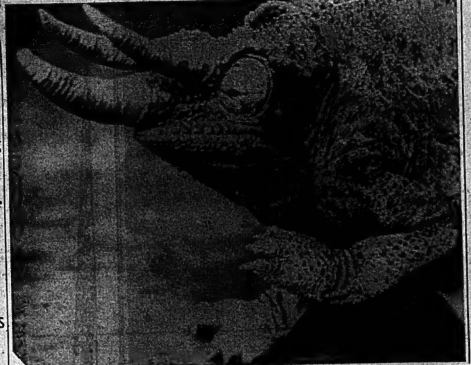
Five Burned

SIMCOE (CP) — Five men from Jamaica were in hospital here Sunday following an explosion and fire in a cottage where they were living at Turkey Point, 20 miles southwest of here.

Two—identified by hospital officials only as W. Osborne and L. Roberts—were listed in serious condition.

Decentralized Growth Planned

ORILLIA (CP) — Provincial minister Donald Irvine said Saturday that the Ontario government will introduce a plan this fall to encourage decentralization of industrial growth in the province.



He said both he and Provincial Treasurer John White have been developing a policy in the sensitive which areas of the province should be given increase and how to provide incentive to industry to locate in those areas.

Mr. Irvine, who serves as Ontario without portfolio, to Mr. White's ministry, said the province will also act to discourage industrial growth in areas such as the Hamilton-Toronto corridor.

Three Score New MPs Start Their Jobs Today

OTTAWA (CP) — Outdoors, on the steps of today's throne speech opening the new Parliament, and now in the House of Commons itself, 60 newly elected representatives outside the legislature are to interview some of their colleagues — and secretaries for the first time.

They step into the green-carpeted, wood-panelled chamber and most of the 282 members will be returning for what Parliament has established.

Others bring their own secretaries, established by the Commons, but will be able to get the services of big government on fire.

The 47-year-old auctioneer and former Manitoba governor is concerned about the slow pace of the parliamentary process. Many good bills never see the light of day and the House is to blame for the slowness of the system.

A former hockey player radio station owner-manager, Mrs. Campagnolo has been named parliamentary secretary to Jean Marchand, minister of fitness and amateur sport.

Rev. Andy Hogan, the first Liberal member of Parliament for the Commons, said one of his chief ambitions is to make welfare payments a matter of dignity of the Atlantic provinces. He represents Cape Breton-East Richmond for the New Democrats, and is the only NDP member east of Ontario.

He wants to speed for a new deal plan for the region, presumably located on Cape Breton Island.

Father Hogan, 56, also said there is running out for offshore petroleum and the underdeveloped world.

Armand Cassette, who represents northwestern Quebec's Villeneuve riding, wants international free loans to the provinces from the Bank of Canada and spending funds to ease the cost of living.

In relation to Social Credit Leader Real Cassette, he said he will fight for higher old age pensions and a guaranteed annual income.

Mr. Cassette was the only new Social Credit member elected in the July 8 federal election.

Most employees plans to work at what he calls meaningful jobs, but how of them newspapers and equipped for back-stage logical jobs.

Development of the North is one of the most pressing concerns.

Jean Campagnolo, a Liberal from Shawa in northern Ontario Columbia, is another new MP with hopes for improving the lot of the native people and for new development of northern regions.

Mrs. Campagnolo, 41, said she is concerned about the slow

Tighter Immigration Rules Planned

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says immigration Minister Robert Andras is planning a major tightening of regulations designed to make it more difficult for immigrants to come to Canada if they are not needed in the work force.

The newspaper says immigration department sources have said the move to tie immigration more closely to labor market conditions will come shortly and will reduce immigration affected.

The new control mechanism will probably penalize in some way all applicants who do not have a specific job to come to or those who lack skills to match specific pockets of local need, job demand, the newspaper says. It will be coupled with a crackdown on employers who create phoney job offers and a special campaign to prevent racketeering.

Mackasey Blames Inflation on Profiteering

OTTAWA (CP) — Executive profiteering and a few positions in the public sector are largely responsible for the current inflation, Labor Minister Mackasey said today.

The minister also was asked when the country's postal problems would be improved.

"Let's get that in perspective," he replied. "It's far more in the post office than it is with the public. It's all the fault of Alexander Graham Bell."

Mackasey said he was not sure when the country's postal problems would be improved.

"All our industries are vacuuming up capital industries that are making money," he said. "It's been a factor," he said on the CTV television network program Question Period. Taped for broadcast Sunday.

Mr. Mackasey added that he would like to see a new credit organization on the west, Ontario. A loan psychiatric view of the economy might give the prevailing inflationary trend.

"Psychology plays a role, a big role," he said.

Mr. Mackasey, who also served in past Liberal cabinets as labor and manpower minister, also said he favors higher wages for many post office workers. In some areas of the country, he said, the employment freeze-over rate was as high as 300 per cent.

"We're having a hard time to retain these people because of competitive wages in other segments of society," he said. But wages were not everything.

"The average worker doesn't relate to good employees strictly with money. There are other things that are more important," he replied. "It's fun to work in the post office than down in a factory, but it's still the same job, not money to the workers.

"We're still not changing, we're not in the river like they're in England and we've got the biggest deficit in the world, other than China.

"We've got to understand that we're living beyond our means today in Italy and we're not in this condition don't forget it. Radically burning it as they do here."

If you're a homeowner, the recent dramatic increases in housing values have probably been one of your few consolations in these times of spiraling inflation.

But this gain could go up in smoke if your home were destroyed by a fire.

Sure, you have insurance. But does your insurance reflect the tremendous rise in home construction cost?

That's what you'd be faced with if you had to rebuild your home. You might be in for a shock.

Home construction costs – labour and materials combined – have risen 40.0 per cent in Ontario since early 1971.

The best way to protect the investment your home represents is to get together with your insurance agent or broker and discuss your insurance. You owe it to your peace of mind.

The Insurance Bureau of Canada also has two pamphlets which can help you protect the investment in your home. "Has Your Home Outgrown Your Home Insurance" outlines some of the things you should think about when you are reviewing your home insurance to meet current values.

"Sixty Ways to Prevent Fire in your Home" details some of the common fire hazards around the home. You can use it as a checklist to make sure that your home is as safe as possible from fire.

These pamphlets are available free of charge from The Insurance Bureau of Canada, 170 University Avenue, Toronto, Ontario M5H 3B3.

We don't want you to have a fire in your home. But if you do have one, we want you to be fully insured so you are not faced with the prospect of finding thousands of dollars to rebuild your home.
